AI in Financial Decision Making

Arif Ahmed, Veena Hingarh, Arnaaz Ahmed

The increasing use of AI has posed challenges and brought benefits at organizational and individual levels. However, financial decision makers are often not equipped with the necessary skills and may even feel threatened by the speed at which AI is automating the decision-making process. Taking a balanced view encompassing applications from operations, finance, and risk management, this book does not aim to turn finance experts into coders, but to clearly connect AI and ML tools to specific business issues. This will help financial decision makers actively engage with projects involving implementation of ML tools in their organizations.

Applied Data Science in FinTech

Models, Tools, and Case Studies

Juraj Hric, Yiping Lin

This textbook offers a comprehensive introduction to data science and financial technology, with a focus on advanced tools, data modeling, and their applications in FinTech. Adopting an inquiry-based approach, it integrates detailed case studies, clear definitions of financial terms, and practical examples to guide readers through core concepts. Step-by-step illustrations show how programs are developed, making the material accessible for students. Dedicated chapters explore cutting-edge applications like AdviceTech, AgTech, PropTech, chatbots, and sentiment analytics. It also provides sample code and datasets, enabling readers to experiment, practice, and design their own programs.

How Not to Hate Advertising

A Creative's Guide to A Long and (Dare I Say) Happy Career in A Remarkably Silly Industry

Nick Sonderup

This is not a "how to break into the business" book, and it doesn't aim to explain the creative process and how to come up with ideas. Instead, it accepts and expects that the reader has already done the hard part of breaking in and (hopefully) getting some work produced that they're proud of—it's the "what's next" to avoid burnout, filled with practical tips, sage advice, and real stories from an array of people who have definitely hated advertising at some point—but stuck with it anyway.

The Future of Banking

A Global Blueprint for the Bank of Tomorrow

Gulzar Singh

The Future of Banking offers a global and practical blueprint for reimagining the modern financial institution. At a time when digital transformation alone is no longer sufficient, this book focuses on rebuilding trust, driving inclusive access, and enabling resilient institutional architecture. The volume allows readers to engage with both high-level transformation themes and hands-on implementation models. It bridges the gap between academic vision and practitioner execution, offering a robust architecture for leaders navigating systemic disruption, ESG mandates, and hybrid infrastructure needs on a global scale.

Quantum Finance

The CFO's Survival Kit for an Uncertain World

Arif Ahmed

Since they assume a static environment, many traditional financial models fall short of capturing market dynamics, leading to poor outcomes. This book draws parallels between quantum mechanics and financial management to explain the erratic behavior of the world of finance. It uses quantum concepts including uncertainty, superposition, and entanglement that have been nurtured over time by renowned physicists. But rather than a deep dive into quantum mechanics or computations, it presents simple principles and recent case studies to illustrate them.

2ND EDITION

Dynamics of International Business

Globalization and Geopolitics

Andrea Colli Bocconi University, Italy

This thoroughly-revised new edition provides an in-depth comparative historical analysis of the structural and strategic evolution of international enterprises. The book's structure has been enhanced: two chapters in each section comprehensively cover an era's 'macro' framework and its 'micro' structures. New material has been added, especially regarding current geopolitical tensions threatening to disrupt the global economy. Finally, this edition includes updated case studies based on a diverse range of industries and countries. An essential textbook for economic and business history courses; students and scholars of international business will also find it to be a useful resource.

Emerged Markets

The Global Economy's Better Half

Vasuki Shastry

This book builds a compelling case that a new settlement is needed, that rebalances power, well beyond existing arrangements such as the G20, and creates a shared vision to build economic growth and prosperity. The alternative is a world which lurches from crisis to conflict, jeopardising peace and prosperity. The very phrase "emerging markets" connotes that some countries are still developing and cannot compete with mostly Western global economic heavyweights. But the rise of China and India have not been isolated phenomena, with many other emerged countries also becoming confident about their place in the world: these are emerged markets, not the Global South or the Third World.

Edited by Brendan Walker-Munro, Tommy Shih

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The Routledge International Handbook of Research Security examines research security – the act of protecting and securing university research and teaching in the name of national security – through a multi-disciplinary and comparative lens. Contributors explore theoretical, domestic, international, and practical pursuits of research security across the globe. Over six parts, the handbook covers topics ranging from the composition of research security programs and frameworks to the futures of research security and academic freedom. Academic experiences of espionage, foreign interference, intelligence, and counter-intelligence operations are discussed too.

Winning with Data and the Athlete Brand

Fiona Green

Professional athletes are more than performers — they are sports brands, and data is the key that will identify, optimise, measure, and predict their value. For business leaders navigating the intersection of sports, marketing, and technology, this essential guide reveals how the emotional connection athletes create—memories that last decades beyond their final performances—represents vastly untapped commercial potential. At the heart of this transformation lies data—the critical element that will enable the next generation of athletes and their representatives to secure sustainable futures commensurate with their extraordinary dedication and sacrifice.

Corporate (Social) Responsibility under Authoritarianism

Interpretation, Communication, and Implementation in China

Xu Kang

Series: Routledge Advances in Management and Business Studies

This book provides an in-depth exploration of corporate social responsibility (CSR) in the authoritarian context. It challenges prevailing CSR frameworks, which largely derive from liberal democratic contexts and overlook how political institutions shape the conceptualisation and practice of corporate responsibility. By situating CSR within China's political-economic system, the book sheds light on how CSR is dynamically interpreted, strategically communicated, and selectively implemented by corporate and state actors.

National Culture and Corporate Responses to Climate Change

Le Luo Macquarie University, Australia, Qingliang Tang Western Sydney University, Australia

This book attempts to analyze the impact of national culture on a range of corporate carbon practices, including carbon disclosure, carbon management and governance initiatives, carbon assurance, carbon investment and carbon performance in the context of evolving climate institutions in the major economies since the Paris Agreement. It explores the interaction between hard institutions (carbon policies and regulation) and soft institutions (i.e., national culture) and its impact on carbon practices. This book will interest researchers and policy makers working on sustainability, accounting and environmental management.

