A New Olympic Era

Navigating Socioeconomic, Geopolitical, and Environmental Complexities

Yoav Dubinsky University of Oregon, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Sport, Culture and Society

This book examines the new era of the Olympic Movement as it is forced to navigate through old and new socioeconomic, geopolitical, and environmental challenges. Against a background of geopolitics, commercialization, technological development, extreme weather, and associated accelerating changes in global society, the book looks at the past, present and future of the idealistic philosophy of Olympism, and at the duality of the Olympic Movement as it faces the often contradictory challenges of the 21st Century. This book is essential reading for anybody with an interest in the Olympic Games, mega sports events, or the wider significance of sport in contemporary society.

How to Increase Physical Activity and Reduce Sedentary Behaviour

Applied Psychology in Motion

Stuart Biddle, Nanette Mutrie, Trish Gorely, Guy Faulkner

How to Increase Physical Activity and Reduce Sedentary Behaviour serves as an important source concerning all things psychological in the study of physical activity for health. This includes the mental health outcomes of physical activity, the determinants of physical activity, and interventions designed to change levels of physical activity. While comprehensive textbooks have their place, there is also a need for a more succinct and practical book describing important psychological constructs and how they can be applied to increase physical activity.

Retired Performers' Reflections for Movement Practice

Edited by Luke Jones, Zoë Avner, Allison Jeffrey

Series: Routledge Research in Sport, Culture and Society

This book explores how former expert performers from the realms of sport, dance, and movement practice relate to and teach/coach/instruct their disciplines. This edited collection is the first of its kind to bring together sociologically informed accounts from former expert performers regarding how their reflections influence how they choose to navigate performance spaces. The chapters examine the legacy of the authors' involvement in their movement performance space, with a focus upon how their post-performance experiences and reflections influenced a re-orientation to how they approach their coaching practice/instruction/pedagogy/community engagement and approach.

Routledge Handbook of Qualitative Methods for Researching Disability in Physical Education

Edited by Anthony J. Maher Leeds Beckett University, UK, Justin A. Haegele Old Dominion University, USA, Janine Coates Loughborough University, UK

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This is the first book to introduce qualitative research methods in the study of disability and physical education. It outlines key concepts and theories in disability and physical education, providing a platform for understanding, before exploring the full range of methodologies and techniques for research, data gathering and data representation. Written by a team of leading researchers from around the world, every chapter introduces a research theory, approach, method or tool; provides a critical discussion about how that theory, approach method or tool has been used or might be used, and offers signposts to future directions for research in that area.

Routledge Handbook of Sedentary Behaviour

Edited by Lee Smith, Mark A Tully

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This book provides a source of information on the epidemiological trends in sedentary behaviour across the lifecourse. Innovations in quantifying sedentary behaviour have led to a number of developments in tools used to measure sedentary behaviour, and this book reviews their relative merits. Our understanding of the range of physical and mental health effects continues to expand and these will be discussed, including likely causal mechanisms. Following this, the effectiveness of various interventions within different populations will be presented.

Social Class, Physical Education, and Community Sport

Theoretical Perspectives

Edited by Michael Roy Hobson St Mary's University, Twickenham, UK, Stuart Whigham Oxford Brookes University, UK, Izram Chaudry University of Bradford, UK

Series: Routledge Critical Perspectives on Equality and Social Justice in Sport and Leisure

At times, writing this introduction felt like an insurmountable task. In a world where class shapes every aspect of our existence; from where we live, to what we wear and eat, to the transport we use, the politicians that we vote for as well as the sport(s) we participate in – summarising the pertinence of social class has proven to be no easy endeavour. As editors, our hope therefore is that this collection will serve to stimulate critical thought around existing and evolving structures in PE and community sport and serve as a stimulus to continue research and future conversations in the field - in the same way others have stimulated us to date.

