Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Hachette, or the appropriate overseas agent.

Animals, Ethics, and Engineering

Intersections and Implications

Rosalyn W. Berne

Animals, Ethics, and Engineering: Intersections and Implications is a seminal work that explores the intricate relationship between technology, ethics, and the welfare of non-human animals. Edited by Rosalyn W. Berne, this volume brings together leading scholars and practitioners to examine the ethical responsibilities inherent in technological progress and its impact on animal well-being.

2ND EDITION

Plotinus

Eyjólfur K. Emilsson University of Oslo, Norway

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

Plotinus (AD 205–270) was the founder of Neoplatonism, whose thought has had a profound influence on medieval philosophy, and on Western philosophy more broadly. This engaging book introduces and explains the full spectrum of Plotinus' philosophy for those coming to his work for the first time. This second edition has been revised and updated throughout, and includes a new chapter on badness, freedom, providence and responsibility. Also including a chronology, glossary of terms, and suggestions for further reading, Plotinus is an ideal introduction to this major figure in Western philosophy, and essential reading for students of ancient philosophy and classics.

The Imagination

Jean-Paul Sartre

Series: Routledge Classics

The Imagination is Sartre's first full philosophical work, presenting some of the basic arguments concerning phenomenology, consciousness and intentionality that were to mark his philosophy as a whole and be so influential in the course of twentieth-century philosophy. Essential reading for anyone interested in Sartre, phenomenology, and the history of 20th century philosophy. The translation has been revised throughout for this Routledge Classics edition. Also included is a revised translators' introduction and a new foreword. Also included is Maurice Merleau-Ponty's review of L'Imagination upon its publication in French in 1936.

The Origin of Our Knowledge of Right and Wrong

Franz Brentano

Series: Routledge Classics

Moving deftly through key figures in the history of philosophy, including Descartes and Mill, The Origin of Our Knowledge of Right and Wrong is a pioneering work of ethics that continues to influence both analytical and phenomenological traditions in philosophy. This Routledge Classics edition includes an account of Brentano's life and major works and a Foreword, both by Uriah Kriegel. Also included are a significant excerpt from Brentano's The Foundation and Construction of Ethics, and a historically important review by G.E. Moore of The Origin of Our Knowledge of Right and Wrong on the book's first publication.

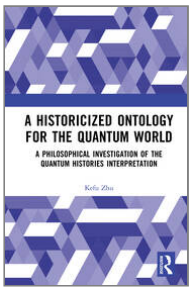
A Historicized Ontology for the Quantum World

A Philosophical Investigation of the Quantum Histories Interpretation



Kefu Zhu

This book discusses ontology in the quantum world and argues that it should be interpreted as historicized ontology. This perspective is advocated by quantum histories interpretation. Inspired by the nomological interpretation from Bohmian mechanics and the corresponding understanding of law of nature and logic, the ontology will be useful to solve the difficulties of confusing ontology and perplexing logical inference. The book will appeal to scholars and students of philosophy of science, metaphysics, and quantum theory.

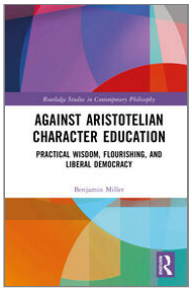
Against Aristotelian Character Education

Practical Wisdom, Flourishing, and Liberal Democracy



Benjamin Miller University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book argues that Aristotelian character education cannot work in liberal democracies today. It shows that when we clearly understand the basic structure of Aristotle's value theory and correctly grasp the core requirements of liberalism, we will see that they are incompatible with one another through and through. Understanding the problematic structure of neo-Aristotelian education helps us to better grasp the demands of liberal democracy while also bringing attention to the neglected question of how education for democratic citizenship can be made to fit with equal respect and tolerance of all liberal-compatible ways of living and worldviews.

Charles Mills' The Racial Contract

Edited by Elvira Basevich

This book features emerging and established philosophers revisiting Charles Mills's 'The Racial Contract' twenty-five years after its publication. Each contribution reassesses the singular book's bold critique of liberalism and social contract theory, advancing and interrogating Mills's philosophical legacy. Notably lines of inquiry include the ideal/nonideal distinction, the merits of the social contract model for normative political inquiry, and the epistemology of ignorance. This book was originally published as a special issue of Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy.

Contemporary Philosophy of Autism

Edited by Jami L. Anderson University of Michigan-Flint, USA, Simon Cushing University of Michigan-Flint, USA

This volume explores interesting and emerging philosophical questions related to autism. It approaches a wide range of issues that autism raises in social and political theory, ethics, philosophy of social science, epistemology, metaphysics, and law. The issues addressed include moral responsibility, autism and gender, knowledge acquisition, the double empathy problem, social cognition, vulnerability in interpersonal communication, masking, the neurodiversity movement and destigmatization, and the effectiveness of ABA therapy. Each of the contributors, many of whom self-identify as autistic, has a personal connection with autism.

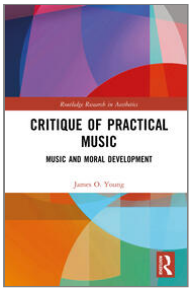
Critique of Practical Music

Music and Moral Development



James O. Young University of Victoria, Canada

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

This book offers a systematic survey of ethos theory: the theory according to which the right sort of music can have a positive or negative effect on moral development. It surveys the history of ethos theory from its origins in ancient Greece and ancient China, proceeding to trace its development through the Middle Ages into the early modern period. Next, the development of ethos theory is traced from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present. It also investigates what would count as evidence that ethos theory is correct, paying attention to the complex ways people experience music. Finally, the author evaluates the currently available empirical evidence for ethos theory.

Cyborg Rights

Extending Cognition, Ethics, and the Law

S. Orestis Palermos University of Ioannina, Greece

This book explores important ethical, legal, and rights-related ramifications of the hypothesis of extended cognition and the extended mind thesis. It highlights significant threats associated with technologies specifically dedicated to cognitive and mental extension, and examines the rationale and possible means for dealing with them. To underscore the serious impact of extension technologies, the book focuses on central concerns relating to mental privacy, mental integrity, and (extended) assault.

Evidentialism at 40

New Arguments, New Angles

Edited by Kevin McCain University of Alabama at Birmingham, USA, Scott Stapleford St. Thomas University, Canada, Matthias Steup University of Colorado Boulder, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

Conee and Feldman's landmark paper "Evidentialism" (1985) served as a launching point for an enormous research program in epistemology. This volume presents state-of-the-art research on issues related to evidentialism. It demonstrates the continuing relevance of evidentialist epistemology by bringing it into direct confrontation with some of its latest non-evidentialist rivals and by proposing new areas for exploration and development.

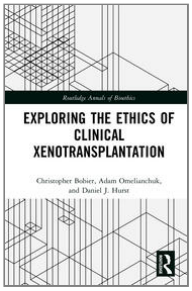
Exploring the Ethics of Clinical Xenotransplantation



Christopher Bobier Saint Mary's University of Minnesota, USA, Adam Omelianchuk Baylor College of Medicine, USA, Daniel J. Hurst Rowan-Virtua School of Osteopathic Medicine, USA

Due to the global shortage of organs for transplantation, there is increasing interest in cross-species transplantation, or xenotransplantation, among researchers and clinicians. This book provides an overview of the major ethical issues involved in xenotransplantation. Xenotransplantation touches on almost every area of bioethics: animal research, public health, patient selection, allocation, global justice, pediatric research, and informed consent. Each chapter provides a nuanced overview of the positions that have been offered on a specific topic and the authors seek to provide a way forward.

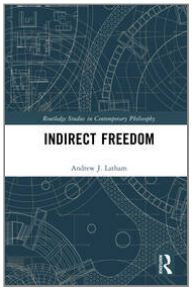
Indirect Freedom



Andrew J. Latham Aarhus University, Denmark

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book advances a new kind of compatibilist account of free will: indirect compatibilism. It is the first sustained philosophical analysis of the idea that the ordinary concept of free will is a conditional one. The book combines traditional philosophical analysis with empirical work—experimental philosophy and cognitive neuroscience—to produce a detailed description and defence of indirect compatibilism. Indirect compatibilism resolves two important problems in the free will literature: that people as a matter of fact do not accept that free actions can exist in a deterministic universe, and that few actions are under the direct control of standard psychological processes.

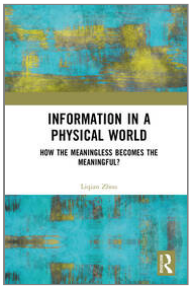
Information in a Physical World

How the Meaningless Becomes the Meaningful?



Liqian Zhou

The book develops a naturalistic perspective grounded in Peircean biosemiotics, aiming to construct a comprehensive theory of information, meaning, and intentionality. It reexamines key issues such as referential information, the metaphysics of form, misrepresentation, reference, and sense, offering new explanations and insights. It further argues the three types of reference—symbolic, indexical and iconic—are asymmetrically interdependent. The book will be of interest to researchers and advanced students in philosophy of mind, philosophy of language, philosophy of biology, philosophy of cognitive science, semiotics, biosemiotics and linguistics.

Inquiry

Philosophical Perspectives

Edited by Aaron B. Creller University of North Florida, USA, Jonathan Matheson University of North Florida, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

Inquiry is a fundamental human practice. We have questions, and we want answers. These questions span numerous domains and range from the trivial to questions of the utmost importance. Without inquiry, our fate is bleak. Inquiry is also familiar. Everyone engages in inquiry. In fact, inquiry (of some sort) is something that we engage in every day. However, while inquiry is both fundamental and familiar, only recently have epistemologists turned to focus explicitly on inquiry.This volume brings together essays from several different perspectives on this growing topic in epistemology. It is the first volume focused solely on philosophical issues related to inquiry.

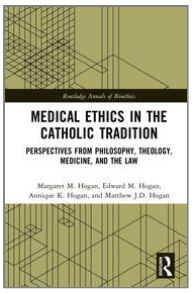
Medical Ethics in the Catholic Tradition

Perspectives from Philosophy, Theology, Medicine, and the Law



Margaret M. Hogan University of Portland, USA, Edward M. Hogan Kenrick Glennon Seminary, USA, Annique K. Hogan Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, USA, Matthew J.D. Hogan Aramark

Series: Routledge Annals of Bioethics

This book is a comprehensive treatment of contemporary medical ethics from the Roman Catholic tradition. It brings together perspectives from philosophy, theology, medicine, and law to explore the traditions that undergird Catholic medical ethics. The authors' commitment to the Catholic tradition provides the foundational principles for addressing a wide range of issues including abortion, reproduction, cloning to produce children and for biomedical research, embryonic stem cell use, genetics as screening, testing, therapy, enhancement, engineering, specific special relations such as maternal/fetal, physician/patient, mentally ill/caretakers, health care, and end of life issues.

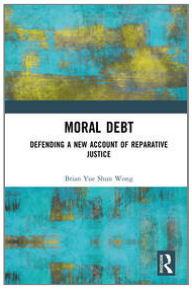
Moral Debt

Defending a New Account of Reparative Justice



Brian Yue Shun Wong

In face of historical injustices such as war, colonialism, slavery, and genocides, what responsibilities, if any, do the present generations owe—and to whom are such responsibilities owed? Drawing upon methods of political theory, empirical politics, legal philosophy, and applied ethics, this book advances the novel account of Collective Moral Debt Reparative Justice (CMDRJ). It aims to establish that descendants of victims inherit claims to reparation by which they can hold inheritors of perpetrators responsible for discharging. The book should interest scholars and practitioners alike, and is written for those who are interested in what we owe others in relation to our past.

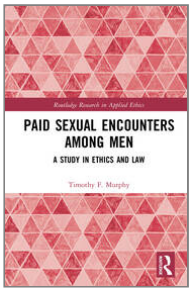
Paid Sexual Encounters among Men

A Study in Ethics and Law



Timothy F. Murphy University of Illinois College of Medicine, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

Male prostitution is poorly studied across academic disciplines, and this book represents the first sustained ethical analysis of the topic. It shows that paid sexual encounters among men belong on a spectrum of transactional sexual relationships and are not distinctive in a way that justifies condemnation. It also demonstrates that men buying and selling sexual encounters can consent in morally meaningful ways, without reinforcing status inequality, Finally, it reviews key constitutional law cases to show that the decriminalization of male prostitution is justified.

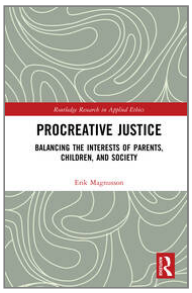
Procreative Justice

Balancing the Interests of Parents, Children, and Society



Erik Magnusson University of Manitoba, Canada

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

The decision to procreate is the decision to bring a morally considerable being into existence, one who will be exposed to the benefits and risks that accompany human life, and one who cannot consent to being born. The decision can also affect the lives of others, from its effects on population and sustainability to its effects on the distribution of resources. The various conflicting interests implicated by procreative decision-making can raise questions of justice. The author argues that taking stock of these interests leads to a narrower view of the conditions under which it is morally permissible to procreate and a more demanding conception of our procreative responsibilities.

Resilience and the Brown Babe's Burden

Writings by Filipina Philosophers

Edited by Tracy Llanera

Series: Academics, Politics and Society in the Post-Covid World

This volume explores the various ways that the concept and practice of resilience inhabit the thinking and lived experiences of Filipina philosophers. It features broad and intersectional philosophical approaches in its examination of the idea of resilience, including but not limited to feminist theory, social and political philosophy, critical theory, pragmatism, virtue theory, social epistemology, and decolonial theory. The authors explore, in various ways, both the double-edged nature of resilience, and other key assumptions and ideas about human resilience and resilient cultures and institutions.

Routledge Handbook of Nature and Environmental Aesthetics

Edited by Glenn Parsons , Ned Hettinger , Sandra Shapshay

This handbook provides the first comprehensive overview of philosophical thinking about the aesthetics of the natural and human-made environments, exploring the topic's foundations, key ideas, and current debates. The Routledge Handbook of Nature and Environmental Aesthetics will be essential reading for students and scholars working on the aesthetics of environment, as well as anyone who wants to think deeply about environmental beauty. Scholars working in related fields outside academic philosophy, such as geography, landscape studies, environmental psychology, and environmental studies will also find it an invaluable guide to contemporary debates.

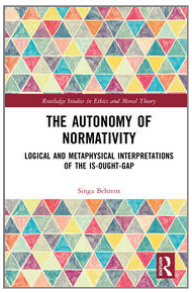
The Autonomy of Normativity

Logical and Metaphysical Interpretations of the Is-Ought-Gap



Singa Behrens Bielefeld University, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

While the Is-Ought Gap has recently been a topic of growing interest, most contributions are firmly fixed on logical, often quite technical accounts of the autonomy thesis. This book defends two complementary autonomy theses—a modal and ground-based thesis—that provide a deeper and more comprehensive understanding of the nature of the normative domain. Together these accounts capture best the informal idea that we cannot 'get' something normative from the non-normative. Moreover, the book relates the autonomy debate to other important metaethical debates.

The Cartesian Mind

Edited by Jorge Secada University of Virginia, USA, Travis Tanner Austin Peay State University, USA, Cecilia Wee National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Philosophical Minds

Descartes is widely acknowledged as a central figure in the origins of modernity. The nature of his thought and of the role it played is, however, a matter of considerable dispute among experts. The Cartesian Mind covers the full extent of his work, not only placing it in its historical context but also exploring its reception, legacy, and contemporary significance. Descartes' work is central to all areas of philosophy, including epistemology, metaphysics, philosophy of mind, philosophy of science, and ethics. As such The Cartesian Mind is essential reading and an indispensable tool for all students and researchers in the discipline.

The Epistemology of Experts

New Essays

Edited by Peter Brössel Ruhr-University Bochum, Germany, Anna-Maria Asunta Eder University of Cologne, Germany, Thomas Grundmann University of Cologne, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This volume presents new research on the epistemology of experts. It features original essays from leading epistemologists on this timely topic. The chapters explore the epistemology of expert judgment across several core themes and crucial questions, including: What does it take to be a cognitive expert? How much should we concede experts over laypeople? What role do experts play in society, and what role should they play? What problems arise from experts' epistemic authority and societal role? It is an essential resource for scholars and advanced students working in epistemology, philosophy of science, political philosophy, and the sociology of knowledge.

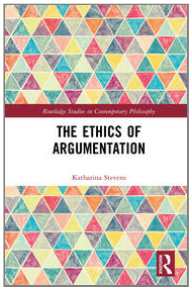
The Ethics of Argumentation



Katharina Stevens University of Lethbridge, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book offers a new approach to the theory of argumentation that conceptualizes argumentation as a fundamentally ethical activity whose norms are grounded in moral reasons. It shows that ethics is needed for providing normative argumentation theory with its foundation and for offering arguers reliable guidance for decision-making both about which norms ought to govern their arguing and how they should shape each argument they make. It addresses problems faced by dominant normative approaches to argumentation, most notably that they are only reliable under unrealistic background conditions. Finally, it provides the groundwork for a systematic ethics of argumentation.

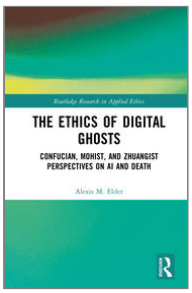
The Ethics of Digital Ghosts

Confucian, Mohist, and Zhuangist Perspectives on AI and Death



Alexis M. Elder University of Minnesota Duluth, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

This book develops an ethics of digital ghosts using resources from classical Chinese philosophy. Confucianism, Mohism, and Zhuangism were remarkable for their rich, detailed discussions of the ethics of handling physical remains. This book updates and extends these concerns to apply to digital ghosts. It explores topics including the role of rituals and traditions in communal mourning, the epistemic consequences of fragmented standards for remembrance and data reuse, and the value of creative transformation and adaptation. The result is a psychologically plausible, culturally informed, and afterlife-neutral grounding for thinking about the ethics of digital ghosts.

The Nature of the Sexes

Why Biology Matters

Tomás Bogardus Pepperdine University, USA.

This book challenges the widely-held view that sex is complex, and argues for a novel, gamete-based account of the sexes on which they are activated higher-order functions. To be male is to have the biological function of producing sperm, and to be female, eggs. The book also argues that the various meanings of 'gender' are all defined in terms of the sexes, and ordinary, biologically-based uses of our sex terms and pronouns are defended from objections.

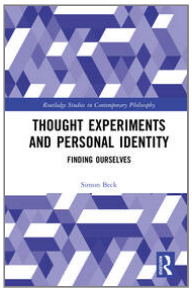
Thought Experiments and Personal Identity

Finding Ourselves



Simon Beck

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book provides an essential, comprehensive discussion on thought experiments and how they have featured throughout the history of the personal identity debate in analytic philosophy. Although many philosophical arguments employ thought experiments as a valuable methodological tool, there is a lack of focused discussion on the significant role these experiments play in the personal identity debate specifically. This book covers a range of central theories and examines how thought experiments have been featured throughout each.

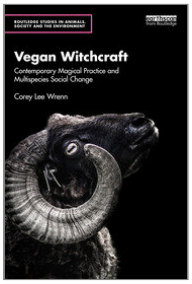
Vegan Witchcraft

Contemporary Magical Practice and Multispecies Social Change.



Corey Lee Wrenn

Series: Routledge Studies in Animals, Society and the Environment

Vegan Witchcraft is the first book to blend theories of animal rights, feminism, and modern witchcraft in pursuit of total liberation. The book critically analyses popular witchcraft pathways in Britain and America to interrogate the many ways in which nonhuman animals are overlooked, objectified, or exploited, highlighting theological inconsistencies and missed opportunities that might be overcome to create a stronger practice for women and their communities. This book will be essential reading for those interested in critical animal studies, animal rights, ecofeminism, vegan religious studies, environmental philosophy and witchcraft.

What Is the Point of Moral Philosophy?

Edited by Roger Crisp University of Oxford, UK, Ingmar Persson University of Gothenburg, Sweden, Julian Savulescu National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

Over the last half-century, moral philosophy has taken an applied turn, covering practical issues in areas such as medicine, business, the environment, and many others. But it has largely failed to examine itself. In this volume, distinguished contemporary ethicists examine what might be the point, if any, of moral philosophy. Perhaps the only philosopher to have addressed these issues head-on has been Ingmar Persson. His important arguments provide a starting point for debate and are examined and discussed by several contributors. But the volume goes beyond Persson's work to clarify the nature of the challenges to philosophical ethics and the variety of responses available.

Media, Religion and Culture

An Introduction

Jeffrey H. Mahan , James H. Thrall

Religion has always been shaped by the media of its time. Religious individuals, communities and institutions use media as tools to communicate, but also as locations where they construct and express identity, practice religion, and build community. This lively book offers a comprehensive introduction to the contemporary field of religion, media, and culture. Thoroughly updated throughout, the book features case study examples from both established and new religions, and each chapter is followed by insightful reflections from leading scholars in the field. Illustrated throughout, the book also contains discussion questions and a glossary of key terms.

Seeing Through Religion

An Introduction to the Study of Religion and Religions

Nathan McGovern

Seeing Through Religion is a cutting-edge textbook that provides students with the tools to learn this valuable subject theoretically, McGovern argues that religion isn't a thing out there in the world; it's the glasses on your face through which you see the world, shaped by Western history and, in particular, Christianity. This textbook not only provides a survey of important religious traditions but also guides the reader on how to study religion in a methodologically sophisticated way. This innovative volume is essential reading for those who want a contemporary and engaging approach to the study of world religions.

Understanding Religion and Artificial Intelligence

Meaning-Making in the Digital Age

Randall Reed , Tracy J. Trothen

Is Artificial Intelligence just another tool, or is it something more… Special? Understanding Religion and Artificial Intelligence delves into this provocative question, revealing how our perceptions of AI are deeply intertwined with age-old human impulses to define the extraordinary. Introducing their innovative "Model of the Special," the authors illuminate how individuals, groups, and cultures dynamically shape AI's meaning, ranging from the mundane to the Sacred and Demonic. Using compelling case studies, the authors explore how narratives of awe, fear, and even transcendence position AI as a truly "Special thing" in our modern world

Abuse in World Religions

Articulating the Problem

Edited by Johanna Stiebert

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

This volume contains five chapters - each by subject experts - that demonstrate that spiritual abuse can be identified in contexts of Hinduism, Judaism, Christianity, Islam, and Sikhi(sm). The chapters draw on sacred texts, historical events, religious institutions, practices, or figures particular to each tradition, paying heed to how specific examples can relate to wider, or systemic tendencies. Throughout, there is emphasis on trauma-informed and survivor-centred approaches. Abuse in World Religions (Vol.1) will appeal to academics and religious leaders seeking to understand and to confront spiritual abuse and rape culture in their own communities.

Amazing Grace at 250

Global Heritage and Contested Legacies

Edited by Martin V. Clarke , Gareth Atkins

Series: Congregational Music Studies Series

This book focuses on arguably the best-known Christian hymn worldwide. From the slave trade to the civil rights movement and from obscurity in its country of origin to global recognition, the origins, history, influence and legacy of 'Amazing Grace' are uniquely complex. This volume brings together historians, theologians, literary scholars and musicologists to shed new light on the ways in which the hymn's lyrics, familiar musical setting and its performance by leading vocalists contribute to its enduring popularity and the meanings and value ascribed to it by diverse communities across time and place.

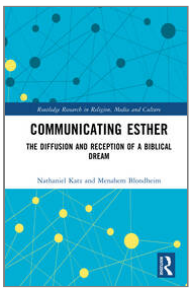
Communicating Esther

The Diffusion and Reception of a Biblical Dream



Elihu Katz , Menahem Blondheim

Series: Routledge Research in Religion, Media and Culture

Communicating Esther presents a communications approach to the biblical story of Esther and the ritual that it anchors, the Jewish carnival of Purim. This book discusses how story and holiday combine all of the elements of a communication process – production of content, choice of medium, seal of approval, diffusion over time and space and promotion of various forms of reception and reaction. It is a case study of 'how culture works', and how the text itself is about communicating. It will appeal to all researchers of communication and religion, communication and the Bible, and communication and Judaism.

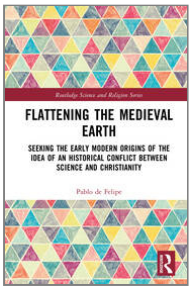
Flattening the Medieval Earth

Seeking the Early Modern Origins of the Idea of an Historical Conflict Between Science and Christianity



Pablo de Felipe

Series: Routledge Science and Religion Series

Flattening the Medieval Earth explores the origin of the 'flat error', i.e. the false accusation that ancient and medieval Christians believed in a flat Earth, and what this implies in terms of a conflict between science and Christianity. Combining history of science, Church history, science and religion, history of navigation, and historiography, the book gives the most updated explanation of the origin of the flat error, finding paradoxes and unexpected answers along the way to understand the past and to reflect on some current approaches in science and religion.

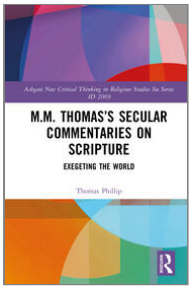
M.M. Thomas's Secular Commentaries on Scripture

Exegeting the World



Thomas Philip

Series: Ashgate New Critical Thinking in Religious Studies See Series ID 2069

This book investigates M.M. Thomas's biblical commentaries and their unique position at the intersection of religion and society. It explores how Thomas, inspired in part by Bonhoeffer's "religionless Christianity," adapted Western theological ideas and transformed them to reflect the social, political, and religious complexities of his own pluralistic context. It is intended for scholars, graduate students, and those involved in church studies, and anyone interested in contextual theology and hermeneutics, especially for those keen on understanding Indian Christianity and exploring how theology interacts with the social and political issues present in non-Western contexts.

Metaphor, Making and Mysticism

Radical Re-Imaginings in Language and Art

Edited by Sheila Gallagher , Louise Nelstrop , Lydia Shahan

Series: Contemporary Theological Explorations in Mysticism

This volume focuses on the interplay between metaphor, making and mysticism and sheds new light on the power of the metaphorical and creative dimensions of the mystical for the twenty-first century. It explores the ways a variety of mystical writers deal with metaphor and image by bringing together chapters from interdisciplinary vantage points – theological, philosophical, historical, artistic, and literary. The contributions explore contemporary artists' engagement with the mystical, and how these open up new ways of reimagining our present – moving us beyond static categories such as religion vs. secular, and Christianity vs. Islam.

Sustaining Cathedrals

Sacred Space and Common Ground

Edited by Leslie J. Francis , Stephen G. Parker

In an age when churches seem to be struggling, and new initiatives remain fragile, cathedrals are displaying signs of resilience. The field of cathedral studies has emerged to test the sustainability of this resilience. This volume draws together the work of 19 individuals who are shaping the field of cathedral studies, intent on describing what they see, and keen to identify what could be. Together they position cathedrals at the heart of Anglican ecclesiology, and maintain that, properly supported, cathedrals serve as episcopal theological resource churches where sacred space and common ground collide.

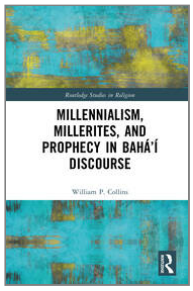
Millennialism, Millerites, and Prophecy in Bahá'í Discourse



William P. Collins

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book explores the role of millennialism, the Millerites, and prophecy in the historical development of the Bahá'í faith, and highlights the maturation of the Bahá'í community toward a capacity to deal with both catastrophe and progress. The author expresses the importance of the Bahá'í religion to millennialism studies and its connection to certain Protestant American and Shia Islamic modes of thought. The chapters in this volume reflect on theories about millennialist movements, the continuum from catastrophic to progressive millennialism, Bahá'í interpretations of biblical prophecy, and Bahá'í efforts to build the "Kingdom of God on earth" under a systematic divine plan.

Tending to Stories in Feminist Theologies

Interdisciplinary Renderings of Faith, Hope and Love

Edited by Helena Kadmos , Katharine Massam

Series: Gender, Theology and Spirituality

Tending to Stories in Feminist Theologies is interested in the place of story-tellers in communities of hope. Where some theologies wrestle for clarity of definition, feminist and other theologies of liberation begin from experience and tend towards story as a vehicle for speaking of the Divine. The book contributes to scholarly conversations on feminist theological method, on the relationship between the arts and theology, and on the dialogue between secular and sacred in Australasia and elsewhere.

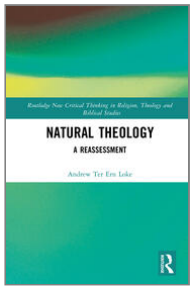
Natural Theology

A Reassessment



Andrew Ter Ern Loke Associate Professor at Hong Kong Baptist University.

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

Natural Theology: A Reassessment offers corrections to widespread misinterpretations of the authoritative sources of Christian theology and shows that these sources affirm a traditional view of natural theology that refers to what can be rationally believed about God without using religious doctrines as premises. Contrary to popular misconceptions, Hume and Kant did not successfully rebut the arguments of natural theology, which are still being defended today. The author develops a multidisciplinary approach involving theology, philosophy of religion, natural sciences, social sciences, and biblical studies to move the discussion ahead in a new and significant way.

The Nature of Empire

Modern Imperialism and the Roots of the Anthropocene

Andrea Duffy

Series: Themes in Environmental History

The Nature of Empire exposes the central role of modern imperialism in the development of contemporary environmentalism and environmental science. It builds this case through an investigation of five major modern empires: Britain, France, Russia, the Ottoman Empire, and Japan. This book offers readers a global environmental history of modern imperialism that actively engages Western-based and non-Western based empires. As this study shows, imperialism ultimately transformed human perceptions of nature and the environment in significant, lasting, and conflicting ways.

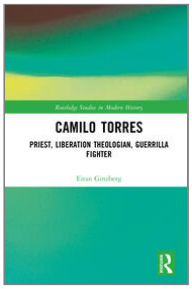
Camilo Torres

Priest, Liberation Theologian, Guerrilla Fighter



Eitan Ginzberg

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Camilo Torres: Priest, Liberation Theologian, Guerrilla Fighter takes an in-depth look at the intense story of Colombian figure Camilo Torres Restrepo (1929-1966). Torres was an acclaimed young liberal who became a priest, a sociologist, a forerunner of liberation theology, and a revolutionary politician who sought to end 130 years of terrible human suffering in his country and to replace it with a Christian humanism based on "efficacious love." This book is a vital resource for historians and students of Latin America. It especially appeals to those interested in church policy, the theology of liberation, and guerrilla movements.

Convergence and Cold War, 1953–1964

Austin Jersild Old Dominion University, USA

Series: The Routledge Global 1960s and 1970s Series

The academic debate in Western social science about the growing "convergence" or similarities between American and Soviet society acquired political significance in the diverse relationships that made up the global Cold War. Convergence and Cold War, 1953–1964 explores the consequences and challenges of convergence through a discussion of US-Soviet relations, Sino-Soviet relations, and East-South relations.

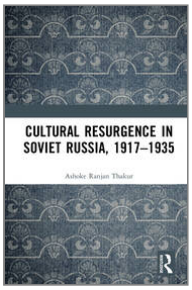
Cultural Resurgence in Soviet Russia, 1917–1935



Ashoke Ranjan Thakur

This volume presents a new cultural history of the transformation of Russia to the Soviet Union. It looks at how literature, the sciences and the arts played a key role in the emergence from a largely agrarian economy to world order. It traces the multiple revolutions that resulted in the overthrow of the Tsar's regime during the First World War; society, polity, cultural life, and the economy saw major upheavals as the country went into turmoil following the War and the revolution.

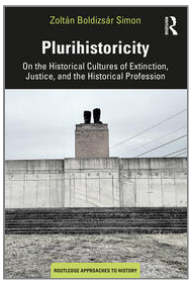
Plurihistoricity

On the Historical Cultures of Extinction, Justice, and the Historical Profession



Zoltán Boldizsár Simon University of Bielefeld, Germany

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

This book situates historical scholarship within a plurihistoricity of contemporary historical culture, exploring conflicting conceptions of historical change in technological utopias of human enhancement, in prospects of human extinction, in societal responses to the Anthropocene, and in the imperative of bringing colonial patterns of historical injustice to justice. By addressing these questions, Simon's book is essential reading for everyone interested in the present and future of viewing the world historically.

Rallying Europe

Intersectional Approaches to Youth and Gender in the Mid-Twentieth Century

Edited by Katharina Seibert , Barnabas Balint

This book spotlights the trajectories of young women and men navigating the turmoil of the early 20th century. By focusing on the young actors and the institutional settings that limited their scope of action, the authors contrast processes of wayward agency with institutionalized attempts to control and lead 'the young'. This book will be relevant for scholars and students in History, Sociology, Gender Studies, and Youth Studies. It will also be of interest to those studying European history, social movements, and 20th-century political transitions. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of European Review of History.

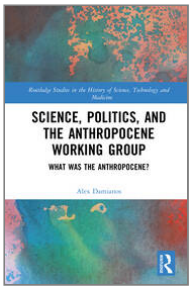
Science, Politics, and the Anthropocene Working Group

What was the Anthropocene?



Alex Damianos

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Science, Technology and Medicine

Between 2009 and 2024, the Anthropocene Working Group, an interdisciplinary team of geologists, archaeologists, Earth systems scientists, historians of science, and one lawyer, sought to formalise the Anthropocene as a formal unit of the Geologic Time Scale. Science, Politics, and the Anthropocene Working Group: What was the Anthropocene? presents the only comprehensive, ethnographic and history of science study of the Anthropocene Working Group's formalisation effort. Drawing on original archival research, this book provides a history of the formalisation procedure, as well as the practices of measurement and correlation, particular to the amendment of the Geologic Time Scale.

The Making of Paramilitarism in Turkey

Edited by Özlem Has University of Copenhagen, Denmark , Ayhan Işık Free University of Brussels, Belgium

This edited volume explores the history and evolution of Turkish paramilitarism from the late Ottoman period to the 2010s. Aimed at undergraduates, postgraduates, scholars, and non-specialists, it offers an interdisciplinary analysis of paramilitary forces' influence on Turkey's historical, political, social, legal and visual landscapes. By incorporating political, economic, and social dimensions, this volume offers a fresh perspective on the enduring role of paramilitary actors in shaping Turkish state policies and provides readers with a comprehensive understanding of the complex dynamics behind informal violence in Turkey's history.

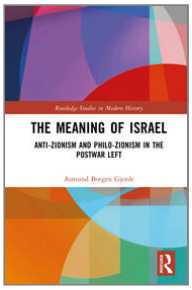
The Meaning of Israel

Anti-Zionism and Philo-Zionism in the Postwar Left



Asmund Borgen Gjerde

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

The Meaning of Israel argues that left ideas about Zionism and Israel have been inextricably intertwined with ideas about civilization. Post-war social democrats used ideas about Zionism and Israel to assuage their anxiety about the future of civilization, and to reaffirm the viability of this very concept. The anti-Zionism of the New Left, on the other hand, grew out of a broader rejection of 'civilization'.

