Emerson's Affinities

Father of the American Mind

Edited by Emile Alexandrov University of Notre Dame, Australia, Steve Stakland Northern Virginia Community College, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in American Philosophy

This volume presents Ralph Waldo Emerson's engagement with diverse philosophical traditions with the concurrent aim of showing the contemporary relevance of his Transcendentalism. Thematically organised into three parts, the volume first situates Emerson within Romanticism and Platonism. Part Two examines his metaphysics and his intersections with both Eastern and Western religious thought. Finally, Part Three applies his philosophy to education, aesthetics, environmental ethics, and politics. The cosmopolitan essays in this collection situate Emerson not only within Western thought but also in dialogue with Greek, Buddhist, Islamic and Vedāntic philosophies.

Objective Knowledge

An Evolutionary Approach

Karl Popper London School of Economics, UK

Series: Routledge Classics

The scope of human knowledge is arguably one of humankind's greatest achievements. Since Descartes, however, the theory of human knowledge has been mainly what philosophers call subjectivist: even scientific knowledge was regarded as a special kind of belief, but human nonetheless. In Objective Knowledge Karl Popper breaks decisively and controversially with this view of human knowledge. A brilliant exposition of Popper's theory of knowledge, this Routledge Classics edition includes a new Introduction by Jeremy Shearmur, which provides some helpful context to Objective Knowledge and Popper's philosophy in general.

Recognition: Historical and Philosophical Perspectives

Edited by Matthew Congdon Vanderbilt University - Nashville, USA, Thomas Khurana University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Rewriting the History of Philosophy

In the last few decades, the concept of recognition has moved to the forefront of philosophical research, particularly in political and social philosophy but also related areas, including, race, gender, philosophy of mind and social psychology. It is also a concept with deep roots, going back to Rousseau and Hegel through to the work of recent thinkers, such as Charles Taylor and Axel Honneth. This volume explores the philosophy of recognition from multiple standpoints, providing a wide-ranging reassessment of the concept. It is vital reading for those in philosophy as well as related disciplines such as political theory, sociology, social psychology and psychoanalysis.

2ND EDITION

Specters of Marx

The State of the Debt, the Work of Mourning and the New International

Jacques Derrida

Series: Routledge Classics

Published shortly after the fall of Communism, Specters of Marx is one of Derrida's most prophetic books. Whilst many in the West heralded the triumph of liberal democracy, Derrida argues that whilst Communism may have disappeared, the questions posed by Marx continue to haunt us. Translated by Peggy Kamuf and with a new Foreword by Peter Salmon, this Routledge Classics edition retains the original Editors' Introduction by Bernd Magnus and Stephen Cullenberg. It also includes a debate between Derrida and Étienne Balibar published here in English for the first time, as well as corrections made by Derrida after the book's initial publication in French.

The Philosophy of Rudolph Hermann Lotze

A Reassessment

Edited by Nikolay Milkov University of Paderborn, Germany, Michele Vagnetti University of Paderborn, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth-Century Philosophy

Rudolph Hermann Lotze (1817–1881) was a leading figure of late 19th-century German philosophy. Lotze reconsidered the philosophy of German Idealism and initiated an objectivist turn that was instrumental in the development of leading philosophical movements of the 20th century, including analytic philosophy, phenomenology, and pragmatism. This volume seeks to demonstrate the importance of Lotze's thought to the history of philosophy. It provides a comprehensive reassessment of Lotze's thought and analyzes the many different aspects of his logic, metaphysics, epistemology, and philosophy of mind.

Avicenna's Theory of Intentionality

Zhenyu Cai

Intentionality – how thoughts represent reality – lies at the heart of many contemporary philosophical questions in the philosophy of mind. Over the past twenty years, Avicenna's conception of intentionality has received considerable scholarly attention. This book provides the first comprehensive analysis of Avicenna's theory of intentionality. Scholars and students of medieval philosophy, Islamic intellectual history, and philosophy of mind will find it essential reading. It is also suitable for academic libraries, philosophy publishers, and those exploring non-Western philosophical traditions.

British Philosophy in the Long Eighteenth Century

Themes from Kenneth P. Winkler

Edited by Bridger Ehli Indiana University Bloomington, USA, Matthew A. Leisinger York University, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Philosophy

No one has done more to deepen our appreciation of eighteenth-century British philosophy than Kenneth P. Winkler. Winkler's work has had a decisive influence on our understanding of virtually all the period's major figures and has also helped to bring light to the enduring philosophical significance of less well-known figures. The chapters in this volume extend our understanding of themes that have been illuminated by Winkler's work, covering a wide range of topics and figures in eighteenth-century British philosophy.

2ND EDITION

Plotinus

Eyjólfur K. Emilsson University of Oslo, Norway

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

Plotinus (AD 205–270) was the founder of Neoplatonism, whose thought has had a profound influence on medieval philosophy, and on Western philosophy more broadly. This engaging book introduces and explains the full spectrum of Plotinus' philosophy for those coming to his work for the first time. This second edition has been revised and updated throughout, and includes a new chapter on badness, freedom, providence and responsibility. Also including a chronology, glossary of terms, and suggestions for further reading, Plotinus is an ideal introduction to this major figure in Western philosophy, and essential reading for students of ancient philosophy and classics.