Redefining Networking

How to Lead with Your Unique Value

Monique Kelley

Networking has come to imply a transaction, and the available literature on networking focuses on transactional events, cocktail meetups, and going in with the intention of getting out. But what if instead of suiting up and passing out business cards, the focus was on contributing to others, starting with close circles of coworkers, customers, friends, and family? This longer-term versus transactional approach to networking is what makes this book unique, paired with the experience of author Monique Kelley, who's built a career as a communications consultant for Fortune 50 and other global corporations with no advertising—solely through the network she's cultivated for over 20 years.

Continuous Value Management in Healthcare

Elevating Safety, Cost and Efficiency with a Staff-led Approach

Cameron Stark, Kay Cordiner, Poonam Gupta, Jeffrey Rakover

There are international pressures on healthcare delivery because of increasing demand and rising costs. Maintaining quality while containing costs is a challenge in both privately and state funded services. If service quality decreases patients suffer and staff are often unhappy. Recruitment and retention become a challenge in services with perceived reduced quality. Continuous Value Management offers a method of managing the tensions between cost, quality, and staff engagement. This book describes a method of managing quality while containing costs.

Healthcare Cybersecurity, Privacy, and Data Protection

Present and Future

Lee Kim

Series: HIMSS Book Series

Patient information is not like other types of information. It is very personal. That is why healthcare information must be kept both private and secure. Yet, there are many challenges. From technical misconfigurations to vulnerabilities and human mistakes, there are several reasons why healthcare cybersecurity programs face common pitfalls. The strength of a program largely depends on how well it is governed—and how well we are managing who (and what) has access to our systems, networks, devices, and physical spaces; when they have access; and why they have access.

Healthcare Safety and Security

Navigating a Service in Crisis

Charles Schnabolk, Bernard Scaglione

According to the Joint Commission, healthcare workers are around 4 times as likely to experience workplace violence compared to workers in private industry as a whole. This high rate of violence can increase staff turnover and even discourage qualified professionals from entering the industry in the first place. Developing healthcare security, and creating a more secure environment, can improve staff retention and ensure that patients get the care they deserve. Written by security gurus, Charles Schnabolk and Ben Scaglione, this book is an expose on the current state of healthcare and the dangers and risks associated with being a patient navigating within the healthcare environment.

Leading Improvements and Organizational Excellence in Hospitals

Edited by Danny Samson

This book provides the core knowledge that all doctors, nurses, allied health professionals, and non-clinical leaders and managers should have to plan and execute both large scale and continuous incremental improvement. The book is rich with examples and case studies, with a focus on 'What works' in healthcare organisational improvement and how it can be executed effectively. Most of the book's contributors are senior practitioners who have first-hand experiences of leading healthcare transformation projects, and can speak to how constraints can be overcome to provide real gains. This book will be of great interest to clinical leaders, medical colleges and healthcare associations.

Radical Retirement

The Reinvention of Self After Work

Edited by Christine A. Eastman, Kath Houston

Most retirement books advocate for a soft and safe landing into retirement. Radical Retirement awakens a sense of excitement about reinventing your sense of self and stepping out into a new time in your life, which might not follow what you had previously thought or what others had thought for you. Each of the chapters, written by people across a wide variety of sectors and with different experiences and stories to tell, show in an honest way how to seize the opportunity to take life in a new and perhaps unexpected direction.

The Emotional Life of Organisations

How Feelings Shape Culture, Performance, and Results

Michael Drayton

Organisations grow, compete, and change based on the emotions that drive people's choices, politics, and goals. Emotions can either energise or paralyse people. Most business books ignore this fundamental driver of organisational behaviour and almost exclusively focus on the logical and 'cognitive' aspects of work. Using an easy-to-read and engaging style, The Emotional Life of Organisations will help people and businesses understand the important role emotions play in the workplace by using research, stories, useful tips, and writing assignments.

Global Business Education

An Innovative Dialogue

Paul R. Carliile, Steven H. Davidson, Howard Thomas

How can business education enhance value for students, employers, and the rest of society? How will technology continue to challenge the model of business education? And how can academia and industry collaborate to make sure that students develop critical leadership and management competencies? These are just some of the critical questions facing business school leaders, educators and industry experts today. With insights from some of the leading business school deans and educators, the book describes the evolution of the Jam method from a fully online conversation to a series of regional, hosted dialogues.

Information Assets

An Executive Guide to the Untapped Driver of Business Success

James Price , Nina Evans

In the age of Artificial Intelligence, organisations are increasingly using data, information and knowledge as a competitive weapon. Their data, information and knowledge are arguably their most valuable assets. Yet, this fourth asset is managed badly when compared to the other three assets, namely money, people and infrastructure with considerable risk to the organisation. Executives are accountable for the success of their organisations, and those who fail to manage this critical resource and business enabler effectively can be regarded as negligent.

Leadership Challenges

Sustainability, Skills and Inclusivity in Industry 5.0

Edited by Rafał Śliwiński Poznan University of Economics and Business, Poland

Series: Routledge Studies in Leadership Research

This book explores the multifaceted challenges facing business leaders in the third decade of the 21st century, as they navigate an increasingly complex, volatile, and interconnected global environment. It begins by situating leadership transformation within the broader context of megatrends such as demographic shifts, technological acceleration, geopolitical turbulence, and the growing imperative of sustainable development. Through conceptual analysis and case-based reflections, the book identifies key leadership competences, ranging from communicative agility to paradox management, that are essential for guiding organizations toward long-term competitiveness and legitimacy.

Leadership, Management and AI

Amanpreet Singh Chopra , Sridhar Manohar

Series: Routledge Studies in Leadership Research

This book is about the future of leadership and organisations with the integration of Artificial Intelligence in the business ecosystem. The book, from the perspective of academic inquiries, suggests that the emergence of Artificial Intelligence as a transformative force in business calls for redefining traditional competitive and leadership theories and frameworks. With the integration of AI in organisational hierarchy, leadership need to deliberate on what to delegate and how much to delegate to AI for the decision-making process and what kind of firewalls would be required to have oversight on AI and move towards developing and deploying 'Responsible AI'.

The Secret to Getting Stuff Done

The Non-Negotiable Mindset

Robin Landa

The Secret to Getting Stuff Done introduces a four-step identity-based system that transforms wishful thinking into consistent, meaningful action:

- Identify what truly matters to your future self • Focus on the critical few actions that move the needle • Act consistently—regardless of how you feel or what's happening • Make it non-negotiable—no debates, no excuses

Whether you're pursuing professional goals, creative work, or personal growth, this approach makes progress feel natural instead of forced.