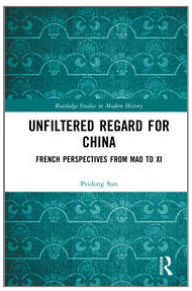
Unfiltered Regard for China

French Perspectives from Mao to Xi



Peidong Sun

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Unfiltered Regard for China is a collection of six unique narratives of French academics who, through decades of fieldwork, research, and engagement—some beginning as early as 1964 and continuing to the present—have explored China's history, politics, and society. These distinct voices illuminate decades of transnational "scholar-state nexus" in the context of the rule of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) in mainland China.

War and Masculinity in Roman and Medieval Culture

Edited by Jaakkojuhani Peltonen , Elina Pyy , Jussi Rantala

The chapters in this volume highlight the complexity and diversity of approaches to how ancient and medieval cultures understood martial masculinity and the significance warfare had on masculine values during the premodern era. They also point to how these ideals were manifested in numerous environments, covering topics from multiple points of view and using a variety of sources and methods. War and Masculinity in Roman and Medieval Culture is intended for those interested in ancient Roman and medieval culture, particularly researchers and students of gender and masculinity in Classical Antiquity and the Middle Ages.

Excavating Pedregal

Archaeological Explorations of Conquest and Daily Life in Ancient Perú

Robyn E. Cutright

Excavating Pedregal offers a new synthesis of household-level experiences of imperial conquest on the north coast of Perú, using excavations at the Late Intermediate Period farming community of Pedregal as an engaging case study of archaeological research in action. This book is an approachable introduction to how archaeology works for undergraduate students and general readers. It supplements a traditional introductory text by contextualizing research questions, methods, and data in a concrete, contemporary case study.

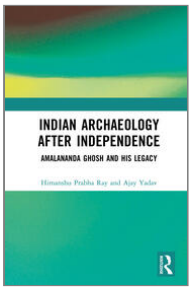
Indian Archaeology After Independence

Amalananda Ghosh and His Legacy



Himanshu Prabha Ray Distant Worlds Programme, Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich, Germany., Ajay Yadav

The book studies the challenges faced by the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) in the first two and a half decades after Indian independence. It looks at the shifts in Government policies, how ASI found its feet in a global environment, and the new realities of economic development such as big dam constructions that invariably resulted in the submergence of archaeological sites. Based on unpublished archival data, this book highlights the contributions of the longest-serving Director-General Amalananda Ghosh and members of his staff.

Museums and Digital Confidence

Organisation, Collection, Interface

Edited by Ross D. Parry University of Leicester, UK, Vince Dziekan , Karin de Wild

Series: Critical Perspectives on Museums and Digital Technology

Museums and Digital Confidence explores the evolving nature of digital practices in museums. It interrogates the skills, literacies, and mindsets that can support the use of digital technologies within these institutions. It also reflects on why digital adoption has faltered (at times), why digital continues to matter, and how the digital museum may flourish into the future. Museums and Digital Confidence shares insights that will be essential reading for students, researchers, and museum practitioners who are interested in better understanding – and acting upon – the digital transformation of museums.

Ancient Greek Oracular Texts

Form, Content, Context

Michael Lipka

This book offers a comprehensive and systematic – rather than historical – approach to ancient Greek oracular texts, showing their conceptual and formal unity and patternisation, as well as their meaningful diversity. Chapters analyse the meter and phraseology of the texts and how they were recorded, transmitted, archived, and collected, as well as their narrative functions and authors. It provides a fascinating resource and reassessment of oracular texts, suitable for students and scholars working on Greek and Roman oracles, divination, and ancient religion more broadly, as well as classicists, archaeologists, theologians, and epigraphists.

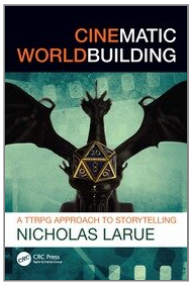
Cinematic Worldbuilding

A TTRPG Approach to Storytelling



Nicholas LaRue

Everybody has a story in them. Some people lack the language and the tools to tell that story effectively. As an avid Tabletop Role-Playing Game player, I'm amazed at people's ability to tell stories on the spot. Both the players and the game master are creating worlds in their minds and playing out the events, using improv, in real-time. This book will contain insights and interviews from some of today's most respected game masters, players, actual play actors, and we'll also hear from some of the people behind the scenes responsible for creating these games, and how they view worldbuilding and storytelling for their audiences.

Taking Video Out of the Game

A Game Developer's Guide to Total Blind Accessibility

Brandon Cole

This book aims to provide information and in-routes to one of the most complex forms of video game accessibility. It promises to explain how a developer might make their game accessible to the totally blind. It will break down what that means and provide plenty of examples and ideas for how developers might achieve total blind accessibility, even in the largest, most complex games. As an experienced accessibility consultant who has worked on multiple AAA titles, the author brings a wealth of practical experience to the reader.

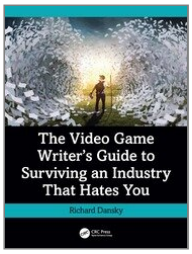
The Video Game Writer's Guide to Surviving an Industry That Hates You



Richard Dansky

There have been many books written about how to write for games, but just as important as creating the deliverables is knowing how to do the job itself. By turns humorous, horrifying, and hopeful, this is a user's manual to a role that is frequently misunderstood and underappreciated. Drawing on over two decades' experience in the game writing trenches, Richard Dansky takes you on a journey through the things you must know in order to survive and thrive as a game writer.

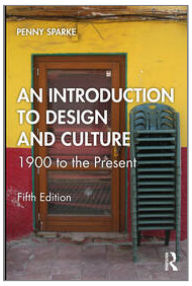
5TH EDITION

An Introduction to Design and Culture

1900 to the Present



Penny Sparke

An Introduction to Design and Culture provides a comprehensive guide to the changing relationships between design and culture from 1900 to the present day. This fifth edition extends the traditional definition of design to embrace its more recent manifestations, which include service design, user-interface design, co-design, and sustainable design. It also discusses the relationship between design and the new media and the effect of globalisation and transnationalism on design. Most importantly, it looks at its contents through a new lens which acknowledges the post-industrial, post-colonial, postmodern, (and, arguably, post-design) climate of the 21st century.

Cultural Critique Through the Detour of Art

Edited by Kris Rutten , Keyan G. Tomaselli University of Johannesburg, South Africa

This book brings together a selection of articles that have been published throughout a series of special issues of the journal Critical Arts: South-North Cultural and Media Studies that originally focused on the so-called 'ethnographic turn' in contemporary arts. The aim of these works was to revisit the ethnographic turn in contemporary art by bringing together contributions from theorists, artists and critics, to engage critically with the ethnographic perspective in their work.

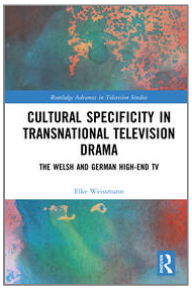
Cultural Specificity in Transnational Television Drama

Welsh and German High-End TV



Elke Weissmann Edge Hill University, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Television Studies

Cultural Specificity in Transnational Television Drama examines two European television industries: those of Germany and Wales. This book presents a unique emphasis on both transnationalising and localising tendencies which require that we continue to focus our analytical attention onto the nation in this supposedly post-national world. It will be of particular interest to scholars and researchers in contemporary television landscape, literary and film studies, modern languages, philosophy and economics.

Depicting the Afterlife in Contemporary Film and Media

Morality, Religion and Death

Edited by Angelique Nairn

Series: Routledge Advances in Popular Culture Studies

What lies beyond death? This book brings together a diverse collection of scholarly voices to explore how popular culture imagines—and reimagines—the afterlife. Drawing from film, television, video games, literature, advertising, and digital technologies, this book examines how narratives about Heaven and Hell, ghosts and gods, memory and immortality shape contemporary understandings of morality, death, and what may come after. Essential reading for scholars of media studies, religious studies, cultural theory, and anyone fascinated by humanity's oldest and most enduring question: what happens when we die?

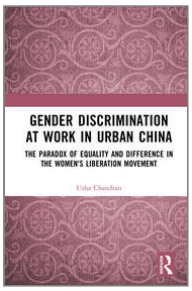
Gender Discrimination at Work in Urban China

The Paradox of Equality and Difference in the Women's Liberation Movement



Usha Chandran Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi

This book explores gender discrimination and women's movements in China—from the May Fourth movement to present day. It critically examines the dynamics of the personal and political, or 'home' and "work', and the role this discourse plays in women's lives. Patterns of employment for women have evolved over the years and women have continued to face new challenges at home and outside as the boundaries between the political and personal blurs. This book analyses the birth of feminism in China, its amalgamation with Marxism to take the form of women's liberation movement propagated by the party and state and its impact on shaping contemporary Chinese women.

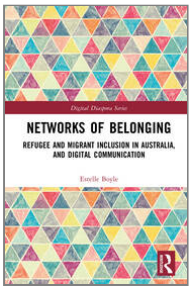
Networks of Belonging

Refugee and Migrant Inclusion in Australia, and Digital Communication



Estelle Boyle

Series: Digital Diaspora Series

This book examines how digitally networked communication technologies create spaces of belonging for people of refugee and migrant backgrounds in resettlement contexts, focusing on Australia. The book grounds its analysis by first considering the history of refugee and migrant inclusion in Australia and the historical practice of migrant letter-writing, as a critical analogue reference point to today's digital ubiquity. While digital platforms and global connections meaningfully support inclusion and belonging, physical and local interaction remains indispensable.

Platforms, Power, and Friction

Edited by Pawel Popiel , Krishnan Vasudevan

This edited book deconstructs the myth of frictionless digital platform expansion, revealing the persistent "platform frictions" that shape platform economies and politics. Through a series of case studies, it explores how, despite universal aspirations, big tech's drive for global expansion and appeal is realized only through encounters with diverse local contexts. It is in these frictional encounters that the exact contours of platform power and dominance are negotiated. It was originally published as a special issue of Information, Communication & Society.

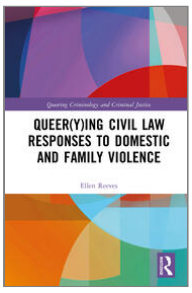
Queer(y)ing Civil Law Responses to Domestic and Family Violence



Ellen Reeves Monash University

Series: Queering Criminology and Criminal Justice

Queer(y)ing Civil Law Responses to Domestic and Family Violence offers unique, in-depth insights into the experiences of LGBTQ+ victim-survivors who have engaged with civil protection order systems. Drawing on data from an Australian study following the experiences of LGBTQ+ victim-survivors of domestic and family violence, this book adopts a feminist, queer, and trans abolitionist perspective, and centres queer criminology as a framework through which we can situate and critique the rigid victim/perpetrator binaries that are so characteristic of legal responses to violence.

The Afterlives of Anticolonial Aesthetics

Edited by Carlos Garrido Castellano , Patrick Crowley

This book develops a critical intervention in the politics of time of anticolonial aesthetics. Engaging with recent debates on cultural activism and postcolonial and decolonial studies, the main objective of the volume is to examine the ways in which anticolonial cultural analysis and production keeps nurturing contemporary processes of progressive social transformation. The chapters in the volume argue that anticolonialism should not be bounded to a specific historical moment (that of postcolonial nation-building); rather, it should be seen as a fertile, radical tradition going beyond the specific event of decolonization and informing utopian and radical futures.

Theological Discourses on Social Media

Edited by Christopher B. Barnett , Clark J. Elliston , Trevor B. Williams

Theological Discourses on Social Media will examine ten different social media platforms across three overarching parts. The task throughout is, first, to delineate the configuration and intent of a given form of social media and, second, to probe its implications for theology. The upshot will be a unique theological engagement with the defining issue of our era—a work that will be as relevant as it will be engrossing. Featuring contributions from leading scholars, it will be a must-read for all students of theology, religion and media, and cultural studies.

Transcultural Histories of Art and Artisanal Epistemologies

Knowledge to Be Made

Edited by Claire Farago , Susan Lowish , Jens Baumgarten

Series: Routledge Advances in Art and Visual Studies

This edited volume de-familiarizes European conceptions of artistry and thinks its history anew. It represents a rethinking on a global stage of some of the most fundamental assumptions in what were once arguably helpful methodological tools in art history. As chapters in this book demonstrate, the category of artisanal knowledge opens up the history of culture, allowing discourse to be freed from a narrative of cultural development without excluding Art with a capital A from consideration.

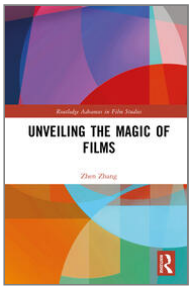
Unveiling the Magic of Films



Zhen Zhang

Series: Routledge Advances in Film Studies

This book presents a comprehensive methodology for segmenting, transcribing, and analysing feature films, especially classical Hollywood films. It offers an in-depth study of three scenes from Roman Holiday (1953), each showcasing different combinations of verbal and non-verbal performance. The book makes a significant contribution to existing research by bridging film performance theories with social semiotics, synthesising them into a cohesive framework that is applicable to both Hollywood and non-Hollywood films. This book is especially valuable for scholars, practitioners, and students of film studies and social semiotics.

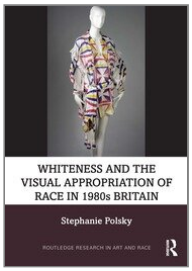
Whiteness and the Visual Appropriation of Race in 1980s Britain



Stephanie Polsky Northeastern University College of Arts Media and Design, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Art and Race

This volume delves into the complex topic of race relations in 1980s Britain by examining the concept of 'whiteness' and how it was portrayed visually in popular art and mass media.Chapters explore pivotal moments in which the appropriation of race occurred during this critical decade as they relate to the nation's evolving postcolonial identity. This book analyses pivotal cultural moments in print media, fashion, film, television, music video, art, and live events that exemplify how race, gender and sexuality became operative in the way Britain imagined itself in this crucial decade.

Children's Literature and Culture

An Introduction

Edited by Rebecca Rowe

Series: Routledge Introductions to Young Adult and Children's Literature

Children's Literature & Culture: An Introduction guides readers in the study of culture in, around, and through children's literature. This volume traces the scholarly methodologies and histories that have attended the study of each of the twenty chapters' given subject - from the representation of race in and around children's literature to questions of censorship to how libraries can and do shape children's literature. In the process, it prepares readers to confidently enter and forward scholarly debates and to teach such debates to their own students.

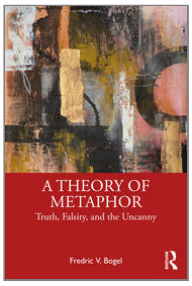
A Theory of Metaphor

Truth, Falsity, and the Uncanny



Fredric V. Bogel

A Theory of Metaphor is a strikingly original analysis of metaphor. Scholarly and imaginative, this sophisticated theory builds on a simple definition: metaphors are not comparisons but statements of identity (A is B), statements simultaneously true and false. This rigorously argued book will be invaluable to students of metaphor across such fields as literary criticism and theory, philosophy, linguistics, rhetoric, psychoanalysis, and media studies. Its arguments are enriched by numerous concrete examples and analyses that bring theory to life and help to reach beyond an academic audience.

Auto/Biography and Reputation Politics

Edited by Nadja Gernalzick , Edwina Hagen , Martijn Icks , Jennifer Keohane , Eric Shiraev

Series: Routledge Auto/Biography Studies

Auto/Biography and Reputation Politics brings together for the first time these two research fields to demonstrate that life writing is reputation politics. The innovative collection is postdisciplinary, comparative, and transnational, with contributions on works from originally seven languages. Chapters attend to narrative strategies, public relations, gendering, racialization, and class politics. The contributions discuss how reputations are created, changed, destroyed, or saved in auto/biographies and how life writing reputations interact with strategies of personal politics and political programs.

Comic Lives

Edited by Laurie McNeill University of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada, John David Zuern

Comic Lives examines the dynamic intersection of life narrative and comedy within the theoretical and methodological frameworks of auto/biography studies. The contributors take up examples of auto/biographical comedy in Australia, Canada, South Africa, and the United States to explore the question of how comedians transform difficult life experiences—such as mental illness, the displacements of immigration, family conflicts, and institutional racism—into texts and performances aimed at making people laugh. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue in a/b: Auto/Biography Studies.

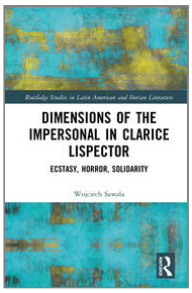
Dimensions of the Impersonal in Clarice Lispector

Ecstasy, Horror, Solidarity



Wojciech Sawala

Series: Routledge Studies in Latin American and Iberian Literature

It explores the fictional work of Clarice Lispector 20th-century Brazilian writer. It employs the theoretical framework of "affirmative biopolitics" by Esposito, engaging with Foucault and Giorgio Agamben, alongside voices like Mircea Eliade, Anthony Giddens, and Agata Bielik-Robson. The focus is on rethinking and valuing "impersonality," crucial for understanding the anthropological, metaphysical, ethical, and political implications in Lispector's works. The main thesis posits that Lispector's writings, from journalistic chronicles to significant books present a complex anthropological vision marked by an ontological and ethical "deadlock" between personality and impersonality.

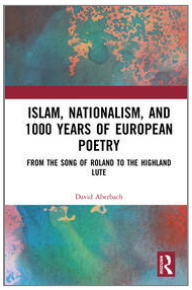
Islam, Nationalism, and 1000 Years of European Poetry

From The Song of Roland to The Highland Lute



David Aberbach McGill University, Montreal, Canada

Islam, Nationalism, and 1000 Years of European Poetry considers the long history of Islam and European poetry and its importance in the development of European culture. Aberbach offers a panoramic history of European poetry as it was affected by the conflict between Islam and Christianity, from the early-medieval The Song of Roland, set against the Muslim invasion of France in the eighth century, to The Highland Lute, the Albanian epic of the struggle for independence from Ottoman rule, achieved in 1912. This captivating history will be of interest to any scholars of nationalism, Jewish and Islamic Studies, history, comparative literature, and cultural studies.

Life Writing and Translation

Indian Perspectives

Edited by Mukul Chaturvedi University of Delhi, India

This book aims to explore the expansive field of life writing, both as a practice and genre of literature, and its intersections with translation. Addressing the affinities between life writing and translation, and the emancipatory possibilities it offers, can shift the focus from individual texts to a space for encounter between languages, identities, and cultures. This volume will serve as a rich resource for university students, researchers, and academics of literature, history, sociology, cultural studies, translation studies, and comparative studies, and those who are interested in South Asian literature.

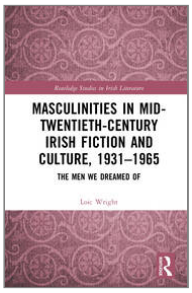
Masculinities in Mid-Twentieth-Century Irish Fiction and Culture, 1931–1965

The Men We Dreamed Of



Loic Wright

Series: Routledge Studies in Irish Literature

Masculinities in Mid-Twentieth-Century Irish Fiction and Culture, 1931-1965 is a critical analysis of the construction, consolidation, and regulation of post-colonial Irish masculinity as evidenced by Irish fiction published during the mid-twentieth century. Wright's research in this book provides a holistic approach to scrutinising the construction of postcolonial Irish masculinity, including analysis on drinking culture, civil service employment, queer relationships, and the value of violence in masculine currencies.

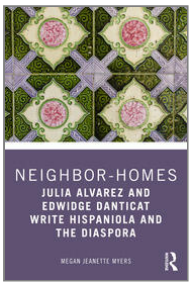
Neighbor-Homes

Julia Alvarez and Edwidge Danticat Write Hispaniola and the Diaspora



Megan Jeanette Myers

Neighbor-Homes: Julia Alvarez and Edwidge Danticat Write Hispaniola and the Diaspora analyzes the work of two of the most acclaimed contemporary American and Caribbean authors for the first time in a single book. Extending beyond scholarly approaches to home as a theoretical construct, it considers how Alvarez and Danticat inaugurate multiple spaces of belonging for their off- and on-island fictional characters, for their community of readers, and for themselves. This important study is an essential read for students and scholars of literature and social justice, cultural studies, history, and politics, as well as Caribbean, Latinx, and African diaspora literatures.

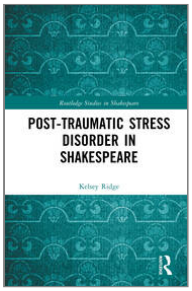
Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder in Shakespeare



Kelsey Ridge

Series: Routledge Studies in Shakespeare

Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder in Shakespeare combines literary criticism, performance studies, psychiatric literature, trauma studies, and disability studies to examine the presentation of PTSD in Shakespeare's plays. This volume takes as case studies 1 Henry IV, Othello, Macbeth, Much Ado About Nothing, and Troilus and Cressida. It reminds us that people lived with PTSD long before the APA codified the condition in the 1980s; it places this condition in a longer historical continuity. With this knowledge, we can better consider the role Shakespeare can play in how we respond to trauma and psychological injury now.

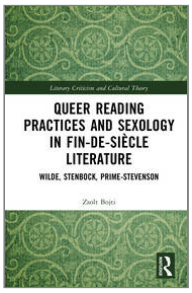
Queer Reading Practices and Sexology in Fin-de-Siècle Literature

Wilde, Stenbock, Prime-Stevenson



Zsolt Bojti

Series: Literary Criticism and Cultural Theory

It scrutinises the production and transnational distribution of sexological knowledge at the turn of the century. The works of three transnationally mobile authors are in the focus: The Picture of Dorian Gray and Teleny by, and attributed to, Oscar Wilde; 'The True Story of a Vampire' by Count Stanislaus Eric Stenbock, and Imre: A Memorandum by Edward Prime-Stevenson. The textual analysis is governed by references in all four works to Hungarian culture to demonstrate how they conceptualised 'Hungarianness' and same-sex desire simultaneously in light of the new classificatory science of sexualities coming from German-speaking Central Europe.

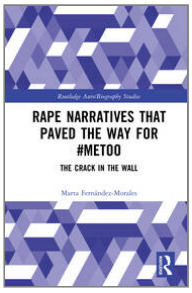
Rape Narratives that Paved the Way for #MeToo

The Crack in the Wall



Marta Fernández-Morales

Series: Routledge Auto/Biography Studies

This book examines a decade of rape memoirs produced by English-speaking women around the emergence of #MeToo as a global phenomenon. It argues that their auto/biographical praxis opened a crack in the long-standing wall of silence that the 2017 online campaign and its echoes, still resonating today, are systematically eroding. Of particular value for academics and activists working on/against sexual violence, as well as for life writing and gender studies scholars, it can also be useful to specialists in the fields of ethics, affect theory, trauma studies, memory studies, cultural studies, phenomenology, victimology, or ethnic and minority studies.

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature

Tennessee Williams's America is the first full-length study of homes, families, and familial exile in the plays of Tennessee Williams. In its extended, full-length treatment of homes, families, and familial exiles in his theatrical output, this book adds a new perspective to existing Williams scholarship by examining the desperate and, at times, futile search for love, relationality, and belonging that his marginalized and alienated characters frequently pursue in alternative avenues of existence.

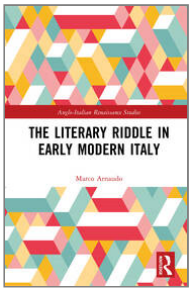
The Literary Riddle in Early Modern Italy



Marco Arnaudo

Series: Anglo-Italian Renaissance Studies

This book describes the development of the literary riddle in Renaissance Italy, when poets appropriated riddles from oral tradition, combined them with the conventions of literature, and paired them with solutions that could be checked after reading. The book includes an original theoretical framework for the investigation of riddles, dividing riddles into categories based on their enigmatic link, and an examination of literary riddles by Angelo Cenni, Daphne di Piazza, Giovan Francesco Straparola, Girolamo Musici, Ascanio de' Mori, Tomaso Stigliani, Giulio Cesare Croce, Antonio Malatesti, and many others.

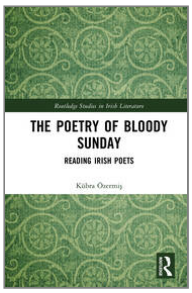
The Poetry of Bloody Sunday

Reading Irish Poets



Kübra Özermiş

Series: Routledge Studies in Irish Literature

As a turning point that changed the course of the 'Troubles', the Bloody Sunday massacre continues to define ongoing debates about the legacy of the 'Troubles' and the impact of state violence. Bloody Sunday has been at the centre of numerous cultural and literary expressions, which deal with the grief and trauma of the massacre, such as murals, songs, plays and poetry. This volume is the first comprehensive study of the poetry of Bloody Sunday written by critically acclaimed Irish poets, including Seamus Heaney, Paul Muldoon, Thomas Kinsella, Seamus Deane and Medbh McGuckian.

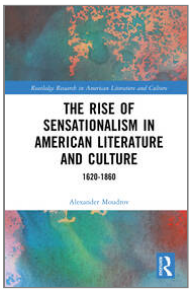
The Rise of Sensationalism in American Literature and Culture

1620-1860



Alexander Moudrov

Series: Routledge Research in American Literature and Culture

The Rise of Sensationalism in American Literature and Culture: 1620-1860 argues that the rise of the American tradition of sensationalism can be better understood in the transatlantic context. What is remarkable about the antebellum period is that it saw a dramatic transformation of American sensationalist literature as popular writers started to incorporate elements of European sensationalism while trying to preserve the didactic conventions of their predecessors.

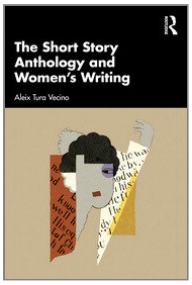
The Short Story Anthology and Women's Writing



Aleix Tura Vecino

Over 300 anthologies of women's short stories appeared in the literary market between 1970 and 2000. This publishing phenomenon is considered for the first time in this book, which shows that during this period the short story anthology became a significant literary form not just to make visible female writers, but also to think about, and shape ideas of, womanhood. This text offers readers the first full-length study of the short story anthology as a genre in its own right and develops an original conceptualisation of the features and meaning-making mechanisms of this literary form.

The Speculative Route

Futures from South and Southwest Asia and North Africa

Edited by Merve Tabur , Sami Ahmad Khan

Series: Studies in Global Genre Fiction

The Speculative Route explores speculative traditions and science fictional modes across South and Southwest Asia and North Africa (SSWANA), examining their historical connections, inter and intra-regional entanglements, overlaps, and differences. Conceptualizing science fiction and fantasy (SFF) as a mode rather than genre, this volume challenges the putative boundaries between literary and genre fiction through critical studies and essays focusing on SFF from Bangladesh, Egypt, India, Iran, Pakistan, Palestine, Sri Lanka, and Turkey.

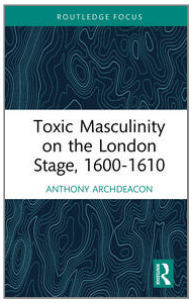
Toxic Masculinity on the London Stage, 1600–1610



Anthony Archdeacon

Series: Routledge Focus on Literature

The idea of toxic masculinity might feel like a very modern, even twenty-first-century notion, but similar concerns about male behaviour, also often characterised in terms of poisons and poisoning. These plays depict the early modern male as both poisoned and poisoner – poisoned by inherited misogynistic ideas and attitudes, and poisoner of women both literally and metaphorically. Seeing them as enacting problematic situations and raising difficult questions rather than simply offering the moral certitudes of Christianity or the prescriptions of contemporary conduct book, the book points to these plays as evidence of disquiet and anxieties to which we can still easily relate today.

Wounded Scholar, Healing Witness

The Value of Life Writing in Coping with Traumas

Edited by Idit Gil , Stefanie Hofer

Series: Life Writing

This edited book focuses on the role of scholars in studying their own individual traumas, exploring the complex interplay between personal trauma and scholarly engagement. It gathers a diverse range of contributions, including an essay, seven articles and an insightful interview. The authors discuss the emotional, ethical and intellectual challenges they faced in the research and representation of their traumas. They examine how personal and collective wounds shape individual identities, community narratives, and broader societal dynamics in Europe, Asia, Australia, and the Americas from the 1930s to the present.

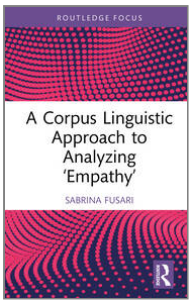
A Corpus Linguistic Approach to Analyzing 'Empathy'



Sabrina Fusari

Series: Routledge Focus on Applied Linguistics

This volume offers an in-depth corpus linguistic analysis of the word "empathy" toward fostering unique insights into a word widely found across contemporary discourses and into methodological innovations for analyzing large corpora. Given the understanding of empathy's importance for individual and social development, the book demonstrates the potential of a corpus approach to shed new light on a significant yet difficult-to-define concept. Fusari systematically applies the use of concordances and other corpus output to derive patterns and recurrent phraseologies in the 36+ billion-word electronic corpus, English Web 2020, to help readers grapple with key ideas around empathy.

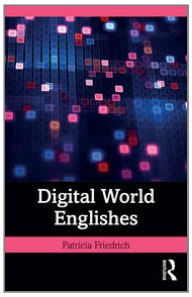
Digital World Englishes



Patricia Friedrich

World Englishes Online aims to be an introduction to and exposition of the universe of world Englishes as represented in online spaces. It presents aspects of world Englishes theory in relation to our evolving digital reality and examples of authentic language variation, change and code-mixing. To do that, it visits such stations as world Englishes frameworks, pedagogy, new media, augmented intelligence, interactions with other languages, research methodology, and Internet user identities. The reader of the book will come away from the reading with a clear idea of what world Englishes are and how they have morphed, adapted, and come to manifest in online environments.

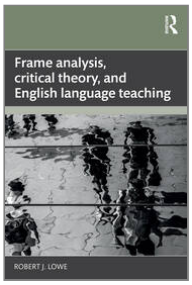
Frame Analysis, Critical Theory, and English Language Teaching



Robert J. Lowe

This book introduces frame analysis, a qualitative research approach rooted in the critical theory of the early Frankfurt School. Lowe explains the principles of frame analysis and guides readers through its practical application, focusing on identifying and challenging ideology. By examining how the rhetoric of pluralism in English teaching contrasts with the reality of more prestigious English varieties, Lowe emphasizes the role of researchers in empowering language learners to take true ownership of the language. A key reading for researchers and advanced students in applied linguistics, sociolinguistics, and TESOL. .

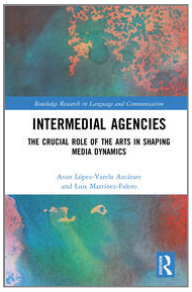
Intermedial Agencies

The Crucial Role of the Arts in Shaping Media Dynamics



Asun López-Varela Azcárate , Luis Martínez-Falero

Series: Routledge Research in Language and Communication

Intermedial Agencies: The Crucial Role of the Arts in Shaping Media Dynamics explores how the arts continuously redefine and facilitate cross-media transformation through intermedial interactions. Drawing primarily on semiotics and neomaterialist approaches, López-Varela Azcárate and Martínez-Falero examine the symbiotic relationship between artistic innovation, material change, and evolving technologies, particularly digital media and AI. Through diverse case studies spanning historical and geographical contexts, the volume interrogates not only material and medial boundaries but also the shifting sociocultural landscape of intermedial dynamics.

Introducing Systemic Functional Linguistics

Theory, Description and Application

Edited by Hui Yu , Chenguang Chang , Bo Wang , Yuanyi Ma Hong Kong Polytechnic University, Hong Kong

This book provides a comprehensive introduction to Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL), covering key concepts and contributions to the field, and instructing beginners to apply SFL to different areas. Authored by contributors with extensive experience of teaching SFL and suitable to be used as teaching materials, the chapters are carefully organized into sections of learning outcomes, key terms, exercises and suggested readings. By introducing the theory and applications of SFL in accessible terms and requiring no prior knowledge, this practical book is a key reading for students new to the area.

Language in Sport

Real-Time Talk in Training and Games

Edited by Andrew S. Ross , David Caldwell University of South Australia, Australia, Y.J. Doran

Series: Routledge Research in Language and Communication

This collection showcases the language of "doing" sport, emphasizing the real-time talk of players and coaches during training and games toward elucidating real-time language use and encouraging effective sporting pedagogies. While there is established work at the intersection of linguistics and sport, this book places a particular focus on real-time participation, as opposed to media reporting or post-match commentary. This book will be of interest to students and scholars in language and communication, applied linguistics, discourse analysis, sociolinguistics, and the sociology of sport.

New Orientations in Interpreting Studies and Interpreter Education

Information Processing, Meaning Mediation and Language-pair Specificity

Binhua Wang University of Leeds, UK

This book explores the most recent developments in interpreting studies and interpreter education. Binhua Wang proposes a multi-dimensional model revisiting the epistemology of interpreting studies and the distinctive features of interpreting, based on which three new research orientations are outlined. The first considers interpreting as immediate bilingual information processing, the second as meaning mediation in cross-lingual interpersonal communication and cross-sociocultural interaction, and the third looks at language-pair specificity in interpreting. This is essential reading for all engaged in teaching, researching and studying interpreting and interpreting studies.

The Routledge Handbook of Translanguaging in the Global South

Edited by Kleber Aparecido da Silva , Leketi Makalela

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Applied Linguistics

The Routledge Handbook of Translanguaging in the Global South is a groundbreaking exploration of translanguaging as a decolonial, contextually rooted, and transformative language practice. Unlike conventional volumes that center Western frameworks, this handbook foregrounds indigenous knowledge systems, Southern theories, and the socio-cultural realities of the Global South. It challenges colonial language policies and rigid multilingual paradigms by showcasing how translanguaging can be a driver of educational equity, social justice, and linguistic inclusion.

This book explores how to make props for the stage that move, light up, make sounds, or interact with their environment. Whether it's a sword that glows or a book that bursts into flames (safely), this guide shows how to bring imagination to life. In this second edition, each chapter has been updated with new technology and detailed information, more illustrative photographs and diagrams, new information on virtual prototyping methods, app-based controllers, and much more. This guide empowers students in Prop Building courses, artists, educators, and hobbyists to create magic on stage, making it an invaluable resource for anyone with a passion for storytelling and craftsmanship.

Scriptwriting for Theatre and Screen

A Practical Guide

Richard Stockwell

Scriptwriting for Theatre and Screen: A Practical Guide is an introduction designed to help readers understand the nature of dramatic scriptwriting and quickly guide them to a place where they can write, first a short play, and then a short screenplay. The book clearly points out not only the differences between writing for the stage and writing for the screen, but also the shared skills and the fundamental dramatic principles that unite them. This complete introduction to writing dramatic scripts is intended for students of playwriting and scriptwriting but is also suitable for all writers new to these areas and interested in developing their skills.

