The French Wars of Religion 1559-1598

R. J. Knecht

Series: Seminar Studies

This Seminar Study provides the reader with a lucid introduction to a complex period of French history. In the second half of the sixteenth century France was racked by religious civil wars and peace was only restored when Henry of Navarre finally converted to Catholicism. Professor Knecht begins his study by explaining how the Huguenot Church grew out of the evangelicalism of the early sixteenth century and of the failure of Francis I to check the influx of Lutheranism. In this fascinating survey, Donald Logan introduces the reader to the Christian church, from the conversion of the Celtic and Germanic peoples to the discovery of the New World. A History of the Church in the Middle Ages explores the role of the church as a central element in determining a thousand years of history. This new edition brings the book right up to date with recent scholarship, and includes an expanded introduction, which considers other faiths, particularly Judaism and Islam, and their interaction with the Christian church.

Religion, Politics and Society in Britain 1066–1272

Henry Mayr-Harting

Series: Religion, Politics and Society in Britain

Religion, Politics and Society 1066–1272 charts the many ways in which a constantly changing religious culture impacted on a social and political system which was itself dominated by clerics, from the parish to the kingdom. Henry Mayr-Harting introduces many of the great personalities of the time, such as Thomas Becket and Robert Grosseteste. At the same time he shows how religion itself changed over the course of two centuries, in response to changing social conditions - how rising population fuelled the economic activities of the monasteries, and how parish reform demanded a more educated clergy and by this increased the social prestige of the Church.

Real Lives in the Sixteenth Century

A Global Perspective

Rebecca Ard Boone

Series: Real Lives in Global Perspective

Sixteenth Century Lives presents a global history using four sets of ruler biographies. Each pair illustrates similar situations in different geographical regions. The vibrant narratives span four continents including Henry IV of France and Hideyoshi of Japan, Roxelana of the Ottoman Empire and Lady Zheng of the Ming Dynasty, Elizabeth I of England and Afonso I of Kongo, and Moctezuma II of Mexico and Pope Clement VII. This book encourages students to think about the 'big questions' relating to human interactions and the dynamics of power, by introducing them to key historical concepts such as feudalism, dynasticism, religious syncretism and slavery in a variety of cultural settings.

The Spanish Habsburgs and Dynastic Rule, 1500-1700

Elisabeth Geevers

This book analyses how dynasties were 'made' by the people belonging to it. It uses a social institutionalist framework to analyse how family dynamics gave rise to practices and roles. The kings of Spain only had limited power to control the construction of their dynasty, since births and deaths, processes of dynastic centralisation, pressure from subjects, relatives' individual agency, rivalry among relatives and the institutionalisation of roles limited his power.

He provides a succinct analysis of the wars themselves and considers the ferment of political ideas which they generated. The subject is set in its widest context as the author looks at the effect which the wars had on the French state, economy and society and the author concludes his study by evaluating the exte

Invisible Voices

The Black Presence in Crime and Punishment in the UK, 1750–1900

Martin Glynn

Invisible Voices explores the intersection of criminology and history as a way of contextualizing the historical black presence in crime and punishment in the UK. Through case studies, court transcripts, and biographical accounts it reimagines the understanding/s of the role of history in shaping contemporary perceptions. The book moves beyond the confines of presenting 'criminological history' as monocultural; demonstrates how 'mainstream criminology' is complicit in obscuring 'hidden criminological histories'; critically assesses the implications regarding the positioning of 'the black presence' within the discipline of criminology.

(Un)Doing History

Thinking with the European Middle Ages

Vanita Seth

Against the grain of much contemporary scholarship within medieval studies, this work emphasizes the radical alterity and historical rupture that the Middle Ages represents in European history. Through an engagement with three contentious debates in medieval studies – historiography, race and individuated subjectivity – Vanita Seth's work employs postcolonial and postmodern theorizing to explore questions of ontology, epistemology, racial privileging, and emotion and identity in the European Middle Ages and early modern period.

