Myanmar's Post-Coup Foreign Policy

Weathering Isolation and Sanctions

Andrea Passeri University of Malaya, Malaysia

Series: Politics in Asia

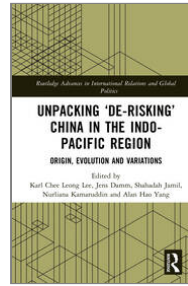

Passeri unpacks the highly polarized and dysfunctional reaction of the international community vis-à-vis Myanmar's 2021 military coup, as well as the strategy utilized by the ruling junta to counter the diplomatic fallout of the power grab and ensuing civil war. The book shows that Myanmar's military-installed regime is neither irrational in its foreign policy choices, nor marginalized on the global stage due to Western sanctions and isolation. Quite on the contrary, the troubled and conflict-prone Southeast Asian country currently enjoys a growing geopolitical centrality in the region and beyond.

Unpacking "De-risking" China in the Indo-Pacific Region

Origin, Evolution and Variations

Edited by Karl Chee Leong Lee Universiti Malaya, Malaysia
Jens Damm, Nurliana Kamaruddin Universiti Malaya, Malaysia
Nur Shahadah Jamil Universiti Malaya, Malaysia
Alan Hao Yang Taiwan-Asia Exchange Foundation (TAEF),

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

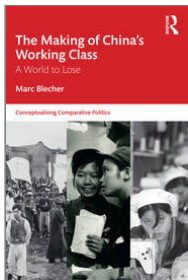

Lee and editors bring together a group of international scholars to map the overall landscape of "de-risking" China – a concept that drew consensus among the Group of Seven (G7) countries. Drawing on rich findings by different scholars, it demonstrates that a wide spectrum of variations exists insofar as the Indo-Pacific countries' observance to the concept of 'de-risking' China. A must-read book for academics, scholars and university students of International Relations and Political Science as well as those interested in understanding the evolving dynamics of "de-risking" China among the Indo-Pacific countries today.

The Making of China's Working Class

A World to Lose

Marc Blecher

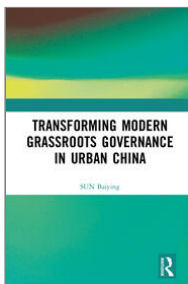

Series: Conceptualising Comparative Politics

The Making of China's Working Class: A World to Lose asks these three questions: what kind of class is the Chinese working class?; what are the historical forces and processes that have formed it?; and how does the pattern of class formation help explain the working class's reactions historically, presently, and even prospectively? Blecher offers a contribution not just to scholarship on Chinese labor politics, but on the country's politics and the state's hegemony more widely. The Making of China's Working Class is an outstanding resource for educators and students to understand Chinese politics and comparative working-class politics.

Contesting Autocratisation

Actors and Institutions of Democratic Resistance in a Global Perspective

Edited by Bilge Yabanci, Karabekir Akkoyunlu, Kerem Öktem

Series: ThirdWorlds

While authoritarianism continues to gain ground globally, this book offers a global and nuanced perspective into how, when and where autocratization may be contested and sometimes reversed. Drawing on rich case studies from across Africa, Asia, Latin America, and Southeastern Europe, the chapters map the actors and institutions of resistance, ranging from political parties and bureaucrats to social movements and transnational alliances. The book adopts a dynamic, process-driven approach, considering the conditions under which resistance emerges, adapts, and persists even in shrinking civic and political spaces.

US Security Interests in the 'New Eastern Mediterranean'

Balancing Russia in a Post-Unipolar World

Michalis Kontos

Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy

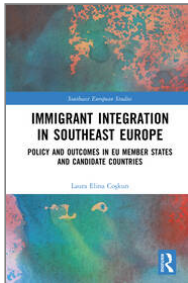

This book discusses US foreign and security policy in contemporary Eastern Mediterranean, against the backdrop of the war in Ukraine and renewed great power competition. It examines US relations with Turkey, Greece, and Cyprus and a balancing strategy in the region towards Russia. The author assesses the impact on Eastern Mediterranean politics and US interests, drawing on neorealist theories and the dynamics of an international system in transition and explores the impact of the global redistribution of power in regions which do not traditionally constitute top strategic priorities.

The Role of Memory in War Politics and Post-Conflict Reconciliation

Historical Memory in Crisis

Edited by Lily Hamourtziadou Birmingham City University, UK
Przemysław Łukasik

Series: Innovations in International Affairs

The Role of Memory in War Politics and Post-Conflict Reconciliation: Historical Memory in Crisis explores how memories of war, trauma, and national identity shape politics, diplomacy, and reconciliation across Europe and beyond. Spanning from the Second World War to the current Russia-Ukraine war, the book examines how governments and societies choose to remember — or forget — their past. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of political science, history, international relations, sociology, psychology, anthropology, and media studies.