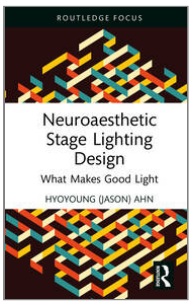
Neuroaesthetic Stage Lighting Design

What Makes Good Light



Jason Ahn

This book redefines stage lighting through the lens of neuroaesthetics, exploring how light shapes human perception, emotion, and experience. Interweaving science, philosophy, and art, it reveals the power of lighting to enhance beauty and meaning on the stage. By using scientifically informed lighting design, the book seeks to create immersive and fully emotional performances. A compelling read for theatre professionals, designers, students and researchers of neuroaesthetics, and anyone curious about the meaning and reasons behind beauty, Neuroaesthetic Stage Lighting Design reimagines lighting as an essential component of human experience and artistic excellence.

Practice Research through Creative Bodies

Edited by Caroline Frizell Goldsmiths University of London, UK, Marina Rova

This anthology brings a focus to practice research in which moving bodies and creative processes are imperatives. It brings together a range of researchers and performers who present innovative research through single authored and co-authored projects that trouble the notion that there are limited ways of researching and performing. Readers are invited to consider the many different ways in which (em)bodied research and performance generates new knowledge. It is a useful resource for students, researchers and professionals in art therapies, somatic practice and arts performance.

Stanislavsky and Mindfulness

Being in the Moment

Edited by Dawn Ingleson

Series: Stanislavsky And...

Stanislavsky and Mindfulness synthesises the two disciplines of acting and mindfulness focusing on elemental concepts from Stanislavsky's System. This collection explores how Stanislavsky used techniques of mindfulness to create a way for actors to portray truthful characters. Using elements of neuroscience and wellbeing, Ingleson and her team of diverse authors share how mindfulness creates more believable and affective acting from a modern perspective. Part of the "Stanislavsky And…" series, this is an accessible resource for theatre students, drama teachers and academics and readers with an interest in acting and how to apply mindfulness to different areas of our lives.

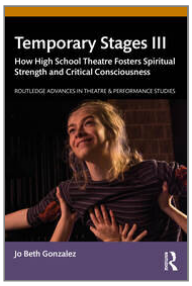
Temporary Stages III

How High School Theatre Fosters Spiritual Strength and Critical Consciousness



Jo Beth Gonzalez

Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies

Theatre activities ask adolescents to empathize with those who are different from themselves. Recognizing divergence invites self-reflection and kindles compassion. These actions tap students' inner cores while at the same time deepening their understanding of privilege, a key component of critical consciousness. Temporary Stages III will appeal especially to secondary theatre teachers, theatre education pre-service teachers, and graduate students studying theatre pedagogy and critical cultural theory.

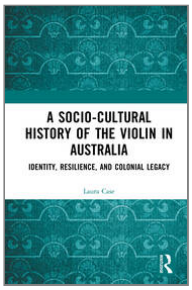
A Socio-Cultural History of the Violin in Australia

Identity, Resilience, and Colonial Legacy



Laura Case

This book presents a social history of the violin in Australia from 1788 to 1914, exploring its pivotal role in colonial society and influence on local music-making and culture. It provides scholars with new insights into how musical instruments like the violin were used to navigate and express social boundaries within a colonial framework. Aimed at an academic audience, this book will appeal to those interested in colonial history, Australian music, and cultural studies. Through its detailed analysis, it offers an essential resource for understanding the ways that music served as a medium for both cultural continuity and transformation in Australia's complex colonial context.

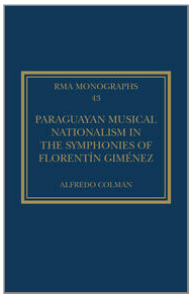
Paraguayan Musical Nationalism in the Symphonies of Florentín Giménez



Alfredo Colman

Series: Royal Musical Association Monographs

This study of the music and career of Florentín Giménez discusses the various ways in which he expressed his Paraguayan cultural identity and musical nationalism through his symphonies. Topics are approached with a threefold goal in mind: to provide a biography of the composer, to consider the various cultural themes associated with his compositions, and to give an overview of his symphonies. A chronological list of his compositions—including the dates of their premieres, soloists, ensembles, and conductors—appears in the Appendix as a reference guide.

The Vinyl Revival, Gender, and Collecting Aesthetics

Veronica Skrimsjö

Series: Ashgate Popular and Folk Music Series

The book considers record collecting and vinyl consumption in the 21st century and in the context of the vinyl revival. The book highlights gender, and how gender disparity is expressed in vinyl communities. Readers will benefit from a different perspective on record collecting and consumptions as the book highlights active, creative consumption, and provides in-depth, innovative analysis of how gender inequality is constructed within this context. The work is aimed at both an academic and a general readership, and as such strikes a more informal tone.

With an increasing spotlight on early childhood education and care (ECEC), it's crucial that leaders and teachers in ECEC can show how they support the learning of both children and staff. The Pedagogical Leadership in the Early Years (PLEY) Quality Rating Scale will help those working with children aged birth to six to achieve their potential, enjoy the pleasure of delivering high quality ECEC, and improve their understanding of leadership for learning. The Quality Rating Scale is designed to support systematic quality improvement and enhance children's learning and development. It will be an invaluable tool for all early years leaders of classrooms and centre managers.

The Play Cycle in Practice

Supporting, Observing and Reflecting on Children's Play

Pete King Swansea University, UK

This book explores how the Play Cycle can help practitioners to observe and understand children's play and support their interactions with children. It explains the six elements of the play cycle – pre cue, play cue, play return, play frame, flow, and annihilation – and shows how practitioners can use this to guide their interventions. Including vignettes and reflective questions, this text brings the theory and application of the Play Cycle fully up-to-date and is essential reading for practitioners and those studying play-related courses, for example, playwork, childcare and early years education.

Effective Mentoring in Initial Teacher Education

Jonathan Glazzard , Michael Green

From 2024, mentors are required to undertake significantly more training than previously, and ITE partnerships are required to develop the role of lead mentor. This timely book supports ITE partnerships and individual mentors in navigating these changes. It prepares readers by outlining the relevant developments in ITE policy, specifically looking at the implications for the roles and responsibilities of mentors. This book emphasises the shift for ITE mentors from the role of 'assessor' to teacher development. Each chapter is enriched with evidence-informed research and critical questions.

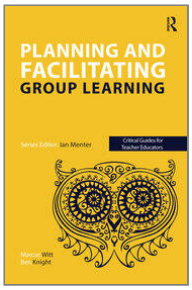
Planning and facilitating group learning



Marcus Witt , Ben Knight

Series: Critical Guides for Teacher Educators

This is an innovative text for teacher educators exploring detailed research and information that novice teachers need to know about group work in school settings. There is more to learn about group work than simply sitting children together and letting them get on with it! Group work across schools is very common and trainee teachers will step into classrooms where small groups are a predominant structure. Research has suggested that there is a great deal more to understand about group work, however there is a tacit presumption in ITE that trainee teachers will simply pick up the expertise associated with organising and managing group work.

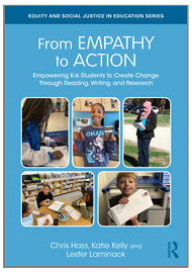
From Empathy to Action: Empowering K-6 Students to Create Change Through Reading, Writing, and Research



Chris Hass , Katie Kelly , Lester Laminack

Series: Equity and Social Justice in Education Series

How can we move children from simply talking about things to learning to take action—and feeling empowered to enact change? This book shows what this can look like in an elementary class setting. It details the structures and instructional strategies teachers can adopt to help students create positive outcomes for their communities while building identities for themselves as real agents of change. Topics include helping students become aware of issues within their communities, creating brave environments, engaging students in research, and supporting students into action. With this book, you can debunk the false deficit-based assumptions that young people aren't ready for activism.

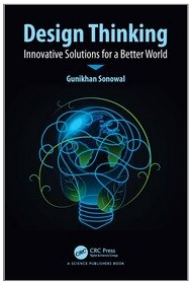
Design Thinking

Innovative Solutions for a Better World



Gunikhan Sonowal Assam down town University, India

Design thinking is a user-centered approach that encourages creativity and collaboration to tackle challenging challenges. Its ideas prioritize empathy, rethinking issues, and iterative prototyping in order to generate innovative, practical, and user-centered solutions. Design thinking is used in a variety of areas, including product and service design, healthcare, and education, to involve stakeholders and focus on human needs. This process assures that solutions are desirable, practicable, and viable by employing empathy mapping, journey mapping, and usability testing, resulting in long-term, effective consequences.

Dyscalculia

From Science to Education

Brian Butterworth University College London, UK

In this new edition of his best-selling text, Brian Butterworth explains the very latest research in the science of dyscalculia in a clear, non-technical way. He shows that dyscalculia is caused by a core deficit in the ability to accurately and swiftly represent the number of objects in a set, an ability that underpins learning arithmetic, and clearly differentiates dyscalculia from other forms of early mathematical learning difficulties. A landmark publication for the dyscalculia community, this second edition will become an essential resource for teachers, professionals, parents and sufferers, as well as for university courses that include specific learning disabilities.

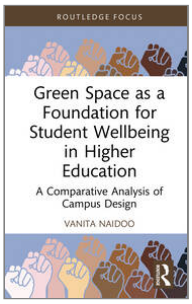
Green Space as a Foundation for Student Wellbeing in Higher Education

A Comparative Analysis of Campus Design



Vanita Naidoo

Series: Routledge Research in Higher Education

This book presents a unique comparative case study that details the narrative around campus design at the first institutions of public higher education in the United States. With a focus on Southern design at the turn of the 18th century, it explores the use and perception of campus green space and its influence on student wellbeing and belonging, using both structural and lived perspectives. A superb resource for scholars and postgraduates studying higher education, environmental psychology, and urban planning, it chronicles the evolution of campus design at public institutions of higher education from a unique historical perspective.

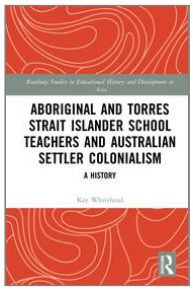
Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander School Teachers and Australian Settler Colonialism

A History



Kay Whitehead

Series: Routledge Studies in Educational History and Development in Asia

This book addresses the gap in our historical knowledge about the roles Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander teachers have played in Australia's history of school education. To date, there are few references to schooling in histories of Indigenous Australians with teacher education omitting Indigenous teachers until systemic initiatives were introduced to recruit and qualify them in the 1970s. This book reinstates and honours Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people who worked as school teachers from invasion to contemporary state school systems. Recommended for upper-level undergraduates and academics in Indigenous education, history of education and teacher education.

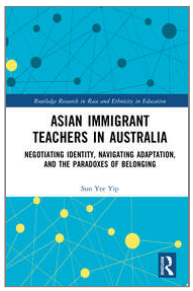
Asian Immigrant Teachers in Australia

Negotiating Identity, Navigating Adaptation, and the Paradoxes of Belonging



Sun Yee Yip

Series: Routledge Research in Race and Ethnicity in Education

Prevailing expectations regarding the specific desired backgrounds, habitus, and pedagogical ideas of how a teacher should be, act, and understand their work have made the professional transition significantly more challenging for immigrant teachers who do not fit into this frame. This book offers a timely review of how we can harness the capabilities of the immigrant teacher workforce to meet diverse needs, improve school participation and well-being, and ensure equitable and inclusive education for all students. Readers are encouraged to disrupt existing narratives, interrogate current deficit views about immigrant teachers, and reconceptualise the immigrant professional transition.

Novice Non-native English Language Teachers Navigating Agency

International Perspectives

Edited by Mostafa Nazari The Hong Kong Polytechnic University, Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Research in Teacher Education

This novel, edited volume looks at a previously under-researched area of language teacher agency and identity by exploring the experience of novice pre- and in-service teachers for whom English is a second language, and presents research gathered from Asia, Europe, South America, and the US to bring underrepresented voices to the fore. The book presents qualitative data on the lived experiences of novice teachers and the challenges they face to their sense of agency, from personal histories and backgrounds, institutional demands, and sociocultural pressures.

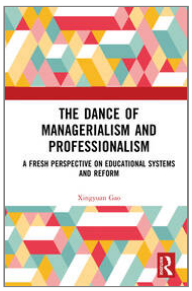
The Dance of Managerialism and Professionalism

A Fresh Perspective on Educational Systems and Reform



Xingyuan Gao

Educational reform has long been shaped by a cyclical pattern of tightening and loosening control—an oscillation between the managerial impulse to standardize and the professional need for autonomy. The book explores how this dynamic unfolds across different educational contexts, with a particular focus on the United States and China. By tracing the evolution of reform efforts, examining the tension between managerialism and professionalism, and rethinking the way data is used in decision-making, this book offers a new perspective on how educational systems can evolve to better serve students, teachers, and communities.

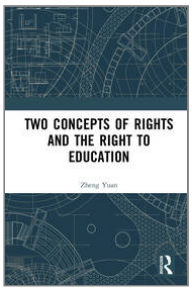
Two Concepts of Rights and the Right to Education



Yuan Zheng

Most rights theories hold that the same act of a person or group cannot be driven by both a right and a duty. This book introduces the theory of initial rights and derived rights, demonstrating that an act is often the result of both. The key idea is that individuals and collectives have the right to fulfill their duty. However, general rights, those people are born with, do not originate from any duty, meaning their choices are not dictated by duties. As a result, access to education is a right, not a duty. The book will be of interest to researchers and students of rights theories and philosophy of education.

Reading and Writing for Pleasure

An Evidence-Informed Framework for Practice

Teresa Cremin Open University, UK, Helen Hendry , Liz Chamberlain The Open University, UK, Samantha Jayne Hulston

In the face of a sustained decline in children's enjoyment in both reading and writing, this highly significant book presents findings from a three-year study of research and practice that nurtures young people's engagement as readers and writers. It introduces a new and powerful Reading and Writing Framework for Practice for schools and charitable literacy programmes, and offers practical strategies and recommendations for practitioners, researchers and policy makers who wish to advance this agenda in their own contexts. This field defining text is a key resource for all those committed to halting the decline in young people's engagement as volitional readers and writers.

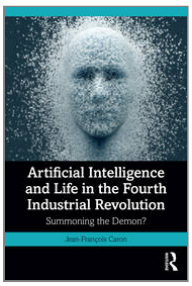
Artificial Intelligence and Life in the Fourth Industrial Revolution

Summoning the Demon?



Jean-François Caron Nazarbayev University, Kazakhstan

This book considers the core theoretical concepts central to understanding Artificial Intelligence (AI) and the Fourth Industrial Revolution, providing a clear view of what machines can achieve and what sets them apart from humans. Adopting a balance between an overly critical view fueled by fear, and an uncritical openness based upon the potential benefits, the author argues human uniqueness isn't inherently threatened by these new technologies, but this does not mean we should use them without restrictions or care.

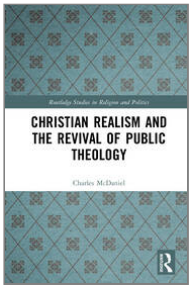
Christian Realism and the Revival of Public Theology



Charles McDaniel Baylor University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Politics

Christian Realism and the Revival of Public Theology analyses Niebuhr's The Children of Light and the Children of Darkness eighty years after publication and argues that it provides pertinent lessons for the contemporary era. The book considers how Niebuhr's book — as well as his other work — remains relevant and retains insights for an America which seems increasingly to be losing its moral courage and political bearings. This book will appeal to scholars of American politics, Christian ethics, Christian Realism, public theology, and American religious history as well as historians of American Christianity.

Communalism as a Democratic Repertoire

From the Paris Commune to the Present

Edited by Gaard Kets , Mathijs van de Sande

Series: Routledge Advances in Democratic Theory

In Communalism as a Democratic Repertoire Gaard Kets and Mathijs van de Sande bring together historians, sociologists, political scientists, theorists, and philosophers to reconstruct how the Paris Commune of 1871 has continued to serve as a source of inspiration to different movements and tendencies throughout the past 150 years, and how communalist thought, and practices help us reimagine what radical democracy may look like today. Bridging a gap between historical and theoretical accounts of 'the Commune', this book will be enlightening for students of democracy and a valuable resource to scholars and activists interested in the problems and possibilities facing democracy today.

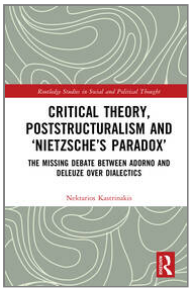
Critical Theory, Poststructuralism and 'Nietzsche's Paradox'

The Missing Debate Between Adorno and Deleuze Over Dialectics



Nektarios Kastrinakis

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

Critical Theory, Poststructuralism and 'Nietzsche's Paradox' addresses a fundamental question in the exchange between Critical Theory and Poststructuralism. When Deleuze's book Nietzsche and Philosophy was first published back in 1962, it caused a sensation in France, and its Nietzschean critique of Hegelian dialectics played a pivotal role in the emergence of the current of thought we call poststructuralism. However, to what extent is this critique valid and justified? This question has never been adequately investigated. With this book, Nektarios Kastrinakis attempts such an investigation through the exploration of the influence of Nietzsche in both Deleuze and Adorno.

Series: Worlding Beyond the West

This book examines contemporary global challenges from a decentring perspective, advancing an interdisciplinary conversation. The book explains why traditional hegemonic approaches to global challenges are problematic, and conceptualises what a decentring approach to global challenges entails: a deconstruction of traditional and sedimented epistemic underpinnings, but also an appreciation of the mutually constructed nature of the international. This book will appeal to students and scholars of International Relations and International Studies who are interested in decentring, as well as those working for CSOs, NGOs and think tanks.

Democracy and its Fragility

Mapping the Unstable Equilibrium

Edited by Monika Sawicka , Artur Gruszczak , Aleksandra Zdeb

Series: Routledge Research in Comparative Politics

This book explores democratic fragility, an underdeveloped concept in the analyses of contemporary political regimes. Diagnoses of fragility commonly occur when states are brought to the brink of the abyss. Employing a novel conceptual lens that seeks to scrutinize the stability of contemporary democratic regimes across the world, the book offers a twofold contribution that provides new leverage for analysis. Addressing issues that are both conceptually advanced and highly accessible, Democracy and its Fragility: Mapping the Unstable Equilibrium will attract academics and students of democracy studies, politics and government, and comparative politics.

Edited by Anja Giudici , Oliver Gruber , Philipp Schnell

This edited volume explores the highly topical, yet academically neglected, relationship between far-right parties and education policy in Europe. Although far-right parties have been the subject of much research in recent years, their approach to education has often been overlooked. In seven case studies from Austria, Denmark, France, Italy, Hungary, Poland, and Slovakia, the authors of this volume illustrate how far-right parties frame education primarily as a means of promoting conservative and nativist values rather than as a tool for economic redistribution. The chapters were originally published as a special issue of Journal of Contemporary European Studies.

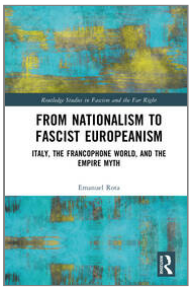
From Nationalism to Fascist Europeanism

Italy, the Francophone World, and the Empire Myth



Emanuel Rota University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

This book traces the intellectual history of fascist Europeanism, examining how Italian and Francophone fascist thinkers envisioned European unity as a means of consolidating power, overcoming nationalist divisions, and resisting external threats rather than promoting peace or democracy. This book is intended for scholars, researchers, and students of modern European history, fascism, and political ideologies. It will also be of interest to those studying contemporary far-right movements and the historical roots of European integration.

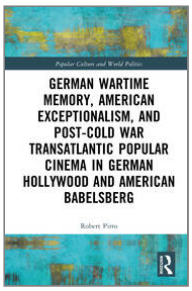
German Wartime Memory, American Exceptionalism, and Post-Cold War Blockbuster Cinema



Robert C. Pirro

Series: Popular Culture and World Politics

This book excavates the diverse and mostly unnoticed political meanings made available to American and German audiences by the blockbuster films helmed by transplanted West German directors Roland Emmerich and Wolfgang Petersen. Through formal film analysis, broad consideration of American and German film criticism, and reflection on relevant political developments of the post-Cold War era, the book reveals how traces of Germany's experience of dictatorship and wartime destruction find inadvertent cinematic expression in ways that helped American and German moviegoers find orientation in the changed political and cultural landscape of a newly globalized world.

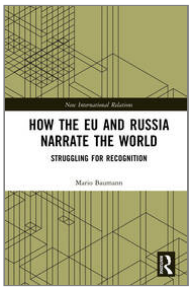
How the EU and Russia Narrate the World

Struggling for Recognition



Mario Baumann

Series: New International Relations

Tbook approaches the relationship between Russia and the EU as an intersubjective one, a social context where diverging interpretations of the world struggle for hegemony. Its theoretical framework marries poststructuralist thought with insights from critical approaches to Hegelian recognition dialectics. Based on an extensive and systematic empirical discourse analysis of Russian and EU foreign policy texts, this study draws a detailed picture of the intensifying discursive dynamics accompanying the deteriorating relationship between Brussels and Moscow. It shows how neither the EU's nor Russia's foreign policy articulation has changed substantially.

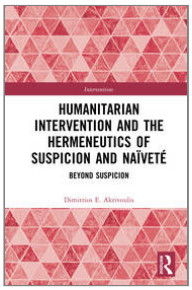
Humanitarian Intervention and the Hermeneutics of Suspicion and Naïveté

Beyond Suspicion



Dimitrios E. Akrivoulis

Series: Interventions

This book uses Paul Ricoeur's hermeneutic phenomenology of suspicion and naïveté to shift the focus of the ideology of humanitarian intervention from the distorting (Marxism, realism) and legitimising (social constructivism) to the integrating function of this ideology. In this context, the book examines the ideological functions of the social imaginary pursuant to NATO's 1999 intervention in Kosovo, a turning point in the development of humanitarian intervention. It will be of great interest to those researching in the fields of International Relations, Political Theory and humanitarian intervention.

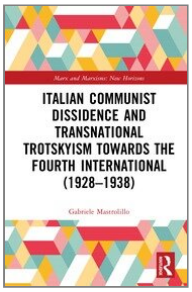
Italian Communist Dissidence and Transnational Trotskyism towards the Fourth International (1928–1938)



Gabriele Mastrolillo

Series: Marx and Marxisms: New Horizons

Italian Communist Dissidence and Transnational Trotskyism towards the Fourth International (1928-1938) draws from wide-ranging sources to tell the fascinating unexplored story of the relations between the Italian communist dissidence (Trotskyist and Bordigists), Trotsky, and the International Secretariat. It focuses on the role played by the two most notable executives of Italian dissident communism, Alfonso Leonetti and Pietro Tresso, who performed key roles inside the IS; consequently, the study of their activity gives us the possibility of following the development of Transnational Trotskyism in the 1930s until the establishment of the Fourth International.

Non-Western Middle Powers in the Multipolar Order

Edited by Hanna Samir Kassab East Carolina University, USA, Natalie Ann Ghosn

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

Non-Western Middle Powers in the Multipolar Order explores the changing international order, articulating the critical and growing importance of non-western states to the emerging global order. It brings together international scholars to provide new insights on the evolution of international order, as global politics moves from an American-western dominated one to one where major players are from the Global South. They present evidence from Brazil, Turkey, Saudi Arabia and the UAE, and India help explain, analyze and understand the main political, security and economic challenges in these countries.

Political Power and Crisis

Essays on Political Power Dynamics in Turbulent Times

Edited by Giulio M. Gallarotti Wesleyan University, USA

This book examines how power dynamics unfold during crises, focusing on how transformations in competing socio-political arenas, both domestic and international, shape power structures. The chapters in this book address key questions: What power dynamics reveal themselves when people are faced with especially threatening situations? How is control allocated in times of threat? How does the democratic process evolve during crises? What power structures emerge after a crisis? What power dynamics establish themselves after the crises are abated? Do crises lead to better or worse political systems? What dimensions of power are most influential in driving political change during crises?

Politics by Any Other Name

Bureaucratic Struggle, Lawfare and Violence in American Politics

Benjamin Ginsberg

This book critiques a modern American political system characterized by the partisan weaponization of bureaucratic systems and institutions. Competing political forces have built institutional bastions within portions of the federal bureaucracy. Each party makes use of judicial and criminal proceedings for partisan purposes–a practice dubbed "lawfare" by the national media. And, acting through various surrogates, each party sponsors "violence by proxy," to achieve its ends. This book will be used in undergraduate and graduate classes in political parties, electoral politics and in general American government classes.

Post-Colonial Realism

Cultural Conflicts, Cuisine, and the Changing International System

Hanna Samir Kassab East Carolina University, USA

Post-Colonial Realism develops a theoretical framework to explain, understand, and predict international conflict, placing culture at the center of international political analysis. By combining theories of nationalism with postcolonialist understandings of cultural revitalization, Kassab conceptualizes state motivation to understand how cultural symbols shape nationalist identities, to see the fault lines of civilization through food, and to appreciate the centrality of identity issues. Post-Colonial Realism offers a more robust and flexible theory of international relations, concentrating not on abstractions but on individuals and their collective beliefs.

Socioecological Transformations

Linking Ontologies with Structures, Personal with Collective Change

Edited by Sabaheta Ramcilovic-Suominen Natural Resources Institute Finland

Series: Rethinking Globalizations

Socioecological Transformations aims to reclaim socioecological transformations as radical, justice-centred concept and praxis, which tackle the deeper roots of the current socioecological violence and oppression, that touches deep down to the materialist-dualist worldview that has helped the establishment and maintenance of the colonial-racist-capitalist structures of oppression. Second, it aims to expand the meaning of radical transformations to include, in addition to resistance of current structures, the strategies and responses that challenge and seek to reinvent the dualist-materialist worldview onto which those structures rest.

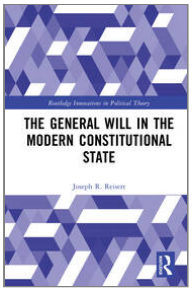
The General Will in the Modern Constitutional State



Joseph R. Reisert

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

In The General Will in the Modern Constitutional State, Joseph R. Reisert challenges standard interpretations of Rousseau, according to which his political theory either has nothing to offer the present but a radical critique or commends an illiberal, plebiscitary democracy. Reisert argues that the principles of political right Rousseau sets forth in The Social Contract are correct and that the political institutions of modern constitutional and democratic states substantially satisfy them. This book will be of interest to those who study Rousseau's political thought, history of political thought, constitutionalism, and constitutional theory.

The International System in the Post-Pandemic World

Perspectives for Europe and Asia

Edited by Marcin Grabowski , Luca Verzichelli

Series: Encounters with Complexity

This book analyses the multidimensional influence of COVID-19 on world politics, with a special focus on Euro-Asian relations, as well as changes in Europe caused by the pandemic. Expert international and interdisciplinary contributors analyse the measures undertaken to counter COVID, its use to justify increased governmental surveillance, the role of religion and regional institutions and the great power transformations, and the economic crisis that resulted from it. The driving question driving each chapter is to what extent COVID-19, and the reaction to it, transformed the world.

Understanding International Relations

Perspectives from the Global South

Edited by Nirmal Jindal Satyawati college, University of Delhi, Kamal Kumar University of Allahabad, India

This volume critically analyses the theories and concepts of international relations (IR), which will be instrumental in understanding IR from a non-western perspective. Owing to its emphasis on the need to decolonise the discipline of IR, alternate perspectives from the global South have been explored and discussed in detail. This book will be useful to the Departments of Political Science, Global Studies, International Studies, and South Asian studies. It will be an indispensable resource for researchers, social scientists and general readers interested to understand the theories and key concepts of IR, especially from an Indian perspective.

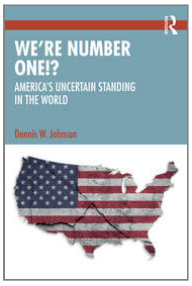
We're Number One!?

America's Uncertain Standing in the World



Dennis W. Johnson

We're Number One!?: America's Uncertain Standing in the World compares the respective status of the United States to other countries across a wide variety social, political, and economic metrics. This book demonstrates conclusively that despite America's wealth, its strong economy, its military might, and its soft power dominance, we have far to go in comparison with other democratic, industrialized nations. This book presents the facts and leaves to policymakers the challenge: how do we fix our broken health care system, how do we mitigate climate disasters, or how do we rein in gun violence.

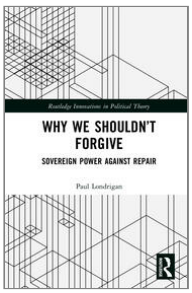
Why We Shouldn't Forgive

Sovereign Power Against Repair



Paul Londrigan

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

Why We Shouldn't Forgive invites you to understand how the practice of political forgiveness and sovereignty have changed, evolved, and developed over time. By engaging with the subject of political forgiveness in relation to sovereignty, Londrigan offers original insights into forgiveness as part of an analysis of prerogative power. As a result, what forgiveness does, and how it has been understood in the history of political thought becomes intelligible. Why We Shouldn't Forgive fills an important gap in advancing this fascinating field of research.

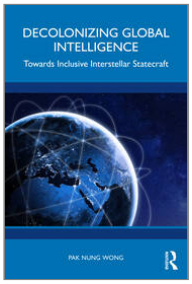
Emerging Intelligence Trends and the Practice of Inclusive Statecraft



Pak Nung Wong

From 9/11 to the calamitous withdrawal of US troops from Afghanistan, Western intelligence has failed to negotiate the largest military and humanitarian crises across the world. This book proposes to decolonize global intelligence from the peripheries of the Global South and put forward a new intelligence practice of 'inclusive interstellar statecraft'. This book will not just add new knowledge to the larger field of security and intelligence studies, but will also pioneer the relatively underdeveloped fields of comparative intelligence cultures, and interstellar intelligence/cultural studies. It will be indispensable for policymakers, bureaucrats and government officials.

State, Security and Cyberwar

The Quest for Digital Peace

Thangjam K. Singh , Sanjay K. Jha

This book examines the states and security apparatuses in the contemporary global order, and the prospect of peace with the emergence of cyberwarfare. Analysing why states consider cyberspace as a matter of security concern, it looks towards a possible foundation of 'cyberpeace' in the international system. It examines the idea of cyber-territory, population, governance, and sovereignty, along with that of nation states and great, middle, and small powers. The book offers valuable insights for students, researchers, practitioners, stakeholders working in and on military and strategic affairs, peace and conflict studies, and global politics.

75 Years After Partition

India, Pakistan and Bangladesh

Edited by Amit Ranjan National University of Singapore, Singapore, Farooq Sulehria Beaconhouse National University, Lahore, Pakistan

This book explores how the 1947 Partition of British India not only divided people and territories but also deepened cultural rifts in postcolonial India, Pakistan and Bangladesh, especially between Hindus and Muslims. The chapters in this volume analyses how language, cinema, and textbooks contributed to the divide instead of bridging gaps, and why unresolved questions from the Partition continue to affect the region. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of India Review.

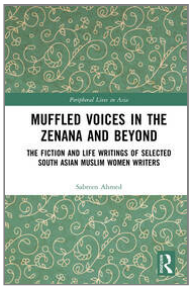
Muffled Voices in the Zenana and Beyond

The Fiction and Life Writings of Selected South Asian Muslim Women Writers



Sabreen Ahmed Nagaon University, India

Series: Peripheral Lives in Asia

This book explores subaltern subjecthood, resistance and sexual agency in the works of Muslim women writers from India, Pakistan, and Bangladesh since the early twentieth century. Locating the Muslim woman in the fiction of these countries from a sub-continental locus, it incorporates concepts of race, diaspora, postcolonial feminism in its reading of selected texts along with precepts of Islamic feminist hermeneutics in the South Asian context. The volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of literature, gender studies, cultural studies and South Asian studies.

Routledge Handbook of China's Belt and Road Initiative in Eurasia

Edited by Mher D. Sahakyan China-Eurasia Council for Political and Strategic Research, Armenia, Kevin Lo Hong Kong Baptist University

This handbook examines the impact of China's Belt and Road (BRI) geostrategy in Eurasia. Over the last decade the BRI helped bring China economic and political superpower status, but the Russo-Ukrainian war brought seismic geopolitical and geoeconomic impacts and a new struggle between great powers. Covering the impact of the BRI and the positions of other great, middle, and small powers, the ten parts explain the geopolitical and geoeconomic dynamics along the Silk Road Economic Belt's six major economic corridors, implementing case studies on Europe, South Caucasus, Central Asia, Russian Far East, Middle East, South Asia, Southeast Asia, and East Asia.

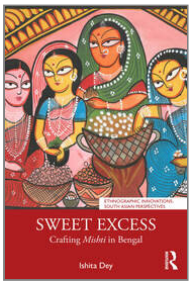
Sweet Excess

Crafting Mishti in Bengal



Ishita Dey

Series: Ethnographic Innovations, South Asian Perspectives

This book is an ethnographic work on excess. Based on a decade-long field work of a single food substance — sweets — it shows how food items find meaning in everyday lives of people through its socio-cultural meanings - ritual, pride of craftsmanship, heritage and cultural identity. It also shows how sweets continue to be a ubiquitous part of 'Bengali' diet in a geography that has been witness to acute hunger, starvation, food movements and social welfare programmes to ensure food security. The volume will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of ethnography, sociology, history, and South Asian studies. And if you, dear reader, love mishti, you will love this, too!

Transoceanic and Transmedial Imaginaries in the Indian Ocean

Edited by Ute Fendler University of Bayreuth, Germany, Clarissa Vierke University of Bayreuth, Germany

Series: Routledge Series on the Indian Ocean and Trans-Asia

Transoceanic and Transmedial Imaginaries in the Indian Ocean explores multiple aesthetic relations constantly in flux, which construct, deconstruct and reconstruct the Indian Ocean. It addresses the questions of how the arts–music, literature, visual art, performance – relate to and dynamically create imaginaries of the Indian Ocean as a transcontinental space. This book is a novel contribution to the study of the Indian Ocean and will be of interest to an interdisciplinary readership, including literature, cultural studies, visual arts, performance, anthropology, history, but also social geography, linguistics and music studies.

Urban Responses to the Covid-19 Pandemic

Perspectives of the Visegrad Group Countries

Edited by Kamil Glinka , Ladislav Cabada , Daniel Klimovský , Edit Soós

This book provides a broad analysis of the important and ongoing issue of municipal self-governments' response to the Covid-19 pandemic in the Visegrad Group countries with the special emphasis on the post-pandemic recovery. Focusing on municipal self-governments of the V4 countries - Poland, Czechia, Hungary and Slovakia - fills a pressing publishing gap. The monograph provides answers to the question whether the response of municipal self-governments in the Visegrad Group countries fits into a specific model and what are the features of this response.