Casino Management in Integrated Resorts

Desmond Lam

Series: Hospitality Essentials Series

Gambling or, perhaps more appropriately, gaming is an activity that is generally accepted by our modern society and often involves the use of money to take risks so as to gain additional value. The activity is sometimes described as playing a game of chance that involves some elements of chance and/or skill. It can take various forms in different cultures and across time. In the absence of prior empirical evidence (i.e., research-based or evidence-based findings), best practice should prevail. Under the best practice principle, a practice that has shown the best possible evidence of success (or effectiveness) should be adopted.

Customer Insight in Tourism

Segments, Profiles and Personas

Edited by Adrian Lubowiecki-Vikuk, Izabela Michalska-Dudek

Series: Contemporary Geographies of Leisure, Tourism and Mobility

The era of globalisation and the Internet is characterised by high dynamics of change, accelerated spread of new ideas and rapid expansion of new technologies which have a significant impact on the modern life, including consumer behaviours. In addition, the supply side of the market is also worth examining – the preparation of entrepreneurs to serve older people from border areas. Cultural differences are also possible to study. The authors are preparing to take on these research challenges in the future.

Emotions and Affective Decisions in Hospitality Equity Investment

Guy Majerus Lincoln, Dorina-Maria Buda

This book examines the act of private equity investing in hospitality businesses. This is understood as the provision of funding for businesses from sources external to the business resulting in the entrepreneur / founder relinquishing ownership of a part of the business to one or multiple investors. In this book we have explored the activity of hospitality equity investment and in particular the implication of affect and emotion in the activity. As the entirety of the activity is concerned with making decisions about the investment, we have paid attention to how affect and emotion are located throughout this financial decision making.

Event Experience and Design

Transformative Approaches

Krzysztof Celuch

Event management and design are integral to human society, deeply embedded in our cultural fabric. As noted by Greg Richards, Lenia Marques, and Karen Mein, "Events do not just happen; they are carefully crafted to weave narratives (content) into places (context) through processes of experience design" (Richards et al., 2014, p. 1). Finally, we need to remember that events could shape our personal journey. We do not know what the magic Grail is to find a million-euro business, discover love, or build a life-long friendship. That is why designing experience is so important. It is always worth meeting.

Event Medical Provision

Ashley Garlick

Event medical provision is an indispensable and increasingly complex facet of modern event management. It extends far beyond the traditional notion of simple first aid, encompassing a comprehensive planning system, resource allocation, risk mitigation, and emergency response designed to safeguard the health and well-being of all individuals involved in an event. The lessons from major incidents, such as the Manchester Arena bombing, and the evolving legislative landscape, including Martyn's Law, continually reinforce the need for robust, coordinated, and regularly tested emergency preparedness at all static venues.

Hospitality Finance and Accounting

Edited by Rob van Ginneken NHTV Breda University of Applied Sciences, Netherlands

Series: Hospitality Essentials Series

Basically, there are two ways to look at any business from a financial perspective. One way, which we will explore in more detail in Chapter 2, focuses on what a business owns and owes at a certain moment in time. Think of the amount of cash in the organization: the petty cash in the secretaries' office, in cash registers in departments where money is received from customers, or the money in bank accounts. However, we should take into consideration that Hildifons is a large professional hospitality business. The use of capital budgeting techniques in smaller businesses may very well be much less sophisticated, perhaps even more intuitive.

Human Resource Management in the Hospitality Industry

A Guide to Best Practice

Michael J. Boella University of Brighton, UK, Steven Goss-Turner University of Brighton, UK, Sumeetra Ramakrishnan

To consider an industry's workforce and the most effective means of managing the people in that workforce, one must begin by examining the context and the environment in which the industry is operating. Stereotypical gender roles are being redefined, and we are beginning to witness more females in senior roles. An increase in family-friendly policies and flexible working hours also means that childcare responsibilities are being shared between parents, and women are now more able to continue their careers after having children.

Interdisciplinary Research and Tourism

Edited by Jun Wen, Metin Kozak Kadir Has University, Turkey, Joshua Aston, Wei Wang

Series: Routledge Advances in Tourism

Tourism has long been recognized as a multifaceted domain that intersects with numerous aspects of society, culture, environment, politics, and the economy. As a socio-economic activity, tourism influences and is influenced by a wide array of forces, ranging from globalization and technological innovation to demographic shifts and geopolitical tensions. Embracing the multifaceted impact of tourism on adolescent mental health not only enhances individual well-being but also contributes to the broader goal of nurturing emotionally and mentally healthy communities.