Educating Europe

EU government, knowledge and legitimisation

Sotiria Grek University of Glasgow, UK

Series: Routledge Studies on Government and the European Union

The book will examine the ways in which an education policy field has been constructed in Europe since the early 1970s and will explore how this field has never really been peripheral or 'secondary' as, perhaps its silencing from mainstream EU integration studies and political science has rendered it to be. Rather, it will show the ways that governing education has been integral in the processes of creating a European home market, at the heart of the neo-mercantilist project in the '80s, as well as during the later dominance of the neo-liberal ideology in the '90s-2000s and the efforts to create a competitive supra-state.

Russian Policies for the Development of the Northern Sea Route

Jawahar Bhagwat

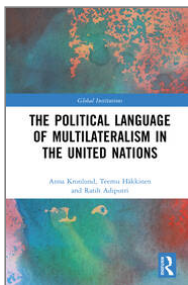

Series: Studies in Contemporary Russia

This book explains Russian policies for developing the Northern Sea Route (NSR), analysing Moscow's public policy and national and geopolitical considerations in developing national maritime transport routes. The state's organisational structure and regulatory framework are analysed to provide a comprehensive review of the participation of the regions of the Russian Arctic in the development of the NSR and the role of public-private partnership mechanisms. Despite Western sanctions, Russia has continued its steadfast focus on developing the NSR, modifying its policies to keep its flagship project in the Arctic on track. This book assesses whether these goals are viable.

The Political Language of Multilateralism in the United Nations

Anna Kronlund, Teemu Häkkinen, Ratih D. Adiputri

Series: Global Institutions

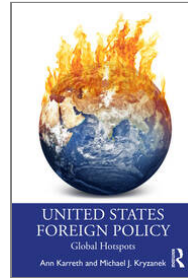

This book explores the politics of multilateralism in the context of three United Nations (UN) pillars: human rights, peace and security, and development. The authors analyze the language of multilateralism as employed when the UN handles cases of transnational challenges and seeks to establish an international response and argue that conceptual politics of multilateralism taking place in the UN concerning key contemporary challenges illustrate a lack of shared understanding of multilateralism, but also broad interest to promote alternatives for multilateral cooperation as an activity.

United States Foreign Policy

Global Hotspots

Ann Karreth, Michael J. Kryzanek

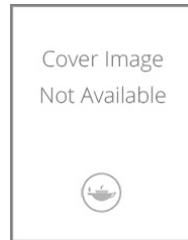

This book explores how the United States responds to eight of today's most pressing global hotspots: Russia, China, Israel-Palestine, Ukraine, Iran, North Korea, the Caribbean Basin, and the Sahel. Drawing on a clear framework of issues, interests, and actors, the authors examine how U.S. policies are shaped, the motivations behind them, and their impact on global stability. Essential reading for students and scholars of American foreign policy, international relations, and global politics, this book offers a compelling look at the evolving role of the United States and its influence on the future of international peace and security.

US Foreign Policy and Turkey

Relationships, Challenges and Tensions

Tom Lansford, Robert J. Pauly, Dylan Tyner

Series: US Foreign Policy and Conflict in the Islamic World

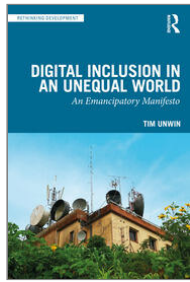

The United States and Turkey were extraordinarily close allies during most of the Cold War with Turkey being central to U.S. strategy in the Middle East. In the aftermath, the United States and Turkey faced a range of new challenges to their relationship which nonetheless remained strong until the 2003 Iraq War. The U.S.-led invasion of Iraq and the overthrow of Saddam Hussein revealed divergences in the interests of the two allies and led to tensions not seen since the 1974 Turkish invasion of Cyprus. Lansford and Pauly seek to identify the main convergences and divergences of U.S. and Turkish interests and analyzes the trends in relations between the two states. They provide a thorough examination of national interests and how those interests define foreign and security policy for the two states. The examination of interests provides deep insight into the U.S.-Turkish relationship. The book explores U.S. support or opposition to Turkish actions toward Greece, Cyprus and the Kurds

Digital Inclusion in an Unequal World

An Emancipatory Manifesto

Tim Unwin

Series: Rethinking Development

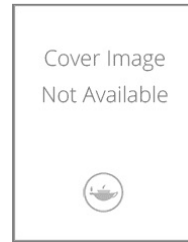

Why do so many efforts to use digital tech to help the world's poor ultimately end in failure? This book provides a detailed critique of previous theory and practice, whilst also proposing practical and realistic suggestions for good practice. This book combines longer thematic chapters by Tim Unwin, one of the world's leading thinkers on ICT for development, with shorter vignettes from other experts across a range of different practical, intellectual, and geographic backgrounds. Students from across the fields of international development, computer science, electronic engineering, geography, and economics will also benefit from its expert insights.