Pure Form in Matter

A Neo-Aristotelian Approach to Hylomorphism

Kezhou Liu

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

This book defends a purist neo-Aristotelian approach to hylomorphism, addressing long-standing debates about the reality of material objects and engaging with contemporary philosophical discussions. It begins with a critical examination of the contemporary "impurist" approach to hylomorphism and then develops a purist conception of form, which is grounded in Aristotle's original framework and contextualized within current theoretical debates. It will appeal to scholars and advanced students of ancient Greek philosophy and metaphysics.

The Will Discourse in Late Medieval Philosophy and Theology

Edited by Monika Michałowska Medical University of Łódź, Poland, Michael W. Dunne Maynooth University, Ireland

This volume sheds light on underexplored aspects of voluntarism that were extensively debated in 13th- and 14th-century philosophy and theology. The chapters address a wide range of topics such as second-order volitions, non-velle and nolle acts of the will, conditionality of the will, increase and decrease in the intensity of willing, the ethics/metaphysics and ethics/physics intersections, and the role the will played in explaining social and political phenomena. The volume provides insight into approaches to ethics and moral psychology that sprouted in the later Middle Ages and sparked various arguments and methods for defending the freedom of the will.

Normativity, Moral Reasoning, and Human Rights

Engaging with Contemporary Chinese Moral and Political Theory

Philippe Brunozzi

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This title explores the under-examined theoretical foundations of contemporary Chinese philosophical discourse on human rights. Through an interpretive, critical, and constructive approach, it analyzes key elements of the broader theoretical context and offers a new framework for understanding and engaging with Chinese approaches to human rights. It is essential reading for advanced students, researchers, and anyone interested in the potential of Chinese human rights theory and contemporary philosophical developments in China.

Translation and Annotation of the Mengzi

YANG Bojun

Series: Routledge Studies in Chinese Translation

This book presents the first English edition of YANG Bojun's authoritative annotated commentary on the Mengzi, a Confucian canon by Mencius. It masterfully integrates classical Chinese exegetical traditions with contemporary philological precision. As a cornerstone of Chinese classical studies, this book is essential reading for scholars and students of Sinology, Chinese thought, philosophy, intellectual history, and classical cultures around the world.

9TH EDITION

Core Questions in Philosophy

Elliott Sober, Joel Velasco Texas Tech University, USA.

In this 9th edition, Elliott Sober and Joel Velasco use an engaging lecture-style format to show students how philosophy is best used to evaluate many different kinds of arguments and to construct sound theories. Well-known historical texts are discussed, not as a means to honor the dead or merely to describe what various philosophers have thought but to engage with, criticize, and even improve ideas from the past. In addition - because philosophy cannot function apart from its engagement with the wider society - traditional and contemporary philosophical problems are brought into dialogue with the physical, biological, and social sciences.

Epistemic Dilemmas and Epistemic Normativity

Edited by Eva Schmidt TU Dortmund, Germany, Martin Grajner

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

Recently, there has been a surge of interest in epistemic dilemmas. However, few attempts have been made to systematically connect epistemic dilemmas to a wider range of issues in epistemology and normative theorizing. This volume begins to fill this lacuna. Some of its contributions explore new responses to epistemic dilemmas and others present novel epistemic dilemmas, which connect in interesting ways to other areas of epistemology. Several contributions discuss links between epistemic dilemmas and the nature of epistemic and practical reasons, investigate the nature of evidence or of doxastic attitudes, or explore dilemmas arising in collective or oppressive contexts.

Epistemic Injustice: An Introduction

Aidan McGlynn University of Edinburgh, UK

Epistemic injustice refers to the idea that a person can be harmed simply in their role as a knower. It includes exclusion, silencing and the distortion or undervaluing of one's testimony and has had a significant impact on discussions about race and racism, gender, intersectionality and education. This much-needed introduction explains what epistemic injustice is and examines it from a philosophical standpoint. With chapter summaries, further reading, and a glossary, it is an ideal starting point for anyone coming to the topic for the first time. Essential reading for those in philosophy as well as gender studies, sociology, law, education, politics and health.

Epistemology

What it is and Why You Should Care

Michael Veber East Carolina University, USA.

Epistemology: What it is and Why You Should Care is an introduction to epistemology written with the student foremost in mind. It provides an overview of basic concepts and problems in the theory of knowledge and directly addresses a question that is often foremost in the minds of students: "Who Cares?" Author Michael Veber first identifies where epistemology is, locating it within the larger field of philosophy, as well other areas of study and life in general.

Must Beliefs and Evidence Agree?

A Debate

Scott Stapleford St. Thomas University, Canada,
Elizabeth Jackson Saint Louis University, USA.

Series: Little Debates about Big Questions

Should our beliefs be proportioned to our evidence? Are we doing something wrong in believing with little or no evidence? And may our beliefs be based partly or wholly on moral considerations? These questions are harder than you think. Scott Stapleford and Elizabeth Jackson agree on the priority of evidence, but they differ on the degree of permissible slack and the relevance of other considerations.