Digital Technology in Management Education

Asian Approaches to Building Employable Skills

Edited by Yu-Ting Huang, Ying Zhu University of South Australia, Australia

This book explores how different business schools in Asian countries are utilizing digital technologies and AI in their programmes. It looks at the challenges and opportunities of how business schools may achieve evidence-based program development. Looking at business education in Asian countries such as Singapore, China, Taiwan and Macau, the book then provides examples of how business schools are adopting AI and digital technology in curriculum reform and enhancing industry-academic integrated education. This edited volume will interest policy makers, business education providers, and professionals engaged in industry-academic integration.

Ethnography of Dying and the Emergence of Palliative Marketing

Michele CorengiaSeries: Routledge Studies in Marketing*

Drawing on a decade of ethnographic research in palliative contexts across Switzerland, Italy, and the United States, this book unfolds a radical question: can marketing grasp dying? Can it offer not only tools, but a language for societies to relate to finitude? Through the case study of a COVID-designated hospital in Locarno, the conceptualization of the temporal consumer, and the unveiling of palliative clearings, it develops a new epistemology of marketing at the threshold of life. Bridging marketing, medical humanities, and palliative care, this volume will speak to scholars, healthcare professionals, and all those seeking a vocabulary for dying in market society.

Organizations, Institutions, and Intellectual Norms

An Analytical Philosophy View of Institutional Change

Alexander Styhre

Series: Routledge Studies in Management, Organizations and Society

Organizations, Institutions, and Intellectual Norms: An Analytical Philosophy View of Institutional Change provides a new perspective on institutional theory by incorporating an analytical philosophy framework. This volume critiques the traditional assumptions that institutional logics or work inherently shape societal structures, arguing instead that intellectual norms and everyday language play a central role in the establishment, reproduction, and modification of institutions.

The Emotional Side of Organizational Change

How to Survive and Thrive

Jennifer Bryan

Typically, people are afraid of having to face emotions and manage them. This is particularly problematic when a leader is trying to enable a change within an organisation. So how do leaders and managers of change address emotion – this book delves into the aspects of change that managers often don't like to acknowledge but need to embrace to truly understand behaviours and implement change. This book brings together foresight tools, such as horizon scanning and trend analysis, along with organisational development tools, such as team, systems and process analyses, to really bottom out the type of change they are planning.

Stone Soup Strategy

A Guide to Successful Innovation

Kenneth Lowe

Technology innovation failure has become so routine that no one is surprised by it, but the age of AI, remote teams, and constant disruption demands a new approach—one that embraces both individual self-interest and collective goals. This book taps the ancient and powerful storytelling tradition to present a deceptively simple model for building high-performance teams, to show how even the most complex projects can be transformed into journeys of shared success.

The Invisible Project Manager

Why Artificial Intelligence Will Run Tomorrow's Projects — Without You

Peter Taylor

What if the best project manager didn't exist? In this provocative and future-facing manifesto, Peter Taylor, the original Lazy Project Manager, asks the uncomfortable questions about the impact on his profession from the inexorable rise of artificial intelligence. It defines the 'Invisible Project Manager' future where AI systems manage workflows, timelines, and resources, while the 'human-in-the-loop' will be a vastly different skillset moving from the managers of activities to guardians of outcome. This book is an essential and thought-provoking guide to evolution for forward-looking leaders, digital transformation strategists, and change agents who are planning for the long game.

The Myths of Project Management

Bradley Rolfe

Despite the increasing proliferation of project management frameworks and best practices, the failure rate of complex projects remains extraordinarily high. This book examines how organizations systematically undermine the projects they commission and why traditional approaches to project management are failing managers. The Myths of Project Management challenges readers to let go of the seductive lie of control, and to become a better manager of complex projects. It will be of particular interest to senior project managers, program managers, and portfolio directors.

Exploring Commercial, Social, and Digital Innovation from the Customer Perspective

Edited by Seidali Kurtmollaiev, Line Lervik-Olsen, Tor W. Andreassen

Series: Routledge Studies in Innovation, Organizations and Technology

The traditional narrative of innovation often centers around the firm, overlooking the role of the customer as the ultimate judge and beneficiary of innovations. This book challenges the firm's right to define innovation, advocating instead for a customer-centric approach. By exploring customer-oriented strategies and discussing the implications of commercial, social, and digital innovations, it provides a detailed guide for leaders, innovators, entrepreneurs, and students to navigate the complexities of modern business environments. This volume will be a valuable resource for scholars of innovation management, strategic management and marketing.

MOVE

AI-Powered Strategy for a Fast World

Tim Lewko

Developed by Tim Lewko, a 25-year strategy veteran, MOVE shows leaders how to embed artificial intelligence directly into the strategy process and validate strategic bets, pressure-test assumptions, and adapt faster than the competition – all while maintaining control over final decisions. This book reveals how AI can power real-time data analysis, surface critical indicators that signal when a strategic bet is veering off-course, and show when emerging threats require immediate attention. In a rapidly changing world, MOVE is a key tool for senior executives, business leaders, board members, CEOs, Presidents, and P&L owners to regain control across the entire execution cycle.

Return on Intelligence

A Strategic Enterprise Playbook for Scalable AI Agents

Kristin L. Milchanowski

A call to lead with empathy, this book redefines what transformation means in the age of artificial intelligence. Where most organizations still chase automation and efficiency, Kristin Milchanowski, PhD, reveals a deeper truth: intelligence is not a tool. It is infrastructure. Cutting through the hype and ambiguity that surrounds AI, she bridges the gap between technological deployment and meaningful transformation. Written for senior executives, transformation leaders, policymakers, and technologists who are navigating the frontier of AI adoption, as well as MBA, AI strategy, and leadership students.

Bank Performance Measures

Navigating AI, Climate and Geopolitical Risks

Paweł Niedziółka

Series: Banking, Money and International Finance

The reforms introduced in the aftermath of the global financial crisis of 2007-2009 have had the desired effect, in that banks are better capitalised, have higher liquidity buffers and the share of non-performing loans is low. This book argues, however, that we still need to remain vigilant. The world has not yet recovered from the pandemic, and we are now faced with new challenges, particularly climate, technological and geopolitical risks. The book evaluates a commercial bank in the context of the climate crisis and risk. It will find an audience among students, academics, researchers in finance and banking, as well as policymakers and regulators.