Which Way Left for Social Democracy

New Narratives in the Shadow of the Global Financial Crisis

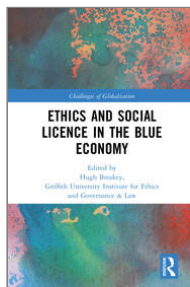

John Bourdouvalis

Bourdouvalis examines how European democratic responses to the 2008 Global Financial Crisis demonstrated alternative forms of social democracy. The book uses an interpretive case study analysis of democratic responses to the 2008 crisis, and focuses on how movements in Spain, Greece, and Iceland sought to confront and resist neoliberal post-democratic capitalism. It covers protests and social mobilisation against austerity politics between 2008 to 2017, highlighting the inherent tensions and contradictions of neoliberal capitalism, but also the ineffectiveness of existing social democracy to meet systemic disorders of post-2008 Europe.

Monetizing and Localizing Foreign Aid

Evolving Paths and the Professionals Treading Them

Molly Sundberg

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

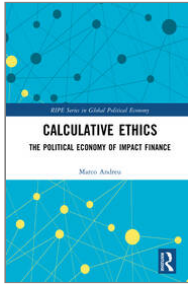

This book investigates the uneasy coexistence of two current policy pathways within international development: to monetize aid and simultaneously to localize it. The book explores these paths through the experiences of the development experts who are treading them, notably those who hail from aid recipient countries, and those who engage with for-profit instruments and institutions. It looks beyond non-profit NGOs, to the growing institutional realms of consulting firms, development finance institutions, and foreign state aid agencies involved in both for-and non-profit work. It also highlights possibilities for change which would interest development practitioners and policy makers.

Calculative Ethics

The Ambiguous Politics of Impact Finance

Marco Andreu

Series: RIPE Series in Global Political Economy

Calculative Ethics examines social and development impact bonds as a form of ethical finance that adopts a fact-centred approach to addressing social ills. Impact bonds are shown to recast benevolent investing through evidence-based governing, tying investor returns to demonstrated positive social outcomes in domains such as health and education. Calculative Ethics will appeal to scholars and students of international political economy— particularly those studying ethical finance and the financialisation of welfare and development, researchers in economic sociology, public policy, development studies, and human geography.

Governance and the Hegemony of Financial Stability

From Financial Crisis to Climate Emergency

Carola Westermeier

Series: RIPE Series in Global Political Economy

Governance and the Hegemony of Financial Stability: From Financial Crisis to Climate Emergency explains how the handling of the Global Financial Crisis has redefined the relations of politics and financial markets and how the then established hegemony of financial stability still dominates today's responses to today's challenges, particularly climate change. The book argues that within the years of crisis management a hegemony of financial governance evolved that accepts the financial system as being intrinsically crisis-laden and potentially disastrous for broader notions of welfare and social security.

Runaway Capitalism

James H. Mittelman

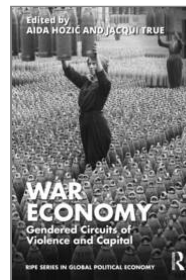

By homing in on the confluence of algorithmic capitalism, cognitive capitalism, and philanthropic capitalism, this tightly argued book offers a novel interpretation of an unnoticed and understudied transformation. The three forces form a trialectic, a system that lacks effective controls and is spreading globally. Conducted on four continents, the research shows how runaway capitalism is making work and daily life ever-more precarious and sparking anti-precarity movements. Tracing these metamorphoses both in the global North and global South, the author identifies plausible scenarios for blunting the sharp edges of runaway capitalism.

Buffer Thinking in Chinese Foreign and Security Policy

The Reasoning behind China's Policies toward North Korea, Taiwan, and Mongolia

Yu-Hua Chen
Series: Politics in Asia

Chen examines China's unwavering foreign policy toward North Korea, Taiwan, and Mongolia, challenging conventional international relations theory. He introduces "buffer thinking"—a geopolitical mentality driving China to secure peripheral territories against potential rivals regardless of global power shifts. This is essential reading for international relations scholars and students of geopolitics seeking fresh analytical approaches to buffer state dynamics. It is also a valuable resource for policymakers and diplomats engaged with East Asian security issues who need insights into China's strategic calculations in contemporary great power competition.

Rethinking North–South Discourses

Reparations and Historical Injustice

Edited by Bianca Sola Claudio, Filipe Campello

Series: Routledge Global Cooperation Series

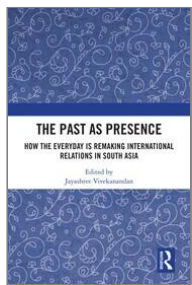

This book challenges the asymmetries in dialogues between the Global South and Global North. The book considers how the literature on reparative politics in itself often perpetuates Western-centric models which risk leading to paternalistic approaches, as well as undermining the agency of thinkers, activists, and victims within the Global South. The book considers questions of affirmative action, collective memory, and alternative frameworks for dialogue on reparations. Interdisciplinary by design, this book will be an important read for researchers across the fields of political science, international relations, global studies, and sociology.