Creating Future Cities

Technology, Ethics, and the Fight for the Good Life

Shane Epting Missouri University of Science and Technology, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book fleshes out the idea that everything about the city involves a fight for the good life. It maintains that cities are groups of people capable of shaping the built environment and its supporting technologies, united by the goal of creating places where people can live their best lives. This is the fight for the city. That fight involves many elements vital to city living, such as streets, land use, historic preservation, and preparation for extreme weather. He argues that fighting for the city is not merely about control. Rather, its purpose is to create environments that foster human flourishing while safeguarding communities against disaster.

Dialogues on the Meaning of Life

Michael Hauskeller University of Liverpool, UK.

Series: Philosophical Dialogues on Contemporary Problems

What does it mean to live a meaningful life? Can life be meaningful at all, and if it can, what exactly makes it so? This new volume in the Philosophical Dialogues on Contemporary Issues series addresses these questions through fictional dialogues that relate the theoretical problems that philosophers tend to focus on to the lives of ordinary people. Overseeing the seven dialogues presented in this book is the Socrates-like character, Richard Roe, a middle-aged man who has recently lost his son to Covid, a tragedy that sets him out on a quest to understand what makes people pursue the goals they do to give their lives meaning.

Digital Development

Technology, Ethics and Governance

Edited by Mirko Farina Xiamen University and Lomonosov Moscow State University, Xiao Yu, Jin Chen

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This volume offers reflects on the impact of AI in technology, epistemology, ethics, and governance. It begins with an analysis of some of the most important historical, epistemological, ethical, and phenomenological questions relevant to the concepts of digital development and digital innovation. It then reviews and evaluates the merits, possibilities, and potential challenges associated with the implementations of digital and artificial systems in 'lived environments'. Finally, it advocates for Human-Centric values and emphasizes the need to design multipolar policies that prioritize harmonious societal well-being.

Friendship: Philosophical Explorations

Edited by R. Lanier Anderson Stanford University, USA, Andrew Huddleston University of Warwick, UK, Jessica Moss New York University, USA

Friendship has been a central topic for philosophical reflection ever since philosophy itself was born in the circle of friends who gathered around Socrates to follow his probing examinations of how we should live. In this collection, which takes it lead from the work of Alexander Nehamas, a roster of distinguished philosophers examine the many dimensions of the philosophy of friendship. Friendship: Philosophical Explorations will be of interest to those in philosophy studying and researching ethics and aesthetics, as well as for those in related disciplines such as literature and film.

Living Ethics in Theory and Practice

Edited by Eric Racine Montreal Clinical Research Institute & University of Montreal, Canada, Bénédicte D'Anjou McGill University, Canada, Caroline Favron-Godbout University of Montreal, Canada, Giulia Inguaggiato Amsterdam University Medical Center, The Netherlands, Suzanne Metselaar Amsterdam University Medical Center, The Netherlands, Gabriel Saso-Baudaux University of Sherbrooke, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This volume advances a new approach to ethics: "living ethics". As an ethical and philosophical orientation, living ethics offers a new perspective on how difficult human situations are opportunities for co-learning and co-creative ethical thinking. Living ethics starts with the observation that moral problems are living and vital problems that affect our daily lives. It orients scholarship and practice by using theory in a pragmatic way to solve real-life problems, by fostering spaces for dialogical reflection on these problems, and by working closely together with stakeholders to co-imagine solutions.

The Intuitionist Ethics of W. D. Ross

Obligation, Intrinsic Value, and Moral Judgment

Robert Audi University of Notre Dame, USA.

This is the first full-scale monograph on the moral philosophy of W. D. Ross. It shows why Ross is admired as a major figure in ethics. He provided one of the most distinctive and powerful theories in the field, and Robert Audi sets out and explains Ross's comprehensive ethics, including his theory of obligation—of duty and the right—and his theory of value, of the good and the bad. Ross is conceptually sophisticated, rich in ideas, and historically informed. He reflects the best in Aristotle's ethics and is an astute critic of Kant, Mill, Moore, and others.

The Routledge Handbook of Philosophy of Games

Edited by C. Thi Nguyen University of Utah, USA, John R. Sargent Independent scholar

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

Playing games is a basic human activity, and games raise a great number of fascinating philosophical questions. What, exactly, are we doing when we play a game? What is the value of games for human life? And could games be, or someday become, a form of art? Comprising 27 chapters by an international team of contributors, this Handbook is an outstanding reference source to the core concepts, problems and debates in this exciting subject, and is the first collection of its kind. As such, it is essential reading for students and researchers working in philosophy of games, philosophy of sport, digital aesthetics and game studies.

The Social Family

Sociality and the Ethics of Supporting Families

Laura Wildemann Kane University of Worcester, USA.

This book argues for an inclusive definition of the family that recognizes diverse caregiving relationships and outlines distinct familial and governmental obligations based on a taxonomy of needs. In doing so, it de-emphasizes marriage, biological ties, or shared values as the basis for familial relationship in social and legal contexts. Kane reconceives the family as a unique social group centered on providing intimate care for the mutual flourishing of all its members, regardless of gendered or intergenerational roles or relations.