The Science of Demons

Early Modern Authors Facing Witchcraft and the Devil

Edited by Jan Machielsen Cardiff University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Witchcraft, Demonology and Magic

Examining individual authors from across the continent, this book reveals the many purposes to which the devil could be put, both during the late medieval fight against heresy and the age of Reformations. It explores what it was like to live with demons, and how careers and identities were constructed out of the battle against them, or against those who granted them too much power. Contributors tell the story of the devil's emergence during the 1300s and 1400s as a threatening figure who made pacts with human allies and appeared bodily, through to the comprehensive but easily challenged surveys in the early 17th century, when European witch-hunting entered its most deadly phase.

In focusing on food and gender, and the connections between them, the book shows that a shift in the markers of modernity is needed, away from the traditional perspectives organizing this history that emphasize war, political states, and the global economy which often exclude and marginalize women and trivialize the study of foodways.

Ruth Miller University of Massachusetts, USA

Series: Twenty Five Women Who Shaped...

Twenty-Five Women Who Shaped the Ottoman Empire is a tale of how women's triumphs as well as their failures shaped a global society—not despite, but because of, gender. The book is thus an accessibly offbeat feminist overview of the field of Ottoman History that provides students, scholars, general readers and non-specialists with insights into the lives and work of both ordinary Ottoman women and celebrated Ottoman women, women who failed despite their best efforts, and women who succeeded against all odds, suicides, spies, and murderers as well as queens, scientists and poets.

Women in European Culture and Society

Gender, Skill and Identity from 1700

Deborah Simonton University of Southern Denmark, Denmark

A new and major contribution to the field, Women in European Culture and Society is a transnational history of women in Europe that pushes women's history beyond national studies to create an integrated view of three hundred years of women in Europe. Using a longue durée, the book disentangles the accounts of industrialisation and bourgeois femininity which tend to dominate women's studies, and questions the dominant narratives of history. Drawing on women's own writing and cultural production, it presents women as agents of change as well as exploring cultural perceptions of women and the ways in which women have been represented by these discourses. Women in European Culture and Society is an invaluable and essential guide to the conditions, circumstances and understandings of how women lived throughout Europe.

European Navies and the Conduct of War

Carlos Alfaro-Zaforteza, Alan James, Malcolm H Murfett

European Navies and the Conduct of War considers the different contexts within which European Navies have operated over a period of 500 years culminating in World War Two, the greatest war ever fought at sea. Taking a predominantly continental point of view, the book moves away from the typically British-centric approach taken to naval history as it considers the role of European navies in the development of modern warfare and book also explores their political and popular appeal, firmly placing the development of modern navies into the broader history of the period. Chronological in structure, the book is the ideal resource for students and scholars of naval and military history.

Invisible Voices explores the intersection of criminology and history as a way of contextualizing the historical black presence in crime and punishment in the UK. Through case studies, court transcripts, and biographical accounts it reimagines the understanding/s of the role of history in shaping contemporary perceptions. The book moves beyond the confines of presenting 'criminological history' as monocultural; demonstrates how 'mainstream criminology' is complicit in obscuring 'hidden criminological histories'; critically assesses the implications regarding the positioning of 'the black presence' within the discipline of criminology.

The Norman Conquest

A New Introduction

Richard Huscroft

The Norman Conquest was one of the most significant events in European history. Over forty years from 1066, England was traumatised and transformed. The Anglo-Saxon ruling class was eliminated, foreign elites took control of Church and State, and England's entire political, social and cultural orientation was changed. Out of the upheaval which followed the Battle of Hastings, a new kind of Englishness emerged and the priorities of England's new rulers set the kingdom on the political course it was to follow for the rest of the Middle Ages. However, the Norman Conquest was more than a purely English phenomenon, for Wales, Scotland and Normandy were all deeply affected by it too. This book's broad sweep successfully encompasses these wider British and French perspectives to offer a fresh, clear and concise introduction to the events which propelled the two nations into the Middle Ages and dramatically altered the course of history. Fluent, wide-ranging and up-do-

Twenty-Five Women Who Shaped the Ottoman Empire

Ruth Miller University of Massachusetts, USA

Series: Twenty Five Women Who Shaped...