The Past as Presence

How the Everyday is Remaking International Relations in South Asia

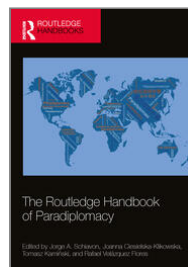

Edited by Jayashree Vivekanandan

This book explores South Asia's postcolonial politics through the lens of circulatory networks—of objects, people, and ideas—as the region navigated pivotal historical junctures. The contributors reexamine epochal moments in South Asia's international relations, including the Second World War, the 1947 Partition, and the 1971 Liberation War, drawing insights from social history, memory studies, and popular discourses. The volume demonstrates how practices of remembering, forgetting and commemorating are intrinsic to the region's ongoing identity formation.

The Routledge Handbook of Paradiplomacy

Edited by Jorge A. Schiavon, Joanna Ciesielska-Klikowska, Tomasz Kamiński, Rafael Velázquez Flores

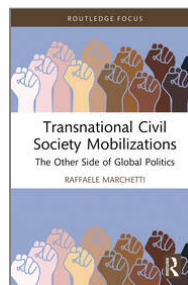

This handbook provides a comprehensive examination of how subnational governments, regions, and municipalities participate in and shape the field of International Relations (IR). Covering the conceptual, theoretical, methodological, institutional, and practical dimensions of paradiplomacy, it is divided into five parts. Part I focuses on paradiplomacy as a distinct field of research. Part II presents multi-level and polycentric governance analyses. Part III examines institutional aspects of involvement in international organizations. Part IV explores the intersection of paradiplomacy with public policy. Part V provides a detailed worldwide regional analysis.

Understanding International Relations in the Indo-Pacific

Aleš Karmazin, Michal Kolmaš, Guangyu Qiao-Franco

Series: Routledge Studies on the Asia-Pacific Region

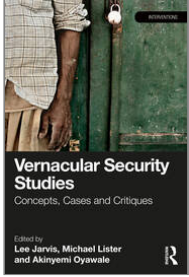

Karmazin, Kolmaš, and Qiao-Franco deconstruct the concept of the Indo-Pacific and offer a timely, comparative, and multidimensional exploration of the region's international relations. Addressing fundamental academic questions regarding the viability of the Indo-Pacific as a regional conception, this book examines whether the Indo-Pacific is a true regional community or a strategic invention driven by global rivalries and geopolitical interests. An essential read for students, scholars, and practitioners of international affairs who seek to make sense of one of the world's most dynamic and contested regions.

Vernacular Security Studies

Concepts, Cases, and Critiques

Edited by Lee Jarvis, Michael Lister Oxford Brookes University, UK Akinyemi Oyawale

Series: Interventions

This book covers new conceptual, methodological, and empirical issues that will progress the debates on Vernacular Security Studies (VSS) and the value of studying ordinary articulations of (in)security. Bringing together established and emerging scholars, it offers a timely and much needed engagement with this explicitly critical – and increasingly prominent – framework in security research. Demonstrating its value in different geographical, thematic, and historical contexts these experts consider the impact of VSS on a range of topical issues including multi-species relations, decolonial/postcolonial approaches to security, migration, borders, and cities.

Public Diplomacy between Asia and the Middle East

Edited by Francesca Frassinetti , Sook Jong Lee , Chiara Lovotti

Series: Changing Dynamics in Asia-Middle East Relations

This book considers how public diplomacy is employed as an instrument of statecraft by Middle Eastern and Asian governments to leverage soft power. Building and extending on the extant scholarship, which remains mostly focused on East Asia, it incorporates the Middle East not only as a recipient but also a practitioner of public diplomacy. The thematic focus is underpinned by case studies of individual nation-states, enabling analysis of concrete examples that shed light on the evolution of Asia-Middle East ties.

Status

Honor and White Privilege in Brazil and Beyond

Bernd Reiter Texas Tech University, USA

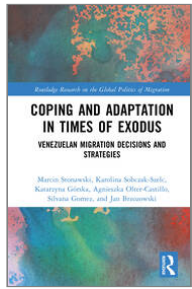

With this book, Bernd Reiter reflects on over three decades of research on race, exclusion, inequality, white supremacy and the defense of privilege in Brazil to explore how social hierarchies, honor, and dignity perpetuate systemic disparities in Latin America. Status is not purely hereditary, nor is it solely a function of economic class. Instead, it is a multifaceted construct that incorporates elements of race, class, gender, cultural capital, behavior, and descent. A passionate and illuminating alternative to the study of inequality in Latin America, this book adds important nuance to discussions of how to devise more equitable and inclusive strategies for the future.

Decolonisation in the 21st Century

Edited by Joyce C.H. Liu, Brett Neilson

Series: Interventions

Amid rising global inequality, intensifying geopolitical frictions, and the renewed force of colonial logics, this volume offers a critical interrogation of coloniality, decolonial practices, global capitalism, and the technologies of governance that entrench social and environmental injustice. The book traverses a wide range of contemporary terrains—from digital governance and platform capitalism to gig economies, migrant labor, and the racialized violence of displacement. Contributors unpack the historical roots and systemic architectures of domination while foregrounding situated efforts of resistance and decolonial praxis.