LGBTQ+ Family-Making, Reproductive Ethics, and the (Re)Shaping of Family Values

Amanda Roth SUNY Geneseo, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

This book examines ethical issues surrounding assisted reproductive technologies and queer family-making. Focusing on LGBTQ+ experiences, it challenges dominant views in philosophical bioethics. The book first introduces the idea of queer epistemic privilege regarding issues of family and reproduction and applies this notion to the bioethical debates around donor conception. Next, it problematizes the typical philosophical conception of the debate over donor anonymity by centering queer perspectives. Finally, it draws attention to known donation and donor sibling contact/relationships, and shows what's missed when these queer practices are erased from bioethical discussions.

Markets in Human Organs for Transplantation

Controversy and Contention

Edited by James Stacey Taylor The College of New Jersey, USA, Mark J. Cherry St. Edwards University, USA

Series: Routledge Annals of Bioethics

This volume presents a comprehensive examination of one of bioethics' most divisive debates: whether human organs should be bought and sold. Contributors include both proponents who argue that properly regulated markets would increase organ supply and reduce suffering, and opponents who contend that commodification of organs violates human dignity and risks exploitation. The collection examines utilitarian, libertarian, and communitarian approaches while considering real-world policy implications. It also offers nuanced analysis of paternalistic prohibitions, feasibility concerns, and alternative procurement systems.

5TH EDITION

The Basics of Bioethics

Laura K. Guidry-Grimes Cleveland Clinic, USA.

The Fifth Edition offers a compelling introduction to the fascinating, ever-evolving field of bioethics. Accessible and richly informative for readers from all backgrounds, this book provides an essential foundation in theories and concepts, which are then applied to numerous thought-provoking cases and contemporary questions. Since the last edition, the field of bioethics has had to grapple with additional challenges, critiques, and difficult decisions. Readers are guided through the ethical complexities of abortion, medical aid in dying, genetic engineering, posthumous reproduction, biomedical research, and organ transplantation, among other topics.

Conventionalism about Personal Identity

Edited by Alfonso Munoz-Corcuera Complutense University of Madrid, Nils-Frederic Wagner

This volume explores conventionalism about personal identity, the argument that persons are, at least partly, constituted by conventions. Such an approach offers key insights for addressing both the metaphysical and ethical challenges of personal identity, including personhood, Buddhism and dementia, and issues in medical ethics - all topics explored by contributors to the volume. Featuring both defenders and critics of conventionalism, Conventionalism About Personal Identity will be of great interest to upper-level students and scholars studying personal identity, metaphysics and ethics.

Cultural Evolution and Social Ontology

Interdisciplinary Perspectives

Edited by Martina Valković Leibniz University Hannover, Germany, Thomas A.C. Reydon Leibniz University Hannover, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This volume explores connections between two growing and complementary fields of research: cultural evolutionary theory and social ontology. It sheds light on the ontological aspects of cultural evolution that so far have been largely neglected and raises questions for social ontology regarding the relevance of evolutionary aspects of social phenomena. While the contributors vary in their approach to the relationship between social ontology and cultural evolution, they explore their many common themes including power, language, agency, interaction, and social institutions and roles.

Dialogues on Free Will

Laura W. Ekstrom William and Mary University, USA.

Series: Philosophical Dialogues on Contemporary Problems

How do things go when two intelligent and informed college students get together to discuss their viewpoints on free will – one a strong believer in free will, and the other certain that we don't have it? Their friendly but pointed, lively, and thought-provoking conversations are captured in this book. Dialogues on Free Will provides an engaging introduction to free will that is accessible and fun to read.

The book also introduces readers to philosophical issues connected with free will, such as the nature of love, meaning in human life, and relations between God and human agency.

Ground and Fundamentality in Plato and Aristotle

Edited by Richard Neels Oklahoma State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

This is the first volume dedicated to the issues of ground and fundamentality in Plato and Aristotle. It offers new insights pertaining to certain features of ground and fundamentality that will engage with and spark debates in contemporary metaphysics. The chapters address a wide range of issues pertaining to ground and fundamentality including skepticism about these relations, the nature of these relations, their application to gender and social issues, and their application to material explanation.

Physics and Free Will

The Science of Libertarian Freedom

Jeffrey Koperski Saginaw Valley State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Science

Can libertarian free will survive our best physical theories? While prominent physicists argue that genuine agency contradicts science, this book demonstrates that contemporary physics actually provides robust foundations for human freedom. Koperski develops a framework that preserves libertarian intuitions about genuine choice while remaining consistent with physical theory. Through meticulous examination of determinism, reductionism, and the causal closure of physics, this comprehensive work reveals how contemporary science's recognition of emergent causation provides ample space for genuine human agency.

The Metaphysics of Propositions

Matthew Davidson California State University, San Bernardino, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

The book defends an account of propositions on which propositions are structured entities, built up out of properties, relations, and concrete objects. On this account, propositions exist and have truth conditions independent of human minds and linguistic activity. While this view of propositions has existed for over 100 years, it has been under attack over the last two decades. It has come under attack from those who agree that propositions are structured but think that propositions get their semantic properties (things like truth conditions) from human mental or linguistic activity.