Business Model Disclosure in Non-Financial Reporting

Bogusława Bek-Gaik, Anna Surowiec

Series: Routledge Studies in Accounting

This book offers a current picture of business model disclosure practices, discussing the benefits and challenges and assessing the most recent regulatory developments. It examines the quality and usefulness of the business model disclosures presented in corporate reporting, as well as highlighting the best practices that have been employed to date. It complements the current state of research in this area and identifies the degree of implementation of the business model into the conceptual framework of the organization's accounting and reporting system. Attention is also given to the evolution of disclosures in non-financial reporting, particularly concerning the business model.

Carbon Accounting for the Sustainable Transition

Accountability, Compliance, and Climate Change

Assunta Di Vaio, Tayyab Ali

Series: Routledge Studies in Accounting

It is now more crucial than ever for organizations to intensify the scope and pace of their actions. This book focuses on the existing gaps in the sustainability accounting research field for carbon matter. It addresses the decarbonization practices adopted by firms to achieve the sustainability transition, including the implementation of new technologies and sustainable practices, analysing their impact from a socio-economic and environmental perspective. This book provides a rigorous systematization of scientific literature and grey literature concerning the measurement and reporting systems for the carbon processes that firms are adopting to mitigate climate change.

Financial Resilience and the Sustainable Development Goals

Edited by Magdalena Ziolo , Bruno S. Sergi

Series: Routledge Focus on Economics and Finance

This book presents the concept of financial resilience from a global and international perspective, and through the prism of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). It covers a broad spectrum, from the theoretical framework and the assessment of the current state of knowledge and research to the practical approach used in financial institutions. The book's key contribution is that it examines the link between the SDGs and financial resilience, which is an interesting and under researched observation. Its original and innovative approach to financial resilience fills this research gap and also includes a discussion of artificial intelligence (AI) and digitalisation.

Financial Security and Household Life Insurance

Bridging the Gap

Joanna Debicka , Anna Jędrzychowska

Series: Routledge Focus on Economics and Finance

This book offers a comprehensive understanding of a novel approach to household security following the loss of an adult member, introducing the concept of Bridging Household Life Insurance. It addresses the financial and functional instability that families face after the death of a spouse or partner by proposing a new type of insurance that compensates for the loss of unpaid domestic labour, such as caregiving, household management, and other essential non-market activities. The book develops an advanced multistate model that the variability of the household life cycle, not just the future lifetime of the insured persons, which allows for more accurate contract valuation.

Free Market and Perfect Competition

Global Data Trends

Weshah Razzak

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

This book provides a simple methodology to examine the deviations from Perfect Competition equilibrium condition, where the price level is set equal to the marginal cost. It opens with an exploration of the concept of the free market, highlighting its foundational principles of unrestricted exchange of goods and services. It argues that in addition to various exogenous shocks, government intervention such as regulations and policies can impede this freedom, and sets out to measure the deviation from perfect competition equilibrium condition. Its broad applicability ensures that it will be relevant to a wide international audience, including academics, policymakers and professionals.

Globalization and High Public Debt

The Impact of Financial Interdependence

Edited by Aline Darbellay , Norbert Gaillard , Michael Waibel

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

The core argument of this book is that the high degree of financial interdependence forged during the "golden age" of globalization from 1991–2016 is now the main impediment to the reduction of the elevated public debts observed in many countries. Therefore, it investigates how the world economy may be deleveraged and how interdependence may be reduced or, wherever possible, made compatible with a deleveraging process. Owing to its multidisciplinary approach, the book will attract the interest of scholars and students from wide ranging fields, including political scientists, economists, and lawyers.

Meta-Analysis in Corporate Finance

A Methodology for Empirical Research

Jacek Mizerka

Series: Routledge Studies in Economic Theory, Method and Philosophy

Meta-analysis is a method that integrates the results of primary studies, eliminates the influence of publication bias, and allows for the examination of factors affecting the heterogeneity of these results. This book disseminates knowledge about meta-analysis as a research methodology in the field of corporate finance. It highlights the additional benefits offered by meta-analysis compared to the results of primary research, while discussing the limitations of this method. It presents the research procedures used in meta-analysis, with its starting point offering an outline of contemporary research issues in corporate finance.

National Strategy and Global Competitiveness

Human Behaviour and Market Dynamics in the Age of Competition

Ihor Hurnyak , Oleksandra Struk

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

In a world shaped by geopolitical rivalries, technological disruptions, and economic volatility, strategic thinking has become essential for sustaining national competitiveness. This book demonstrates how diverse analytical tools – including game theory, econophysics, financial econometrics, multidimensional clustering, and machine learning – illuminate the complex interconnections between markets, institutional dynamics, and state behaviour. Central to this approach is econothinking, a mindset that recognizes economic decisions as deeply intertwined with politics, geopolitical strategies, and societal outcomes.

The Indian Origins of Modern Economic Growth

Colonialism and the Rise of Britain and Europe

Prabir Bhattacharya

Modern economic growth first emerged in Britain and then spread to a few other countries in western Europe and the USA. This book argues that it is her control over India which put Britain at the apex of the world economy in the nineteenth century. Technological innovations of the nineteenth century were embedded in that globalisation process. The book is likely to be of interest to a diverse readership, beyond those interested in economic history and growth economics.

Ethical Economics and Sustainable Development

The Role of Moral Capital

Edited by Devi Datt Tewari , Kehinde Damilola Ilesanmi

Series: Routledge Studies in Development Economics

This book explores the role of moral capital and its relationship with economic growth and emphasizes the ways in which investment in moral frameworks can promote social well-being and sustainable development. The key message of the book is that the cultivation of moral capital requires a collective effort from all stakeholders involved in institutional development; governments, institutions, civil society, and individuals must collaborate to create an ecosystem that incentivizes and rewards ethical behaviour. It presents global case studies to make the case for the importance of moral capital in addressing African leadership problems.