The Gospels in Islamic Context

Function and Content

Edited by Georgina L. Jardim , Ida Glaser The Centre for Muslim-Christian Studies, Oxford UK, Shirin Shafaie

Series: Routledge Reading the Bible in Islamic Context Series

Bringing together scholars from across the world, this publication shows Christians and Muslims – individually or together – reading the canonical Gospels of the New Testament in 'conversation' with Islamic texts and contexts. The Gospels in Islamic Context will be of interest to scholars, students, and practitioners, encouraging them to explore new methods for taking into account intertextual factors as well as the history of Muslim-Christian relations that arises from them. It is a venture in which Muslims and Christians travel side by side and in conversation with each other, although with significantly different perspectives and often different agendas.

African Englishes

Contemporary Trends and Sociolinguistic Shifts

Edited by Collen Sabao , Esther Mavengano

Series: Routledge African Media, Culture and Communication Studies

This book investigates the functions and linguistics of African Englishes, and what this means for languages indigenous to Africa.The colonial imposition of the English language on African communities is evidence of a broader project of cultural imperialism, beyond political and economic domination. In this regard, the book investigates how this led to a cross pollination of languages and a range of different linguistic variations, from second language varieties, through to pidgins and creoles.This book's call for urgent reconsideration and retheorisation of African Englishes will be an important read for scholars across linguistics, African Studies, and world Englishes.

Civil Society in Zimbabwe

Insights from Matabeleland

Edited by Mandlenkosi Mpofu , Dion Nkomo , Kirk Helliker

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

This book considers the historical and spatial dimensions of civil society in Zimbabwe's Matabeleland region, an area suffering from severe development and democratic deficits over many decades. Transcending an organisational conception of civil society and a simplistic state-civil society dualist understanding, it recognises the dynamic character of civil society as a social space, inclusive of less formalised associational forms of collective life, as well as the colonial character and legacies of civil society both analytically and empirically. The book will be of interest and value to scholars of civil society, politics and democratisation across the African continent.

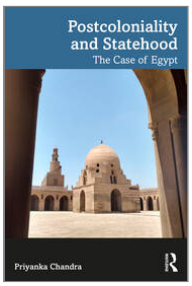
Postcoloniality and Statehood

The Case of Egypt



Priyanka Chandra

This book traces the evolution of the postcolonial state and the social contract in Egypt. It problematises two of the most ubiquitous and contentious terms: democratisation and development, within the context of Egypt and the larger Global South. It also subverts western-centric ideas of global politics to examine why certain aspects of Egypt's history and policies have received more attention than others. This book will be of interest to a wide array of scholars and researchers from politics and international relations, sociology and social anthropology, social theory, postcolonialism and Global South studies.

The State and Development in South Africa

Impasse, Prospects, and Challenges

Edited by Isaac Khambule

Series: Routledge Contemporary South Africa

This book interrogates the nexus between the state and development in post-apartheid South Africa. It highlights current problems, and suggests ways of consolidating state capabilities, improving public institutions and enhancing governance and development outcomes. Framed around developmental state theory, the book argues that the role of the state in South Africa will be fundamental for addressing the triple challenges of unemployment, poverty, and inequality. Bringing together leading voices in the field, the book will be an essential read for researchers of African politics, political economy and development, as well as policymakers, students and practitioners in social sciences.

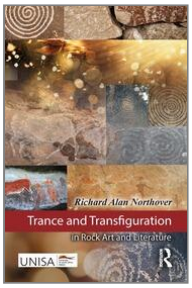
Trance and Transfiguration in Rock Art and Literature



Richard Alan Northover

Series: Routledge/UNISA Press Series

The book is a largely unprecedented inter-disciplinary collaboration between archaeology, anthropology, and literary studies, although it touches on philosophy and religious studies, too. It explores the creative ways that altered states of consciousness play in culture and the arts, whether these states are induced though rituals like the trance dance or meditation, or through the consumption of mindenhancing substances. Artificial Intelligence and Taxation Law

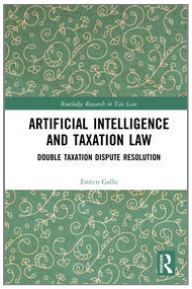
Double Taxation Dispute Resolution



Enrico Gallo

Series: Routledge Research in Tax Law

This book identifies how artificial intelligence (AI) systems can be used as part of decision processes within international tax and transfer pricing disputes. It identifies the current legal frameworks available to prevent and solve tax and more specific transfer pricing disputes and details their advantages and disadvantages. Providing an analysis of what AI can offer to different legal principles, it shows how this can challenge existing rules, and the changes this requires within the legal framework. The book will be of interest to researchers in the field of tax law, data protection law, consumer protection law, intellectual property law and artificial intelligence.

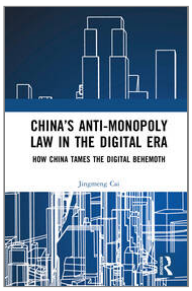
China's Anti-monopoly Law in the Digital Era

How China Tames the Digital Behemoth



Jingmeng Cai

The book aims to depict the whole picture of China's Anti-monopoly law (AML) in the digital sector and reveals the three key factors shaping the AML enforcement: the policy factor, the legal factor, and the academic factor. The author focuses on three typical monopolistic behaviours—abuse of dominant market position, merger control, and monopoly agreements. The book will appeal to competition law (antitrust) and Chinese law academics, practitioners, and officials, as well as general readers interested in the subject.

Climate Change before International Courts

A Comparative Study

Edited by Carla Gomes , Heloísa Oliveira , Armando Rocha , Matteo Fermeglia

Series: Routledge Research in International Environmental Law

This book provides a comprehensive analysis of environmental law and climate change litigation within international courts, both substantively and procedurally. Climate change litigation is an area of continuous growth and complexity, particularly within international courts and bodies. This book uses a comparative approach, analysing case law from international sources. It focuses on three key areas, namely trends and features, legal grounds for litigation, and legal standing before courts.

Consumer Collective Redress in EU Law

Lessons from the Polish Legal System

Jagna Mucha

Series: Routledge Research in EU Law

This book critically examines the framework of consumer collective redress within EU law, with a particular focus on Poland, where such measures have operated since 2009. Through examining Poland's 15 years of experience, this serves as a comprehensive case study, offering valuable insights and lessons. In exploring whether collective redress mechanisms can ensure effective enforcement of consumer rights while also guaranteeing a high level of legal protection, it investigates the mechanism of representative actions as a potential tool. This book will be of interest to researchers focused on EU consumer law, collective redress, class actions, and law enforcement more broadly.

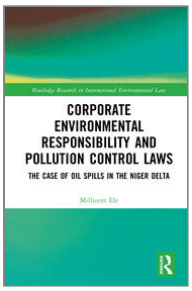
Corporate Environmental Responsibility and Pollution Control Laws

The Case of Oil Spills in the Niger Delta



Millicent Ele

Series: Routledge Research in International Environmental Law

This book critically examines the corporate environmental responsibility of major oil companies operating in Nigeria's Niger Delta, focusing on oil spills and comparing regulatory frameworks in Nigeria, the US, the UK, and the EU. It provides a theoretical foundation for holding these companies to the same environmental standards in Nigeria as they adhere to in more advanced jurisdictions. Analysing Shell's oil spill environmental performance data, the book assesses how its operations in Nigeria compare with global performance figures. This book will be of interest to researchers in the field of environmental law, pollution and land law.

Dishonesty, Liability and the Law

Exploring the Moral Importance of Context

Edited by Sotirios Santatzoglou Keele University, UK, Martin Wasik , Anthony Wrigley Keele University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Law, Rights and Justice

This inter-disciplinary collection challenges the idea of the single objective test by considering the issue of context in defining dishonesty. The volume is divided into three parts. The first focuses on the analysis of the concept of dishonesty. The second focuses on contexts of public and private dealings. Finally, the third part, looks at the context of healthcare practice. The book will be of interest to academics, researchers, policy-makers and regulators working in law, ethics or in areas of professional regulation and misconduct, especially medicine, nursing, student academic misconduct, and politics.

Human Trafficking and Disabilities

Edited by Daniela Peterka-Benton , Elizabeth Bowman

This book explores the intersection of disabilities and human trafficking, focusing on cognitive, developmental, sensory, and physical disabilities before, during, and after the trafficking experience. The relationship between trafficking experiences and disabilities is complex. Individuals with pre-existing disabilities may be more vulnerable to trafficking due to inadequate social safety nets. At the same time, survivors may develop disabilities as a consequence of their trafficking experiences. The research featured illustrates a relationship between access to social connections and therapeutic services and the increased risk of exploitation for individuals with disabilities.

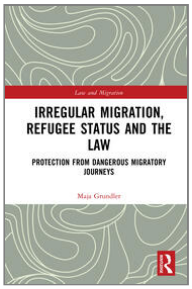
Irregular Migration, Refugee Status and the Law

Protection from Dangerous Migratory Journeys



Maja Grundler

Series: Law and Migration

Through an investigation of the protection needs of 'irregularised migrants', this book offers a novel approach to the phenomenon of irregular migration by reframing it as a matter of refugee law.Thousands of people have died, disappeared, and suffered mental and physical harm on their dangerous migratory journeys to Europe. This book addresses an issue which, so far, has been largely omitted from the study of refugee law: the fact that harm experienced during irregular migration is often as serious as harm feared by recognised refugees in their countries of origin.

Law in a Technological Context

Disruptions and Transitions

Edited by Roger Brownsword

This edited collection explores the disruptive effects of technology on law, in the challenge presented to regulators as they strive to manage the transition from one technological state to another (such as the transition from analogue to digital, or from fossil fuels to green renewables), and in the opportunities (and challenges) presented as regulators transition from traditional rule-based legal governance to governance that relies on new technologies and tools.

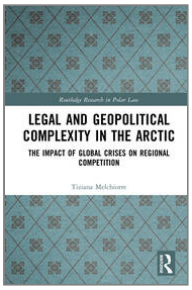
Legal and Geopolitical Complexity in the Arctic

The Impact of Global Crises on Regional Competition



Tiziana Melchiorre

Series: Routledge Research in Polar Law

This book examines the evolving geopolitical landscape of the Arctic, focusing on the impact of climate change and the war in Ukraine on regional and international relations from a legal and geopolitical perspective. It highlights the interconnection between regional and global dynamics and argues that climate change and geopolitical conflict are transforming the Arctic from the "last frontier" into the "first frontier"; a strategic arena where states, both within and beyond the region, seek to assert their geopolitical and economic interests. The book will be of interest to researchers within international relations, public international law, environmental law and Arctic law.

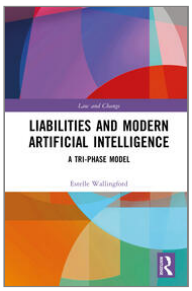
Liabilities and Modern Artificial Intelligence

A Tri-Phase Model



Estelle Wallingford Monash University

Series: Law and Change

This book addresses how private law liability should be assigned in contexts where modern forms of AI are deployed. AI as a technology holds the potential to radically improve global society, yet the pace of its advancement far outstrips the pace at which legal systems are responding. This book explores legal approaches to AI, how AI should be legally characterised, and proposes an overarching theoretical liability framework termed the Tri-Phase AI Liability Model. This framework is flexible in nature and considers the type of AI, the context in which it is deployed, who has the most control over the AI system and the capacity of a deployed AI.

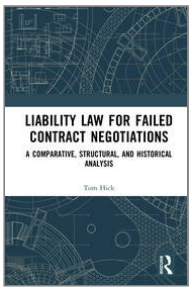
Liability Law for Failed Contract Negotiations

A Comparative, Structural, and Historical Analysis



Tom Hick

This book provides the European structure of liability for failed contract negotiations through a comparative lens, with wider lessons for an international context. It demonstrates that all the analysed legal systems, in Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, and the Netherlands, can be best understood through a binary structure in their approach to pre-contractual liability, or culpa in contrahendo. This book will be of interest to researchers in the field of comparative contract and tort law, European private law, and private law theory.

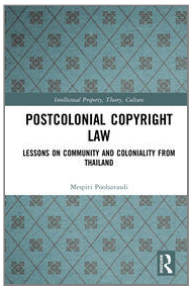
Postcolonial Copyright Law

Lessons on Community and Coloniality from Thailand



Mespiti Poolsavasdi

Series: Intellectual Property, Theory, Culture

This book appraises postcolonial perspectives to rethink the meaning of copyright, and makes suggestions for its future within the global landscape of intellectual property law. Drawing on the experience of Thailand as a case study, a country with a unique yet marginal position in discussions on colonialism, the volume offers valuable insights for the international field of copyright law. Taking an interdisciplinary approach informed by film studies, area studies, decolonial studies and legal sociology, the book makes a case to redefine copyright as a community resource. It will be of interest to researchers in the field of copyright law, postcolonial and decolonial studies.

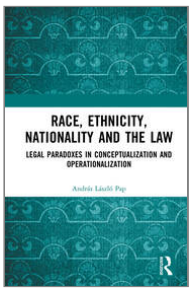
Race, Ethnicity, Nationality and the Law

Legal Paradoxes in Conceptualization and Operationalization



András L. Pap

This book provides a complex insight into how law, as a distinct tool and technology, conceptualizes and operationalizes race, ethnicity and nationality. The book shows that although identity politics has dominated the past decades, ethno-racial self-identification is not the only operationalizing model legal regimes apply, especially with the recent boost in artificial intelligence, and bio-genetic research. The methodology applied is comparative constitutional and international law, but the research will have wider interdisciplinary appeal offering a novel perspective for a broad audience in social sciences and humanities.

Understanding Accountability: New Perspectives on a Fractured World

Edited by Matthew Flinders University of Sheffield, UK, Gergana Dimova , Chris Monaghan

Series: Routledge Frontiers in Accountability Studies

This book brings clarity and understanding to the concept of accountability through the lens of conceptual political analysis. It is argued here that accountability has emerged to become a concept with adjectives and there is a real need to properly understand accountability in an increasingly fractured world. This broad-ranging collection increases the conceptual toolkit that social and political scientists and lawyers can use to interrogate change at a number of levels and in a range of sectors. The volume will be of interest to academics and researchers working in the areas of Legal and Political Theory, Legal and Political Philosophy and Accountability Studies.

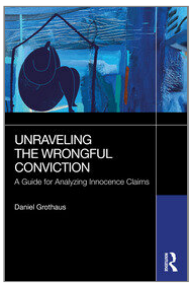
Unraveling the Wrongful Conviction

A Guide for Analyzing Innocence Claims



Daniel Grothaus

This book lays out the author's proven approach to investigating and assessing a defendant's claim of innocence whether pre-trial, or post-conviction. Claims of innocence may be common, but knowledge of an objective way to assess those claims is hardly universal. This book was written for the classroom and the field. It is essential reading for the student, the Innocence Project volunteer, practitioner or anyone interested in correcting a wrongful conviction, or avoiding the next false conviction.

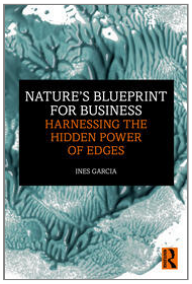
Nature's Blueprint for Business

Harnessing the Hidden Power of Edges



Ines Garcia

This book contends that natural abundance flourishes at the edges, where one environmental element contacts another, and that these relationships that have been successful for millennia have endless lessons for us about how we organize ourselves. Each chapter starts with a clear example of a problem that a team or organization might face, goes on to consider a range of natural examples and offer practical suggestions to incorporate nature's wisdom in the business world, and concludes with success stories of people and organizations already embracing the principles outlined in the book.

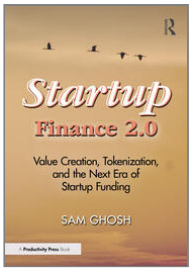
Startup Finance 2.0

Value Creation, Tokenization, and the Next Era of Startup Funding



Sam Ghosh

"Going Concern" refers to the assumption that a company will continue to operate indefinitely, with no intention or necessity of liquidation or cessation of operations in the foreseeable future. The problem is that the "Going Concern" assumption does not hold for startups due to the inherent uncertainty associated with startups. Traditional financial education and resources, usually meant for analysts and accountants, aren't ideal for entrepreneurs. They focus on analyzing past data from established businesses, not on making forward-looking decisions in the uncertain and highly dynamic environment of startups.

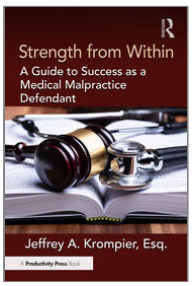
Strength from Within

A Guide to Success as a Medical Malpractice Defendant



Jeffrey Krompier

While politicians, practitioners, insurance companies and trial attorneys debate the nation's "malpractice crisis", suits continue to be filed. In addition, now that COVID-19 is behind us and the unprecedented public support for health care providers has waned, , it is anticipated that physicians and nurses will again become malpractice defendants to a remarkable degree. In fact, the post COVID-19 uptick in lawsuits against medical and nursing professionals will continue for the foreseeable future.

Women In, and Beyond, Business Schools

Edited by Eric Cornuel , Nicola Kleyn , Howard Thomas , Matthew Wood

Series: EFMD Management Education

This important book in the EFMD series shines a light on women (and sometimes the absence of them) within business schools, as well as their contributions and impact across multiple spheres within and beyond their schools. Despite the clear rationale for promoting sustainable gender equity, the experiences of women in business schools differs relative to male counterparts across geographies, student populations, faculty, professional staff and leaders in business schools. In this book, contributions from leading business school thinkers provide deep insight on gender equity to determine what hinders and accelerates progress in creating gender diverse and inclusive schools.

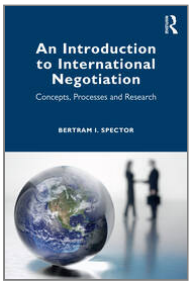
An Introduction to International Negotiation

Concepts, Processes and Research



Bertram I. Spector New York University, USA

The book analyzes the principal factors that interact to move the negotiation system forward – the issues and context, actors, structures, strategies, and outcomes. This book considers four basic subprocesses of international negotiation – getting to the table, conducting negotiations, developing implementation plans as part of the negotiation, and continuing negotiations in the post-agreement period. Relevant research is presented in each chapter to elaborate on these dynamics and offer case studies of negotiations addressing intrastate conflict, the environment, terrorism, anticorruption and good governance, and post-agreement issues.

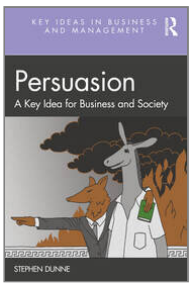
Persuasion

A Key Idea for Business and Society



Stephen Dunne

Series: Key Ideas in Business and Management

Persuasion. Philosophers have worried about it. Political and economic actors have weaponized it. Psychologists have measured it. Prose writers have required it. We're all subjected to it. And some have even mastered it. Of them, we are often very suspicious. Why is that? Persuasion: A Key Idea for Business and Society asks the disciplines of philosophy, politics, psychology, and prose analysis - the 4 Ps of persuasion – to answer this important question. The book is written for students and teachers of business and marketing but will also guide researchers across the social sciences and humanities.

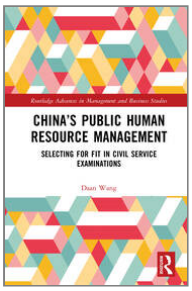
China's Public Human Resource Management

Selecting for Fit in Civil Service Examinations



Daan Wang City university of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Advances in Management and Business Studies

Spanning policy, practice, and perception, the book explores how China's civil service examinations function in practice and whether they effectively match candidates with job and organizational requirements. Drawing on interviews with policymakers, examiners, and test designers and large-scale survey of civil servants, the study introduces a new theoretical concept—person–government fit—to explain hiring practices in state bureaucracies. It traces the historical development of the system and evaluates the outcomes of civil service selection. It also offers a comparative perspective of the civil service examination in Hong Kong, providing practical lessons and policy improvements.

Flexible Lives

Spatial, Temporal, and Behavioural Boundaries in a Fluid World of Work and Home

Edited by Stefanie Reissner Newcastle University, UK, Michal Izak

The increasing use of flexible work arrangements has decoupled work from time and space, making the world of work and home increasingly fluid and challenging to manage. The Covid-19 pandemic, in particular, has been a catalyst for questioning accepted norms of where, when, and how work takes place. This book seeks to explore the impact which this reshaping of traditional modes of working has had on workplace interactions and relationships, as well as on managing the boundaries between familial and working lives. In this way, this collection contributes to a wider dialogue concerning the flexibility challenges encountered by white collar workers, which is needed now more than ever.

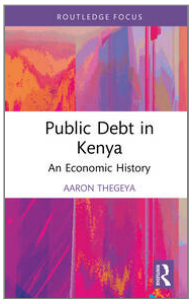
Public Debt in Kenya

An Economic History



Aaron Thegeya

Series: Routledge Studies in Development Economics

This book gives an historical economic account of public debt in Kenya, dating back to the late 1800s. It describes the key episodes and events that resulted in the accumulation of debt and gives an intuitive understanding of the economic dynamics of debt during the pre-colonial, colonial and post-colonial periods in Kenya's history. By describing the dynamics of public debt in Kenya, the book increases familiarity with a topic that has important implications for Kenya, and which has occupied a central stage in Kenya's policy debates in the recent past.

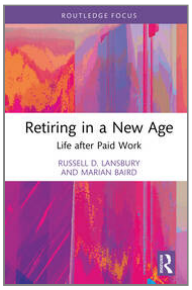
Retiring in a New Age

Life after Paid Work



Russell D. Lansbury , Marian Baird

Series: Routledge Focus on Business and Management

It analyses government data and surveys of over 1,000 retirees in Australia and 4,000 retirees in Sweden, and in-depth interviews with retirees in each country. It demonstrates that while both countries have differences in their retirement policies and practices, as well as the outcomes for retirees, the process of retirement is undergoing change in both countries as people retire at a range of ages, but often then re-enter the workforce for various reasons. The book proposes four distinctive post-retirement orientations: Stayers, Leavers, Blenders and Disengaged retirees. It is of interest to scholars of employment and work relations, human resource management and labour economics.

Sustainability Disclosure

Evidence from Mandatory Reporting Regulation in the European Union

Edited by Maria Aluchna , Grażyna Aniszewska-Banaś , Rafał Mrówka , Mikołaj Pindelski , Tomasz Serwański , Justyna Szumniak-Samolej Wroclaw University

Series: Routledge Studies in Central and Eastern European Business and Economics

Sustainability Disclosure examines the evolution of sustainability disclosure resulting from the implementation of mandatory reporting legislation within the European Union using the evidence from the Non-Financial Reporting Directive (NFRD) and Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD). Overall, the findings underscore the significance of mandatory reporting legislation in increasing the number of companies disclosing their social and environmental impact, as well as broadening the scope of reporting.

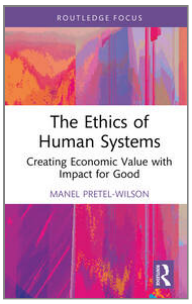
The Ethics of Human Systems

Creating Economic Value with Impact for Good



Manel Pretel-Wilson

Series: Systems Thinking

Addressing major social and ecological issues, this book establishes the field of ethics as a fundamental science that cannot be separated from economics and business. In particular, it redefines the nature of good investments which, besides being profitable, have to realize values as opposed to reinforcing the countervalues that are destroying our world. The book develops a universal morality hypothesis constituted by four sets of universal values-countervalues that correspond to the fundamental laws of ethics. It is an insightful read for academics and practitioners in the fields of systems thinking, business ethics, and impact investing in particular.

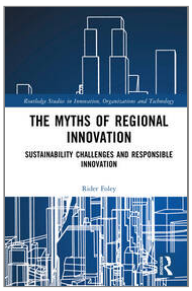
The Myths of Regional Innovation

Sustainability Challenges and Responsible Innovation



Rider W. Foley

Series: Routledge Studies in Innovation, Organizations and Technology

This book draws on evidence from 144 interviews with civic leaders in three urban regions—Atlanta, Phoenix, and the Twin Cities—to illuminate three commonly accepted but flawed myths about innovation that misdirect policymakers and civic leaders and perpetuate the idea that innovation is solely about economic growth. It offers a novel method to assess the processes and outcomes of innovation in a manner that can complement economic approaches. This volume will appeal to scholars across broad fields, including innovation studies, technology management, entrepreneurship, economic development, and public policy.

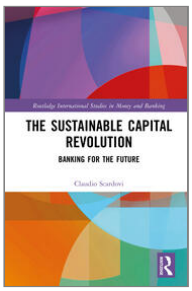
The Sustainable Capital Revolution

Banking for the Future



Claudio Scardovi Alix Partners LLP, UK

Series: Routledge International Studies in Money and Banking

This book argues that a "sustainable capital" approach would account for all scarce resources used in any investment decision and adjust its risk-based pricing. It would redefine the foundations of modern finance and economics, overcoming the limits, and negative implications, of well-known metrics, supporting the funding required for green conversion and reduced wealth polarization. It is aimed at those involved in finance, investment management and banking, with a specific focus on sustainable finance and green transformation. It will also be of relevance to readers interested in economic policies and on the broader topic of equality, social sustainability, and wealth creation.

Social Limits to Growth

Fred Hirsch University of Warwick, USA

Series: Routledge Classics

Social Limits Growth is one of the sleeper hits of economics. Its brilliant insights, informed by Hirsch's experience as a journalist, have become ever more relevant as liberal capitalism confronts challenges from austerity to the global race for scarce resources. A devastating account of the way of consumerism, conspicuous consumption and the expectation to be better off than the last generation undermine the delicate social capital that has previously bound individuals and communities together, this is a book whose message is more urgent now than on its first publication nearly 50 years ago. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new Foreword by Daniel Halliday.

Deindustrialization and Economic Restructuring in Post-Reform India

Edited by Indranil Chakrabarti , Steven High Concordia University, Canada

This volume explores the concept of deindustrialization in post-reform India. It combines macro studies of the Indian political economy with the micro analysis of economic restructuring, growth and precarity in a 'flat world' of digital technology, globalization, and valorization of labour at the lowest cost. The essays in this volume use a range of theoretical and practical social and economic approaches to study the complex relationships between deindustrialization and reindustrialization in multiple industrial sectors across time and space. Based on case studies on deindustrialization, this volume opens discussions on the deindustrialization in the Global South.

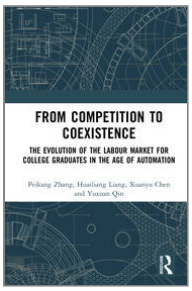
From Competition to Coexistence

The Evolution of the Labour Market for College Graduates in the Age of Automation



Peikang Zhang , Huailiang Liang , Xuanyu Chen , Yuxuan Qin

Grounded in the 'race between education and technology', this book uses multi-source data to examine the evolving labour market for college graduates, interpreting the shift in the relationship between humans and automation from competition to coexistence that is reshaping skill demand, education policy, and labour market in China and abroad. The authors argue that, rather than merely displacing human workers, automation can be integrated into the workforce in a way that fosters coexistence and even synergy between human capabilities and technological innovations. The book will appeal to scholars and students interested in economics of education and labor economics.

Islamic Economics, Growth and Development

Edited by Mustafa Metin Başbay

Series: Islamic Business and Finance Series

This book presents a distinctive ethical and philosophical framework, one that is grounded in Islamic principles and the established literature of Islamic economics and finance, to analyze and interpret the concept of economic development, as well as to propose policy solutions to real-world development problems and challenges. It contains theoretical and empirical studies, which connect the literature of Islamic economics with economic development. Serving as both an introduction and a comprehensive resource, the book will equip researchers and students with a basic understanding of how Islamic economics interacts with the issues of economic development.

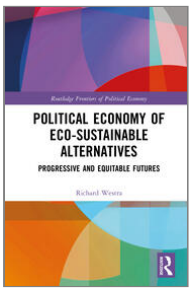
Political Economy of Eco-sustainable Alternatives

Progressive and Equitable Futures



Richard Westra Nagoya University, Japan

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Westra recounts how the unceremonious collapse of Soviet-style socialism coupled with mounting awareness of unfolding environmental destruction and irreversible climate change opened the door to a new, wide-ranging, social change literature. Westra firstly explains why the Green New Deal program to sustainably develop capitalism is unworkable to generalize the advanced economy "way of life" it seeks to maintain. This unique volume will be of interest to academic specialists and students of political economy, economics, environmental sustainability, sociology and political science, progressive policy makers and social activists.

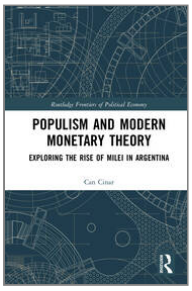
Populism and Modern Monetary Theory

Exploring the Rise of Milei in Argentina



Can Cinar Department of International Politics - City, University of London, UK

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

With a keen focus on the contemporary case of Javier Milei, this book explores the cyclical nature of Argentina's economic crises and the corresponding rise of populist leaders.The book demonstrates how Modern Monetary Theory (MMT) can theoretically justify expansive fiscal policies central to populist platforms, enriching debates about the economic viability of populist governance. Integrating economic theory, historical context, and political analysis, this work contributes to political economy, heterodox economics, and Latin American studies.

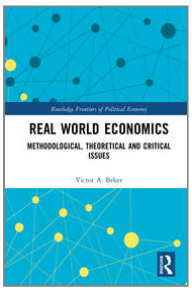
Real World Economics

Methodological, Theoretical and Critical Issues



Victor A. Beker Universidad de Buenos Aires, Argentina

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

In contrast to the unrealistic and artificial models of neoclassical economics, the book argues that the point of departure for economic theory should be the real world with realistic assumptions being made. The book explores the theoretical underpinnings of this real-world economics including the concepts of similarity (the relationship between economic models and real-world phenomena), evolution (economic change is a historical process in which recurrent patterns of growth, maturation, and decline exist) and uncertainty (the absence of knowledge of the full set of circumstances faced and the probabilities associated with them).

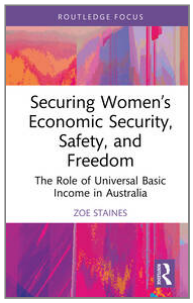
Securing Women's Economic Security, Safety, and Freedom

The Role of Universal Basic Income in Australia



Zoe Staines University of Queensland

This book contributes to the discussion by focusing on UBI's potential impacts for women, including women of colour and First Nations women. Utilizing a "scenario interviewing" approach, Zoe worked with 26 diverse Australian women to imagine the potential implications of UBI for their own lives, as well as for women more broadly. The women talked about a range of possible impacts including poverty reduction, economic security, improved autonomy, and freedom from violence, which are sorted into overarching themes and chapters. Integrating these women's narratives into the key arguments for and against UBI, this book provides a robust and readable introduction to relevant literature.

Social Inequality and Human Security

Case Studies from Asia

Edited by Christian Ploberger

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

While inequality is a fundamental developmental challenge and global phenomenon, responsibility largely falls to the state to address it. This book seeks to provide a specific framework to analyse these efforts at the national and sub-national efforts. It does so through the United Nations' concept of Human Security, whose five core principles provide a good means of addressing inequality's various facets. Each chapter opens by highlighting the specific aspect of human security that is being addressed. Specific issues covered in the volume include local economic development, maritime economies, fishing communities, and governance and public administration.

Sustainability and the Rural Enterprise Economy

Economic, Environmental and Social Transformation

Edited by Susanne Gretzinger , Birgit Leick , Teemu Makkonen

Series: Routledge Advances in Regional Economics, Science and Policy

This book explores the management of sustainability issues in the context of the rural enterprise economy. It provides practical evidence about how rural enterprises and rural entrepreneurs can handle sustainability requirements and contribute to sustainability transformations in terms of economic, environmental and social stability. In addition to its practical relevance, the motivation of the book is first and foremost to develop a common understanding of the necessary key terminology and core concepts in a still largely underexplored, yet rapidly expanding research field and contribute to theory development by employing a multidisciplinary approach.

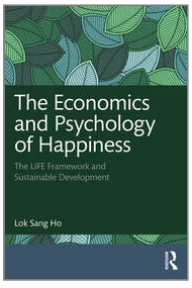
The Economics and Psychology of Happiness

The LIFE Framework and Sustainable Development



Lok Sang Ho

This book applies the framework of economists to discuss the question of how one can maximize subjective happiness. Building upon the author's earlier work, this book blends the classic theories and empirical evidence of positive psychology with economic concepts of choice, capital, information costs, and intangible goods. Every chapter is accompanied by a summary of key points, as well as reflective questions for students. This book will interest researchers and students in happiness economics and positive psychology, and anyone keen to learn more about living fuller, happier lives.

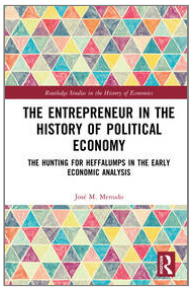
The Entrepreneur in the History of Political Economy

The Hunting for Heffalumps in the Early Economic Analysis



José M. Menudo Univesidad Pablo de Olavide

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

Modern economic theory has marginalised the figure of the entrepreneur, despite their significance in economic activity. Entrepreneurs rose in prominence as economic agents during the Enlightenment, but no consensus on this issue was formed in the period. This book addresses the role of the entrepreneur in the economic thought of the 18th and early 19th centuries, filling a gap in the historiography of economics. This book explores the emergence of entrepreneurial activity as a recognized factor of production in economic theory, the contributions and connections of Enlightenment economist, and the reasons for the concept's disappearance.

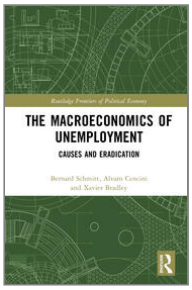
The Macroeconomics of Unemployment

Causes and Eradication



Bernard Schmitt

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

This book explores unemployment from a monetary macroeconomics perspective, identifying the pathology at the origin of unemployment and the principles of reform that will enable a passage from capitalism to post-capitalism. Bernard Schmitt explores the problem of involuntary unemployment by developing his quantum monetary macroeconomic analysis, demonstrating that the presence of fixed capital increases both physical productivity and the production of economic value. This book is essential reading for those interested in issues around unemployment and post-capitalism; fields of political economy, macroeconomics, economic theory and heterodox economics.

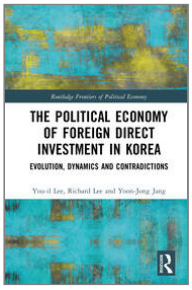
The Political Economy of Foreign Direct Investment in Korea

Evolution, Dynamics and Contradictions



You-il Lee University of South Australia, Australia,
Richard Lee University of South Australia, Australia,
Yoon-Jong Jang Korea Research Institute for Industrial Economics and Trade, South Korea

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

One of the most spectacular phenomena in the South Korean political economy has been the remarkable escalation of international capital investment or inward foreign direct investment (FDI) in Korea. This book provides an in-depth look at the evolution of FDI in Korea, from the late 1990s to the present day. Charting Korea's transition from state-led capitalism to a more liberalized market, this book assesses the complex interplay between government policy, foreign capital inflows, and multinational corporations (MNCs). It analyses the key economic policies of the past as well as more recent measures by the Moon Jae-Jin and Yoon Suk-Yeol administrations.