Intersectionality in the Hospitality and Tourism Sectors

A Practical Guide

Shelagh K. Mooney Auckland University of Technology,
New Zealand

This handbook follows a logical progression from foundational concepts through methodological applications to theoretical innovations. The purpose of this book is to provide a step-by-step guide to designing intersectional studies that reflect the tourism and hospitality context. Social hierarchies based on economic capital systems marginalise groups as being of lesser worth, for example, indigenous and colonised peoples and those living with disabilities.

Mountain Tourism, Altitude and Host-Guest Relationships

Michal Apollo

Series: Routledge Focus on Tourism and Hospitality

Mountains comprise approximately 25% of the Earth's land surface and are home to around 26% of the global population. A significant proportion of this population – approximately 18.2% – resides in rural areas characterised by environmentally challenging conditions and limited socioeconomic opportunities (Huddleston et al., 2003; Meybeck et al., 2001). This approach allows for more precise spatial management and better adaptation of interventions to the level of land use intensity, in accordance with the principle of sustainable development.

Panda Fandom

Nation, Capitalism, and Biopower

Yulei Guo

This book provides the first exploration of panda fandom, a term denoting the community built upon the deep and intimate emotional connections between fans and giant pandas. The book uncovers the dynamic relationship between China, the West, and the giant panda, rooted in over two centuries of cross-cultural encounters. Drawing from extensive fieldwork at the Chengdu Research Base of Giant Panda Breeding, it explores how panda fandom has evolved as a result of China's participation in global capitalism, cultural exchange, and diplomatic strategy.

Routledge Handbook of Dark Events

Celebrations, Heritage, and Customs of Death and the Macabre

Edited by Brianna Wyatt Oxford Brookes University, UK,
Hannah Stewart, James Kennell University of Surrey,
UK, Philip R. Stone

In recent decades, the intersection of death, memory, and public experience has undergone a profound cultural shift. Once confined to private mourning, religious ritual, or academic discourse, representations of death now permeate leisure, heritage, and entertainment landscapes. In confronting the viewer with mortality stripped of narrative, ritual, or disguise, the exhibit opens a peculiar and potent space where remembrance, revelation, and discomfort converge.

Sanctions, Tourism, and Resilience

Adaptation and Survival

Siamak Seyfi, Rasoul Afsari, Ali Hosseini

Series: Contemporary Geographies of Leisure, Tourism and Mobility

This timely and significant book examines how sanctions reshape the landscape of global tourism and how destinations subjected to these measures respond to isolation, economic strain, and stigma. This significant volume is of interest to policy makers, practitioners, destination management and marketing organizations, and students of crisis and politics who seek to understand how tourism endures amid geopolitical tension, and how resilience itself becomes a space of creativity, negotiation, and survival.

Sustainable Tea Tourism

Principles and Applications

Edited by D.A.C. Suranga Silva, Gayathri Puwanendram, Baghya Erathna, K.M.B.S.Y. Kulasekara, Krishantha Ganesan

Series: Routledge Focus on Tourism and Hospitality

Tea, primarily cultivated in Asia, South America, and Africa, has an extensive historical background. The discovery of tea originated in China, where it was transported from Yunnan to Tibet via the Ancient Tea Horse Road before being exported to England by sea. The study, however, contributes to the field with the creation of a codebook for sustainable tea tourism and by linking those elements (themes) to marketing categories. These contributions may guide future research on digital marketing within the sustainable tea tourism and broader tea tourism sector.