Twenty-Five Women Who Shaped the Ottoman Empire is a tale of how women's triumphs as well as their failures shaped a global society—not despite, but because of, gender. The book is thus an accessibly offbeat feminist overview of the field of Ottoman History that provides students, scholars, general readers and non-specialists with insights into the lives and work of both ordinary Ottoman women and celebrated Ottoman women, women who failed despite their best efforts, and women who succeeded against all odds, suicides, spies, and murderers as well as queens, scientists and poets.

3RD EDITION

The French Wars of Religion 1559-1598

R. J. Knecht

Series: Seminar Studies

This Seminar Study provides the reader with a lucid introduction to a complex period of French history. In the second half of the sixteenth century France was racked by religious civil wars and peace was only restored when Henry of Navarre finally converted to Catholicism. Professor Knecht begins his study by explaining how the Huguenot Church grew out of the evangelicalism of the early sixteenth century and of the failure of Francis I to check the influx of Lutheranism. He then shows how the rivalry between leading noble houses developed into political and religious conflict, challenging the assumption that religion was used merely as a cloak for rebellion. He provides a succinct analysis of the wars themselves and considers the ferment of political ideas which they generated. The subject is set in its widest context as the author looks at the effect which the wars had on the French state, economy and society and the author concludes his study by evaluating the exte

The Italian City-Republics

Trevor Dean, Daniel Waley

Now in its fifth edition, The Italian City Republics illustrates how, from the eleventh century onwards, many Italian towns achieved independence as political entities, unhindered by any centralising power. Until the fourteenth century, when the regimes of individual 'tyrants' took over in most towns, these communes were the scene of a precocious, and very well-documented, experiment in republican self-government. Both students and the general reader interested in Italian history, literature and art will find this accessible book a rewarding and fascinating read.

3RD EDITION

The French Wars of Religion 1559-1598

R. J. Knecht

Series: Seminar Studies

This Seminar Study provides the reader with a lucid introduction to a complex period of French history. In the second half of the sixteenth century France was racked by religious civil wars and peace was only restored when Henry of Navarre finally converted to Catholicism. Professor Knecht begins his study by explaining how the Huguenot Church grew out of the evangelicalism of the early sixteenth century and of the failure of Francis I to check the influx of Lutheranism. He then shows how the rivalry between leading noble houses developed into political and religious conflict, challenging the assumption that religion was used merely as a cloak for rebellion. He provides a succinct analysis of the wars themselves and considers the ferment of political ideas which they generated. The subject is set in its widest context as the author looks at the effect which the wars had on the French state, economy and society and the author concludes his study by evaluating the extent

How to Write Qualitative Research

Marcus B. Weaver-Hightower University of North Dakota, USA

That's where How to Write Qualitative Research comes in. Using clear prose, helpful examples and lists, it breaks down and explains the most common writing tasks in qualitative research, and each chapter suggests step-by-step how-to approaches writers can use to tackle those tasks.

Dissertation Practice: A Journal for Learning is an interactive resource that promotes journaling to engender key dissertation practices, through activities and exercises. It is rooted in the view that students can use journaling to promote thought, and that the privacy of journal entries ensures comfort and familiarity. This personal context, along with the book's open prompts, allows students to engage in extended and alternative thinking. This is an essential resource for students in Ph.D and Ed.D programs in the social sciences and education who are using qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methods.

Philosophy of Social ScienceAlexander Rosenberg

Philosophy of Social Science provides a tightly argued yet accessible introduction to the philosophical foundations of the human sciences, including economics, anthropology, sociology, political science, psychology, history, and the disciplines emerging at the intersections of these subjects with biology. Philosophy is unavoidable for social scientists because the choices they make in answering questions in their disciplines force them to take sides on philosophical matters. Conversely, the philosophy of social science is equally necessary for philosophers since the social and behavior sciences must inform their understanding of human action, norms, and social institutions.