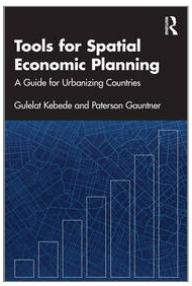
Tools for Spatial Economic Planning

A Guide for Urbanizing Countries



Gulelat Kebede , Paterson Gauntner

This book remedies the divisions between spatial and economic policy, through a review of development theory, grounding it and then through an overview of and practical guidance on two different sets of tools. The spatial-economic analysis tools are aimed at elucidating the spatial realities of urbanizing economies and informing improved decision-making; the policy tools can be used to break down silos and incorporate a more effective integrated approach to development. The book is written to be accessible to advanced experts in international development institutions, practitioners in data-poor countries, and students wishing to apply their studies to real world problems.

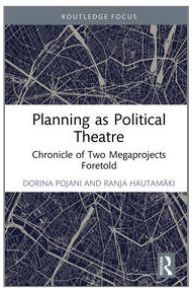
Planning as Political Theatre

Chronicle of Two Megaprojects Foretold



Dorina Pojani , Ranja Hautamäki

Series: Routledge Focus on Urban Studies

This book examines two large and highly controversial urban infill projects in two peripheral European capitals - Tirana and Helsinki - through the lens of dramaturgy and political theatre. The authors argue that the planning processes in both cities have been farcical, following the so-called 'disillusionment arc' in storytelling - that is, coming to terms with the inevitability of private developments where vast sums of money are at stake and power does not rest with the people. Beyond these cases studies, the book introduces the concept of 'planning distortion' which blends socio-institutional phenomena such as corruption, neoliberalism, and undemocratization.

Beyond Health Capacity

Spatial Practices in Inclusive Design

Edited by Ulysses Sean Vance

This book sheds light on the systemic challenges communities with limited access to medical support and health maintenance have endured. It emphasizes how approaching medical interventions through non-traditional health facilities can positively impact health's social and environmental impact. This book reflects on past and present efforts interrogating the practical application of inclusive design practices in resolving the spatial challenges of health reform. By focusing on examples during and after the pandemic, each chapter offers an overview documenting these experiences as approaches to these new competencies and proposing new criteria for the future of healthcare.

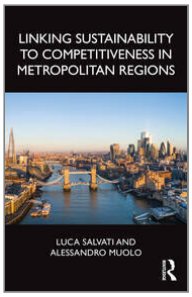
Linking Sustainability to Competitiveness



Alessandro Muolo , Luca Salvati

This book identifies and discusses opportunities and constraints in applying the sustainability paradigm to urbanization. It integrates this wide concept with 'local competitiveness' and focuses on the role of both general and specific political action in shaping the economic structure of a region. This book is written for academics and students—from undergraduates to doctoral candidates—who want a clear, practical look at how local economies, sustainability, and competitiveness come together. It is also helpful for professionals, policymakers, and for anyone curious about how economic growth might become a long-term sustainable political goal.

Remapping China at the East-West Intersection

Edited by Jun Zeng , You Wu , Keyan G. Tomaselli
University of Johannesburg, South Africa

Remapping China at the East-West Intersection, composed predominantly from back copies of Critical Arts, draws on the rich reservoir of studies that map a diverse range of research on Chinese literature, art and culture at the intersection of East-West encounters. This compilation offers a comprehensive exploration of Chinese cultural studies through the lens of global dialogism and intercultural exchange. Structured into four thematic sections—Overview, Chinese Narratives, Chinese Art, and China and New Media—the book brings together twenty scholarly articles that collectively examine the complexities and nuances of Chinese culture in a global context.

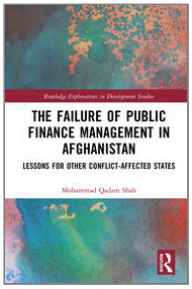
The Failure of Public Finance Management in Afghanistan

Lessons for Other Conflict-Affected States



Mohammad Qadam Shah

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

In rebuilding conflict-affected states, a major portion of foreign aid focuses on reforming public finance management systems and supporting annual budgets. But how budgets are allocated and how reforms take shape in practice remain critical questions. This book analyses the politics of reform and budget allocation in the most expensive liberal state building effort in history: Afghanistan. The book offers key lessons on inclusive governance, structural barriers, and sustainable public finance reforms in conflict-affected states. It appeals to donors, development experts, and researchers in public finance, foreign aid, security, and development studies.

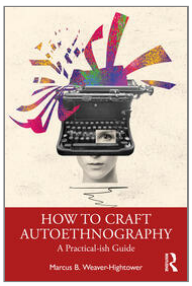
How to Craft Autoethnography

A Practical-ish Guide



Marcus B. Weaver-Hightower University of North Dakota, USA

How to Craft Autoethnography is a comprehensive and engaging guide to the art and science of autoethnography, a qualitative research method that blends personal narrative with cultural analysis. Designed to be both practical and theoretically grounded, the book offers a structured yet flexible approach to developing "good" autoethnographic research. Throughout the book, Weaver-Hightower addresses the essential components of autoethnographic research, including when to use (or not use) the method, how to generate and analyze data, and how to assess quality and ethics in an autoethnography.

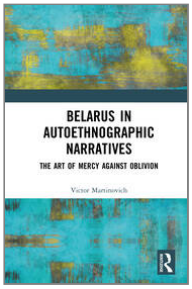
Belarus in Autoethnographic Narratives

The Art of Mercy Against Oblivion



Victor Martinovich

This book offers an autoethnographic exploration of the interplay of art, memory, and resilience in Eastern Europe, weaving together the personal and collective histories of Belarusians – those who survived two world wars and their contemporaries, who are now looking for a way out of a political crisis in the region. Set against the history of Belarus, it recounts the story of the author's great-grandfather Amyalyan, a Belarusian peasant executed by the Nazis after saving a Jewish man during World War I. A valuable addition for researchers and students interested in ethnography and autoethnography, Eastern European studies, art history, cultural studies and memory studies.

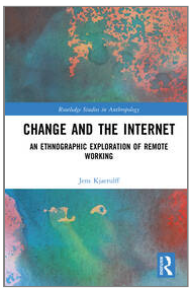
Change and the Internet

An Ethnographic Exploration of Remote Working



Jens Kjaerulff

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

This book explores the significance of new information technology for socio-cultural change and provides ethnographic insight into the early days of remote working. It draws on long-term anthropological fieldwork among people in rural Denmark working from home via the internet. Going back to the late 1990s and early 2000s, the study demonstrates how remote and flexible working was mostly practiced informally, fostering incremental changes to the cultural domain of 'work'. The volume contains an updated introduction and conclusion where the author reflects on the historical moment of his fieldwork and on the impact of the recent Covid-19 pandemic on working practices.

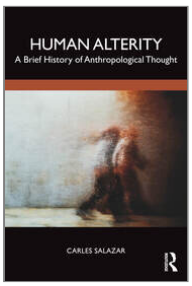
Human Alterity

A Brief History of Anthropological Thought



Carles Salazar

Human Alterity: A Brief History of Anthropological Thought offers an introduction to the history of anthropological thought and the concept of human alterity. Ever since the birth of our species, humans have wanted to understand people other than themselves. But what is an 'alter' human? Readers find a history of what has made humanity opaque to itself: a history of the theories about human alterity produced by some humans. It is a valuable book for both new and advanced students of anthropology, sociology, cultural studies, social history, post-colonial studies and to anyone concerned with the belief, fantasy and reality of human diversity.

Post-Carbon Futures

Imagining (and Enacting) New Worlds through Transition Studies

Edited by Anna Willow , Bürge Abiral

Post-Carbon Futures: Imagining (and Enacting) New Worlds through Transition Studies explores the multitude of possibilities for conceiving and creating fulfilling post-carbon ways of life. Bringing together theoretically informed considerations, ethnographic examples, and viewpoints from active transition movement participants, this book encourages rich discussions about transition's myriad opportunities and significance for socioecological change research. It will inspire readers to contemplate how transition intersects with their own academic and/or activist interests and generate exciting new understandings of conscious cultural change in the twenty-first century.

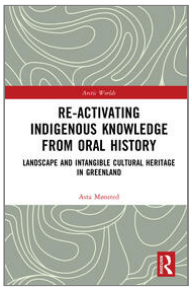
Re-activating Indigenous Knowledge from Oral History

Landscape and Intangible Cultural Heritage in Greenland



Asta Mønsted

Series: Arctic Worlds

This book focuses on Greenlandic oral history and how to better understand people, their cultural remains, and their landscape through their own stories. It offers a way to consult Inuit oral history that opens up a perspective on houses and landscapes that may otherwise be invisible to the barren eye. Working with and re-activating Indigenous knowledge of Greenland, the study draws on more than two thousand stories collected between 1735 and 1981, preserved, and later enrolled in an online and searchable database. It will be of particular interest for scholars of Indigenous studies, anthropology, archaeology, and history.

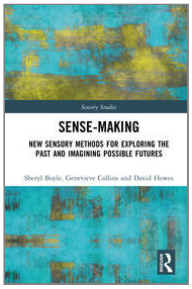
Sense-Making

New Sensory Methods for Exploring the Past and Imagining Possible Futures



Sheryl Boyle , Genevieve Collins , David Howes
Concordia University, Canada.

Series: Sensory Studies

In this highly innovative work, the senses are liberated from the confines of the present to serve as vehicles for accessing other historical periods and imagined futures. Sense-Making builds on the burgeoning field of sensory ethnography by introducing a pair of methodologies— sensory (re)construction and sensorial extrapolation—expressly devised to facilitate time-travel. The first part offers a survey and critique of extant work in sensory archaeology and sensory futures. The second part presents a case study of sensory (re)construction in action, focusing on Thornbury Castle (1508-1521) in the UK.

Traditional Midwives

Cross-Cultural Perspectives

Edited by Robbie Davis-Floyd Rice University, Betty-Anne Daviss , Inayat Ali Fatima Jinnah Women University, Rawalpindi, Pakistan

Series: Social Science Perspectives on Childbirth and Reproduction

This book is a pioneering work that delves deeply into the worlds of traditional midwives, shedding light on their practices, roles, and the immense cultural value they hold within their respective communities wherever they are still allowed to practice. It champions the significance of traditional midwifery but also critiques the (often misguided) global and national initiatives that seek to move all childbirths into biomedical facilities, which, as the chapters in this book clearly show, are frequently under-equipped and under-staffed and provide substandard care that can often be obstetrically violent and abusive.

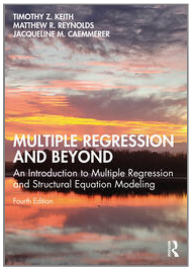
Multiple Regression and Beyond

An Introduction to Multiple Regression and Structural Equation Modeling



Timothy Z. Keith University of Texas, Austin, USA, Matthew Reynolds University of Kansas, Jacqueline Caemmerer University of Connecticut

Multiple Regression and Beyond offers a conceptually-oriented introduction to multiple regression (MR) analysis and structural equation modeling (SEM), along with analyses that flow naturally from those methods. By focusing on the concepts and purposes of MR and related methods, rather than the derivation and calculation of formulae, this book introduces material to students more clearly, and in a less threatening way. In addition to illuminating content necessary for coursework, the accessibility of this approach means students are more likely to be able to conduct research using MR or SEM—and more likely to use the methods wisely.

Race and Class in the Southwest and Other Essays

Studies in Political Economy

Edited by Rodolfo Torres , Mario Barrera , William I. Robinson

Reprinted here for the first time after becoming a modern classic of Chicano studies, Race and Class in the Southwest focuses on the economic foundations of inequality as they have affected Chicanos in the Southwest from the Mexican-American War to the present. Barrera reviews the economic history of Chicanos, their relegation to a subordinate position in the labor force segmented along racial lines, their displacement from the land, the effects of waves of immigration from Mexico, the role of an emerging Chicano middle class, and state policies designed to reproduce the subordinate status of Chicanos.

Series: New Critical Viewpoints on Society

Racism in the Neoliberal Era explains how simple racial binaries like black/white are no longer sufficient to explain the persistence of racism, capitalism, and elite white power. This new edition is thoroughly revised and updated to take account of the further history and debates over neoliberalism in the Trump and Biden eras, and the significant social and political discussions around race and racism, policing, housing, health care, and citizenship as they interconnect with the American neoliberal economic and political system. The new edition will be a vital textbook for students, instructors, and researchers in sociology, politics, race, and economics.

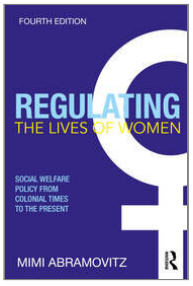
Regulating the Lives of Women

Social Welfare Policy from Colonial Times to the Present



Mimi Abramovitz

In the fourth edition of Regulating the Lives of Women: Social Welfare Policy from Colonial Times to the Present, Abramovitz traces how the welfare state regulated the lives of women from colonial times to the present. This new edition marks the most extensive overhaul to date, revising conceptual and background chapters, discussing cash assistance programs, and considering emerging ideas such as an economic crisis theory. It also considers the future of the welfare state under the second Trump Presidency. It is an essential resource for all students of social work, sociology, history, political science, public policy, women gender and black studies.

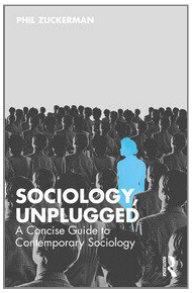
Sociology, Unplugged

A Concise Guide to Contemporary Sociology



Phil Zuckerman

This concise, clear, accessible book is meant to truly engage students by using personal stories, solid research, and key theories that illustrate how sociologists look at life, the way we understand social dynamics, what "socially constructed" means, and how a sociological sensibility can, ultimately, be liberating. With engaging stories, provocative historical examples, compelling case studies, and key theoretical insights, this cogent "anti-textbook", written by leading sociologist Phil Zuckerman, introduces students to the discipline of sociology.

3RD EDITION

Venus in the Dark

Blackness and Beauty in Popular Culture

Janell Hobson University at Albany, New York, USA

In this third edition of Venus in the Dark: Blackness and Beauty in Popular Culture, Janell Hobson explores the enduring figure of the "Hottentot Venus" and the history of critical and artistic responses to her by black women in contemporary photography, film, literature, music, and dance. A brand-new chapter analyzes fetishistic spectacles of the black "booty" and the different ways that twenty-first-century subjects have reshaped and redefined their bodies in an emergent global body politics. It is essential reading for students and researchers, as well those outside of academia interested in the subjects of black women and their beautification efforts.

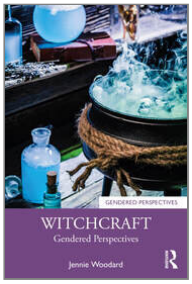
Witchcraft

Gendered Perspectives



Jennie Woodard

Series: Gendered Perspectives

Witchcraft: Gendered Perspectives traces the history of and evolution of the term "witch" across six centuries. Tracing the history of witchcraft from the publication of the Malleus Maleficarum to its contemporary representation and reclamation, this volume takes a gendered and intersectional approach to the cultural and historical shifts which have both demonised and democratised the witch online and in public discourse. Witchcraft: Gendered Perspectives is an invaluable resource for graduate and undergraduate students across gender studies, queer history, religious studies, media studies, and European and North American history.

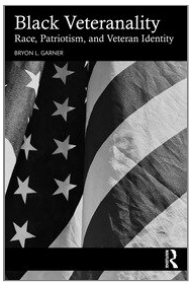
Black Veteranality

Military Service and the Illusion of Inclusive Patriotism



Bryon L. Garner

Black Veteranality is an examination of the intersection of race, patriotism, and military service from the perspective of Black veterans, offering a robust framework for reimagining American patriotism and reframing veteran identity. Through critical ethnography and narrative interviews, this conceptual framework interrogates monolithic veteran narratives by documenting how Black servicemembers simultaneously embody patriotic ideals through military service while confronting systemic racism's psychological toll and navigate a hegemonic social mechanism that perpetuates exclusion through perpetual scrutiny of Black veterans' cultural authenticity and national belonging.

Deconstructing the Role of Generations in Social Movements

Time, Events, and Legacies

Edited by Mark Turner Manchester Metropolitan University, UK, Jan Andre Lee Ludvigsen Liverpool John Moores University, UK, Maria Grasso University of London, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Political Sociology

Although questions of how a social group's shared experiences growing up in particular historical and social contexts shapes their identities, including their political identities, have engaged sociologists of family, youth, citizenship, culture, and political change, few books have so far examined the specific role of generations and generational consciousness in social movement activism. As such, this is the first book to focus exclusively on issues of temporality, events, and generational legacies in social movements.

Digital Work and Digital Workers in Europe and China

Edited by Laurence Roulleau-Berger , Wen Jun

Series: China Policy Series

This book is a study of digital workers across diverse contexts in China and Europe, giving valuable insight into their origins, abilities, and working conditions. As the growth of digital work changes the nature of work and employment, this book considers the shift of much economic activity to online activity, examines increasing economic globalization that involves a new global division of labour, with the novel forms of global capitalism, and emphasises the fact that increasingly work for many people is now digital work. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of the sociology of work and economic sociology, as well as digital sociology.

Fat Studies and Fat Social Justice

Edited by Carla A. Pfeffer

This book offers examinations from the field of fat studies to consider how fat social justice has been conceptualized in the past, its status today, and how we might more effectively envision and strategize around fat social justice for the future. The contributions to this book offer reflections, provocations, and possibilities for next steps in the fight toward fat social justice today. All of the work herein attests to the power of fat people to form alliances, initiatives, self-concepts, and communities that serve to empower and affirm their dignity, worth, and to underline their deservingness of freedom from discrimination, stigma, and oppression.

Gendered Bodies, Social Exclusions

Contemporary Issues in Women's Studies

Edited by Aishika Chakraborty , Nandita Banerjee Dhawan

Series: Contemporary Issues in Social Science Research

This book examines contemporary issues in women's studies and the agency of the marginalised and disenfranchised in the political, cultural, and social spheres. It uses feminist pedagogies to articulate multiple intersecting histories of class, caste, race, sexuality, disability and citizenship. Employing feminist perspectives, the book challenges the hegemonic and patriarchal logic of heteronormativity as it contextualizes verbal abuse, violence in the 'private' space, and tensions between women's and men's rights along the continuum between family, community, and state.

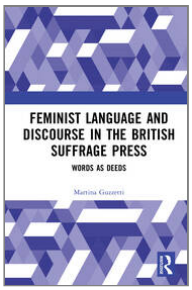
Feminist Language and Discourse in the British Suffrage Press

Words as Deeds



Martina Guzzetti

Feminist Language and Discourse in the British Suffrage Press: Words as Deeds explores the dynamic and evolving concept of gender within the context of British suffrage periodicals from 1907 to 1914. Adopting a (socio)linguistic perspective and a discourse analysis methodology, the book focuses on the theme of gender and on the development of feminist counter-language and counter-discourses using articles taken from the three major suffrage publications: Votes for Women, The Vote, and Common Cause. It is of value to researchers in fields such as feminist studies, language and gender studies, and periodical studies.

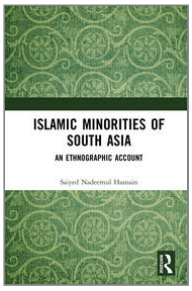
Islamic Minorities of South Asia

An Ethnographic Account



Nadeem Hasnain

Islam and Islamicate South Asia have generated interest since 9/11 as never before. However, Islamic Minorities, specifically, is still a relatively neglected area of study in South Asian Islam. It may be due to the reason that there has been a tendency to look at Islam as a monolithic faith and Muslims as a monolithic population to the western world. This book will be invaluable to all those interested in religion, society, and culture of Muslim South Asia.

Moral Panics and Social Control in the COVID-19 Pandemic

Edited by Morena Tartari , Cirus Rinaldi , Riccardo Caldarera

Series: The COVID-19 Pandemic Series

Moral Panics and Social Control in the Covid-19 Pandemic presents a series of case studies which focus on particular social processes and interactions during the COVID-19 pandemic, applying the tools offered by classical studies on moral panic and moral panic theory to illuminate both political and popular responses. Each case study explores the emergence, development, and impact of forms of moral panic in response to the coronavirus outbreak. In doing so, each chapter addresses the intersectional impact of moral panics upon vulnerable and/or stigmatised groups and outlines how moral panics have informed policies, interventions and social mechanisms introduced by governments.

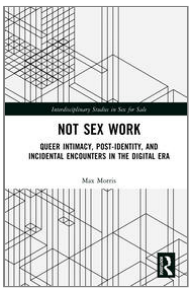
Not Sex Work

Queer Intimacy, Post-identity, and Incidental Encounters in the Digital Era



Max Morris Oxford Brookes University, UK

Series: Interdisciplinary Studies in Sex for Sale

This book explores the parallel histories and intersecting politics of LGBTQ+ people and sex workers, including the role of digital media in shaping the experiences of both in the early twenty-first century. Drawing on the first empirical study with gay, bisexual, and queer young men who agreed to sell sex online without advertising or identifying as sex workers, it examines what the term 'incidental sex work' means. This book will appeal to students and researchers studying sex work and social media across a wide range of fields. It will also be useful for campaigners, policymakers, and healthcare practitioners interested in the implications of incidental sex work.

Why have there been so few women mathematicians? This book does not seek an answer in absence but in the forces, ruptures, and intensities that shape the becoming of a femme philosophe—a mathematician, scientist, and philosopher—within the shifting assemblages of eighteenth- and nineteenth-century Europe. This book will resonate with scholars in the sociology, history and philosophy of science and mathematics, particularly those engaged with feminist thought, the politics of knowledge, and experimental archival methods.

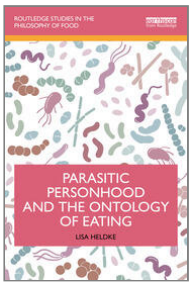
Parasitic Personhood and the Ontology of Eating



Lisa Heldke

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Food

This book explores "parasitic personhood," an alternative to atomistic individualism that acknowledges the biological individual as a network of persistent biological relationships (a "holobiont") and draws insight from the astonishing frequency and variety of parasitic feeding relationships. It will engage students and scholars of food and eating, particularly those working on the metaphysics of food, food and personhood, fermentation, and the microbiome, as well as philosophers considering the ontological significance of food and eating.

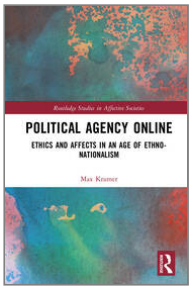
Political Agency Online

Ethics and Affects in an Age of Ethno-Nationalism



Max Kramer

Series: Routledge Studies in Affective Societies

This book examines the ways that political agency can be understood in digitally dominated media environments. Kramer shows how emotional work on the online-active self is both culturally and institutionally embedded. Filling a gap in the scholarship on the affective conditions of digital agency, this book conceptualises political agency online through case studies that centre on the creativity of—and difficulties faced by—Indian Muslims who run popular handles on social media sites. The book will appeal to scholars and students interested in affect and emotion, digital and political ethics, media anthropology, South Asian studies, mediation and Muslim politics in India.

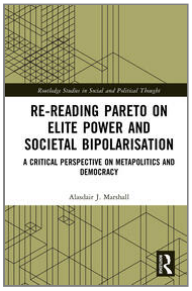
Re-Reading Pareto on Elite Power and Societal Bipolarisation

A Critical Perspective on Metapolitics and Democracy



Alasdair J. Marshall

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

Assessing Vilfredo Pareto's sociological reworkings of Machiavelli's Fox and Lion animal spirits as friend-enemy codings, this book offers a unique insight into the growing division today between relatively liberal elites and relatively conservative non-elites. Re-Reading Pareto on Elite Power and Societal Bipolarisation utilises key ideas common to Pareto's elite theory, general sociology and theory of demagogic plutocracy, and fleshes out a unique perspective for making sense of contemporary societal bipolarisation in terms of friend-enemy codings.

Social Thought From the Ruins

Quixote's Dinner Party

David A. Westbrook

Series: A New Order of Social Things

Through stories, conversations, and essays, this book pursues interwoven critical and philosophical inquiries into the nature of the contemporary in the North Atlantic, asking how are we to live as intellectuals, individually and in community? An extended critique of academic life today and the context of our own thinking, Social Thought From the Ruins: Quixote's Dinner Party interrogates aspects of our modernity, with its pervasive sense of crisis and uncertainty, and the difficulty of thinking clearly about things like the state and power, data and violence.

Technology and Forced Migration

Ukrainian Migrants in Central and Eastern Europe

Edited by Ewa Ślęzak-Belowska , Marie Jelínková , Agnieszka Bielewska , Karin Amit

Series: Routledge Advances in Regional Economics, Science and Policy

The authors of this book focus on and seek to provide new insight into how forced migration and forced migrants' and Information Communication Technologies (ICTs) interplay, i.e. how forced migrants shape ICTs and how migrants and their lives are shaped by ICTs. It offers an in-depth analysis of the witnessed ontological shift of digital technologies and their relationship with forced migrants and other actors. This is examined in the context of Central and Eastern European (CEE) countries, such as Poland, Czechia, Slovakia and Hungary. It considers sociological and economic theories and empirical evidence from migration and technology studies.

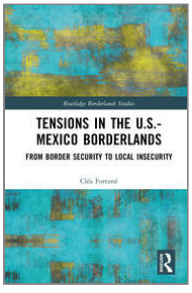
Tensions In The U.S.-Mexico Borderlands

From Border Security To Local Insecurity



Cléa Fortuné

Series: Routledge Borderlands Studies

This book investigates the disconnect between what border security represents for state and non-state actors, and the social, economic, and cultural realities of the borderlanders living in U.S.-Mexico border towns.The book paints a rich picture of transborder connectedness which contrasts starkly with the rhetoric of fear and invasion used by state and non-state actors. Its findings will be of interest to researchers and students working on border studies, international relations, geography, and security studies.

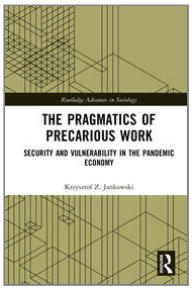
The Pragmatics of Precarious Work

Security and Vulnerability in the Pandemic Economy



Krzysztof Z. Jankowski

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Drawing on data collected in London's precarious labour market during the Covid-19 pandemic, this book explores how precarious work is pragmatically engaged with towards the production of simultaneous security and insecurity. The analysis spans the full of scope of precarious working: procedures of job searching and applying, conducting duties and becoming acclimatised to the workplace, and exercises of chaining precarious jobs together or planning an exit into permanent and full-time work. Its ethnographic data regarding the practicalities of precarious work is highly relevant to scholars studying sociology of work, social policy and organizational studies.

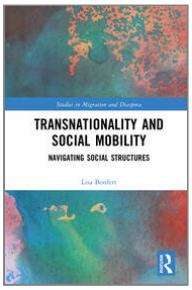
Transnationality and Social Mobility

Navigating Social Structures



Lisa Bonfert University of Luxembourg, Luxembourg

Series: Studies in Migration and Diaspora

Considering that changes in people's life chances are increasingly shaped by cross-border movements and transnational connections, this book proposes a transnational conception of social mobility. Emphasising the manifold ways in which contexts of migration and transnationality affect perceptions and evaluations of betterment, the book argues for linking the study of social and spatial mobility to better capture how people navigate social structures of inequality in a globalised world. This book will therefore be of interest to scholars of sociology, geography and politics with interests in migration, transnationalism and mobility.

Integrative Sport and Exercise Nutrition

A Practitioner's Perspective

Edited by Ian Craig , Justin Roberts

The key objective of Integrative Sport and Exercise Nutrition: is to teach sport, exercise and nutrition professionals, academics and students to embrace the complexity and individuality of an exercising person. This approach will add to, but may also contrast with, the reductionist macronutrient approach taken in this field. By bringing together writers and editors, from both academia and applied clinical practice, this cutting edge book bridges the gap between accepted quantitative 'norms' and the applied integrative practice of talented practitioners who support unique beings with sport and exercise goals.

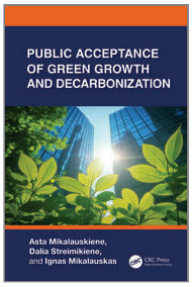
Public Acceptance of Green Growth and Decarbonization



Asta Mikalauskiene , Dalia Streimikiene , Ignas Mikalauskas Vilnius University, Lithuania

This book explores the crucial role of public acceptance in advancing green growth, decarbonization, and rapid advancements of renewable energy technologies. It shows that public acceptance is as critical as technological innovation, given the significant infrastructure, land use, and behavioral changes required for a successful transition toward a carbon-neutral society and provides theoretical frameworks tested in real-life case studies. The main drivers and barriers of technology are analyzed in conjunction with the central role of public acceptance. Policies and measures needed to promote behavioral changes are discussed, along with successful strategies and failures.

Series: Routledge Research in International Environmental Law

Environmental jurisprudence is a dynamic field that integrates insights from various disciplines, including basic sciences, earth science, economics, and law. At its core, this discipline emphasizes the importance of enforcing rights, as environmental pollution poses significant threats to individuals and society as a whole. Addressing pollution as a wrong or crime demands a nuanced understanding of the law, making the study of environmental jurisprudence essential. Highlighting the urgent need for accountability but also inspiring action toward a sustainable future, this book will interest legal scholars researching on criminal liability and environmental law.

Feminist Climate Policy in Industrialised States

A Gender-Just Climate Emergency Response

Edited by Susan Buckingham , Martin Hultman Linköping University, Sweden, Gunnhildur Lily Magnusdottir , Karen Morrow

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Environments

In 2021, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change acknowledged that addressing the climate emergency must involve social justice and equality. The authors draw critically on case studies, research and interviews with feminist practitioners, legislators and leaders who have implemented significant changes, to signal how change might be achieved and ask what lessons can be drawn. The book posits that we need to ultimately move beyond the gender mainstreaming and gender equality issues which have been integrated into existing - and failing - structures, to more transformative feminist approaches.

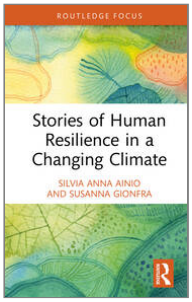
Stories of Human Resilience in a Changing Climate



Silvia Anna Ainio , Susanna Gionfra

Series: Routledge Focus on Environment and Sustainability

Despite extreme climate-related events witnessed globally, many struggle to connect such global phenomena to their own lives in a tangible way. This book fills a critical void in the field by sharing eleven real-life experiences across five continents of the world, featuring ordinary people facing and adapting to the consequences of climate change in its different forms. By weaving scientific data with personal stories, the chapters deliver a compelling call to move beyond mere acknowledgment of the problem towards transformative action that respects the balance of ecosystems, fosters sustainable practices, and redefines our relationship with nature..

We Are All Ambiverts Now

Introverts, Ambiverts and Extroverts in the Executive Suite

Karl Moore , Gabriele Hartshorne-Mehl

Thanks to landmark books such as How to Win Friends and Influence People, many professionals think that only extroverts can be standout leaders, but Karl Moore's interviews with over 750 CEOs from around the world prove that introverts make excellent leaders too. These insights make clear that the optimal leadership style is ambivert, with senior leaders combining introversion—being excellent listeners and thinking before they speak—and extroversion—inspiring and connecting with their teams. This book teaches how introverts and extroverts work, manage, and lead effectively and how readers can be better leaders regardless of their natural communication style.

Therapeutic Community for Women Prisoners

Re-imagining Rehabilitation and the Loss of Liberty

Elaine Player , Elaine Genders

Based upon an extensive empirical study of a democratic therapeutic community (DTC) for women serving long and medium sentences, this book explores the opportunities it provided for reparative and restorative rehabilitation. In so doing it identifies some of the interconnected ways in which these ambitions are undermined by pervasive, yet often tacit, assumptions that underly penal policies and practices. It will be of great interest to students and scholars of criminology, feminist studies, public policy, and human rights. It will also be of value to policy-makers and practitioners in women's prisons, and psychologists and psychiatrists interested in therapeutic communities.

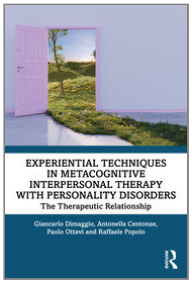
Experiential Techniques in Metacognitive Interpersonal Therapy with Personality Disorders

The Therapeutic Relationship



Giancarlo Dimaggio Giancarlo Dimaggio, MD, Center for Metacognitive Interpersonal Therapy, Rome, Italy, Antonella Centonze , Paolo Ottavi , Raffaele Popolo Centre for Metacognitive Interpersonal Therapy, Rome, Italy

This book provides a guide to using experiential techniques, such as imagery rescripting, chair work, body work, mindfulness, in metacognitive interpersonal therapy to treat personality disorders and PTSD, along with their many comorbid conditions. It acts as a guide to constructing a client first model of psychological functioning that can be used as a roadmap to change. It includes specific procedures for addressing problems in the therapeutic contract, devising and enacting imagery rescripting and other techniques. This comprehensive text will help practicing clinicians of any orientation in working with patients suffering from personality disorders and their associated symptoms.

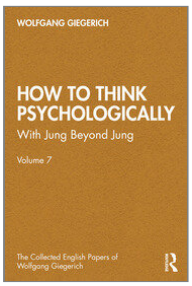
How to Think Psychologically

With Jung Beyond Jung



Wolfgang Giegerich

Series: The Collected English Papers of Wolfgang Giegerich

This book discusses the psychological understanding of, and approach to, various central questions and aspects of psychological reality, in each case critically examining under what conditions one's interpretation qualifies as 'truly psychological', i.e. fulfilling the criteria of a rigorous notion of psychology in the Jungian tradition. This will be of great interest to the Jungian community, psychotherapists and psychoanalysts training in Jungian theory and practice, as well as those interested in psychological, theological and philosophical issues.

Sharpening Psychology's Concepts

The Spirit of Jungian Psychology and the Danger of Faulty Thinking

Series: The Collected English Papers of Wolfgang Giegerich

A big problem of psychology in the tradition of C.G. Jung is that many concepts and orientations are being used by its adherents that are not really compatible with a true psychology because they have their home ground in other orientations. This book will be of great interest to the Jungian community, psychotherapists and psychoanalysts training in Jungian theory and practice, as well as those interested in psychological, theological and philosophical issues.

Aging and Diversity

Social and Community Contexts of Aging

Lisa Wagner University of San Francisco,San Francisco, CA, USA, Chandra M Mehrotra , Man Guo

In this new and fully revised edition of Aging and Diversity, Lisa Wagner, Chandra Mehrotra, and Man Guo address key topics in diversity and aging, discussing how the aging experience is affected by not only race and ethnicity but also gender, religious affiliation, socioeconomic status, rural–urban community location, and sexual orientation and gender identity. Taking this broad view of human diversity allows the authors to convey some of the rich complexities facing aging populations—complexities that provide both challenges to meet the needs of a diverse population of elders and opportunities to learn how to live in a pluralistic society.