Microfinance in Cambodia

Development, Role, and Prospects

Edited by Sovannroeum Samreth Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences, Daiju Aiba JICA Research Institute

This book summarizes the history, system and current situation of microfinance in Cambodia, examining how microfinance institutions have evolved from the 1990s to current day. The book begins with an overview of the microfinance sector in Cambodia, covering key events, regulatory framework and key stakeholders. It evaluates the role of microfinance institutions in poverty reduction, as well as the current state of financial literacy amongst microfinance borrowers. It reviews key policies such as the 2017 interest rate ceiling imposed by the National Bank of Cambodia, as well as government measures and programmes aimed at improving household financial literacy and protecting borrowers.

Monetary Policy and Inequality

The Pasinetti Index

Edited by Sylvio Antonio Kappes, Louis-Philippe Rochon Laurentian University, Canada

This book explores the relationship between monetary policy and income (and wealth) distribution, a growing area of research in post-Keynesian and heterodox economics today. The interest actually goes back at least to Keynes, who in his Tract on Monetary Reform, discusses the effects of interest rates on income distribution — what has been called a 'rentier-first' monetary policy. This led Keynes, in the General Theory, to advocate for what he calls 'the euthanasia of the rentier.'

The Enigma of Climate Inaction

Why Are We Doing Nothing (or Almost Nothing) in the Face of Catastrophe?

Frédéric Samama

The Enigma of Climate Inaction explores the puzzling passivity of humanity in the face of the looming climate crisis, despite decades of clear warnings about the risk of mass extinction. It offers readers a profound insight into the cognitive, economic and societal factors underlying our inaction on climate change, equipping us with a unique toolkit to confront our collective inertia and the barriers to necessary global responses. Frédéric Samama, a world authority on sustainable finance, suggests that our perception becomes fixed and resistant to change, creating a mental rigidity that has fueled patterns of overconfidence throughout history.

Just Transition and the European Green Deal

Regional Perspectives

Edited by Everardus Wilhelmus (Michiel) Stapper ,
Marcin Baron , Ralph Horne , Nevelina Pachova ,
Monika Wiczorek-Kosmala

Series: Routledge Open Business and Economics

This book examines how the concept of the just transition - the idea that environmental and social concerns must be reconciled - has been implemented in European Union policies. With the introduction of the Just Transition Mechanism, the European Commission launched the world's most ambitious attempt to mitigate the adverse social and economic effects of the European Green Deal. This book provides a timely and detailed examination of how the just transition unfolds in practice, concluding that a just transition cannot be achieved unless community-level concerns are more aligned with regional, national, and European policy goals.

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

Covering Maffeo Pantaleoni's key areas of contribution to economics, this book provides a comprehensive study of one of the foremost economic thinkers of the late 19th and early 20th century. This volume brings together a group of specialists capable of identifying the many points of contact between Pantaleoni's multiform thought and the disciplinary plurality of his economics – thus providing 'A Complete Economic Science' of which Pantaleoni would be proud. The book will be of interest to economists, readers in history of economic thought, intellectual history, Italian history more broadly, and scholars with diverse profiles of interest.

A History of Economic Thought at the Frankfurt Institute

Beyond the Critical Theory of the Frankfurt School, 1923-1945

Ali Ahmad

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

The Frankfurt Institute's history overlooks crucial economic theories from its lesser-known members. This book presents the first comprehensive study of these contributions, repositioning the Institute as a site of original economic thought. It highlights figures like Neumann, Kirchheimer, Pollock, and Grünberg whose material and empirical approaches were central to the Institute's work. By contextualizing these theories within the Weimar Republic and Nazi Germany, the book reveals how these underappreciated economists shaped discourse on capitalist economies, offering new perspectives on the interplay between economics, politics, history, and epistemology.

A History of Spanish Economic Thought

From Scholasticism to Keynesianism

Jesús Astigarraga, Juan Zabalza

Series: The Routledge History of Economic Thought

This book presents a new and comprehensive study of the history of Spanish economic thought. It analyses all the main schools and currents of economic thought that left their mark in the country from Scholasticism in the sixteenth century through to Keynesianism in the post-Second World War era. The book, therefore, emphasises the study of Spanish economic thought in its historical context. This book will be of interest to readers in the history of economic thought, reception of economic ideas, intellectual history and Spanish history more broadly.

Adam Smith and the East India Company

Mark Donoghue

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

This book examines Adam Smith's perspectives on the India question during a pivotal juncture when the East India Company evolved from a commercial enterprise into a de facto imperial authority in India. This study reinterprets his position on the East India Company's monopoly, the integration of Indo-European commerce, and the consequences of territorial acquisition in India. This study will appeal to scholars and advanced research students in the history of economic thought, Indian economic history, business history, imperial studies, and eighteenth-century intellectual history.

Adam Smith's Incomplete System

Sergio Cremaschi

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

On his deathbed, Adam Smith ordered the burning of two unfinished works on epistemology and politics, fearing that his image as a philosopher would be tarnished and his ideas misinterpreted. This book argues that the inability to complete these two works is symptomatic of tensions for which Smith found no resolution. The book reconstructs the lost works from fragments, lecture notes, correspondence, and chapters from published works. The book is essential reading for Adam Smith specialists, historians of economic thought and philosophers of science.

Markets in the History of Political Economy

Between Mechanism and Purpose

Rudi Verburg

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

Most contemporary economists understand markets as purely price-making systems, ignoring the role of markets as relational systems that frame our way of life and determine the kind of society we live in. This book weaves both of these elements together to present a history of markets which accepts the interplay between price system and relational system, between mechanism and purpose. This book will be essential reading for historians of economic thought and political economy who are interested in the evolution of ideas on the role of the market.

Inclusion and Innovation in the Digital Economy

Ewelina Sokołowska, Małgorzata Gawrycka

Series: Routledge Studies in the Economics of Innovation

This book shows how Europe's digital future can be both innovative and inclusive. It uncovers what truly drives digital progress and how countries can align technological growth with social equity. At its heart lies a unique framework that connects innovation with inclusion, highlighting not only technology and growth but also the critical roles of skills, trust, and fairness. It is written for researchers seeking evidence, policymakers shaping digital strategies, and business leaders making informed decisions. It is not just another academic study, but a decision-enabling resource for Europe's digital decade.