Humanitarianism in the Home

Hosting-at-home and the Politics of Hospitality

Gabrielle Daoust University of Northern British Columbia, Canada; Synne L. Dyvik University of Sussex, UK

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

Focusing on humanitarian responses within the Global South and North, this book critically examines hosting-at-home – that is, people providing shelter in their own home to displaced people – as a widespread yet underexamined and underappreciated response to large-scale displacement. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of humanitarianism, international relations and politics, and refugee and migration studies. It will be of particular interest no doubt to those curious about how humanitarian responses have changed over time, how international organisations as well as ‘ordinary people’ have responded to humanitarian crises historically and in the present.

Velvet Capitalism and the Crisis of Liberal Democracy

Edited by Petr Agha, Petr Drulák

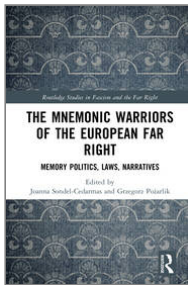

Recent concerns about the rise of populist movements obfuscate the limits and the contradictions inherent in the concept. The imposition of the liberal framework's economic policies, institutional designs and ideology across an entire region provides a unique opportunity to show the effects of the European project. Chapter contributors explore how the problems of the framework are most visibly demonstrated in post-communist countries where the internal tensions of liberal capitalism clash with locally embedded values. Recent research has focused on developments in the region in terms of how much the respective countries have strayed from liberal standards.

Feminisms

The Basics

Renee Heberle

Series: The Basics

Feminism: The Basics is a fresh introduction to our understanding of feminisms and feminist theories, offering readers a unique approach to studying feminisms in the plural by combining historical and theoretical perspectives on the academic and political lives of the term "feminism." Heberle's approach demonstrates the ongoing relevance of feminisms to contemporary political thinking and practice. This book will be particularly useful in upper division undergraduate classrooms and introductory courses at the graduate level of study. It is written in an accessible narrative form that will appeal to the non-academic reader as well.

Historical Materialism

Revisiting the Fundamental Concepts

Tony Andréani University of Paris 8, France

Series: Marx and Marxisms: New Horizons

First published in French, this book summarises decades of research on Karl Marx's theory of historical materialism. Written to further debate among scholars and beyond, Andréani develops the fundamental concepts of the Marxist theory of history as they apply to any society, particularly the so-called "economic" concepts, in their opposition to neo-classical theory and to reductive readings common among Marxist authors. The publication of Matérialisme Historique: Les concepts fondamentaux revisités (Paris: l'Harmattan, 2022) in English will be crucial to Anglophone audiences wanting to experience Andréani's original vision on the basic concepts of historical materialism.

The Prospects of a Pluriversal Transition to a Post-Capitalist, Post-Carbon Future

Edited by S. A. Hamed Hosseini University of Newcastle, Australia
Alexander Dunlap, Barry K. Gills University of Helsinki, Finland

Series: Rethinking Globalizations

This book critically engages with a central dilemma facing counter-hegemonic movements as global crises intensify: how to foster systemic change while maintaining the plurality of their struggles. The Prospects of a Pluriversal Transition to a Post-Capitalist, Post-Carbon Future explores the tensions between fragmentation and convergence, autonomy and solidarity, and the risks of compartmentalization in pluriversal politics. The volume examines movements resisting extractivism, food sovereignty initiatives, feminist and care-based ethics, commons-based governance, and radical pluriversalist networks that challenge dominant power structures.

Ethical and Hermeneutical Reflections on War, Violence, and Responsibility

Listening to Ukrainian Voices

Cynthia R. Nielsen

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

Ethical and Hermeneutical Reflections on War, Violence, and Responsibility: Listening to Ukrainian Voices demonstrates that Russia is not only carrying out an unjust war of aggression against Ukraine but also exposes how its use of (pseudo)History, gender narratives, information warfare, religious discourses, and other forms of propaganda have laid the groundwork for the present war and function to maintain it. Utilizing hermeneutical, moral, and political philosophy and discourse analysis to explain Russia's imperial identity, this book provides a clearer picture of how war in the 21st century impacts communities, culture, language, the information sphere, and the environment.

Freedom With Religions

Rethinking Civility through Political Inclusivism in Liberal Democracies

Valentina Gentile

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

Freedom With Religions offers a new interpretation of Rawls's political liberalism, aiming to reconcile this framework with the profound forms of religious pluralism that characterize contemporary democracies. At the heart of this approach lies political inclusivism, and by building on this foundation the book introduces the notion of a culture of civility, reinterpreting Rawls' theory and articulating a broader, more inclusive vision of the liberal democratic ethos. This book will be of particular interest to postgraduate students and scholars in political theory, philosophy, and sociology of religion.