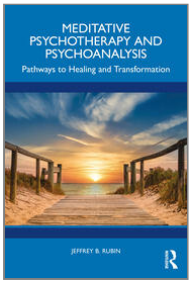
Meditative Psychotherapy and Psychoanalysis

Pathways to Healing and Transformation



Jeffrey B. Rubin

Dr. Jeffrey Rubin's work—the culmination of four decades immersed in psychoanalysis and Eastern mind-body disciplines—introduces a unique method uniting these wisdom traditions. While both aim to alleviate suffering, their attempts at integration often remain superficial. Rubin demonstrates how therapy and meditation compensate for each other's blind spots, providing richer understanding and opening unexpected pathways to healing and transformation. These works create a powerful resource for therapists, spiritual seekers, and anyone interested in personal growth, offering a natural path to psychological healing and a more meaningful life.

Psychological Growth After Trauma

Insights from Phenomenological Research

Edited by Simon Wharne New School of Psychotherapy and Counselling , London, UK

Series: The Routledge Series in Posttraumatic Growth

Psychological Growth After Trauma is a guide to moving away from assumptions about trauma as a simple form of 'psychological damage.' This is not a book that argues for a model that practitioners would be required to adopt and impose on their clients. Instead, it brings insights and explorations together, allowing the reader to build their own framework for understanding.

Soulful Sexual Health for Muslims

A Developmental Approach for Individuals and Clinicians

Sameera Qureshi

This transformative book offers a holistic approach to sexual health for Muslims, rooted in Islamic traditions of the soul. By addressing sexual health as an integrative journey connecting physical, emotional, and spiritual dimensions, it reframes this aspect of life as a sacred practice aligned with the soul's connection to God. Intended for Muslims seeking a holistic understanding of sexual health, as well as educators, therapists, Imams, and other professionals who serve Muslim communities, this book bridges the gap between contemporary sexual health needs and Islamic faith-based approaches.

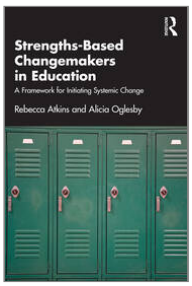
Strengths-Based Changemakers in Education

A Framework for Initiating Systemic Change



Rebecca Atkins , Alicia K. Oglesby

Strengths-Based Changemakers in Education is the perfect tool for educators looking for brief articles involving the history and current state of racial equity in education. The format allows for independent use or with professional learning communities, equity teams, or school improvement planning committees working to interrupt racism in their school. For use on its own or in conjunction with the authors' book Interrupting Racism, this book lends itself well to use as a guiding resource for equity teams in schools.

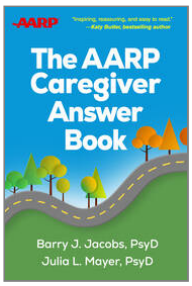
The AARP Caregiver Answer Book



Barry J. Jacobs Crozer-Keystone Family Medicine Residency Program, United States, Julia L. Mayer private practice, United States

Every year, countless people take on the role of caring for an ill, aging, or disabled family member--a job that can be overwhelming. Caregivers wonder: How do I figure out what type of care my loved one needs? What if they refuse my help? How can I get other relatives to pitch in? Who pays for all this? Written in a Q&A format, this book is packed with information, problem-solving and coping ideas, resources, stories, and communication tips. The authors are husband-and-wife psychologists who have been family caregivers themselves. They address everything needed to help parents, spouses, or other loved ones--from managing family conflicts to hiring aides to optimizing end-of-life care.

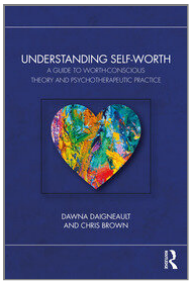
Understanding Self-Worth

A Guide to Worth-Conscious Theory and Psychotherapeutic Practice



Dawna Daigneault Zest of Life, LLC, Missouri, USA, Chris Brown University of Missouri-Kansas City, USA

Understanding Self-Worth is a guide for psychotherapists confounded by the struggle of working with clients who present with a pervasive pattern of denied self-worth. Psychotherapists will come away from this book with a deep understanding of the importance of attending to the degree of trauma experienced when the client's self-worth is separated from their individual truth. Moreover, where there is worth-based trauma, the psychotherapist will learn models both for helping clients gently and honestly reestablish a worthy and true sense of self and for consciously guiding clients towards recovery of human worth as a birthright.

Explorations in Fatherland

Psychotherapeutic Reflections on Fathers and Fatherhood

Judith Edwards

This book explores the role of fathers from a broadly psychoanalytic lens, looking at fatherhood from the evolving perspective of fathers, the rest of the family, and society as a whole. At a time when the role of men in society is ever more under debate, this book offers a fascinating and multi-faceted exploration of a key role for men and offers guidance to clinicians, and anyone interested in exploring the notion of fatherhood.

Fighting for Love: Journal of a Training Analysis

Marianne Lovink Goldsmith

Fighting for Love: Journal of a Training Analysis is a unique account of an eight-year psychoanalysis, journaled and retrospectively annotated from the patient's perspective in the aftermath of an unexpected and frightening dissociation. This book tells the story of that analysis in two parts. Part One places the analysis in its dynamic and historical context. Part Two is an edited version of Lovink Goldsmith's original journal with retrospective and expository comments inserted, documenting the evolution of the transference and the relationship with her analyst. This book will resonate with anyone who has experienced trauma or who treat its aftermath.

Going on Being in Challenging Times

Psychoanalytic Reflections

Edited by Michelle Flax , J. Gail White

In this volume, we explore what it is to live through trauma while experiencing huge losses that threaten our well-being. The book demonstrates how clinicians can help patients regain meaning and purpose once again. We have all been shaken by the winds of unsettling social and political change over the past few years; hence this book will appeal to a wide audience. Psychoanalysts, psychologists, psychotherapists, psychiatrists, clinical social workers, counselors, students and others in the helping professions will find this book essential reading, as will members of the wider public who have experienced challenges in their own or their loved one's "going-on-being".

Lacanian Perspectives on Jealousy

Edited by Carmen Wright

Series: The Centre for Freudian Analysis and Research Library (CFAR)

A great effort has been made in contemporary Western culture to move beyond jealousy in our private lives. This collection takes the temperature of jealousy today – how does it show up in the clinic? Does this differ from how it used to? What can be said of how jealousy functions both psychically and socially? This book is for anyone interested in psychoanalysis, be they readers or historians of psychoanalysis, or clinicians looking for ways to approach jealousy in their practice. It is also for anyone who knows what it is to suffer jealousy, which if Freud was right, is most of us.

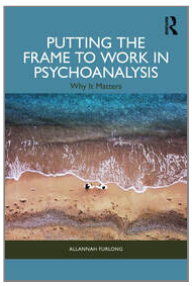
Putting the Psychoanalytic Frame to Work

Why it Matters



Allannah Furlong

Psychoanalysis is not just about what happens in the room—it is also about the structure that holds it all together. In Putting the Psychoanalytic Frame to Work, Allannah Furlong rethinks one of the traditional approaches to the analytic frame, arguing that disruptions—missed sessions, consent complexities, and third-party demands—are not necessarily obstacles but can be essential moments for deepening therapeutic insight. A why-to rather than a how-to book, Putting the Psychoanalytic Frame to Work aims to invigorate the practice of analysts everywhere—both seasoned and in training.

A Therapist's Guide to Child Development

The Extraordinarily Normal Years

Edited by Dee C. Ray University of North Texas, USA

A Therapist's Guide to Child Development gives therapists and counselors the basics they need to understand their clients in the context of development and to explain development to parents. The chapters take the reader through the various physical, social, and identity developments occurring at each age, explaining how each stage of development is closely linked to mental health and how that is revealed in therapy. As an aid to practitioners, this book matches developmental ages with appropriate, evidence-based mental health interventions.

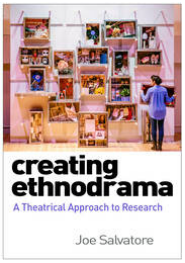
Creating Ethnodrama

A Theatrical Approach to Research



Joe Salvatore New York University, United States

Filled with sample research questions, interview protocols, script excerpts, and staging tips, this book explains the "whats," "whys," and "how-tos" of using ethnodrama as a qualitative arts-based research methodology. Joe Salvatore draws on decades of experience as an ethnodramatist and educator to present his unique, ethically grounded, step-by-step approach. Readers learn how to balance artistry and research as they identify a topic and research question, recruit participants and conduct interviews, code and analyze interview data, arrange findings into a script, stage a performance, and invite an audience to view and interpret the play. Ways to assess an ethnodrama's effectiveness and impact are also addressed.

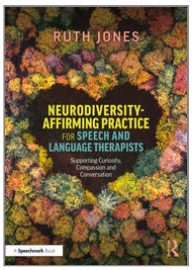
Neurodiversity-Affirming Practice for Speech and Language Therapists

Supporting Curiosity, Compassion and Conversation



Ruth Jones

This essential guide considers what neurodiversity is and what it means to practice in a neurodiversity-affirming way, considering why we should be doing so and, importantly, how to do it. The book moves through the context of neurodiversity in recent times and considers key historical approaches within speech and language therapy. Chapters offer space for reflective practice, before introducing practical strategies to challenge and change how we work with neurodivergent individuals. Throughout, the voices of autistic and ADHD SLTs are included and amplified. It will be crucial reading for all practising and training speech and language therapists.

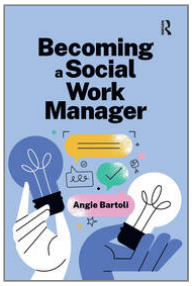
Becoming a Social Work Manager



Angie Bartoli

An innovative guide for social workers who are about to take the next step in their career to become a social work manager, or who may have recently taken on that role. Practitioners will learn how they can prepare for this transition, how it really feels to be a manager, and how to develop their professional identity. Despite the interest in how social work roles are managed and led, the actual experience of the transition to social work manager can be overlooked. Many books written around this topic focus on the skills needed to be a manager, management and organisational concepts rather than how it feels to go through the process and how to cope as a new manager.

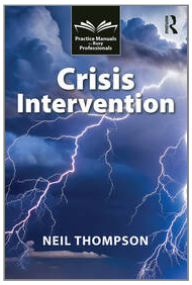
Crisis Intervention



Neil Thompson

Series: Practice Manuals for Busy Professionals

A comprehensive guide to applying crisis theory for effective crisis intervention and trauma-centered care, fostering positive change and improved outcomes. The third edition of this book elaborates on how the term 'crisis intervention' can be commonly misused and how not all crises are emergencies, and not all emergencies are crises. Understanding this fundamental difference can prove invaluable in terms of taking the appropriate action, improving practice and ultimately helping service users. The book therefore offers clear practical guidance about how to make use of crisis theory to positive effect, including situations involving trauma.

The Anti-Racist Social Worker in Practice

Edited by Nimal Jude , Tanya Moore , Glory Simango

This book is the 'how to' of anti-racist practice for social workers and social care practitioners. Much of the current literature and training discusses the meaning and importance of anti-racist practice and there is consensus among social workers that this understanding should be built into practice. But practitioners still lack confidence in their own ability to find the words and actions to address experiences of racism and marginalistion.

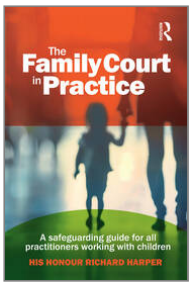
The Family Court in Practice

A safeguarding guide for all practitioners working with children



Richard Harper

Written by an experienced former senior judge of the family court, this practical guide provides all students and practitioners working with children with a clear understanding of safeguarding good practice and the principles and proceedings of the family court.Where there is serious risk of harm, it examines how all involved in the community or family court proceedings can place the child at the centre of their practical decision-making. Incorporating the most up-to-date legislation, and emphasising the importance of multi-agency working, the book enables practitioners, and all stakeholders, to better understand the workings of the family court.

Everyday Community Practice

Principles and practice

Amanda Howard , Margot Rawsthorne

This book provides a practical but sophisticated exploration of community development practice and is an accessible, relevant, and contextualised guide for those studying social work and human services in Australia. Enabling students to feel better supported in challenging dominant individualised practice frameworks, it argues strongly that only collective action (supported by community development practice) can address significant social challenges such as those created by climate change, poverty, and social exclusion.

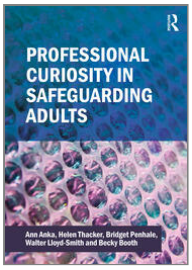
Professional Curiosity in Safeguarding Adults



Ann Anka , Helen Thacker , Bridget Penhale , Walter Lloyd-Smith , Becky Booth

A practical guide for students studying social work, nursing and allied health and social care that focuses on professional curiosity and partnership work in safeguarding adult's practice. Professional curiosity is an essential element in practice. However, there is a scarcity of information and guidance materials to support students and practitioners on the topic. This book aims to consider the post-pandemic landscape and the legal policy context of partnership work as it fills the gap and provides a detailed examination of definitions surrounding professional curiosity and what that means to those working with vulnerable adults.

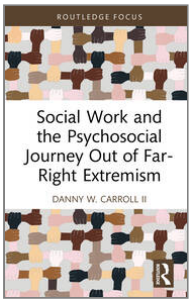
Social Work and the Psychosocial Journey Out of Far-Right Extremism



Danny W. Carroll II

Series: Skills for Social Work Practice

Over the last 30 years, domestic far-right extremism has risen to become the greatest threat to peace and safety in the United States. In the last few years alone, racialized, minoritized, and marginalized individuals and communities have been increasingly forced to feel the pain and experience the consequences of domestic far-right terrorism. Supposing academics, community leaders, and elected officials seek to combat the rising threat of far-right extremism in the United States, a greater focus must be paid to the lived experiences of men and women seeking to exit extremist groups.

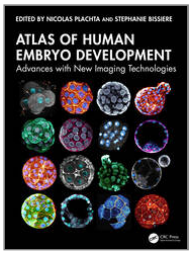
Atlas of Human Embryo Development

Advances with New Imaging Technologies



Nicolas Plachta , Stephanie Bissiere

This exciting atlas shows with unprecedented resolution the development of the human embryo from fertilization to pre-implantation. Technology now captures dynamic subcellular changes driving embryogenesis, allowing the team to move from traditional imaging of fixed specimens or classic light microscopy to seeing, as if in 3D and real time, the process of fertilization, development, and defects. Human embryo research documented here is of paramount importance for reproductive health, advancing fertility treatments, genetic disease prevention, and our understanding of early human development—offering new possibilities for improving reproductive medicine and embryo research.

Interdisciplinary Rheumatology: Rheumatology and Dermatology

Edited by Noelle A. Rolle , Nancyanne M. Schmidt , Alexandra J. Coromilas

Series: Interdisciplinary Rheumatology

Ask rheumatologists what is one of the things that they desire most and they'll often say: I wish I knew more about other areas so I could care for patients whose disease manifestations cross over into other specialties. This is especially true of patients whose rheumatologic conditions have dermatology manifestations or are closely linked to dermatologic disease. The intersection between them lends well to interdisciplinary care, and rheumatologists, dermatologists and primary care physicians have the opportunity to expand their knowledge through the expertise shared in this book.

Edited by Salvatore Brugaletta , Manel Sabaté

This handbook is a practical guide for interventional cardiology procedures, providing a fast-access reference tool to be consulted in daily practice in the cath lab. Interventional cardiology has become a complex speciality, and this book's 'procedure-oriented' structure will help readers to deploy diagnostic and management strategies and familiarise themselves with procedures and tools. Written by experts in their fields with passion for their daily work, this must-have handbook is an invaluable resource for practising clinicians, fellows and professionals in every cath lab to understand and perform these complex procedures for safety and efficacy.

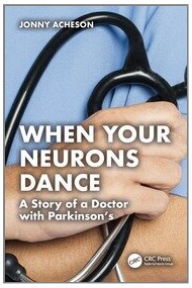
When Your Neurons Dance

A Story of a Doctor with Parkinson's



Jonny Acheson

As an Emergency Medicine Consultant in one of the busiest departments in the UK, Dr Jonny Acheson loved his job. Fuelled by adrenaline, he treated some of the sickest patients who came through the doors. In 2016 at fourty-one he was diagnosed with Parkinson's, a progressive neurological condition. The environment that he once thrived in now made his symptoms worse. Parkinson's challenged his professional identity as an emergency doctor, and he didn't know what to do. When Your Neurons Dance is about how he is adapting over time with support around him. How he looked to the past to help him in the present, embracing change as new doors opened both inside and outside medicine.

Nutraceuticals in Respiratory and Pulmonary Diseases

Edited by Deepika Saini , Rajesh K. Kesharwani , Raj K. Keservani

Series: AAP Advances in Nutraceuticals

Explores the nutraceuticals that are effective in managing and treating respiratory diseases. It explains nutritional supplements that function as adjuvants for respiratory health and which may be useful targets for developing innovative nutraceutical-active respiratory products. It discusses the role of vitamins, minerals, and functional foods in the prevention and treatment of respiratory illnesses such as asthma, bronchitis, airway constriction, chronic obstructive pulmonary disorder (COPD), etc. It uncovers how different nutraceuticals have targeted various cellular and molecular pathways involved in the pathogenesis of COPD.

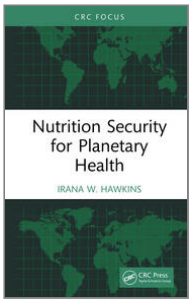
Nutrition Security for Planetary Health



Irana Hawkins Public Health Program, Walden University, Minneapolis, USA

Using the lens of nutrition security and equity for the living beings and living systems of the planet, Nutrition Security for Planetary Health takes an integrated, systems approach that not only delineates the antecedents of the multifaceted environmental crises—but offers solutions including the extensive co-benefits of whole plant foods nutrition as the foundational dietary pattern for improving planetary health. Overlooked yet inseparable problems that connect food systems to the transgression of our planetary boundaries, chronic disease, and zoonotic disease are discerned.

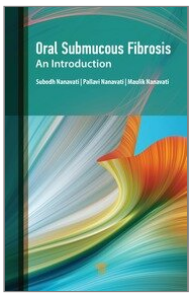
Oral Submucous Fibrosis

An Introduction



Subodh Nanavati , Pallavi Nanavati , Maulik Nanavati

This book establishes the gold standard reference text in the field of oral pre-malignant disorder—oral submucous fibrosis (OSF). In this book, the authors present the clinical studies, extensive research, and pioneering surgical treatments garnered during their work of four decades on OSF in three volumes—the fundamentals (volume 1), diagnosis and treatment (volume 2), and molecular biology (volume 3). The three groundbreaking handbooks present up-to-date and expanded content on OSF in an easily understandable manner.

Narrative Medicine

A Guidebook to Transforming Hearts and Minds

Edited by Julia Bruckner , Anjali Dhurandhar , Eve Makoff

Healthcare workers witness immense suffering daily. As receivers of illness stories, they see humans at their most vulnerable. Narrative medicine offers a way to deepen compassion, enhance self-reflection, reduce burnout, and improve patient care. Practical and accessible, this book expands access to narrative medicine, making its principles straightforward and its implementation manageable. Issues of diversity and inclusivity are woven throughout, highlighting often-overlooked voices and those who suffer most.

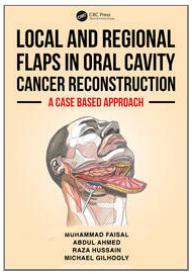
Local and Regional Flaps in Oral Cavity Cancer Reconstruction

A case-based approach



Muhammad Faisal , Abdul Ahmed , Raza Hussain , Michael Gilhooly

Oral cavity cancers present unique challenges due to the intricate anatomy and essential functions of this region. Optimal functional and aesthetic restoration involving complex reconstructive options for partial or full thickness defects are required when treating such conditions.The authors share their extensive experience in head and neck reconstruction within this well illustrated text. Drawing on case examples and sharing their expertise, the many options for reconstruction are reviewed and discussed.

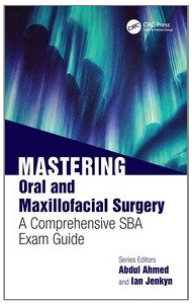
Mastering Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery

A Comprehensive SBA Exam Guide



Abdul Ahmed , Ian Jenkyn

Final membership exams can be a challenge for trainees, particularly with the increasing prevalence of single best answer (SBA) components. Many candidates struggle with this format due to a lack of targeted resources aligned with the oral and maxillofacial surgery syllabus. This revision tool bridges that gap, providing expertly curated SBA practice questions designed to enhance understanding and exam technique. Mastering SBA Questions in Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery includes dedicated sections on head and neck surgery, facial aesthetics, cleft lip and palate, and advanced oral surgery techniques; tailored to both trainees and experienced surgeons alike.

A Compassionate Calling

What It Really Means to be a Veterinarian

Marie Holowaychuk

A Compassionate Calling offers an unflinching and deeply personal look into the realities of the veterinary profession. Dr. Marie Holowaychuk weaves candid personal stories with evidence-based insights from published research. In 40 concise and thought-provoking chapters, she explores the hidden curriculum of veterinary school, the toll of on-call work, the emotional impact of euthanasia, the challenges of practicing during a pandemic, and many other important topics. Marie also tackles pressing issues like diversity, equity, inclusion, and the evolving dynamics of pet insurance and corporatization in veterinary medicine.

Veterinary Controversies and Ethical Dilemmas

Provocative Reflections on Clinical Practice

Series: CRC One Health One Welfare

This book identifies increasing concerns with the veterinary profession and confronts them provocatively, with a view to stimulating positive change. With experienced contributors from around the world, each chapter combines personal story with evidence-based reflections. The book identifies key concerns with the profession's current trajectory and presents them with candour, from the perspective of concerned veterinarians. Ideal for use within the veterinary curriculum to stimulate undergraduate thought and discussion, this book will also be a valuable reference for practitioners as the veterinary profession comes to terms with life in a post-truth era.

Australian Mammals

Biology and Captive Management

Edited by Stephen M. Jackson Australian Museum

Australian Mammals: Biology and Captive Management is a complete guide to the husbandry of all groups of Australian mammals. This second edition has been updated based on the latest research, bringing together current knowledge of the biology and behaviour of each species in captive situations and providing guidance for hand rearing. It covers advances from the last 20 years, including developments in assisted breeding, genetic techniques, updated taxonomy and the importance of Australian mammal welfare, both physical and mental. Australian Mammals provides practical guidance for zookeepers, veterinarians, zoologists, researchers and students.

Crisis Gardening

A Global Perspective

Edited by Jonathan Kingsley Swinburne University of Technology, Monika Egerer Technical University of Munich

Series: Advances in Agroecology

Crisis gardening can be linked to transformative change in food systems through socio-ecological aspects of agroecology. A global synthesis that provides diverse perspectives from scholars around the world will provide an overview of gardening during crises with ties to agroecology. Such a perspective is critical as we grapple with food system crises, pandemics, climate change, biodiversity loss, mental health issues and political conflict globally. The aim of this edited volume is to bring together leaders and experts (academics, policy makers and practitioners) to provide case studies of crisis gardening and to develop recommendations to harness the lessons from this practice.

Edited by Qamre Alam , Misbahuddin Rafeeq , Muhammad Umair Khan

This book provides an overview of the field of molecular diagnostics, tracing its evolution from the earliest days of genetic research to the cutting-edge advancements. It provides historical foundations to advanced technologies like PCR, next-generation sequencing, and bioinformatics. It highlights the impact of high-throughput technologies, nanotechnology, and AI in diagnostics, along with developments in molecular imaging, RNA analysis, metabolomics, and proteomics. The book also addresses the ethical and regulatory challenges in the fields of molecular diagnostics. This book is intended for professionals and researchers in molecular diagnostics, biotechnology, and genomics.

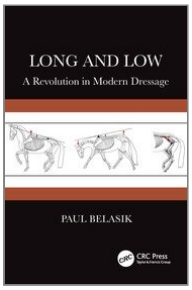
Long and Low

A Revolution in Modern Dressage



Paul Belasik Pennsylvania Riding Academy

This short book examines the history, origins and unintended consequences of the commonly used and widely accepted practice of "long and low" riding and training in dressage. International rider, trainer, writer and teacher Paul Belasik explains the little-known origins of the mysterious practice that has evolved into a major modern-day controversy. Long and low riding has negative effects on the quality of dressage at the highest levels of the sport and widespread confusion for riders of all levels. This important book seeks to educate riders on why it is taught, where it came from, and how the unintended consequences have played out for riders all over the world.

Shrimp and Prawn Welfare in the Wild-Caught Fishing Industry

A Global Review and Recommendations for Research and Policy

Ren Ryba AnimalAsk, Shannon M Davis Shrimp Welfare Project, Yip Fai Tse Independent Researcher, Peter Singer Emeritus Prof., Princeton Univ.

This book delves into the ethical implications of the probability that shrimp and prawns are capable of feeling pain. The authors provide a new dataset of the estimated numbers of individual shrimp caught by country and species, using this to describe the shrimp fishing industry in the world's top 30 countries by estimated catch. The book suggests ways that policymakers could improve wild-caught shrimp welfare, from installing electrical stunning equipment in large-scale trawl fisheries to improving supply chain practices in small-scale fisheries. It provides a roadmap for future research and policy to address this urgent, emerging challenge.

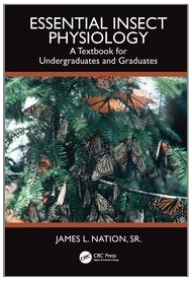
Essential Insect Physiology

A Textbook for Undergraduates and Graduates



James L. Nation, Sr. University of Florida, Gainesville, USA

This textbook is the first to teach insect physiology and biology specifically to students who lack a strong background in biochemistry and molecular biology. Avoiding taxonomic language and supported with high-quality figures, chapter summaries, end-of-chapter review questions and a suite of PowerPoint slides for use in teaching, it describes the fundamental processes. These include molting and metamorphosis, digestion of food, nerve and muscle function, flight, biological rhythms, circulation and breathing, immunity, and how climate and climate change has, and is, affecting insects.

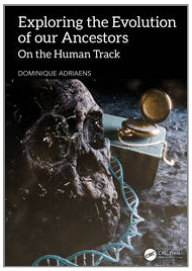
Exploring the Evolution of our Ancestors

On the Human Track



Dominique Adriaens

This book provides an understanding of why we look the way we do, by delving into the functional explanations for the unique characteristics of us and our ancestors and the evolutionary pathways that shaped them. Integrating changes in anatomy with functional shifts, but also with underlying genetic and environmental transformations that drove our evolution. Focusing on four fundamental themes: diet, brain, locomotion and skin. This book not only promises to enrich our understanding of human evolution but also challenges us to reconsider what it means to be human in the light of our ancient lineage and ongoing evolutionary journey.

Advancements in Colorectal Cancer

Edited by Firdos Alam Khan

This book provides a comprehensive exploration of Colorectal Cancer (CRC), covering its development, cellular and molecular pathologies, diagnostic methods, treatment modalities, challenges, and future research directions. The introductory chapters provide foundational aspects of colorectal cancer, historical evolution, prevalent symptoms, and underlying causes. The chapters present intricate pathology of colorectal cancer, delving into microscopic analysis techniques, and covers various classifications and various stages of CRC. As such, this book is an important source for researchers, students of cancer research, and oncologists.

Algal Biomass Technology and Research

Sustainable Solutions in Diverse Industries, Volume 2: Algal Biomass for Environmental and Sustainable Biorefinery Applications

Edited by Dipankar Ghosh , Onkar Nath Tiwari

Describes advances and emerging issues in the use of algal biomass in various fields, with special emphasis on metabolic engineering and synthetic biological involvement to increase efficacy of algal biomass toward sustainable solutions. It focuses on sustainable biorefinery methods based on algae for the treatment of wastewater, for desalination, for bioenergy production, for lignocellulosic waste biomass utilization, and for environmental bioremediation. It covers the connections between traditional and cutting-edge technologies, emphasizing the production of all types of algal biomass, with a focus on the bioengineering component.

Algal Biomass Technology and Research

Sustainable Solutions in Diverse Industries, Volume 1: Algal Biomass for Food, Agriculture, and Pharmaceutical Applications

Edited by Dipankar Ghosh , Onkar Nath Tiwari

Describes advances and emerging issues in the use of algal biomass in various fields, with special emphasis on metabolic engineering and synthetic biological involvement to increase efficacy of algal biomass toward sustainable solutions. It elaborates on the impact of process parameters and phytohormones to improve algal biomass generation in food, pharmaceutical, nutraceutical, and agriculture industries, providing consideration of the engineering, biological design, and applications of algal biomass along with relevant implementations. It includes review on potential aspects of algal biomass and the sustainable usage of algal biomass for food processing, and more.

Antimicrobials in Animal Husbandry

Edited by Arti Gupta , Ram Prasad

Series: Current Trends in Antimicrobial Research

Although most antibiotic use occurs in agricultural settings, relatively little attention has been paid to how antibiotic use in farm animals contributes to the overall problem of antibiotic resistance. The global spread of antimicrobial-resistant pathogenic bacteria is a continuing challenge to the health care of humans and domesticated animals.This book discusses antimicrobial resistance mechanisms relevant to food-producing animals. Readers can benefit from using Antimicrobial in Animal Husbandry as a resource that addresses microbial biotechnology, microbiology, toxicology, and all disciplines related to antimicrobial research.

Artificial Intelligence and Animal Ecology

A Review

Edited by Lidia Ghosh , Amiyangshu De

The volume explores AI's transformative role in addressing ecological challenges and enhancing our understanding of the natural world. It highlights how species' ecological behavior have enriched AI's adaptive capabilities, aiding in the analysis of habitat, navigation, and communication. The book emphasizes a symbiotic relationship between AI and species, showcasing innovative solutions to ecological problems while promoting an ethical and conservation-focused approach to preserving the natural environment.

Asian Citrus Industry

Growth and Sustainability

Edited by Dilip Kumar Ghosh , Kwan Jeong Song , Sangeeta Bhattacharyya , Subhra Saikat Roy , Chandrika Ramadugu

The citrus industry plays a crucial role in the economies and agricultural landscapes of many Asian countries, contributing significantly to global citrus production and trade. Asian Citrus Industry: Growth and Sustainability provides a comprehensive analysis of the citrus sector across 14 major citrus-producing Asian nations, including China, India, Japan, Korea, Thailand, Bhutan, Nepal, Turkey, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Vietnam, Iran, Sri Lanka, and Indonesia. This book presents an in-depth exploration of the historical evolution, production trends, key challenges, and opportunities shaping the citrus industry in Asia.

Biology of Rabbitfishes

Edited by Andrew Scott Hoey James Cook University, Townsville, Australia, Brett McCully Taylor Uni of Guam Marine Lab.

Rabbitfishes (family Siganidae) are an often overlooked group of fishes in coral reef and seagrass ecosystems native to the tropical and subtropical Indo-Pacific region. Known broadly as herbivores with low comparative species diversity among tropical fishes, what makes rabbitfishes distinctive and how do these traits contribute to their ecological significance? This book delves into the biology, ecology, evolution, and behaviour of rabbitfishes and explores recent invasions into new habitats, their role in fisheries and aquaculture, and highlights promising directions for future research on these essential marine species.

Biotechnological Potential of Ascidians

Wacky and Weird Sea Squirts

Edited by Ramasamy Santhanam

Provides latest information on the biotechnological potential of the as-yet understudied world of ascidians (sea squirts). It covers aspects of ascidians such as species diversity, ecology, and biology and then proceeds to explore their diverse uses. The book deals with their many biotechnological applications in the production and development of human food and as feed for aquatic farmed animals; for their therapeutic values from natural compounds in medicine; for their production of pure and high-quality cellulose that can be used in industrial products and by-products; for their bioremediating agents against marine pollution.

Brain Networks in Neuroscience: Personalization Unveiled Via Artificial Intelligence

Edited by Md. Mehedi Hassan , Farhana Yasmin , Sheikh Mohammed Shariful Islam , Anupam Kumar Bairagi , Si Thu Aung

Series: River Publishers Series in Biotechnology and Medical Research

This book is an in-depth exploration of brain networks, providing a comprehensive understanding of their structures, functions, and implications for personalization through artificial intelligence. Readers will gain insights into the intricate workings of the brain, making this book an indispensable resource for those seeking a thorough grasp of neuroscience concepts. It offers the seamless integration of neuroscience principles with artificial intelligence applications. The book bridges these two domains, elucidating how advancements in AI draw inspiration from the complexities of the human brain.

Essential Laboratory Techniques and Biochemical Analysis

Edited by Darshan Malik , Nandita Narayanasamy , V.A. Pratyusha

This book talks about essential laboratory practices and biochemistry protocols, focusing on spectrophotometry, including the Lambert-Beer law and various assays for analyzing biomolecules. It also provides methods for staining and mounting biological samples, as well as using different types of microscopy. The protocols cover the analysis of carbohydrates, amino acids, proteins, and lipids, including their extraction and quantification. Additionally, it introduces enzyme purification techniques, activity assays, and hematology methods such as blood smear preparation and differential leucocyte counting.

Fenugreek

Improvement in Yield Potential through Plant Growth Regulators (PGRs) and Depolymerized Polysaccharides

Edited by Tariq Ahmad Dar , Bilal Ahmad , Moinuddin , Khalid Rehman Hakeem

Offers review of fenugreek, highlighting its nutritional and medicinal applications while discussing methods for enhancing its yield and quality by improving the growth, physiological, and biochemical parameters of the plant. It discusses the origin and geographical distribution of fenugreek. It covers the characterization of bioactive compounds (BACs) in fenugreek and then presents effective methods to enhance the yield and quality. It examines the effect of plant growth regulators on growth and yield and looks at methods for heavy metal, biotic, and salinity stress alleviation in fenugreek.

Gene and Cell Therapy

Therapeutic Mechanisms and Strategies

Edited by Graca Almeida-Porada , Anthony Atala

This book presents extensive background and basic information, state-of-the-art technologies, important achievements, and lingering challenges in the fields of gene and cell therapies. The fifth edition of this bestseller continues to provide the most comprehensive coverage of these fields in one volume. Some chapters have expanded introductions, making the book even more suitable for classroom use. This edition also offers more material on the contributors' research efforts as well as current technologies, disease targets, and clinical applications.

Herbal Wealth of the Asia-Pacific

Genomics, Medicinal Uses, and Conservation

Edited by Tilottama Roy , Subhajit Dutta University of Southern Denmark, Sonali Paul Uni of Eng and Management, India

Series: Exploring Medicinal Plants

The Asia-Pacific region boasts an extraordinary variety of herbal plants, many of which are deeply rooted in medicinal practices and cultural traditions. "Herbal Wealth of the Asia-Pacific: Genomics, Medicinal Uses, and Conservation" examines the confluence of tradition, modern science, and conservation in preserving these botanical gems. By harnessing advanced genomic tools and investigating the therapeutic properties of herbal plants, this book connects ancient wisdom with modern scientific advancements.