Real Estate Economics

A Point-to-Point Handbook

Nicholas G. Pirounakis

Series: Routledge Advanced Texts in Economics and Finance

Real Estate Economics introduces the main tools and concepts of real estate (RE) economics. It combines theory, technique, up-to-date real-life cases, and practical examples. The second edition has been fully updated to take account of all the latest developments and issues in the field. It also extends to significant emerging economies (China first and foremost) and other global trends, as between 'developed' and 'developing' economies. It will be particularly useful to undergraduate students of RE or urban economics, and postgraduates who want to specialize in RE economics, as well as to RE practitioners and students reading for RE-related professional qualifications.

The Circular Economy and SMEs

Edited by Fahimeh Khatami

Series: Routledge Focus on Economics and Finance

This book focuses on the concept of the circular economy with particular emphasis on small and medium-sized enterprises. It defines circularity and the circular economy and investigates the development of the circularity concept as an important tool for a sustainable future. It contends that circularity promotes sustainability when products are designed to last longer, reducing the need for frequent replacement. As a result, economic development becomes more sustainable, fostering new jobs and industries. This book will appeal to academics, students and researchers in economics, business and management, environmental science and sustainable development.

Tourism and Transport in the Sharing Economy

Strategies for Resource and Service Management

Monika Ziółko, Agata Niemczyk, Zofia Gródek-Szostak, Marek Hendel, Natalia Ziółkowska

Series: Routledge Studies in Central and Eastern European Business and Economics

This book identifies the growing importance of the sharing economy and its practical application in such areas of the economy as tourism, transportation, and micromobility. At the same time, it highlights the challenges and benefits of this modern form of resource and service management. While there is literature available on these issues, this book offers value in providing a synthetic and up-to-date approach to the topic and examining how the sharing economy can contribute to meeting contemporary challenges. The book provides insights for academics, researchers and students, as well as policy makers and practitioners, and more importantly, for further scientific research.

Universities, Knowledge and Places

Edited by David Charles, Lisa Nieth, Lars Coenen, Lund University, Sweden, Ridvan Cinar

Series: Regions and Cities

This book is a memorial to Professor Paul Benneworth who died in 2020 at the age of 46, but also a review of the current state of the art in work on universities and place, identifying important new directions for research. The book showcases Paul's contribution, authored by those who worked with him, engaging with key ideas that Paul pursued and on which he was actively working. The chapters are grouped around three main themes: the first is focused on universities, cities and regions, the second centres around local and global networks, and the third theme looks at regions and leadership and the strategic role of different stakeholders in place development.

The Central and Eastern European Business Environment

Economic, Environmental and Political Dimensions

Edited by Magdalena Suska

Series: Routledge Studies in Central and Eastern European Business and Economics

This multidisciplinary book analyses the background and the impact of the business environment, its factors and features, and how their changes influence business operations and decisions. It identifies and assesses different features, opportunities and challenges of business environments, from the experience of Central and Eastern European countries, including the Polish perspective, which is an interesting and needed dimension. Poland is presented here as an example of a country that has substantially and successfully transformed its economy. This example may be both interesting and inspiring for other countries, especially the economies in transition.

Ukraine, the EU and Economic Integration

Opportunities and Challenges

Oleg Tankovsky

Series: Routledge Studies in Central and Eastern European Business and Economics

This book addresses a central puzzle in the study of European integration: why have some post-communist countries successfully embedded democratic and market institutions after EU accession or candidacy, while others have faltered or regressed? Introducing the original distinction between self-contained and exported Europeanisation, the book offers a new comparative framework that explains divergent integration outcomes across Central Eastern Europe and the Western Balkans. Bridging economics, European studies, comparative politics and international political economy, this timely book speaks to scholars, students, and policymakers interested in the future of Europe's eastern frontier.

Governing Solidarity in European Labour Markets

Atypical Employment and Minimum Wage Reform in Spain and Portugal

Edited by Paulo Marques, Rui Branco, Óscar Molina

Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Spain, Renato Carmo

Series: Routledge Studies in Labour Economics

This book asks why two structurally similar countries – Portugal and Spain – pursued different routes to reduce labour market segmentation following the conclusion of the sovereign debt crisis. It argues that the composition of the governing social bloc drives the orientation of reform, while the choice of decision-making arena (parliamentary law-making versus tripartite social concertation) and the EU's evolving social governance shape the breadth and depth of reform. Governing Solidarity offers a fresh framework and rich evidence for scholars of political economy and industrial relations, as well as advanced students and policymakers confronting labour market segmentation.

The Economics of Gender Inequality in Latin America

Edited by Reyna Elizabeth Rodríguez Pérez, David Castro Lugo

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Economics

This book provides a comprehensive examination of gender disparities, through theoretical, methodological, and empirical lenses. The theoretical foundations critique neoliberal feminism, emphasizing alternative frameworks such as the "Feminism of the 99%," which advocates redistributive justice and structural change. The book explores the impacts of cultural narratives like the "superwoman" ideal, revealing its role in perpetuating exploitation and gendered inequities. In short, it not only enriches academic debate, but also offers practical and accessible solutions for moving towards a more equitable economy.

Women, Work and the Care Economy

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Economics

This book explores the intersection between gender, labor, and caregiving. The theoretical section highlights the challenges of integrating intersectionality into feminist economics, emphasizing the sustainability of life as a transformative framework and linking critical feminist economics with common economic practices. The second section focuses on gender inequality and the care economy. The third examines work and entrepreneurship, exploring feminist identity's influence on entrepreneurial intentions, the pandemic's effects on unpaid labor in the U.S., and caregiving's impact on academic careers in Uruguay. The final section addresses public policies and proposals.

Behavioural Finance and Ethical Investing

Kok Loang Ooi , Norazlin Binti Ab Aziz , Wee Yeap Lau

Series: Routledge International Studies in Money and Banking

Contextualising the effective and ineffective approaches to Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) implementation across the globe from a behavioural finance perspective, this book covers a range of considerations that must be made when firms choose the sustainable path. The book begins with a critical examination of ESG investing and assumption that they consistently deliver superior financial returns. It then explores how cognitive distortions, incorrect information, and technological innovations may impact ethically motivated investors, leading them to make choices that are behaviourally vulnerable if not irrational.