Italian Theory and New Political Extremisms

Edited by Alfonso Galindo Hervás

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

Using Italian Theory as a conceptual lens, this book provides genealogies of current extremist political movements, their theoretical assumptions and the challenges they imply. Succinct and accessible chapters discuss different manifestations of political extremism: its violence, its relation to populism, its religious dimension, its conception of political action, its intellectual influences, and more. Italian Theory and New Political Extremisms is highly relevant to researchers and students interested in learning concepts, categories, metaphors, and arguments that are key to approaching the phenomenon of political extremism in a comprehensive manner.

José Luis Villacañas and Political Theory in the 21st Century

Political Theology, Empire, Republic, Populism and Beyond

Edited by Nicol A. Barria-Asenjo

Series: Psychoanalytic Political Theory

With this book, Nicol A. Barria-Asenjo and her team of experts introduce in a systematic and comprehensive way the work of political philosopher, José Luis Villacañas, in the fields of political theory, philosophy, and psychoanalysis. Considered one of the most prolific contemporary philosophers in Spain, with both national and international impact, Villacañas scholarship is characterised by social and political critique with elements of Freudian and Lacanian psychoanalysis and its links to populist perspectives. Divided into two parts, short and succinct chapters examine various aspects of Villacañas' intellectual production that spans over four decades.

New Gramscian Paths

Guido Liguori

Series: Marx and Marxisms: New Horizons

Guido Liguori's book Nuovi sentieri gramsciani is at the cutting edge of Gramscian scholarship. Now available in English, this book offers biographical, philological, and interpretative advancements in Antonio Gramsci's political thought to provide new perspectives on key moments in his life and thought. Focusing on his pre-prison years, Liguori historically reconstructs and contextualises Gramsci's ideas within the broader political, social, ideological, and philosophical landscape of his time. Guido Liguori's writing style is both accessible and rigorous making New Gramscian Paths suitable not only for specialists but also for a broader audience interested in Gramsci.

The Metaphysician of Syndicalism

Georges Sorel, Marxism, and Myth

Edited by Tommaso Giordani, Eric Brandom

Series: Marx and Marxisms: New Horizons

The Metaphysician of Syndicalism brings together for the first time exciting new research on the radical French philosopher and political theorist Georges Sorel (1847–1922). The most theoretically sophisticated interpreter of Marxism in the French fin de siècle, Georges Sorel was a paradigmatic figure of the transition between 19th and 20th century intellectual life. Though the vast majority of his writings remain unknown and unread, today they are of critical importance given the resurgence of political radicalism. This book aims to provide new directions to the field of Sorel studies in English for this generation.

Innovation in the Local Public Sector

A Critical Analysis

Lorraine Johnston Northumbria University, UK
John Fenwick Northumbria University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Governance and Public Policy

This book provides a critical exploration and assessment of public sector innovation, challenging conventional assumptions about the ways in which innovation is generated and how it may succeed or fail. Focussing on the local level of public sector, it systematically reviews the multidisciplinary nature of public sector innovation through an intersectional lens. This book is of key interest to scholars, students and practitioners of local government, public innovation institutions and innovation and more broadly to public policy and management, public administration, public services management, governance, and strategic management.

Anti-Corruption in a Discordant World

Contestation, Abuse, and Innovation

Edited by David Jackson, Inge Amundsen, David Aled Williams

Series: Routledge Corruption and Anti-Corruption Studies

Bringing together perspectives from around the world, this book captures the turbulent contemporary practice of anti-corruption. It shows it to be an arena in which domestic and transnational politics play out, shaping outcomes in often unpredictable ways. The purpose and means of this policy field are disputed and re-interpreted. Populist and illiberal leaders hijack anti-corruption to target opponents, restrict media and civil society, or even legitimise authoritarian rule. The book will attract students, researchers, professionals, and activists interested in how anti-corruption unfolds in a volatile age.

Evangelical Violence

Christian Nationalism, the Great Commission and a Millennium of "Holy" Warfare

Christopher Rhodes Boston University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Politics

Evangelical Violence examines the long history of western states and actors attempting to export and impose Christianity on non-western peoples, and the use of state-administered violence to achieve these "evangelical" goals. This book explores the theological underpinnings of western attempts to spread Christianity and examines how variations in the interpretation of this theological imperative have impacted beliefs and practices of western states. This book will appeal to students and scholars interested in Christian nationalism, colonialism, the history of international relations, and the intersection of religion and politics.

Liberal Peacebuilding in Times of Change

The UN, the EU, and the Politics of Continuity

Giulio Levorato

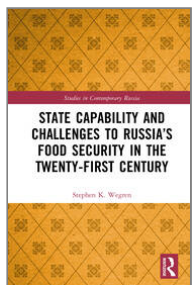

Series: Trends and Perspectives in International Politics

This book explores why and how, in an era in which conflicts are turning into arenas of strategic competition, international organizations have become the ultimate guardians of liberal peace. International organizations display policy continuity at a time when authoritarian models of conflict resolution are gaining traction thanks to streamlined objectives, fast-paced solutions, and reduced normative commitments. Confronting the challenges posed by illiberal actors, the United Nations and the European Union have entrenched their survival with that of the liberal international order, and of liberal peace in particular.