Innovative Neurodiagnostics and Therapeutics

Understanding and Advancing Treatment for Neurological Disorders

Edited by Pankaj Kalita , Subrata Mondal , Sudip Paul North-Eastern Hill University, Shillong, India

Series: Artificial Intelligence in Biomedical Image Processing

This book explores the latest technological advancements in neurological disorder diagnosis, emphasizing complexities, pathogenesis, and therapeutic strategies. Exploring optogenetics, nanoarchitectonics, machine learning, artificial intelligence, and metal-organic frameworks, it offers insights into cutting-edge neurodiagnostics. Robotic advancements in neurotherapeutics and the interplay of neurodiagnostics and psychodiagnostics are also covered, concluding with the potential of aquaporins as therapeutic targets. It is an invaluable source for neuroscientists, neurologists, and computational biologists.

IoT and Advanced Intelligence Computation for Smart Agriculture

Edited by Mourade Azrour Moulay ismail University of Meknes, Morocco, Jamal Mabrouki , Sultan Ahmad

Smart agriculture is an approach to maintaining nature without compromising the basic needs of future generations, while at the same time improving the efficiency of farming. The main achievements of smart agriculture in terms of sustainable agriculture are crop rotation, controlling nutrient deficiencies in crops, pest and disease control, recycling, and water harvesting, leading to a safer environment overall. Living organisms depend on the nature of biodiversity and are exposed to pollution due to waste emissions, use of fertilizers and pesticides, degraded dead plants, etc.

Microbial Biofilm Dynamics

Contemporary Approaches, Models and Analytical Tools

Edited by Ashutosh Kumar Shukla Ewing Christian College, University of Allahabad, India., Douglas Roberto Monteiro

This book explores microbial biofilm dynamics, their links to oral and systemic diseases, and highlights developmental models and detection methodologies. Divided into three sections, the introductory section covers fundamental concepts, antimicrobial strategies, and novel approaches. The second section explores biofilm complexity through diverse laboratory models, providing a comprehensive understanding of experimental setups. The third section focuses on crucial analytical methods, equipping researchers with tools for in-depth biofilm studies. This book is tailored for researchers, scientists, and students of microbiology.

Plant Tissue Culture

Current Status and Opportunities in a Changing Environment

Edited by Zahid Hameed Siddiqui , Khalid Rehman Hakeem

Explores plant tissue culture in relation to climate change, showing how tissue culture techniques can be utilized to create tolerance to disease and stress, increase growth, and raise yield in plants. It discusses the use of plant tissue culture for producing superior material for planting and creating new, elite varieties of different crops in response to changing climatic conditions. It looks at issues and dangers posed by climate change for plants and offers guidance for sustainable development using tissue culture technology. It also focuses on some fundamental ideas of plant tissue culture, and offers sustainable development alternatives.

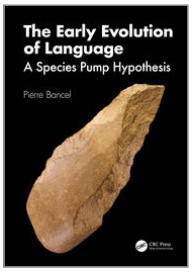
The Early Evolution of Language

A Species Pump Hypothesis



Pierre Bancel

The huge gap between human articulate language and all the communication systems of other living beings has prevented a satisfactory answer to this question up until today. Here, the problem is subdivided into a series of necessarily successive steps. From the climatic oscillations which pumped humans' ape ancestors out of the African rainforest, to the humming stage which still punctuates our conversations today, to the encounter of baby Celeste and his grandpa with a singing cuckoo hiding in the woods, to the emergence and inheritance of kinship terms, then personal pronouns, you are invited to follow this pathfinding quest over 10 million years.

Zebrafish Models of Neurodegenerative Disorders

Edited by Ebru Emekli-Alturfan

This book offers an examination of zebrafish as a translational model for studying the molecular and cellular mechanisms of diseases such as Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, and Huntington's diseases. The first section discussing basic molecular mechanisms of neurodegenerative disorders, biomarkers and therapeutic approaches, detailed exploration of zebrafish physiology, genetics, & behavioural phenotypes as they pertain to neurodegenerative pathologies, insight into cutting-edge technologies, including CRISPR/Cas9 genome editing, and in-depth analysis of zebrafish models.

Biotechnological Innovation and Sustainable Developmental Goals

Fostering Good Health and Wellbeing

Edited by RC Sobti

This reference book examines the role of biotechnological innovations in achieving global health targets, addressing disease burdens, and fostering a sustainable healthcare ecosystem for promoting good health and well-being. It covers a wide range of topics, including the evolution of healthcare technologies, epidemiological approaches in predictive medicine, management of diseases across different organs, emerging technologies in drug development, vaccination strategies, technologies in regenerative medicine, and tissue engineering. This book is intended for researchers, academics, and professionals in the fields of biotechnology, healthcare, and public health.

Biotechnology for Fruit, Vegetable, and Spice Crops

Edited by Pankaj Kumar , Ajay Kumar Thakur , Dinesh Kumar Srivastava

Biotechnology has revolutionized horticulture by enhancing the productivity, resilience, and nutritional quality of fruit, vegetable, and spice crops. This comprehensive volume provides an in-depth exploration of cutting-edge biotechnological advancements that are reshaping horticultural science. With contributions from leading researchers, this book serves as an essential reference for graduate students, academics, and professionals in plant biotechnology, horticulture, and food science. It provides a valuable resource for those seeking to harness the power of biotechnology to drive sustainable innovation in horticultural crop production.

Diatoms and Sustainable Agriculture

Edited by Archana Tiwari , Ashok Pandey

Series: Sustainable Industrial and Environmental Bioprocesses

This book delves into the multifaceted role of diatoms in transforming agricultural practices for sustainability. It examines their contributions to a circular economy, their potential as natural plant growth promoters and indicators of ecosystem health in agricultural watersheds. Additionally, it explores their applications in agriculture wastewater bioremediation, biosensing for plant pathogens, and as environmentally friendly insect control agents. The text also discusses the future integration of artificial intelligence into diatom-based agriculture for enhanced efficiency. This book is for researchers and academicians in mycology, biotechnology, and agricultural sciences.

The Medicinal and Phytopharmaceutical Aspects

Edited by Deependra Singh Pt. Ravishankar Shukla University, India, Durgesh Nandini Chauhan Ishita Research Organisation, Raipur, Nagendra Singh Chauhan , Manju Singh Pt. Ravishankar Shukla University, India

Present book aims to explore the knowledge of Biotechnology and its application in the improvement of quality of medicinal plants. After reading the book students shall be able to know the basic aspects of biotechnology to implementation using processes like genetic engineering in medicinal plants for higher yield of Phytopharmaceuticals and biotechnological techniques for assessing and improving the quality of natural products/medicinal plants. Contributions come from leading scientists from across the globe. Readerships include Natural product chemists, biotechnologist, pharmacognosists, pharmacologists as well as academic and industry researchers.

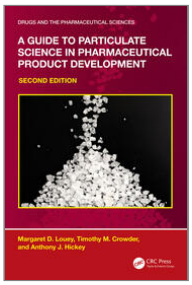
A Guide to Particulate Science in Pharmaceutical Product Development



Margaret D. Louey , Timothy M. Crowder , Anthony J. Hickey RTI International, North Carolina, USA

Series: Drugs and the Pharmaceutical Sciences

The pharmaceutical applications of powder technology have long been recognized. Yet while many books focus on aspects of powder formation and behaviour, there are few texts that explore the power of particulate science in the design, manufacture, and control of quality medicines. This revision discusses key principles and practical applications. The authors cover particulate material, its form and production, sampling from bodies of powder, particle size descriptors and statistics, behaviour of particles and powder, instrumental analysis, particle size measurement and synergy of adopted techniques, and in vitro and in vivo performance criteria.

Quality Assurance and Quality Control in the Analytical Chemical Laboratory

A Practical Approach

Piotr Konieczka Gdansk University of Technology, Poland

Series: Analytical Chemistry

The third edition of Quality Assurance and Quality Control in the Analytical Chemical Laboratory: A Practical Approach defines the tools used in QA/QC, especially the application of statistical tools during analytical data treatment. Clearly written and logically organized, this well-loved volume takes a generic approach applicable to any field of analysis. The authors begin with the theory behind quality control systems, then detail validation parameter measurements, the use of statistical tests, counting the margin of error, uncertainty estimation, traceability, reference materials, proficiency tests, and method validation. .

Plants Secondary Metabolites

Sources and Applications

Edited by Santosh K. Upadhyay , Dev Bukhsh Singh

This book explores the pharmacological potential of plant secondary metabolites, covering their chemical diversity, biosynthesis pathways, and ecological functions. It examines specific classes such as phenolic compounds, terpenes, and anthocyanins, emphasizing their applications across various industries. Furthermore, it addresses emerging areas like plant metabolites as nutraceuticals and innovative techniques for enhancing metabolite production. The book also highlights the importance of fungal endosymbionts and algal sources in shaping plant metabolite compositions. This book is useful for researchers of ethnopharmacology, pharmaceutical sciences, and biomedical sciences.

Bioavailability of Nutraceuticals and Bioactive Compounds

Edited by Chibuike Udenigwe , Xiaohong Sun

Series: Functional Foods and Nutraceuticals

This book provides an in-depth exploration of the bioavailability of nutraceuticals and bioactive compounds. It covers the fundamental principles, assessment methods, influencing factors, and strategies to enhance bioavailability. With particular emphasis on the individual forms of nutraceuticals and bioactive compounds. By bridging the gap between fundamental science and practical applications, highlights cutting-edge research and emerging technologies in nutraceuticals and functional foods. What sets this book apart is its targeted focus on oral bioavailability, integrating perspectives from food science, biochemistry, and pharmacokinetics.

Cereal Grains

Processing Methods for Preserving Nutritional Value

Edited by Sukhvinder Singh Purewal Chandigarh University

This book explores how various techniques influence nutrient content, bioavailability, and food quality. It provides a clear understanding of traditional and modern processing methods, helping professionals optimize grain-based products. This book provides updated information on innovative grain processing techniques and demonstrates how different methods affect dietary value. Helpful for the industrial sector as well as serving as a reliable source for food science and nutrition studies, this book bridges the gap between research and real-world applications, ultimately offering practical and meaningful information for improving cereal-based health benefiting food products.

Edited by Mahendran Radhakrishnan , Anbarasan Rajan

Series: Contemporary Food Engineering

Sensory analysis is significant in food product development, and its importance impacts the maintenance of sensory qualities for food products. While there are many books exploring sensory analysis and its methods, this is the first of its kind to also explore the use of engineering tools and instruments to produce measurable and reliable data. In exploring sensory analysis methods, this book also focuses on the novel computer interface technologies to retrieve human sensory perceptions directly from the human body and convert them into a measurable unit, exploring the present status in computer interface technologies and scope for interventions to overcome obstacles.

Food Toxicology and Safety

Food Manufacturing Related Effects

Edited by Sofia Agriopoulou , Maria Tarapoulouzi

Series: Contemporary Food Engineering

Food toxicology deals with the existence of dangerous toxic components that food may contain, and various food-processing contaminants are formed during the production process as a direct result of traditional and emerging food-processing techniques. This book brings together food toxicology and food safety, linking them to several types of food processing. It addresses the gaps in how contaminants are formed at different stages of food processing, highlighting ongoing efforts related to food safety. In addition, it studies how processing technologies affect food products, explaining the advantages, disadvantages, process operations of these techniques.

How Technological Advances Change Human Food

Edited by Matteo Bordiga Universita del Piemonte Orientale, Novara, Italy, Baojun Xu

Diet is key to understanding the past, present, and future of our species. Much of human evolutionary success can be attributed to our ability to consume and preserve a wide range of foods. Technological advances changed the types of foods we eat. With this consideration, this book weaves together various themes starting from human evolution, moving on to methods of food preservation, and the evolution of cooking methods. Issues relating to sustainability are also reported such as green food processing, vertical farming, and edible insects farming.

Wild Edible Plants

Improving Food's Nutritional Value and Human Health through Biotechnology

Edited by Sergey Gubsky , Olena Stabnikova , Viktor Stabnikov , Octavio Paredes-López

Series: Food Biotechnology and Engineering

Wild plants have been used since ancient times as a source of human nutrition. They are a source of compounds valuable for human health such as phenols, flavonoids, antioxidants, vitamins, microelements, and fibers. When these materials are used as main components of foods, or as additives, they enhance the nutritional, functional and sensory properties. The book will present new developments in applications of wild edible plants as emulsifiers, stabilizers, and thickeners of water-in-oil emulsions in food emulsion-based foods. Covered too, are biotechnological aspects of manufacturing of meat, bakery, and confectionary products and beverages incorporating wild edible plants.

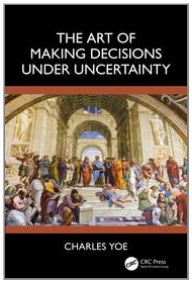
The Art of Making Decisions Under Uncertainty



Charles Yoe Notre Dame of Maryland University, Baltimore, USA

Every organization in the world faces the challenge of making decisions without all the data and information it would like to have. This is the essence of decision making under uncertainty and it is ubiquitous. Student tested before it was published, this textbook provides 30 chapters worth of practical guidance, methods, and tools and techniques to help individuals and organizations to make decisions under uncertainty. The book addresses the challenges posed by uncertainty in a variety of private and public sector fields, providing a structured approach to empower individuals and their organizations to develop a culture of uncertainty that will improve decision-making processes.

Legislating for Risk and Precaution

Bridging the Divide between Science and Law for Biosecurity

Edited by Robert Black Biosecurity Law and Regulation, UK, John Moloney Food and the Marine, Ireland, Andrew Graffham

The book aims to demystify the law for scientists and instructing officials by exploring the science and legal concepts of risk and precaution for national legislation to facilitate safe trade in agricultural products (in compliance with international trade rules). It is not meant to supplant the many authoritative titles on legislative drafting but provide some practical exercises on instructions and drafting for this area of law. It also includes some important factors in legal reform such as the audience for and access to legislation. It has the potential to be a valuable resource for coordinated training of instructors and drafters.

Series: Innovations in Agricultural and Biological Engineering

Provides an overview of ohmic heating as well as various applications of ohmic heating techniques. First providing an introduction to ohmic heating, the volume then presents in-depth knowledge and understanding of ohmic heating applications. Chapters cover the equipment and process design for ohmic heating systems, the effects of ohmic heating on food quality and microbial safety, and novel applications of ohmic heating in food processing. Several chapters address ohmic heating methods and issues in specific food groups, including milk and milk products, fruits and vegetables, and meats and meat products.

Ozone Applications in the Food Industry

Trends and Future Prospects

Edited by Ravi Pandiselvam , Anjineyulu Kothakota , Kaavya Rathnakumar

Presents various uses of ozone in the food industry, exploring and providing in-depth knowledge and understanding of the use of gaseous ozone and ozonated water treatments against bacteria, virus, fungus, and stored-product insects for ensuring food safety and quality. It looks at applications of ozone in several areas within the food sector, including horticultural produce, cereals, meat products, dairy products, and seafood. It examines the effect of ozonation on food composition, color, flavor, and sensory profile. It delves into the practical adoptability of ozone application, application of ozone in polymer modification, regulatory requirements of ozone processing and more.

A New Domesticity

The changing nature of our experience of the home

Laura Mark

This book will question the complex relationship between home and architecture, analysing how we experience our homes and domestic environments. It will critique the established concept of 'home' rather than reaffirming it and look at what 'home' means when technology is changing its very nature. With illustrated examples and case studies, this book is predominantly a student textbook which will link theories around people's experience of the home.

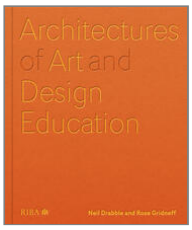
Architectures of Art and Design Education

An exploration of UK and international design schools



Neil Drabble , Rose Gridneff

The Art School has had a fundamental effect on society, both UK and international: influencing how the art world is presented, perceived and interacted with. In this highly illustrated book, the authors highlight how the physical studios and workshops designed for learning, teaching and making, influence and interact with curriculum, creativity, practice and community. Exploring a drastically shifting landscape, it celebrates the crucial relationship between the creative working spaces and the development of creative minds. A timely reflection on the position of arts education in relation to the current social and political landscape.

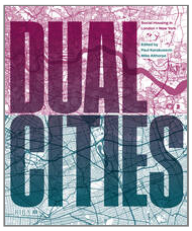
Dual Cities

Social Housing in London & New York



Karakusevic Paul , Althorpe Mike

With comparable global ambitions, post-industrial economies and international demographics, there is much that unites the cities of London and New York. Growing up in tandem and maturing as urban democracies during the 19th and 20th centuries, they have learnt from one another and have both exerted incredible influence on the shape and form of cities around the world. In the 21st century, as both grapple with a crisis of housing affordability and ageing dwelling stock, the two cities are united once more around forging a new era for urban housing and social equity.

New Scottish Houses

Contemporary architecture and living in the landscape

Isabelle Priest

New Scottish Houses: Contemporary Architecture and Living in the Landscape brings together for the first time the best examples of contemporary rural houses in Scotland. Showcasing the new rural vernacular that has developed in Scotland over the past 20 years, it presents this rich seam of architecturally designed houses as a new, exciting and specific movement that aims to be distinctly Scottish. Exploring the fusion of modern design with Scotland's rugged natural beauty, each case study explores a curate collection of contemporary homes that push the boundaries of design – from remote highlands to coastal hideaways.

Professional Studies in Architecture

A Primer

Stephen Brookhouse

For students of architecture, this primer defines the critical subject area of professional studies which runs as a thread through the RIBA validation criteria for Parts 1 and 2. Suitable across the whole 5-year Masters Architecture degree course, it gives students the conceptual resources and tools they need to investigate professional issues. Using short case studies that relate to the RIBA Plan of Work, it bridges the gap between the needs of the student and the overly technical information and sources used by practicing professionals.

The New Luxury

Individuality, quality and sustainability in interior design

Dean Keyworth

This book explores what 'luxury' in interior design means today and how to achieve it, and provides inspirational examples of projects from a range of designers that meet the parameters of quiet luxury. Like many other sectors, interior design can be polarised: the luxury, unattainable end, and the cheap and cheerful lower end. This book disregards this dichotomy and shows how designers can avoid a throw-away culture, cleaving to that idea of longevity and high-quality above the cheap and flimsy, even for those with smaller budgets. Illustrated with beautiful examples of projects.

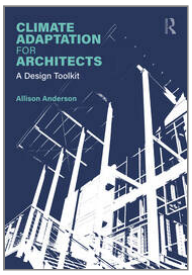
Climate Adaptation for Architects

A Design Toolkit



Allison Anderson

Architecture must adapt to protect people from the threat of climate change. About half of the world's population lives in contexts that are highly vulnerable to climate change as hazards continue to intensify. Climate Adaptation for Architects presents 45 adaptation tactics responding to the most consequential effects of climate change: heat, water, wind, and resource scarcity. Each chapter includes images, definition, background information, key design issues, potential impacts, and resources for further information. This is a valuable resource for all architects, landscape architects, urban planners, developers, and policy makers.

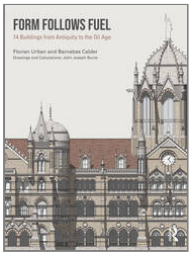
Form Follows Fuel

14 Buildings from Antiquity to the Oil Age



Florian Urban , Barnabas Calder

Consisting of 14 accessibly-written case studies, this book is the first to quantify energy inputs for a range of buildings worldwide and across the historical record. In the process it throws up both detailed challenges and practical solutions to today's ecological crises, highlighting the aspects of today's buildings that make architecture responsible for 37% of human climate-changing emissions, and revealing the enormously lower impacts of historical alternatives to today's default building practices. The book is an important contribution to architectural historical research, written for academics and building professionals as well as for a general audience.

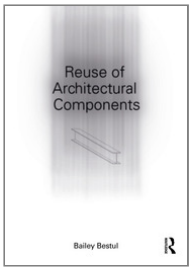
Reuse of Architectural Components



Bailey Bestul

As the need for a circular construction industry becomes progressively more apparent, building practitioners are increasingly turning to salvaged building components to construct new projects. Yet the aesthetic potential of reused materials remains underexplored. Drawing from art history, architectural theory and constructed works, this book develops a set of design strategies practitioners might employ to develop thoughtful, architecturally rigorous reuse projects. It is essential reading for professionals interested in integrating reuse in their architectural practice.

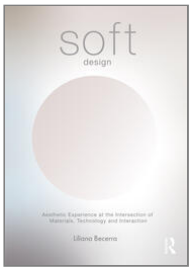
SOFT Design

Aesthetic Experience at the Intersection of Materials, Technology & Interaction



Liliana Becerra

Soft Design explores an emerging design language of emotional aesthetics that merges emotive and sensory design with ancient and new technology to create multidimensional and multisensorial experiences. Soft Design integrates tangible and intangible expression of the aesthetic experience with scientific research. This will be interesting reading for a wide range of design practitioners – interior, industrial, interaction, spatial, digital, sensory, and UX designers – as well as those working in neuroaesthetics and in the converging fields or health, science and design.

Windows

History, Repair and Conservation

Edited by James Campbell University of Cambridge, UK, Michael Tutton

In Windows: History, Repair and Conservation, readers are guided through the history, dating, development, care, repair and conservation of windows by expert authors in their fields. Each chapter covers a different aspect of the subject, from the dating of windows and their separate parts, through to recording and curation of historic windows, their ironmonger and surrounds. Windows: History, Repair and Conservation was the first major book devoted to the understanding of windows. This new revised edition brings the book up to date and provides additional chapters to provide a complete overview of the subject that will inform research and practice for years to come.

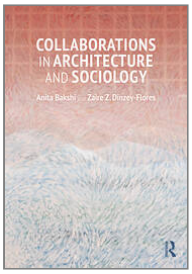
Collaborations in Architecture and Sociology



Anita Bakshi , Zaire Dinzey-Flores

This book, by an architect and a sociologist, addresses the disconnect between the design of the built environment and social life and lays out a pathway for interdisciplinary engagement. Through this collaboration, the authors create a new interdisciplinary orientation and methodology, termed SOCIOARC, that recognizes the relationship of the built form and aesthetics to social experience. Accessibly written and illustrated, this book will be an essential resource for undergraduate- and graduate-level students of sociology, architecture, urban design, landscape architecture, and planning, and all those interested in shaping a more just, equitable society through our built environment.

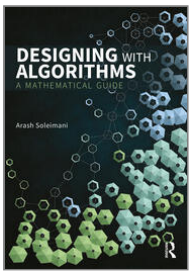
Designing with Algorithms

A Mathematical Guide



Arash Soleimani

Computing is revolutionizing the creative process, transforming how designers approach ideation, prototyping, fabrication, communication, and presentation. Yet, many lack the foundational knowledge needed to fully harness its potential. Designing with Algorithms: A Mathematical Guide bridges this gap, offering a comprehensive, step-by-step exploration of algorithmic practices applicable across diverse design fields. Whether you're a student, practitioner, or enthusiast, this book empowers you to future-proof your design practice and unlock the creative potential of computation.

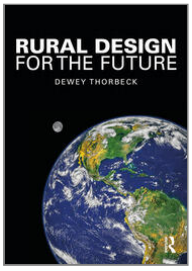
Rural Design for the Future



Dewey Thorbeck University of Minnesota, USA

Design thinking and the problem-solving process of design is a strategic resource. Through creativity, innovation, and entrepreneurship it can help communities optimize limited land and water resources in urban and rural landscapes. To address the problems facing communities, it connects human, animal, and environmental health through design for both urban and rural regions. This book provides a methodology for holistically crossing borders and connecting issues to nurture new design thinking and collaborative problem solving. It will allow designers, architects, policymakers and citizens to envisage the solutions to some of the most pressing issues in rural design.

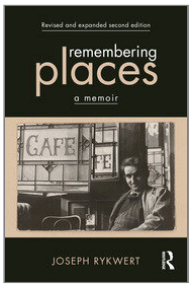
Remembering Places: A Memoir



Joseph Rykwert University of Pennsylvania, USA

Born in Warsaw in 1926, Joseph Rykwert was one of the best-known critics and historians of architecture. One of very few writers to be awarded the RIBA's highest honour, the Royal Gold Medal, in 2014, and author of countless books and essays, his influence over the past 60 years cannot be underestimated. In this new edition of his memoir, he posthumously expands upon the first edition. He spent most of his working life between the US and UK, and worked as a designer, teacher and a writer; as such, his groundbreaking ideas and work have had a major impact on the thinking of architects and designers since the 1960s, and continue to do so to this day.

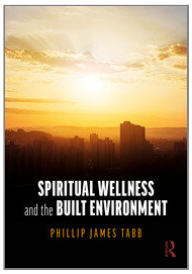
Spiritual Wellness and the Built Environment



Phillip James Tabb Texas A&M University, USA

This book explores spiritual wellness as a foundational attribute to urban planning and design. Chapters reflect the beginning of this evolving movement in home and community design that tackle our uniquely modern problems of sedentary lives, unhealthy diets, stress, social isolation, pollution, nature deprivation, and inaccessibility to spiritually nurturing places. These specific planning and design strategies are presented through case studies from around the globe that highlight the importance of spiritual wellness considerations at all scales of the built environment from rooms to cities. This book is essential to help planners and designers, implement a wellness design approach.

The Shoup Doctrine

Essays Celebrating Donald Shoup and Parking Reforms

Edited by Daniel Baldwin Hess

In The Shoup Doctrine: Essays Celebrating Donald Shoup and Parking Reforms, forty city planners, economists, journalists, and parking professionals analyze three major parking reforms proposed by Donald Shoup. This book celebrates Shoup's decades-long contributions to research, practice, and education, and demonstrates how his ideas about how parking reform can support affordable housing development, lessen air pollution, and reduce automobile dependency. It will be of interest to urban planners, developers, elected officials, students, and citizen-advocates who are passionate about reducing automobile dependency and creating more sustainable and vital cities.

Bridging the Digital Divide in the US

Planning Innovative State and Local Approaches

Edited by Mildred E. Warner , Natassia Bravo , Duxixi (Ada) Shen

Series: Community Development Research and Practice Series

The US faces a deep digital divide that is most marked in rural, low income and minority communities. This book presents a multi-level governance framework which explores how local leaders use policy opportunity and community resilience to address inequity in broadband infrastructure. Case studies from across the US show how local and regional initiatives address the digital divide – how they harness local resources, state and federal funding, and how they navigate regulatory restrictions and financial constraints. The federal policy landscape for broadband is changing, and this book provides clear insights on how policy can support the people and places left behind.

Human Rights and the Architecture of Conflict

Tim Cunningham

Based on interviews with Unionists and Republicans and analyses of never-before-seen documents, Human Rights and the Architecture of Conflict reveals how developers in Belfast collaborated with public officials to marginalize enemy communities. Newly unsealed records link these development decisions to Jim Crow-era policies in the American South that inspired them. A final chapter traces their evolution after recrossing the Atlantic as developers and politicians raced to fortify cities in the aftermath of 9/11.

Informal Housing in the Global North

Exploring Practices, Actors and Processes in a Transforming Housing System

Edited by Jakub Galuszka

Series: Explorations in Housing Studies

Informal Housing in the Global North proposes analytical and conceptual approaches to investigate the progressing 'informalisation' of contemporary housing in the Global North and beyond. Amidst the ongoing housing crisis, the reading of informalities in the so-called North has increasingly disrupted the conventional understanding of local cities as fully regulated, well-structured and formal. By juxtaposing contested, successful, and 'under-the-radar' ordinary housing phenomena across various income levels, this volume seeks to unpack and document the embeddedness of informality in mid- and high-income cities.

Insurgent Urbanisms in the Americas

Edited by Kristine Stiphany , Edna Ely-Ledesma

Insurgent Urbanisms are often seen as spontaneous, grassroots responses to the inequities embedded in urban policies, projects, and systems, operating entirely outside the structures of government. But are they truly autonomous? This book offers a new perspective on the empirics of struggles to design cities that are inclusive and equitable. Each chapter's account of insurgency provides empirical detail about how acts of resistance evolve across housing occupations, grassroots knowledge-sharing, ecological revolutions. This book will be of interest for Latin American and Hispanic studies and for students, instructors, and practitioners of urban planning and design.

Planning Rural Landscapes

Green Infrastructure and Ecosystem Services Nexus

Edited by Natália Cunha , Manuela Magalhães

Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design

Appealing to a broad audience, this book bridges different issues, from landscape to ecosystems, planning to implementation, and policies to local community willingness. This book outlines a methodology for defining Green Infrastructure (GI) in rural landscapes, showing how it underpins Ecosystem Services (ES) and aligns with various EU directives. There are presented examples in Portuguese rural landscapes alongside international initiatives from several countries.

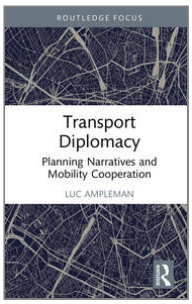
Transport Diplomacy

Planning Narratives and Mobility Cooperation



Luc Ampleman

This book provides a concise guide to navigating, mapping, and understanding the complexity of political mechanisms and narratives behind transport cooperation. This offers practitioners, decision-makers, and researchers a common conceptual approach to the diplomatic dimension of transport planning. In doing so, it envisages transport planning as not only a procedural set of techniques to implement informed mobility solutions, but as a field of managing conflicting narratives and rhetoric by actors with diverging or compatible interests. This book will appeal to those working in transport, mobilities and planning.

Urban Transportation Systems in Emerging Countries

Edited by Mihoko Matsuyuki , Fumihiko Nakamura

Transportation in emerging economies involves unique modes, interacting with urban planning, technology, social equity, and environmental sustainability. This book with case studies from Asia and South America shows complex networks evolving through modern technology and infrastructure development, and interacting with urban fabrics and traditional societies. Major transformations are being powered by new technologies such as autonomous driving and ride-hailing apps, as well as policy innovations like transit-oriented development, while inadequate transportation management often contributes to increasing traffic congestion.

Waterfront Regeneration in a Time of Climate Change

Recent Japanese and International Experiences

Edited by Raffaele Pernice , Tetsuya Yaguchi

Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design

The current climate crisis and the rapid transformation of the natural environments will inevitably pose a threat to human settlements around the world. This book explores possible local strategies and global solutions in the safeguarding of coastal cities and the often-neglected urban waterfronts, in terms of a more effective integration with the city, whilst paying attention to the mitigation of the risks related to climate change.

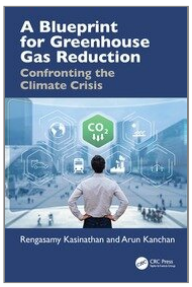
A Blueprint for Greenhouse Gas Reduction

Confronting the Climate Crisis



Rengasamy Kasinathan , Arun Kanchan

A comprehensive book detailing greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions across a range of sources, sectors, and countries, with a particular emphasis on the United States and other developed nations. It presents an in-depth analysis covering the roles of industries, policymakers, and regulatory frameworks in contributing to and mitigating GHG emissions. The authors discuss emission measurement and monitoring methodologies, supported by real-life case studies illustrating how corporations, policymakers, and industry leaders can implement responsible decarbonization strategies. Additionally, it covers the critical verification aspect of enforcing climate policies and regulations.

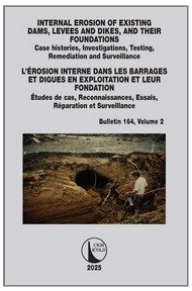
INTERNAL EROSION OF EXISTING DAMS, LEVEES AND DIKES, AND THEIR FOUNDATIONS / L'ÉROSION INTERNE DANS LES BARRAGES ET DIGUES EN EXPLOITATION ET LEUR FONDATION

Case histories, Investigations, Testing, Remediation and Surveillance / Études de cas, Reconnaissances, Essais, Réparation et Surveillance



CIGB ICOLD

Series: ICOLD Bulletins Series

COLD Bulletin 164 Volume 2 presents case histories of internal erosion failures and incidents, and advises on the investigations, sampling and testing that can be used to provide the data needed to carry out analyses of the vulnerability of dams and levees to internal erosion. It also advises on remediation, if analyses have demonstrated that it is necessary, and on surveillance and monitoring systems to check and confirm the continuing ability of the dam to resist internal erosion in the long-term. The Working Group on Internal Erosion has brought together experts from all continents at annual meetings and their work provides the basis for most of Volume 2.

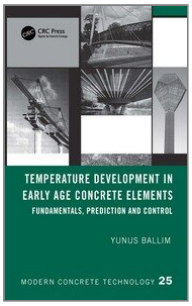
Temperature Development in Early Age Concrete Elements

Fundamentals, Prediction and Control



Yunus Ballim

Series: Modern Concrete Technology

This shows how to predict time-temperature profiles in large concrete elements, resulting from the heat generated by the hydration of cement during the early stages of concrete construction. It explores the concrete materials and environmental parameters that are likely to influence the evolution and flow of heat and related temperature development, and computational finite-difference modelling of temperature development in concrete, together with a number of case-studies offering a rational approach to predicting temperature development in concrete, and adjustments of design and construction approaches to give improved serviceability and durability.

Circularity of Cementitious Materials

Christian Paglia

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

Recycling of building and infrastructure materials are global concerns driven by natural resource preservation and sustainable development needs. This practical book explores the strategies necessary for successful recycling of cement-based materials to achieve sustainable and long service life. It investigates recycled cementitious materials to ensure decisive implementation and meet industry and societal challenges. Aimed at readers in materials, civil, and construction engineering, this book offers guidance to professionals and researchers developing strategies for sustainable application of cement-based materials.

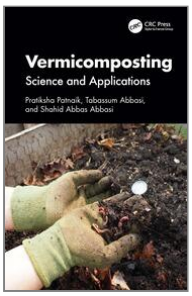
Vermicomposting and Other Zoocomposting Systems for Solid Waste Valorization

Concepts, Designs, and Applications



Pratiksha Patnaik , Tabassum Abbasi , S.A. Abbasi
Pondicherry University, India

This groundbreaking book explores the science and innovation behind zoocomposting—composting facilitated by animals such as earthworms, black soldier flies, and termites. It presents the high-rate vermicomposting (HRVC) paradigm, a revolutionary approach that enables the rapid conversion of phytowaste, even toxic and recalcitrant plant materials, into potent organic fertilizers without the need for pre-composting or manure supplementation. The book details the design and performance of advanced vermireactors, the transformative effects of vermicomposting on plant growth, and the potential of BSF and termites in waste degradation.

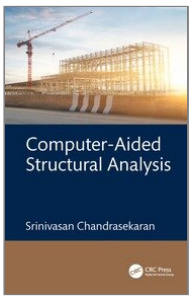
Computer-Aided Structural Analysis

Integration Techniques and Case Studies



Srinivasan Chandrasekaran Indian Institute of Technology Madras, India

Computer-Aided Structural Analysis offers a novel and comprehensive approach to teaching advanced structural analysis using computer programming, specifically through MATLAB®. By focusing on developing fundamental programming skills, this book encourages learners to move beyond the "black box" mentality of commercial software. The inclusion of real-world examples, clear explanations, and practical tutorials ensures students gain not only theoretical knowledge but also the confidence to design their own programs for specialized applications.