The Phenomenology of Audio Drama

Clive Cazeaux University of Wales Institute, Cardiff, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

Audio drama is overlooked by philosophy even though it raises many philosophical questions. This book shows how phenomenology provides new ways of theorizing audio drama. It gives a clear account of phenomenology's rethinking of embodiment, technology and causality, and how it enables the drawing of relations between audio drama, sound art and audio fiction. Instead of contradiction, sound and the voice emerge as principal expressions of dramatic structure and human being-in-the-world, and audio drama is shown to be an art form that manifests the power of causality to enrich aesthetic sensibility.

Against Qualia, For Behaviorism

J. M. Fritzman Lewis & Clark College, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

Qualia, or phenomenal consciousness, refer to mental states which are supposedly ineffable, intrinsic, private, and immediately apprehensible in consciousness. This book argues that qualia do not exist, and there is no phenomenal consciousness. It critically engages philosophers who believe in qualia, demonstrating how the intuitions which would support the belief in the existence of qualia are mutually inconsistent. It proceeds to claim that the physical cannot be demarcated from the nonphysical and so the hard problem of consciousness can be dissolved or dismissed. Furthermore, it articulates and defends holistic behaviorism by drawing on Hegel's philosophy of mind.

Analytic Philosophy and 4E Cognition

Conceptual Analysis, Embodiment, and Situatedness

Edited by Manuel Heras-Escribano University of Granada, Spain

This volume is the first collection of essays fully devoted to examining the conceptual and methodological relations and tensions between analytic philosophy and the embodied-embedded approach to cognitive science, or 'e-cognition'. After an introduction by the editor placing the topic in philosophical context, the contributors explore topics that cut across both analytic philosophy and 4e-cognition, including skillful coping, habits, the status of representations, the nature of consciousness or the role of communication and sociopolitical implications of these views, considering at the same time how different theories within both traditions apply them.

Cartesianism and Philosophy of Mind

Edited by Vili Lähteenmäki University of Oulu, Finland, Oberto Marrama University of Oulu, Finland, Jani Sinokki University of Oulu, Finland

Series: Routledge Studies in Seventeenth-Century Philosophy

This book explores themes in the philosophy of mind as they emerge within the early modern Cartesian tradition. Part 1 focuses on fundamental features of cognition, such as the nature of ideas and intentionality, as they were debated by early interlocutors of Descartes. Part 2 analyzes how Cartesian philosophers conceived the relation between sensation and material objects, including the human body. Part 3 investigates the moral and social dimensions of the Cartesian mind, such as love and virtues.

Exploring Suicidal Ambivalence

Philosophical and Psychological Perspectives

Edited by René Baston Dortmund University of Technology, Germany, Martin Weichold Dresden University of Technology, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This volume offers an interdisciplinary exploration of ambivalence in suicidal agency. It examines the structural features of ambivalence in suicidal individuals, focusing, among other things, on the conflicting desires to end one's life versus the desire to live. By analyzing these opposing features, it clarifies the psychological and philosophical dimensions of ambivalence and its impact on the transition from suicidal ideation to action. Additionally, it critically evaluates whether ambivalence reflects diminished rationality and whether suicidal ambivalence potentially justifies paternalistic interventions.

From Human Reasoning to Belief

An Empirical Account

Joshua Mugg Park University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book examines the relation between taxonomy and cognitive architecture in human reasoning. It offers an argument for voluntarism of belief that is grounded in empirical research. On the architectural side, it offers an empirically motivated alternative to Dual-Process Theory and Spinozan Theory. The author argues that the reasoning system operates like a soundboard in that the various property-pairs are like slides on a mixing-board, and the process can be rerun multiple times. Because the reasoning system's final, settled outputs are beliefs, and a subject can rerun the reasoning process, adjusting the slides as they go, subjects exercise some control over what they believe.

Reasoning in the Wild

The Public Works of Reason

Mariam Thalos University of Tennessee, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book is founded on the principle that the relation of logical consequence is best understood as a relation between concrete acts, not between abstract propositions inhabiting inference systems. The author illuminates the following: the concept of the common mind; how reasoning is inherently social; that communication shapes action within the context of the common mind; that public sentiment is a powerful, macrosocial force shaped by interlocking processes of shared understanding and strategic communication; and finally, how a disjointed common mind can result from persistent false narratives.

An Introduction to Collective Intentionality

In Action, Thought, and Society

Kirk Ludwig, Marija Jankovic Davidson College, USA.

An Introduction to Collective Intentionality: In Action, Thought, and Society makes a cogent case for the field's importance, presents its central questions, and introduces the main topics of study. Authors Kirk Ludwig and Marija Jankovic masterfully demonstrate why understanding collective intentions is essential for comprehending social dynamics, from everyday cooperation to complex institutional structures. While presenting their nuanced "individualist position," the authors provide a balanced exploration of competing perspectives, ensuring readers gain a comprehensive understanding of ongoing debates and future research directions.

The Plasticity of the Emotions

Puzzles in the Science of Emotion

Raamy Majeed University of Manchester, UK

The emotions is a topic at the forefront of research in philosophy, yet most studies focus on the emotions and rationality, how emotions differ from feeling and whether there is a science of the emotions. Relatively overlooked, however, are the philosophical questions raised by the fact that our emotions develop and change over time. Raamy Majeed proposes a novel perspective on emotional development, one that synthesises the best features of existing frameworks and solves some of the major puzzles. It will be of interest to those studying and researching the philosophy of the emotions and philosophy of psychology, philosophy of mind and philosophy of cognitive science.