State Capability and Challenges to Russia's Food Security in the Twenty-first Century

Stephen K. Wegren

Series: Studies in Contemporary Russia

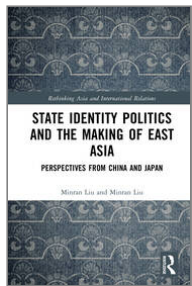

This book offers a rigorous examination of Russia's state capability through the critical lens of food security, revealing profound implications for domestic stability and international relations. Drawing on extensive research, the author demonstrates how food insecurity has historically catalysed political instability in Russia, explaining the Putin regime's substantial investment in agricultural self-sufficiency since 2014. The analysis extends beyond domestic considerations to interrogate Russia's unique position as the sole major authoritarian grain exporter in a changing global order.

State Identity Politics and the Making of East Asia

Perspectives from China and Japan

Minran Liu

Series: Rethinking Asia and International Relations

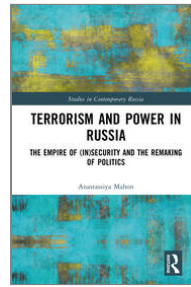

This book examines how the evolving state identities of China and Japan have interacted with the regional order and its prospects for both cooperation and conflict. It focuses on how domestic actors in both countries construct and mobilise state identities, how domestic politics interact with international relations, and how these identities shape regional order. Through analysis of China's and Japan's evolving approaches to key post-Cold War regional initiatives, the author demonstrates why state identity politics is vital to understanding Sino-Japanese relations and broader regional dynamics in East Asia.

Terrorism and Power in Russia

The Empire of (In)security and the Remaking of Politics

Anastasiya Mahon

Series: Studies in Contemporary Russia

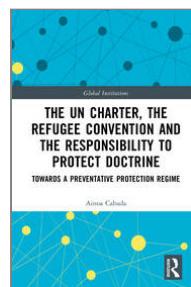

Why is it that in Russia, crises so often become framed as terrorism—and what does this tell us about power, politics, and state control? This book examines how the Kremlin has used the language of terrorism to shape Russia's domestic, regional, and international politics, from the Chechen wars to Syria and the 2022 invasion of Ukraine. Combining securitisation theory with a three-level analysis, it traces how securitising actors and speech acts reframed terrorism as an existential threat, enabling exceptional measures at home, influence across Russia's near abroad, and claims to counterterrorism leadership internationally.

The UN Charter, the Refugee Convention and the Responsibility to Protect Doctrine

Towards a Preventative Protection Regime

Ainoa Cabada

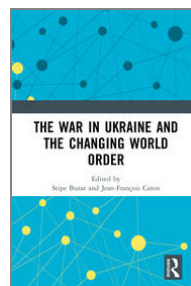

Series: Global Institutions

This book investigates three key frameworks applicable to the protection of asylum seekers and refugees: the Charter of the United Nations, the Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees, and the Responsibility to Protect doctrine. It reveals how the current international refugee protection regime embodies a narrow and reactive approach. Building on this, the book advocates for establishing a preventative protection regime grounded in the normative principles of these frameworks. For this, it articulates an R2P Preventative Assessment Tool that integrates the development of protection plans alongside risk assessments.

The War in Ukraine and the Changing World Order

Edited by Stipe Buzar, Jean-François Caron

In this book scholars from political science, economics, philosophy, history, and geopolitics offer critical insights into the conflict in Ukraine and the way it is changing the world order. These international experts explore the nature of the Russian regime, its stance towards the West, insights into the strategic, moral, and legal aspects of the conflict, and an appraisal of Western responses in terms of military aid to Ukraine, power competition, and value driven alliances. The war in Ukraine is often seen as the final nail in the coffin of the post-Cold War order of Liberal convergence, and the opening of a new multipolar reality.

Analyzing American Democracy

Politics and Political Science

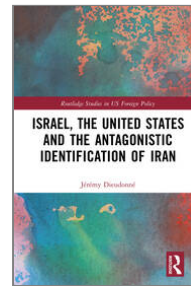

Jon R. Bond , Lydia M. Andrade , José D. Villalobos

The sixth edition of Analyzing American Democracy, like its predecessors, seeks not only to educate students about American government and politics, but also to teach two general lessons. First, as citizens of the world, as individuals pursuing an education, a career, and a fulfilling life, students have a lot of good, self-interested reasons to know how politics and government affects their lives. Second, if they want to know more about politics, approaching it scientifically is the most systematic and useful way to do so, and to prepare them for democratic citizenship regardless of the career they choose.

Israel, the United States, and the Antagonistic Identification of Iran

Jérémy Dieudonné

Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy

This book argues that hostility toward Iran is not simply the result of strategic calculations or historical grievances, but is deeply shaped by an internalized understanding of what it means to be "pro-Israel" in Washington—a stance increasingly tied to American political identity itself. By analyzing how this pro-Israel identification has been constructed, institutionalized, and linked to the portrayal of Iran as an existential adversary, the book reveals how U.S. policymakers are routinely confronted with a constrained policy field.