Public Governance on the Blockchain

Edited by Usman W. Chohan , Sven Van Kerckhoven

Series: Routledge Studies in Public Economics and Finance

The adoption of blockchain for governance purposes, particularly in public governance, lags behind other applications such as cryptocurrencies and decentralized finance. What impedes this adoption? Are existing governance systems deemed sufficient by key stakeholders? Is inertia or cost hindering the transformation through blockchain innovations? Or has the potential of blockchain in public governance been overstated? This book aims to address these questions comprehensively by leveraging the expertise of interdisciplinary scholars who undertake a holistic examination of the role, potential, and limitations of blockchain technologies in public governance.

A History of Financialization

Inequality, Debt and Crisis from Liberalism to Neoliberalism

Lars Ahnland

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Analyzing long-cycle patterns during the twentieth century, this book presents novel findings on how core features of financialization are interconnected across advanced economies. Since the late nineteenth century, international macroeconomic policy regimes have favored either capital or labor, giving rise to corresponding cycles of financialization and de-financialization. The book is primarily aimed at scholars and students of global political economy.

A Marxist Analysis of the Soviet Economy

Erwan Moysan

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

This book argues that the Soviet Union was a young capitalist country and, further, explains the collapse of the Soviet Union as the result of a capitalist crisis. This book provides a comprehensive overview of the Soviet economy through a Marxist lens, and provides a digestible definition of the capitalist mode of production according to Marx, refuting criticism of his thought based on association with the USSR. The book will be of interest to academic and non-academic Marxists alike in economics, politics, sociology, history and beyond.

Capital and Capitalism

The Role of Economic Calculation in the Market Economy

Eduard Braun Clausthal University of Technology, Germany

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Capitalism is an economic system where almost all production and trade activities are organised by enterprises whose purpose is to maximise the return on the capital that has been invested in them. In contrast, this book develops a theory of capital that is, at the same time, a theory of capitalism - the theory of capital in this book takes account of the term "capital" as understood and used in actual business life. The book will be of great interest to readers in the areas of Austrian economics, institutional economics, history of economic thought, varieties of capitalism and financial accounting.

Challenging Capitalism

Paths Taken, Roads Ahead

Edited by Peter A. Coclanis, Arne L. Kalleberg

Commentators today generally agree that we are at an inflection point in the history of capitalism. In Challenging Capitalism, an interdisciplinary group of distinguished scholars address some of the likely challenges of a new political-economic order that minimizes capitalism's deficiencies without impeding unduly its ability to facilitate and support wealth creation and human flourishing. The book is essential reading for anyone interested in capitalism from across the social sciences and humanities including in political economy, sociology, history, political science, public policy, and economics.

Culture and Taxation

The Effects of Cultural Diversity on Tax Revenues Around the World

Nicolae-Bogdan Ianc

Series: Routledge Research in Taxation

Tax revenues, as a percentage of GDP, significantly vary all around the world. It is well-established that people pay taxes when they are satisfied with the quality of public services and institutions and this volume argues cultural value is also a critical factor in explaining the variation in tax revenue. The book focuses on the differences in tax revenues, government policy, budgeting, and tax structure, across both developing and developed countries. The book is addressed to researchers in economics, business schools, public policy and other areas with an interest in taxation and the impacts of cultural dynamics on the economy.

Development Banks and the Green Transition

Financing the Sustainable Development Convention

Fernanda Feil, Carmem Feijó, Carlos Henrique Horn

Series: Routledge Advances in Economic Policy

This book introduces the idea of a 'Sustainable Development Convention'. A convention is a form of social production and shared knowledge that establishes collective reality. Development banks have been essential institutions in promoting public policies worldwide - their credit and other forms of finance and cooperation have been central tools in catching-up processes for developing and emerging economies. This book marks a significant addition to the literature on development banks, the green transition, the political economy of climate change, and economic and monetary policy.

Economic and Social Welfare

A Cultural Approach

William A. Jackson University of York, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Social Economics

Arguing for a broader understanding of welfare, with culture as a unifying theme, this book demonstrates the explanatory power of an interdisciplinary approach to economic and social welfare. It offers an extensive, non-technical survey of how welfare has been portrayed in the academic literature and how the diverse views can fit within a cultural approach. It will be of great interest to economists, social scientists and policy-makers.

Financial Democracy

Comparative Political Economy of Banking

Kurt Mettenheim, Olivier Butzbach

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Elaborating a new approach to the comparative political economy of banking, Financial Democracy presents evidence of both the recent return to traditional bank management and the resurgence of alternative banks with social and public policy missions. The book begins with a critique of contemporary approaches to banking, finance, and money in political economy, financial economics and, indeed, the major approaches to macroeconomics since 1945. This book will be of interest to readers in political economy, banking, finance and democratization.

Financial Stability, Risks, and Ecological Transition

Addressing Economic Challenges Under Global Uncertainty

Edited by Lyubov Klapkiv Department of Economics, Institute of Economics and Finance, Maria Curie-Skłodowska University, Faruk Ülgen University of Grenoble, France

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

The evolution of capitalist economies through waves of liberalization of markets over the last five decades led to structural changes and greater systemic risks. This book presents economic research into the roots and remedies of these risks, particularly exploring the key issues of financial stability and the financing of economic activities on the one hand, and the necessary economic and ecological transition to a more sustainable world, on the other. The book will be of great interest to readers of green economy and transition, money, finance and banking, as well as economic and public policy.

Financialization of Nature in Latin America

From Neo-Extractivism to Financial Alternatives

Edited by Monika Meireles, Vania López, Elizabeth Concha, Antonio Mendoza

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

This book examines the relationship between the prevailing economic model and its environmental impact. The chapters in this edited volume focus on two key themes within the Latin American context: the various manifestations of nature's financialization, particularly through the operations of transnational mining companies, and the consequences of an increasingly financialized neo-extractivism; and the new forms of financial mechanisms for supporting the energy transition. This book will be of interest to readers of heterodox perspectives on the economy, environment and development.