Metaphysics and Aesthetics of Decoration

Ornamental Thinking

Edited by Michaela Fišerová University of Jan Evangelista in Ústí nad Labem, Czech Republic, Jakub Mácha Masaryk University, Czech Republic

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

This volume offers a fresh and timely contribution to current discussions of ornamentation, repetition, and affect in aesthetics. It provides new insights into how ornamentation shapes artistic, philosophical, and social practices, positioning it as a dynamic force in contemporary thought. It challenges the traditional notion that ornament is mere decoration and reframes it as a vital philosophical and cultural concept. Drawing on thinkers like Wittgenstein, Heidegger, Derrida, Deleuze, and Foucault, the contributors explore how ornamentation operates as a parergon, a site of affective repetition, and a marker of epistemological shifts.

Whoever Hears You Hears Me

Dogmatic Authority as Testimony

James Dominic Rooney

Many oppose dogma fearing that heresy accusations lead to violence; similarly, opposition to claims of infallible church authority stems from fears of fanaticism, closed-mindedness, and blind obedience. The book justifies dogma while firmly opposing violence, fanaticism, closed-mindedness, and mindless deference. It demonstrates through philosophical reasoning that Christian theists who reject dogma or dogmatic authority ultimately adopt self-defeating positions. These insights reveal why Christians should unite in restoring communion within one holy, catholic, and apostolic Church. The book will appeal to scholars of theology, philosophy of religion, and ecclesiology.

Pragmatism and Philosophy of Science

Historical and Contemporary Perspectives

Edited by Roberto Gronda University of Pisa, Italy, Marianne Janack Hamilton College, USA, Giancarlo Marchetti University of Perugia, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Science

This volume traces how pragmatism—in its classical and contemporary versions—serves as a useful toolbox for philosophers of science. The first section contains essays addressing topics belonging to the general philosophy of science. The second section features chapters that deal with themes and concepts from special sciences, ranging from natural sciences to sociology, from mathematics to religious studies. Finally, the third section analyzes the societal role of science and scientific activity.

Quantum Gravity and Computation

Information, Pregeometry, and Digital Physics

Edited by Dean Rickles University of Sydney, Australia, Xerxes D. Arsiwalla Wolfram Institute, USA, Hatem Elshatlawy

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Mathematics and Physics

It has become apparent a new theoretical framework is needed to solve the problem of quantum gravity. This kind of framework goes beyond conventional mathematical conceptions of space, time, and matter. The volume explores this approach from a variety of perspectives, including physics-based, mathematical, computational, and philosophical. By probing at a level of structure beneath the ordinary structures used in general relativity and quantum mechanics, the volume finds new ways of showing how these higher-order structures can be constructed from the deeper elements.

When Metaphysics Meets Biology

Kantian Approaches to the Concept of Organism

Philippe Huneman Paris I Sorbonne, France

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Science

This book explains the background and meaning of Kant's account of the life sciences in the Critique of Judgment by reading the development of Kant's ideas on the living since his 1763 precritical essays, in parallel with analyzing several milestones in the constitution of the concept of organism as a self-organized totality, studied by biology. It offers a philosophical interpretation of the emergence of biology in Kant's thinking, and sheds light on the philosophical issues currently embedded within the conceptual structure of biology.

2ND EDITION

Egalitarianism

Iwao Hirose McGill University, Canada

Series: New Problems of Philosophy

A superb introduction to the problem of contemporary egalitarian theories. It explains how rival theories of egalitarianism evaluate distributions of well-being, and carefully assesses the theoretical structure of each theory. It also examines how egalitarian theories are applied to health and health care, thus bringing a deceptively complex philosophical debate into clear focus. Updated and revised throughout and includes a new chapter on relational egalitarianism. Essential reading for anyone studying distributive justice, and will also be of interest to students and researchers in philosophy, economics, political theory, public policy, and public health.

Global Justice for Children

A Capability Approach

Gottfried Schweiger University of Salzburg, Austria

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

While global justice is a hot topic in political philosophy, the place of children and children as a particular group of agents has been largely ignored. This book explores global justice for children from the perspective of the capability approach. The capability approach represents a fruitful normative basis to explore the issue of global justice for children. This book raises essential questions regarding the non-ideal conditions in which children's claims can be conceptualised. It also clarifies central categories of childhood such as vulnerability, responsibility, and social status.

Concursus and Concept Use in Karl Barth's Doctrine of Providence

Nature, Grace, and Norms

David C. Chao

Series: Barth Studies

This book provides a fresh interpretation of Karl Barth's doctrine of providence in Church Dogmatics III/3, emphasizing concursus—the cooperation between divine and human action. The book will be relevant to scholars and students of theology and philosophy of religion, particularly those focused on Karl Barth, Reformed theology, and theological method, as well as readers interested in contemporary debates on the intersection of divine action, human agency, and the formation of Christian norms.