Populism, Propaganda, and Political Extremism

Building the Rage Machine

Adam G. Klein

Populism, Propaganda, and Political Extremism: Building the Rage Machine explores the manufacturing of populist narratives and deployment of propaganda that together produce the state of outrage and disunity in American politics. Through chronicling these subversive communications, and the architects and influencers behind them, Adam Klein expertly deconstructs the processes that sow national division. As this book uncovers the forms and functions of political ragemaking, it also offers concrete prescriptions for addressing the hostile partisanship that has consumed the national conversation.

Lori Cox Han , Diane Heith

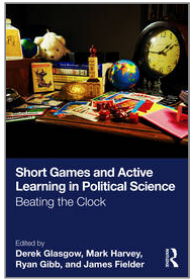

Presidents and the American Presidency, Fourth Edition, engages students in the study of the presidency through an exploration of both the political institution and those who have held the office. Drawing upon a foundation based upon archival documents, historical and contemporary issues, and extensive coverage of methodology, this comprehensive text combines the presidency-centred and president-centred approach to chronicle the evolution of the office. Fully updated to include the chaotic early days of the second Trump term, this book will appeal to students and scholars of American government, the presidency, leadership studies, and media studies—as well as general readers.

Short Games and Active Learning in Political Science

Beating the Clock

Edited by Derek Glasgow, Mark Harvey, Ryan Gibb, James Fielder

As political science instructors have increasingly turned to games and simulations in the classroom to educate and engage, scholars have worked to demonstrate their effectiveness, and to justify their use to skeptical colleagues. With instructional time always at a premium, this book focuses exclusively on short games and simulations: activities that are limited to one class period. Additionally, this book provides ready-to-use activities for teachers to utilize across Political Science subfields: American politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy and Administration, Political Theory, and activities that are not easily categorized into a field.

The Campaign Manager

Running and Winning Local Elections

Catherine Shaw

Successful campaign manager and three-term mayor of Ashland, Oregon, Catherine Shaw presents the must-have handbook for navigating local campaigns. This clear and concise handbook gives political novices and veterans alike a detailed plan for organizing, funding, publicizing, and winning local political campaigns. Finding the right message and targeting the right voters are clearly explained through specific examples, anecdotes, and illustrations. Shaw also provides in-depth information on assembling campaign teams and volunteers, canvassing, how to conduct a precinct analysis, and how to campaign on a shoestring budget.

5TH EDITION

The Development of the American Presidency

Richard J. Ellis Willamette University, USA

The Development of the American Presidency provides students with a full examination of the historical development of the American presidency. Through comprehensive and in-depth coverage, Richard J. Ellis looks at how the presidency has evolved in relation to the public, to Congress, to the executive branch, and to the law, showing how different aspects of the presidency have followed distinct trajectories of change. Analyzing how historical turns have shaped the modern institution, this book helps undergraduate political science students gain a rich, nuanced understanding of the American presidency.

The Unmaking of American Citizenship

How Americans Learned Not to Love Their Country and What Can Be Done About It

Benjamin Ginsberg, Dorothea Israel Wolfson

This book explores the ideologies and educational and cultural trends that have alienated Americans from their own country and offers a guide to the restoration of American citizenship. The authors examine the genealogy of ideologies that are leading to a decline in American citizenship, illuminate historical trends in both K-12 learning and higher education and critique the role that various thinkers on both the Left and the Right have played in unravelling civic and political bonds. Applying the lens of American political theory and development, this book will be of interest to students, educators, policy makers and activists interested in citizenship and civic education.

Resilient City Assessment and China's Governance

Liu Zezhao

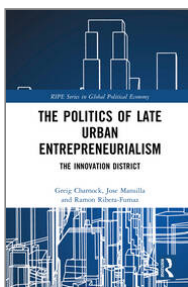

This book explores how cities worldwide, especially in China, can build resilience against disasters and presents a comprehensive framework for evaluating and strengthening urban safety and sustainability. It is essential reading for urban planners, policymakers, disaster management professionals, and scholars of urban studies, sustainability, and public administration. It is also highly relevant for government officials, NGO practitioners, and infrastructure developers who are invested in creating safer, more adaptable cities worldwide.

The Politics of Late Urban Entrepreneurialism

The Innovation District

Greig Charnock, Jose Mansilla University of Barcelona, Spain, Ramon Ribera-Fumaz Open University of Catalonia, Spain

Series: RIPE Series in Global Political Economy

The Politics of Late Urban Entrepreneurialism provides a critical examination of how innovation district transformation in Barcelona has led to periodic crisis and an overproduction of commercial real estate alongside a chronic housing shortage, gentrification, touristification, and a growth in low quality employment. With its focus on the historical development of global capitalism and the retention of a narrow repertoire of entrepreneurial approaches toward urban governance, this book will be of great interest to scholars and students researching globalisation and urbanisation.