First-Wave Feminism and Women's Civil and Political Rights in South America

Carmen Diana Deere

Series: Routledge IAFEE Advances in Feminist Economics

This book analyzes the context, process and content of the reform of married women's property rights in seven Spanish-speaking South American countries—Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela—between 1900 and the early 1950s. It contributes to a long-standing discussion on the relationship between socioeconomic and legal change and brings the findings of recent scholarship and a vast array of primary materials only available in Spanish to an English-speaking audience, interpreting legal concepts and debates in a manner accessible to social scientists. This interdisciplinary book supports the construction of a feminist legal history of marital regimes.

The Macroeconomics of Credit Money

Basil Moore

Series: Routledge Advances in Heterodox Economics

This anniversary edition of Basil Moore's classic work features the original text along with an extensive new introduction and foreword. Providing much of the theoretical foundation on which Modern Monetary Theory was subsequently built, this seminal work continues to challenge the validity of much of mainstream monetary macroeconomics. Basil Moore argues that the money supply in modern economies is not under the control of central banks, but is determined by borrower demand for bank credit. This book remains required reading for anyone interested in macroeconomics, central banking and monetary theory.

International Economic and Monetary Architecture at the Crossroads

Bretton Woods at 80

Edited by Atish R. Ghosh, Fabio Masini

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Founded at the 1944 Bretton Woods conference, the IMF and World Bank embodied international cooperation for global prosperity. This volume explores "roads not taken" in their histories and the consequential decisions that shaped today's financial architecture. As geoeconomic fragmentation threatens open trade and post-war gains, the authors examine both successful paths and unexplored alternatives, seeking historical lessons for future reforms. The book offers insights for readers interested in international monetary systems and economic governance—showing how past intellectual efforts can guide tomorrow's financial architecture.

Neoliberal Economic Policy and Alternatives for France

An Empirical SFC Perspective

Luis Reyes, Jacques Mazier Université Paris-13, France, Chin Yuan Chong

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

This book offers a comprehensive exploration of how empirical Stock-Flow Consistent (SFC) modelling can be used as a tool for macroeconomic analysis. Focusing on France, the book presents the SFC FR model, an empirical SFC model based on French national data, and examines four decades of structural change of the French economy marked by financialisation, policy shifts, evolving trade and public deficits. The book is a vital resource for economists, policymakers, and researchers seeking a realistic and policy-relevant approach to macroeconomic analysis especially for economic policy design and evaluation.

On Value and Valuation

John Frow

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

On Value and Valuation asks whether the category of economic value remains theoretically viable, how it is formed and how it should be understood. It explores the interlinkages between economic value and social and cultural values. It draws on anthropological and sociological accounts of the evaluative frameworks within which things take on their social meanings; on the other, it explores and critiques the Marxist account of the formation of value in capitalist production. Its aim is to reconcile these two conceptions, and it does so by arguing that economic value is not a property of goods and services but is formed in specific institutions of valuation.

The Benefits and Costs of Fiscal Decentralization in China

A Perspective of Local Government Incentives

Ma Guangrong

This book examines China's fiscal decentralization and its economic impact through local government incentives. It focuses on three key areas: expenditure decentralization, revenue decentralization and intergovernmental transfers. The analysis weighs the benefits and costs of these fiscal practices in terms of China's economic development. It concludes with reform proposals for optimizing central-local fiscal relations. This book will be of interest to scholars of the Chinese economy, public finance and development economics.

The Circular Economy and Institutional Change

Transformation in Theory and Practice

Yilmaz Kaplan

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

The climate crisis has emerged as a consequence of the linear economic system that developed in the aftermath of the industrial revolution. In recent years, global actors have recognised the need for institutional change from the linear economy to a more sustainable alternative: the circular economy. This book analyses the potential for transformative institutional change to a circular economy, both in theory and practice. This book is invaluable for readers interested in the circular economy, new institutionalism, the impacts of climate change and alternative economic policy.

The Political Economy of the Energy Transition in Latin America

Between Extractivism and Sustainable Development

Edited by Hannes Warnecke-Berger , Hans-Jürgen Burchardt

Series: Global Challenges in Political Economy

The persistence of extractivism in Latin America is a central issue in contemporary debates on global sustainability and the curse of the energy transition. This book explores these pressing concerns by analysing the tensions between the energy transition, extractivism, and green development in Latin America. Through an interdisciplinary approach that integrates political economy, sociology, environmental science, and development studies, this book provides a nuanced understanding of Latin America's resource dilemmas in the context of global energy transitions.

Inclusive, Smart and Sustainable Cities

Elwira Gross-Golacka , Zbigniew Makiela , Magdalena M. Stuss , Jacek Szołtysek , Grażyna Trzpiot

Series: Routledge Advances in Regional Economics, Science and Policy

This book addresses critical issues for contemporary cities building their future, presenting a cohesive narrative rooted in the diverse experiences of its authors and reflecting the systemic nature of urban environments. The authors attribute the success of programming and implementing the development of future cities to the deliberate creation of stakeholder competencies, primarily through the use of smart city tools. It is assumed that these competencies will evolve both qualitatively and diversely, with their co-creation remaining a dynamic process due to shifts among stakeholders driven by migration, natural population growth or decline, and changes in stakeholder structures.

Regions in Evolution

A History of Regional Planning

Daniel Galland , Mark Tewdwr-Jones , John Harrison

Series: Regions and Cities

Regions in Evolution provides the first comprehensive account of a hitherto untold history of regions and planning. Told through the unique lens of regional studies, the authors bring to light the role of key individuals, groups and disciplines in shaping research agendas and debate. It reveals voices which were marginalised, planning ideas which were lost, approaches that keep coming back, and challenges that persist. It offers a fascinating insight into the development of this field, attracting an audience of students and researchers interested in the intersection between planning, cities, and regions.

Spatial Governance Landscapes

Regulation, Property, and Planning

Tuna Taşan-Kok University of Amsterdam, Netherlands, Sara Özoğul , Andre Legarza

Series: Regions and Cities

What shapes the city? This book answers this question with a fresh lens: spatial governance landscapes, the dynamic interplay between planning regulation and property-market strategies. Centered on the Metropolitan Region of Amsterdam, the book traces how rules, norms, and public ambitions meet the logics of investors, developers, and intermediaries to co-produce urban form and everyday life. Bringing planning scholarship into direct conversation with real estate and urban governance studies, the authors map regulatory landscapes and investor landscapes side by side, showing how their frictions and alignments open and close pathways for housing, land use, and infrastructure.