Dialectic as Dialogue

Theology After Brunner

Taylor D. Holleyman

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

Dialectic as Dialogue: Theology After Brunner is an examination of Emil Brunner's theological epistemology with special focus on his reception of dialogical philosophy, its implications for the nature and task of theology, and Brunner's contemporary significance. It will also appeal to readers with broader interests in modern philosophies of religion, epistemology, theological reasoning, and constructive claims regarding the nature and task of theology.

Doing Research in Practical Theology

Jos de Kock, Mirella Klomp

Doing Research in Practical Theology provides a step-by-step introduction to the setting up and execution of good quality practical theological research. This 'how-to' handbook provides an accessible resource for students in Practical Theology who are in the process of developing and carrying out a research project, and allows them to reflect on eight basic steps that will help in their research in practical theology. With a pragmatic approach and examples from recent case studies, this book appeals to researchers in Practical Theology, and in particular masters and PhD students and their supervisors. At the end of each chapter, questions for reflection are presented.

Hope from a Body in Pain

Theology, Psychology and Medical Narratives

Lena Maria Lorenz

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book explores the phenomenon of hope in the context of long-term ill-health. It brings medicine, psychology and theology in dialogue with the voices of those with first-hand experience of chronic pain. The author challenges a highly individualistic and positivistic view on hope and argues for hope as intuitive, reflective, active and communal. The book will be of particular interest to scholars working at the intersection of medicine, psychology and theology, as well as those in the medical humanities.

Working and Caring for Creation

Linking Theology of Work and Ecotheology Based on Escrivá's Christian Materialism

Emilio Chuvieco Universidad de Alcalá, Alcalá de Henares, Spain

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book presents an innovative approach that connects ecotheology and theology of work. It expands on the concept of Christian materialism proposed by Saint Josemaría Escrivá (1902–1975) to overcome dualisms that ignore the spiritual value of material realities. An additional Trinitarian framework is developed along these lines that proposes a new type of work that is co-creative, co-redemptive and co-sanctifying, following the ad-extra attributes of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit in their providential care for creation. The volume is particularly relevant to scholars of theology with an interest in both work and the environment.

3RD EDITION

Christian Thought

A Historical Introduction

Chad Meister Bethel College, USA, J.B. Stump

Christian Thought: A Historical Introduction offers a clear and engaging overview of the major ideas, figures, and movements that have shaped Christian theology from the early Church to the present day. Now in its third edition, this accessible and engaging book introduces readers to the historical development of Christian thought, emphasizing how theology has been shaped by—and has responded to—changing cultural, philosophical, and political contexts. This new edition features expanded coverage of Eastern Orthodoxy, the Reformation beyond Calvin, and the global expressions of Christianity that have come to the fore in recent decades.

Moltmann in China

Reception and Dialogue

Naomi Thurston

The book explores the reception of the German theologian Jürgen Moltmann's theology within the general framework of a budding Chinese academic theology. It introduces the reception of Moltmann's theology in Chinese contexts as a dialogic process of intercultural learning and theological meaning-making, whether in readings of western intellectual history, Marxist dialogue, political philosophy, or comparative studies. The book will appeal to academics, postgraduate students, and theologians interested in World Christianity, contextual theology, and intercultural theology.

Apocalyptic Phenomenology

Essays in the Philosophy of Divine Revelation

Balázs M. Mezei Corvinus University of Budapest,
Hungary

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

The concept of 'apocalyptic phenomenology' is rooted in the phenomenological tradition of 'Offenbarung' (revelation, revealing) as the basic feature of phenomena. In the author's view, reality is self-disclosing, 'apocalyptic', and thus he explains the connections between the original, Biblical notion of apocalupsis and the important developments of our philosophical traditions leading up to the 'theological turn of phenomenology'. The chapters are framed around a focus on newness and engage with the work of key thinkers such as Edmund Husserl, Martin Heidegger, Paul Ricœur, Hans Urs von Balthasar and Anton Günther.

Emotions of Self-Assessment in Al-Ghazālī and Aquinas

Shame as Virtue and Pride as Vice

Marina F. Garner

This book offers a comparative study of two central yet often neglected moral emotions—shame and pride—in the ethical writings of Abū Ḥamid al-Ghazālī and Thomas Aquinas. Moving beyond conventional accounts of medieval philosophy focused on metaphysics or law, it reveals how each thinker reinterprets Aristotelian virtue ethics through the lens of religious commitment. It offers not only a fresh reading of key figures but also a new framework for understanding how religious beliefs and practices can shape the valence of emotions.

Secularization, Social Order, and World History

Toward a Global Perspective

Kevin N. Flatt

This book provides a new perspective on the nature of secularization, and demonstrates that the concepts of "religion" and the "secular" that are assumed in traditional accounts of secularization are not universal human categories, but specifically modern and Western ideas. As the secular order has been exported around the world, it has provoked movements for the restoration of sacred-social order that are often misunderstood as mere religious revivals or a clash of civilizations. Bridging sociology, history, religious studies, and philosophy, this work offers an innovative, global account of secularization and its discontents.