Sustainable Tourism, Hospitality and Events

Emerging Trends and New Opportunities

Edited by Pantea Froudi Middlesex University London, UK, Maria Palazzo University of Salerno, Italy, Satyendra Upadhyay

In an era marked by accelerating climate change, digital disruption, and global socio-economic shifts, the tourism, hospitality, and events sectors face a critical turning point. These industries, traditionally celebrated for promoting cultural exchange, economic development, and human connectivity, are now being called upon to reassess their practices and redefine their roles in building a more equitable and environmentally conscious world. By continuing to support and develop this industry, the UK can maintain its status as a leading destination for seafood lovers, fishing enthusiasts, and eco-conscious travelers.

The Ethics of Volunteering in Tourism

A Critical Evaluation

Konstantinos Tomazos

Series: Contemporary Geographies of Leisure, Tourism and Mobility

To set the scene for our book and explain how volunteering and, by extension, good intentions have become marketable, commoditised experiences, we must first understand the process of commoditisation. To build a sustainable future, volunteer tourism should prioritise responsibility over rescue, creating connections instead of fostering consumption. Let us warmly accept this invitation to listen more, learn continuously, and engage not as heroes, but as fellow humans, ready to stand alongside, rather than above one another.

The Management of Migrant Workers in the International Hospitality Industry

Opportunities, Challenges, and Future Directions

Edited by Sumi Ingerson, Beni Halvorsen, John Hatzinikolakis, Brad Nikolic

Series: Routledge Focus on Tourism and Hospitality

People have been engaging in hospitable experiences throughout history, with hospitality existing back to ancient times. Previous research discusses the reciprocal relationship between host and guest and the social, cultural and commercial relationships and how this has evolved throughout history (Gardini et al., 2021). Further research could also focus on the increasingly diverse nature of migrant workers in the contemporary hospitality industry through both quantitative, and further qualitative research such as through case studies, and in-depth interviews in order to offer a richer theory-building analysis across the sector and world.

The Practical Guide to Managing Human Resources in Hospitality, Hotels and Events

Jennifer Kaye

Series: The Practical Guide to Events and Hotel Management Series

The hospitality industry is one of the fastest growing industries globally, incorporating hotels and other lodgings, restaurants, cafés, pubs/bars, and nightclubs. Hospitality is interrelated with events and travel industries, with food and drink offerings, transport, and accommodation often needed, alongside events. The key factors for Human Resources to consider when implementing a change regarding roles within an organisation, is clear, consistent, and open communication towards current team members. This is essential as it ensures our current team feel reassured throughout the process of receiving a new manager and member of the executive team.

2ND EDITION

The Practical Guide to Organising Events

Philip Berners Edge Hotel School, University of Essex

Series: The Practical Guide to Events and Hotel Management Series

In developed markets where the events industry has evolved to a complex multi-layered construct, events management is a standalone industry providing clients and corporations with services, facilities, and management for putting on events. My academic career has elevated me to Associate Professor, a doctorate, and director of postgraduate programs. I am an educator, researcher, author, and series editor of a book series for Routledge academic publishers.

Tourism and Difficult Histories in Japan

Richard Sharpley University of Central Lancashire, UK,
Kumi Kato

Series: Contemporary Geographies of Leisure, Tourism and Mobility

It is most certainly the case that 'tourism is far more dependent on peace than peace is on tourism' (Hall, Timothy & Duval, 2004: 3). In the case studies discussed in this book, it is only at those sites of difficult history where some degree of community engagement is demonstrated that visitors may experience a shared sense of loss and more positive feelings of hope and reconciliation. In contrast, where a heritage is distorted or dissonant, such an outcome is less likely.

Tourism Technology, Sustainability, and Local Community Empowerment

Edited by Hafizullah Dar , Kuldeep Singh , Babu George

Series: Contemporary Geographies of Leisure, Tourism and Mobility

This timely book critically explores how smart tourism technologies can create more inclusive, empowered communities, helping local residents benefit from and participate in the tourism economy while ensuring sustainability. To achieve this, it examines the role of digital platforms, smart infrastructure, and advanced technologies like AI, IoT, and big data in enhancing local engagement, sustainability, and economic growth through tourism. It further looks at how technology plays an increasingly critical role in shaping not only tourist experiences but also community participation in the tourism economy from current practices to future innovations.