Doing Academic Research

A Practical Guide to Research Methods and Analysis

Ted Gournelos

Doing Academic Research is a concise, accessible, and tightly organized overview of the research process in the humanities, social sciences, and business. Interpreting Basic Statistics

A Workbook Based on Excerpts from Journal Articles

Zealure C. Holcomb, Keith S. Cox University of North Carolina, USA

Interpreting Basic Statistics gives students valuable practice in interpreting statistical reporting as it actually appears in peer-reviewed journals. The questions in each exercise are divided into two parts: (1) Factual Questions and (2) Questions for Discussion. The factual questions require careful reading for details, while the discussion questions show that interpreting statistics is more than a mathematical exercise. Each exercise covers a limited number of topics, making it easy to coordinate the exercises with lectures or a traditional statistics textbook.

Introduction to Probability, Second Edition

Joseph K. Blitzstein Harvard University, Cambridge,
Massachusetts, USA, Jessica Hwang Stanford University,
California, USA

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

Undergraduate probability book that assumes one-semester of calculus. One key is the emphasis on "stories" for the probability distributions (which I mean in both an intuitive and technical sense): there are a dozen or so key distributions (Normal, Binomial, Poisson, etc.) that are incredibly widely-used in statistics, but a lot of books just write down formulas for them without explaining clearly why these particular distributions are so important, or how they are all connected. Each of these distributions has a "story" (a natural application where it arises), and thinking about stories makes the distributions easier to remember, understand, and work with.

The Effect

An Introduction to Research Design and Causality

Nick Huntington-Klein

This book is about research design, specifically concerning research that uses non-experimental data to figure out whether one thing causes another. It introduces the concept of identification thoroughly and clearly and discusses it as a process of trying to isolate variation that has a causal interpretation. Concepts are demonstrated with a heavy emphasis on graphical intuition and the question of what we do to data. When we "add a control variable" what does that actually do? The second edition features a new chapter on partial identification, updated materials, methods, and writing throughout, and additional materials for help navigating the book or in using the book in teaching.

Telling Stories with Data

With Applications in R

Rohan Alexander

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Data Science Series

The book equips students with the end-to-end skills needed to do data science. That means gathering, cleaning, preparing, and sharing data, then using statistical models to analyse data, writing about the results of those models, drawing conclusions from them, and finally, using the cloud to put a model into production, all done in a reproducible way. This book will achieve the goals by working through extensive case studies in terms of gathering and preparing data, and integrating ethics throughout. It is specifically designed around teaching how to write about the data and models, so aspects such as writing are explicitly covered.

Model-Based Machine Learning

John Winn Microsoft Research Ltd., Cambridge, United Kingdom

Machine learning is being applied to a growing variety of problems in a variety of domains. A fundamental challenge when using machine learning is connecting the abstract mathematics of a machine learning technique to real world problems. This book tackles this through model-based machine learning, focusing on understanding the assumptions encoded in a machine learning system and their impact on the behaviour of the system. The key ideas of model-based machine learning are introduced through case studies involving real-world applications. It aims not just to explain machine learning methods, but also how to create, debug, and evolve them to solve a problem.

Essentials of Communication Skill and Skill Enhancement

A Primer for Students and Professionals

John O. Greene

For those who wish to learn or teach the tools of skillful communication, this book provides concrete insight into what makes a person a successful communicator. Predicated on four simple notions—that communication can be done well or poorly, that communication skills matter, that people differ in those skills, and that those skills can be improved—the book helps readers identify and enhance their own communication strengths and address weaknesses, assess the communication skills of others, and coach others to improvement. This book is written for students and professionals in fields such as human resources, sales, training, counseling, customer relations, education, and healthcare.