Religious Authorities and Practices of Conflict Resolution

Edited by Carla Bagnoli , Vincenzo Pacillo

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

Religious Authorities and Practices of Conflict Resolution asks the following important questions: How is interfaith dialogue to be conceived and structured? Is such a dialogue even possible, if each religious group is entitled to claim decisive and exclusive authority? This volume proposes that the challenge be addressed by taking a transdisciplinary approach, which appropriates resources and methods from different perspective philosophy, sociology, economics, and law. By integrating perspectives from philosophy, sociology, economics, and law, the book provide a holistic understanding of how religious authority can influence conflict resolution.

Feminist Theologies: The Basics

Susan M. Shaw, Grace Ji-Sun Kim

Series: The Basics

Beginning in the early 1960s, feminists identified ways traditional theologies omitted, ignored, and vilified women's experiences, issues, and perspectives. In the past 60 years, feminists have developed a vibrant theological tradition that is essential for a full understanding of Christian theologies. Feminist theologies engage some of the most important and controversial issues of our time, from the roles of women in society to sexuality, abortion, gender identity, and the environment. This book is an ideal starting point for anyone seeking a full introduction to feminist theologies as well as broader themes in theology, gender, and sexuality.

The Spiritual Narratives of Generation Z

From Divine Disillusionment to Simple Faith

Edward A. David , Claire MacLeod , Ning Xu , Phoebe Kelly , Saadadden Monajed

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

Grounded in pioneering research begun at the University of Oxford, this book is the first study to use story completion and participatory co-analysis to place Gen Z voices at the center of religious inquiry. At its core is a typology of five narratives, from Divine Disillusionment to Simple Faith, that uncover young people's latent beliefs and spiritual aspirations. Combining the breadth of qualitative analysis with the depth of narrative interpretation, this book offers fresh insights into how today's youngest adults are reshaping the religious imagination, engaging with global religions and philosophies through their smartphones.

The Rise and Fall of Christian Civilization in the Modern World

Stephen Strehle

This work traces two movements that defined our modern world: the rise of Puritan ideals that birthed concepts of liberty, equality, and democracy, and the subsequent emergence of secular society that challenged religious authority. It offers both general readers and scholars a comprehensive understanding of how Christianity's cultural influence evolved from a dominant force to one voice among many in our contemporary pluralistic society. More than a historical account, it provides crucial insights into the ongoing dialogue between faith and secularism in modern life.

Black Religion in America

An Introduction

Jonathan Chism

Series: Religion in America

Black Religion in America is an introduction to the religious history of African Americans from the period of slavery to the twenty-first century. The book traces the social justice thought and activism of Black Christians, Conjurors, Muslims, Pentecostals, Humanists, and various esoteric prophets across historical epochs, introducing students to major religious groups and innovators within African American religious history who have striven for full social inclusion. It offers a narrative interpretation of Black religion that engages this current generation of students grappling with enduring marginalization in the post-civil Rights and post-Obama era.

Godless Polemics

Atheist Pamphleteering and the Specter of Emancipation in the United States

Florian Zappe

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

Godless Polemics examines the role of pamphleteering as a medium for radical critique in the intellectual and cultural history of American atheism, focusing on its function as oppositional and counter-hegemonic discourse. By analysing key pamphleteers from the nineteenth century to contemporary digital activists, this book redefines the role of pamphleteering in the history of unbelief in the United States, highlighting their vital role in introducing affirmative atheist ideas in emancipatory contexts. It will be of particular interest to scholars of religious studies and American studies.

Remembering the Dead in Modern China

Religious Rituals of Remembrance

Edited by Stephen Covell, Stuart Young, Ying Zeng

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book is a groundbreaking volume that brings together diverse scholarly perspectives to examine the complex and evolving practices of death, dying, and remembrance in modern China. The contributors show how acts of remembrance provide opportunities to find meaning in the loss of loved ones; to challenge cultural conventions by generating significance from absence in burial rituals; to refashion mourning rites in response to modern political demands; and to forge bonds between urban and rural mortuary communities. This book will appeal to scholars and students interested in the intersection of tradition and modernity in Chinese cultural practices around mortality.

2ND EDITION

The Qur'an

An Introduction

Abdullah Saeed University of Melbourne, Australia

This thoroughly revised third edition of The Qur'an: An Introduction provides an accessible yet scholarly guide to the many dimensions of Qur'anic study, designed for both Muslim and Western non-Muslim students alike. The book examines the Qur'an through Western academic perspectives while honoring the rich interpretive traditions that have evolved from the time of Prophet Muhammad to the present day. This essential guide bridges historical understanding with contemporary relevance, offering readers a balanced and thorough introduction to Islam's foundational text and its profound influence across centuries of religious thought.

Understanding Religion through the Eyes of Others

Case Studies of Key Thinkers

Timothy Stanley University of Newcastle, Australia

This book studies religion through the eyes of some of its most influential, exemplary and sometimes controversial people. Historically organized and philosophically nuanced, each chapter locates a thinker in their material context to elucidate the impact of their ideas. It draws students into perennial debates that evoke the habits of mind capable of engaging today's multi-religious societies, and provides options for further reading at the end of each chapter. Thought provoking and wide-ranging, this book will be essential reading for students and scholars of world religions, comparative religion, and the history and philosophy of religion.