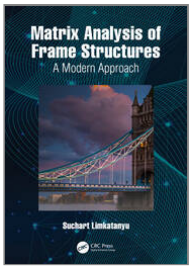
Matrix Analysis of Frame Structures

A Modern Approach



Suchart Limkatanyu

Advancing computer technology has created new opportunities for sophisticated assessment and analysis of structural performance, especially using matrix and finite element methods. This textbook for senior undergraduates and graduate students covers the fundamentals required in any approach to structural analysis, strong form, equilibrium, and compatibility, and with an introduction to virtual work principles to express equilibrium and compatibility conditions of a frame structure, making use of Tonti diagrams. It then sets out in more detail the matrix approach to structural analysis, including construction of the master stiffness matrix.

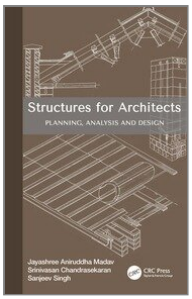
Structures for Architects

Planning, Analysis and Design



Jayashree Aniruddha Madav , Srinivasan Chandrasekaran University of Naples Federico II, Italy, Sanjeev Singh

Structures for Architects: Planning, Analysis and Design explains the basics of structural systems to help architects conceive the structural form and analyze and design in a comprehensive manner. The objective is not to explain the structural analysis and design of complex systems in detail, but to explain analysis and design of structural members in a simple and elementary approach. Presenting basic concepts in a simple manner, the book deals with the presentation of structural systems used in the construction of public buildings.

Integration of Sustainable Development Goals in Water Resource Management and Agricultural Food Production

Edited by Mónica Chávez-González , Ann Rose Abraham , Leonardo Sepulveda Torre , A. K. Haghi

Offers a way forward towards the integration of sustainable development goals in water resource management and agricultural food production. It reviews sustainability goals as a point of convergence across several disciplines to understand common challenges and opportunities in sustainable development goals. The book looks at new research and technology for the development of sustainability in food sources and food production and sustainable practices in agriculture. Water resource management is also addressed, with innovative and eco-friendly solutions for water management, the reuse of wastewater for new products, water purification using nanomaterials, and more.

Limit States of Compressed Concrete Elements by Transverse Deformations

Iakov Iskhakov Ariel University, Israel, Ilya Frolov , Yuri Ribakov Ariel University, Israel

The book deals with experimental and theoretical investigations, forming a basis for design of effective compressed concrete elements by using minimum empirical coefficients. It is shown that transverse deformations can be used as an additional ultimate limit state for such elements. The proposed approach allows also achieving high accuracy of compressed concrete elements design for high strength concrete elements and their more effective performance.

Multiphase Flows in Deformable Geomaterials

Chemo-Physical Coupled Mixture Theory and Non-Linear Thermodynamics

Xiaohui Chen University of Leeds, UK, Manhui Wang University of Liverpool, UK

Multiscale coupling of multiphase flow and multicomponents within a deformable porous medium is complex and interdisciplinary. Chemo-physical coupled mixture theory and non-linear thermodynamics processes can be used to to derive multi-phase transport equations and mechanics. This addresses challenges in existing multiscale coupling theory, and brings together physics and chemistry within the realm of thermodynamics. This book is particularly addressed to geotechnical and geoenvironmental engineering. It covers hydro-mechanical coupling, unsaturated hydro-mechanical-chemical coupling, thermo-hydro-mechanical coupling and thermo-hydromechanical-chemical coupling.

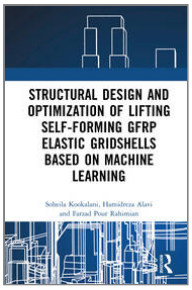
Structural Design and Optimization of Lifting Self-forming GFRP Elastic Gridshells based on Machine Learning



Soheila Kookalani , Hamidreza Alavi , Farzad Pour Rahimian Teesside University, UK

This book aims to develop structural design and optimization methods of lifting self-forming Glass fiber reinforced polymer (GFRP) elastic gridshells based on machine learning (ML). This research introduces novel frameworks for shape prediction, form-finding, structural performance assessment, and shape optimization of lifting self-forming GFRP elastic gridshells using ML methods. The aim is to increase the opportunities for successful projects involving such structures. This book will be of interest to researchers and academics interested in advanced design methods and ML technology in architecture, engineering and construction fields.

Erosion Measurement, Modeling, and Management

Challenges and Solutions

Edited by Abu Reza Md. Towfiqul Islam , Alban Kuriqi , Shakeel Ahmad Bhat , Ahmed Elbeltagi

Emphasizes the various erosion concerns and solutions for dealing with them. It addresses the impact and effects of changing land use and land cover on soil erosion and various methods of assessing erosion as well as ways to control different types of erosion. The use of models such as WEPP model for estimating runoff and sediment yield, along with three models of erosion (USLE, MUSLE and RUSLE and SWAT) hazards are detailed. The book also discusses artificial neural networks and machine learning techniques (random forest), remote sensing data and GIS for mapping soil erosion. Finally, the challenges and limitations for the soil erosion models are also presented.

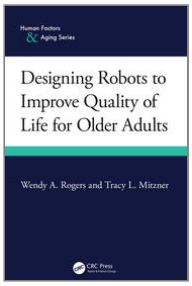
Designing Robots to Improve Quality of Life for Older Adults



Wendy A. Rogers Khan Professor of Applied Health Sciences, University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, Tracy L. Mitzner

Series: Human Factors and Aging Series

This book translates research on aging, human factors, and human-robot interaction into guidance that will be usable for practitioners who design robots for a range of applications. It offers a framework for human-robot interaction (HRI) with a focus on personal characteristics, robot functionality, task demands, and interaction context. The application of this HRI framework for older adults provides the basis for the book. This book is suitable for students at the undergraduate and graduate level as a supplementary textbook for courses in human factors, design for aging, and human-robot interaction.

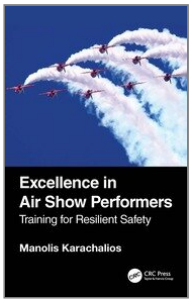
Excellence in Air Show Performers

Training for Resilient Safety



Manolis Karachalios

This book propels readers deeper into the exhilarating world of air show performances. Serving as a comprehensive sequel to its predecessor, Air Show Performers: Safety, Risk Management, and Psychological Factors (9781032556147), it builds upon the foundational insights of the first volume and offers a meticulous exploration of what distinguishes exceptional performances amidst the high-stakes environment of air shows. From dissecting pathways to excellence to unraveling intricacies of resilient safety strategies, it reveals key approaches to safety and good practice for air show performers. It weaves academic research with real-world experiences from seasoned professionals.

Explosion Safety for Industries

Prevention and Protection

Estellito Rangel Junior

This book presents a set of preventative measures, rules, and standards to mitigate the risk of explosions by preventing potential explosive atmosphere formation. Coverage includes risks and hazards, equipment selection, earthing systems, static electricity and lightning protection. Readers will develop a thorough understanding of the science behind explosions and the methods and measures needed to prevent accidents irrespective of their industry. The book is the comprehensive guide for industrial explosion prevention and protection for safety engineers, specialists, and managers as well as physicists, chemists, mechanical engineers and electrical engineers.

2ND EDITION

Handbook of Emergency Response

A Human Factors and Systems Engineering Approach, Second Edition

Edited by LeeAnn Racz , Adedeji B. Badiru Professor, Dean Graduate School of Engineering and Management, Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT), Ohio

Series: Environmental and Occupational Health Series

This fully updated second edition of Handbook of Emergency Response presents practical advice and guidelines on how to plan the coordinated execution of emergency response. It incorporates human factors and a systems engineering approach in emergency response project management. It provides cutting-edge research in developing a systematic structure for communication, cooperation, and coordination. This handbook is an ideal purchase for any student or practitioner of human factors, safety, systems engineering, events management, local or federal governance or those in the emergency services.

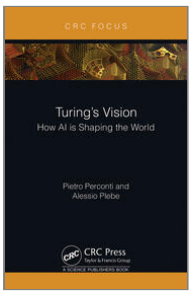
Turing's Vision

How AI is Shaping the World



Pietro Perconti Dept. of cognitive science, University of Messina, Italy, Alessio Plebe University of Messina, Italy

The book argues that, thanks to the recent technological revolution driven by deep learning and generative artificial intelligence, Alan Turing's "vision" is reshaping the world. This vision rests on the idea that intelligence is not an intrinsic property of human beings, but an attribute we are naturally inclined to ascribe to certain entities when their behavior elicits this deeply rooted attitude, which is fundamentally tied to the interpretative practice of language.

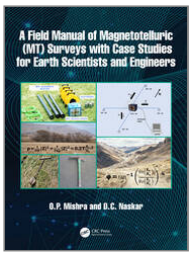
A Field Manual of Magnetotelluric (MT) Surveys with Case Studies for Earth Scientists and Engineers



O. P. Mishra National Centre for Seismology, Ministry of Earth Sciences, New Delhi, India, D. C. Naskar National Centre for Seismology, Delhi, India

This book details both conventional and advanced geophysical techniques with description of physics involved into different methodologies of magnetotellurics (MT). It offers detailed discussions of the theory of EM and MT methods, the operation of specific instruments including the presentation of results and their interpretation in tabular format. The chapters describe conceptual background of MT geophysical methods along with the related instrumentation, sufficient illustrations and applicability of the individual methodology supported by successful case histories. This book is aimed at professionals, students and researchers in geophysics, geology, and other earth sciences.

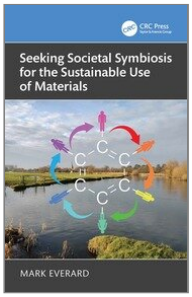
Seeking Societal Symbiosis for the Sustainable Use of Materials



Mark Everard UWE Bristol

This book considers the societal use of materials, historically, in the less-than-optimal present and aspirationally as a central thread in addressing wider sustainable development challenges. It accounts for linked chemical, physical and socio-economic consequences right through value chains, from raw material extraction through manufacture and use and onwards to post-use. Author Mark Everard proposes that the four principal societal sectors – business, government, civil society organisations and knowledge-providers – can optimally work symbiotically around co-created and consensual long-term sustainability goals to accelerate necessary progress.

Industrial and Environmental Perspectives

Edited by Yugal Kishore Mohanta Dept. of Applied Biology, Univ. of Sci and Tech, Meghalaya, India, Bishwambhar Mishra Chaitanya Bharathi Institute of Technology, India, Tamanna Bhuyan USTM, India

This book covers the fundamentals and methods of biologically producing nanoparticles using microorganisms such as bacteria, fungi, and algae, along with optimization strategies for microbe-mediated nanoparticle production. It explores industrial and agricultural applications of microbial nanoparticles and their use in health and pharmaceuticals, including treatments for multidrug-resistant infections and cancer. Focusing on microbial nanotechnology, the book highlights its applications in food, pharmaceuticals, water, and environmental remediation.

Commercial Scale Production of Nanomedicines

Edited by Aliasgar Shahiwala Dubai Pharmacy College, United Arab Emirates, Ajay J. Khopade , Vandana B. Patravale Institute of Chemical Technology, Mumbai, India

The commercial production of nanomedicines involves challenges related to scalability, reproducibility, safety, and regulatory approvals. It is essential to have access to a preparation method that can produce large quantities of nanomedicines in a scalable way while maintaining a consistently high level of quality and batch-to-batch reproducibility. This book provides comprehensive guidance on commercial-scale production of nanotechnology-based products, facilities requirements, and quality assurance. It serves as a valuable resource for students and researchers in pharmaceutics, pharmaceutical technology, drug delivery, drug targeting, and biomedical engineering.

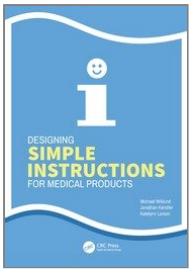
Designing Simple Instructions for Medical Products



Michael Wiklund , Jonathan Kendler , Katelynn Larson

This book presents core principles pertaining to narrative and graphical content and explores the nuances of making instructions – an important part of a medical product's user interface – safe, effective, and satisfying to use.It presents many design principles in an artful manner, replete with interesting, real-world examples. This book will help anybody, from novice to experienced pro, tasked with designing instructions for a medical product. In turn, better instructions should help manufacturers produce demonstrably safe and effective products with clear benefits accruing to the healthcare system and to patients.

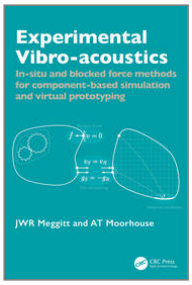
Experimental Vibro-acoustics

In-situ and blocked force methods for component-based simulation and virtual prototyping



Andrew Moorhouse University of Salford, UK, Joshua Meggitt University of Salford, UK

This first comprehensive practical engineering guide to using vibro-acoustic data in a component-based approach to the analysis, simulation, virtual prototyping and 'digital twinning' of machines and mechanical systems. It gives a full set of practical and theoretical tools to characterise, combine and recombine components into virtual assemblies and predict vibration and audible sound, including the in situ blocked force method. Principles of sources, components, assemblies and interfaces are followed by techniques of measurement, data processing and uncertainties, then case studies and a detailed example for design engineers across transport, industrial and building engineering.

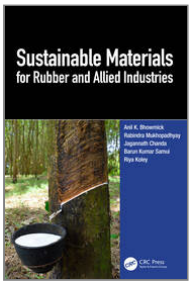
Sustainable Materials for Rubber and Allied Industries



Anil K. Bhowmick , Rabindra Mukhopadhyay , Jagannath Chanda , Barun Kumar Samui , Riya Koley

Traditional rubber products contain rubber and multiple additives; many of these materials are obtained from fossil fuel sources. The need for the use of more sustainable materials in the rubber industry is clear and advances are being made toward this goal. This unique book highlights these developments in the science and technology of sustainable materials in the rubber industry and covers both rubber materials and the ingredients necessary to make a product. This book is aimed at engineers, scientists, and researchers in materials science, chemistry, and related fields who are seeking to provide a sustainable alternative to this crucial industry.

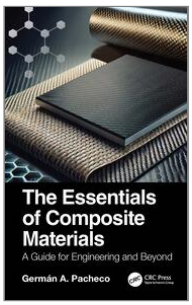
The Essentials of Composite Materials

A Guide for Engineering and Beyond



Germán A. Pacheco

The Essentials of Composite Materials: A Guide for Engineering and Beyond combines the theory of composite materials and their applications, with a focus on the main industries where they are used. Using the author's experience as a naval architect, boat builder, and composites designer, this book offers a guide to the selection of the most appropriate production processes, procedures, and materials for a particular project. It comprehensively covers polymer matrix composites, explaining what composite materials are, their components, and what they can be used for. It serves as a practical tool for readers working in the composite fields as well as those looking to enter it.

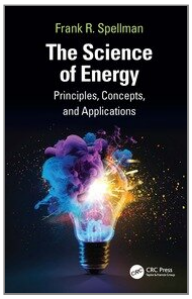
The Science of Energy

Principles, Concepts, and Applications



Frank R. Spellman Spellman Environmental Consultants, Norfolk, Virginia, USA

The Science of Energy: Principles, Concepts, and Applications fills a crucial gap by exploring the science behind today's energy revolution and the environmental impacts of various energy sources. It explains the technologies that produce, store, and use energy, with a focus on sustainability, environmental health, and safety. Designed for students and professionals alike, the book simplifies key energy principles—covering both traditional and emerging technologies. It also examines the role of AI in energy production and sustainability, offering a practical, accessible guide to understanding modern energy systems.

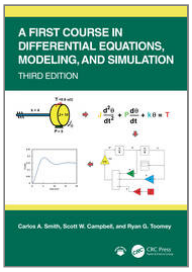
3RD EDITION

A First Course in Differential Equations, Modeling, and Simulation



Carlos A. Smith University of South Florida, Tampa, USA, Scott W. Campbell University of South Florida, Tampa, USA, Ryan G. Toomey

This textbook shows how differential equations arise from applying basic physical principles and experimental observations to engineering systems. Avoiding overly theoretical explanations, the textbook also discusses classical and Laplace transform methods for obtaining the analytical solution of differential equations. In addition, the authors explain how to solve sets of differential equations where analytical solutions cannot easily be obtained. Incorporating valuable suggestions from mathematicians and mathematics professors, the Third Edition provides students with a practical understanding of how to apply differential equations in modern engineering and science.

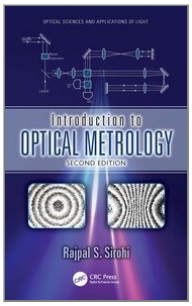
Introduction to Optical Metrology



Rajpal S. Sirohi Austin, Texas, USA

Series: Optical Sciences and Applications of Light

This book describes both theory and practice of optical techniques to measure various parameters encountered routinely in science and engineering. Itexamines the theory and practice of various measurement methodologies utilizing both the corpuscular and the wave nature of light. The primary audience for this book is undergraduate and graduate students who specialize in optics. It will also be useful to researchers and professionals working on optical testing and fiber optic- and MEMS-based measurements. A solutions manual and figure slides are available for adopting professors.

Linear Control Systems in Engineering

Noman Jafri Dean of Engineering, Abasyn University, Islamabad, Pakistan, Imran Shafi Associate Professor, Dept. of Mechanical Engineering, College of Electrical and Mechanical Engineering, National University of Science and Technology, Islamabad, Pakistan, Uzair Khaleeq uz Zaman , Atal Anil Kumar Post-Doctoral Researcher, Dept. of Engineering, Faculty of Science, Technology and Med., University of Luxembourg, Luxembourg

This textbook examines classical and modern control strategies toward systems' best performance, especially concerning design and operations. It simplifies control theory concepts through related mathematics and examples of real-life systems worldwide. The textbook is written for both undergraduate and graduate courses dealing with the subjects of electrical, mechanical, mechatronics, chemical, and aerospace engineering. It will guide the reader through fundamental concepts and practical applications, leading them to explore more complex and advanced topics.

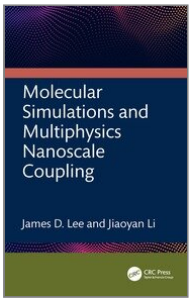
Molecular Simulations and Multiphysics Nanoscale Coupling



James D. Lee George Washington University, USA, Jiaoyan Li University at Buffalo, USA

This focuses on the theoretical foundations and numerical methods for the studying the behavior of materials and the coupling of mechanical, thermal, and electromagnetic fields at the nanoscale. It covers the Principle of Objectivity, the coupling of mechanics, thermal science, and electromagnetics, it presents Sequential and Concurrent Multiscale Modeling and CGMD to apply multiscale modeling to the behaviors of materials at nanoscale. It applies analytical and numerical simulation to fracture mechanics at the microscopic level. It suits advanced undergraduate and graduate engineering courses for solid mechanics, fluid mechanics, material science, and chemical engineering.

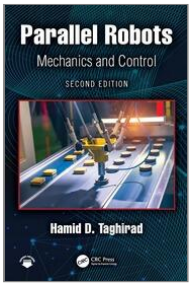
Parallel Robots

Mechanics and Control



Hamid D. Taghirad K.N. Toosi University of Technology, Tehran, Iran

In today's rapidly evolving industrial landscape, robotics has become essential for meeting the demands of large-scale production. Parallel robots, with their closed-loop kinematic structures, offer unmatched precision, rigidity, and load-bearing capabilities, making them indispensable for tasks requiring high accuracy and efficiency. This book explores the unique advantages of parallel robots, providing a comprehensive resource for engineers, researchers, and students interested in mastering their design, analysis, and control.

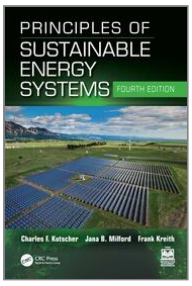
Principles of Sustainable Energy Systems



Charles F. Kutscher National Renewable Energy Laboratory, Golden, Colorado, USA, Jana B. Milford University of Colorado Boulder, USA, Frank Kreith

Series: Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering Series

This book provides students with a fundamental and practical understanding of the energy transition. It discusses the design, production, and economics of energy conversion and storage technologies as well as requirements and technologies for the end-use sectors of transportation, buildings, and industry. This new edition features recent advances in batteries and other storage technologies, electricity transmission, electric vehicles, and beneficial electrification and demand response in buildings. The book is intended for upper-level undergraduate and graduate engineering students taking courses in Renewable Energy, Energy Systems, and Energy Conversion.

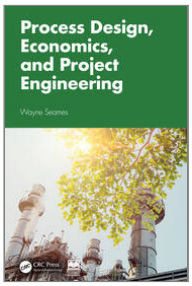
Process Design, Economics, and Project Engineering



Wayne Seames USAUSAUniversity of North Dakota, Grand Forks, ND, USA

The principal goal of this textbook is to prepare process/chemical engineers for careers in a wide variety of process-related jobs. The book will also serve as reference resource for engineers working in the process and process design industries. The book assumes prerequisite knowledge of material and energy balances, heat transfer, fluid flow, and mass transfer but does not require any prerequisite knowledge of economics, process control, process safety, or material selection. It is uniquely organized to follow the project life cycle that is most commonly used by engineering contractors and the operating companies they serve in the process industries.

Transition to Sustainable Energy Technologies

Pathways, Sources, Mobility

Carlo Villante University of L'Aquila, Sonia Dell'Aversano , Stefano Ranieri

This book explains the challenges related to global energy transition, focusing on decarbonization, renewable technologies, and sustainable mobility. It offers a comprehensive exploration of integrated socio-economic, environmental, and technological perspectives and provides actionable solutions and practical pathways for transitioning to sustainable energy systems. Designed to be used in short academic courses, this textbook is an excellent foundational text for upper-level undergraduate and graduate students in engineering and environmental science. Wind Energy Design

Thomas Corke University of Notre Dame, USA, Robert Nelson University of Notre Dame, USA

Wind Energy Design provides an understanding of how wind farm design impacts wind turbine performance and offers rigorous design optimization coverage. It explores the blade design features, including aerodynamics, structures, and environmental impact, that yield an efficient rotor. The new edition features new sections on minimizing the costs of electricity and wind farm design for maximum energy capture. It includes a new case study on deployable wind turbines for defense and disaster response missions. This book is intended for upper-level undergraduate engineering students taking courses in Renewable Energy, Wind Power, Energy Systems, and Energy Conversion.

Advanced Applications in Heat Exchanger Technologies

AI, Machine Learning, and Additive Manufacturing

Edited by Sunil Kumar , Kavita Rathore , Debjyoti Banerjee

Advanced Applications in Heat Exchanger Technologies presents the most recent developments in enhancing heat exchanger performance, reliability, and resilience, including the implementation of Artificial Intelligence, Machine Learning, and Additive Manufacturing. Covering the essential parts of many commercial endeavors, ranging from aerospace to marine applications to oil-and-gas, it discusses various heat exchanger types and interdisciplinary industry applications. This book is intended for researchers and graduate students who are interested in heat exchangers R&D and the diverse range of industrial applications of heat exchanger technologies in contemporary practice.

Advances in Intelligent Systems

Paradigms and Applications

Edited by Manisha Guduri , Uma Maheswari V , Rajanikanth Aluvalu , Amit Krishna Dwivedi , Martin Margala

Series: AAP Research Notes on Optimization and Decision Making Theories

Covers a range of advances in intelligent systems that involve applications of AI and digital automation such as machine learning, deep learning, sectional convolutional neural network models, and more. It covers advances in predictive analysis, like using AI for leukemia detection and classification, an Xception model for the prediction of monkeypox disease, sectional convolutional neural network (S-CNN) model for automated covid detection, and more. A section on electronic circuits and assistive technologies looks at medical image watermarking using RDWT-SVD-DCT for secure medical data transmission in healthcare systems.

Edited by K.M. Soni Amity University Uttar Pradesh, India, Nitasha Hasteer Amity University Uttar Pradesh, India, Aditi Bhardwaj Amity University, Rahul Sindhwani , J. Paulo Davim University of Aveiro, Portugal

Series: Higher Education and Sustainability

This book helps readers discover practical AI tools for diverse learning styles and abilities, fostering inclusivity in education and maximizing the individual potential of students and educators. It provides cutting-edge solutions designed to remove barriers due to accessibility and create an equitable classroom. Through practical applications and case studies, the book explores the power of AI in creating personalized learning pathways and methods of engagement in the classroom while emphasizing that the human touch, with empathy and critical thinking, remains central to the learning process. It addresses concerns about the ethical development and deployment of AI in education.

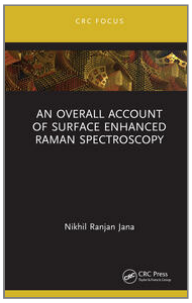
An Overall Account of Surface Enhanced Raman Spectroscopy



Nikhil Ranjan Jana Indian Association for the Cultivation of Science, India

This book covers all the aspects of surface enhanced Raman Spectroscopy (SERS) including brief history of the discovery of SERS and development of the field, basic principles and enhancement mechanism of SERS. It covers first generation (plasmonic nanomaterials) /second generation (plasmonic hot spots)/third generation (via plasmonic engineering) substrate nanomaterials that are developed for SERS, single molecule SERS and designed SERS probes for ultrasensitive detection applications. It further discusses different SERS detection platforms, highlight the issues of poor signal reproducibility and how to minimize it.

Biomedical Textiles

Introduction and Applications

Edited by Mohd Yusuf , Shumaila Kiran

The book discusses the need for flexibility and shape-transformation capabilities in today's textiles, such as to be engineered for insertion through a small catheter or to be expanded within the vessels to allow minimally invasive delivery methods without sacrificing mechanical integrity and healthcare capabilities. It presents the recent research and developments that will benefit academicians, scientists, researchers, and post-graduate students in the field of textile science and technology. The book will prove a useful instrument in the rapid and efficient entry of new researchers in the emerging field of textile engineering and technology.

Series: Routledge Explorations in Energy Studies

This book delves into Europe's urgent quest for energy independence as a foundation for the EU and national sovereignty, economic resilience, and climate leadership. Amid rising geopolitical tensions and accelerating climate crises, it advocates for a bold shift towards renewable energy investments as a pathway to a sustainable, energy-secure future. Offering an in-depth exploration of policy innovations, strategic imperatives, and case studies, the book highlights how decentralized energy systems and local empowerment can drive resilience and self-reliance.

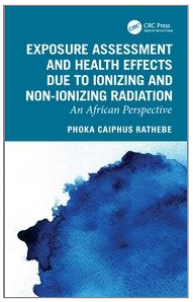
Exposure Assessment and Health Effects Due to Ionizing and Non-Ionizing Radiation

An African Perspective



Phoka Caiphus Rathebe

This book describes and outlines exposure scenarios of ionizing and non-ionizing radiation exposure in occupational and residential settings within the African continent where technological developments and mining activities are the main sources of radiation exposure. To better understand these exposure scenarios, this book focusses on all exposure aspects of both ionizing and non-ionizing radiation in an African continent. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in bioengineering and environmental health, and radiobiology.

Functionalized Materials Applications in Biomedicine

Edited by Petrica Vizureanu "Gheorghe Asachi" Technical University of Iasi, Romania, Seiji Yamaguchi, Madalina Simona Baltatu, Gültekin Göller , Andrei Victor Sandu "Gheorghe Asachi" Technical University of Iasi, Romania, Camilo Zamora-Ledezma , Iulian-Vasile Antoniac

This book offers an in-depth exploration of biomaterials with primary focus on recent developments. It begins by providing a comprehensive background on the basic principles of biomaterials followed by synthesis, properties, and performance of various biomaterials. Subsequent chapters delve into topics such as biocompatibility, the interaction of biomaterials with the human body, and the role of biomaterials in regenerative medicine. It also addresses the technological advancements in biomaterials, novel fabrication methods, surface modification techniques backed by case studies. It is aimed at researchers and graduate students in bioengineering, biomaterials, and materials science.

Global Business Transformation

Innovation, Technology, and Sustainability

Edited by Richa Goel SCMS, Symbiosis International deemed University, IN, Chitra Krishnan , KDV Prasad , Payyazhi Jayashree , Grace McCarthy University of Wollongong, Australia

Many contemporary business models are based on the idea of a circular economy or sustainability. This book brings the discussion of global business transformation to the forefront and highlights the use of modern technology in aiding businesses to become more sustainable. Apart from being a valuable resource for researchers, students, and professionals involved in the corporate business, manufacturing and industrial engineering sectors, this book will also be of interest to those in fields related to economics, psychology, management, strategy, political science, government bodies, sociology, NGOs, and other industrial organizations.

Graft Copolymers for Biomedical and Tissue Engineering Applications

Edited by Rishabha Malviya , Sonali Sundram

Demonstrates possible potentials, presenting groundbreaking work on chitosan-based graft copolymers as well as cutting-edge research on graft polysaccharides as excipients for solid dosage forms. It explores green-synthesized nanobactericides and the use graft polymers to formulate nanoparticles, highlighting the ways that nanotechnology and environmental consciousness are influencing this discipline. It details on improving biodegradability, biocompatibility, and the development of smart hydrogels are included as well as research on bone marrow regeneration applications, demonstrating the significant role that graft copolymers play in enabling innovative biomedical solutions.

Tools, Techniques, and Algorithms

Edited by Ajay Kumar Professor, Department of Mechanical Engineering, School of Engineering and Technology, Rajasthan, India, Sangeeta Rani , Krishna Dev Kumar , Manish Jain

Series: Advancements in Intelligent and Sustainable Technologies and Systems

There is a need to categorize AI applications, tools, techniques, and algorithms based on their intended use in various design stages. This handbook explores various categories with compatible AI techniques, tools, and algorithms together in one place. This handbook fills the gap between R&D in AI and will benefit all stakeholders including industries, professionals, technologists, academics, research scholars, senior graduate students, government, and public healthcare professionals.

Edited by Pushpalatha Naveenkumar , Vandana Sharma , Gunapriya D. , Azween Abdullah Taylors University, Malaysia, Ahmed A. Elngar Beni-Suef University, Egypt

Series: Intelligent Manufacturing and Industrial Engineering

This handbook focuses on system automation, predictive analysis, preventive analysis, and real-time decision-making systems for next-generation automation. It discusses the advancements of mechatronics systems using AI applications along with the global approach toward smart industrial automation and presents the impact of AI on today's work of autonomous and industrial automation. The book discusses future research potential and is beneficial to manufacturing, healthcare, and finance disputes, while it offers AI algorithms to analyze large amounts of data and identifies patterns, trends, and anomalies for accurate predictions and optimization processes.

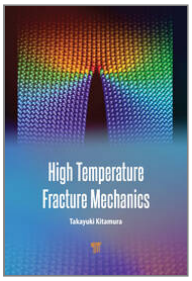
High Temperature Fracture Mechanics



Takayuki Kitamura

This book systematically explains the mechanics of fracture phenomena, focusing on cracking under high temperature conditions. One of the defining characteristics of high temperature fracture is creep, a phenomenon where deformation progresses over time, eventually leading to failure. Additionally, the nonlinear nature further complicates the mechanics of such fracture. This book clarifies the fundamental principles of time-dependent nonlinear fracture mechanics associated with creep. Fatigue failure due to repeated stress or strain can occur at high temperatures, akin to its manifestation at room temperature.

High-Performance Automation Methods for Computational Intelligent Systems

Design and Enabling Technologies

Edited by Vijay Kumar Sharma , Sachin Kumar Gupta

Series: Computational Intelligence in Signal Processing and Automation

The aim of this book is to identify the technological development for future computational systems, which ultimately reflects the more intelligent system. Automation is the need of today's world, and the computational systems need to be upgraded to that level to perform the required tasks. The most efficient computational algorithm acts like a human being and offers a full sense of intelligent automation.

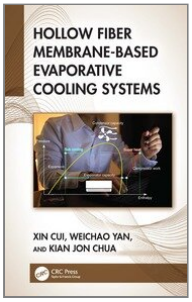
Hollow Fiber Membrane-based Evaporative Cooling Systems



Xin Cui , Weichao Yan , Kian Jon Chua

Hollow Fiber Membrane-based Evaporative Cooling Systems covers the principles, applications, and optimization strategies of the evaporative cooling method. It demonstrates how this technology is a promising solution for fulfilling substantial cooling needs while reducing energy consumption. The book explores how the hollow fiber membrane-based evaporative cooler can solve the problems of droplet drift, mold growth, and air-water cross-contamination in conventional direct evaporative coolers.

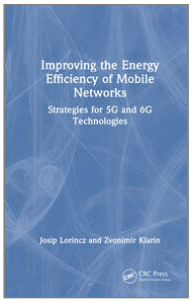
Improving the Energy Efficiency of Mobile Networks

Strategies for 5G and 6G Technologies



Josip Lorincz , Zvonimir Klarin

This book provides analysis of the problem of high energy consumption of mobile networks and describes methods for improving the energy efficiency of mobile networks. It explores new technologies and strategies that will enable mobile networks to operate with less energy and become more sustainable while not compromising service quality. This book is ideal for researchers, industry professionals and scholars who want to gain a deeper understanding of the excessive mobile network energy consumption and contribute to the development of energy-efficient, sustainable mobile networks.

Liquid Metal Batteries

Chemistry, Advancements, and Challenges

Edited by Ram K. Gupta

This book offers a broad overview of the current knowledge and future challenges in liquid metal batteries. It details the fundamental science of liquid metal batteries, materials for cathode and anode, various synthesis methods, and approaches to modify their properties to provide high energy and power densities, along with long life and stable electrochemical characteristics. With chapters written by experts in energy from around the globe, this book serves as a textbook for advanced students and offers new guidelines to researchers and industries working in energy and materials engineering.

Lubricant Technology

Fundamentals and Applications

Edited by Upendra Maurya , Gourav Khajuria , V. Vasu

Series: Application Tribology: Materials, Design, Manufacturing and Testing

The text provides an in-depth understanding of the fundamental concepts and recent advancements in lubricants such as types of base oils used for lubricant formulation and their market, surface protectant additives, additives enhancing lubricant's performance and life, and mechanism of film formation under different lubrication regimes. It discusses important topics such as rust and corrosion inhibitors, emulsifying agents, and physicochemical properties. It is primarily written for senior undergraduate, graduate students, and academic researchers in fields including mechanical engineering, industrial and production engineering, manufacturing engineering, and materials science.

Machine Learning for Semiconductor Materials

Edited by Neeraj Gupta , Rashmi Gupta , Rekha Yadav , Sandeep Dhariwal , Rajkumar Sarma

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

Machine Learning for Semiconductor Materials studies recent techniques and methods of machine learning to mitigate the use of Technology Computer Aided Design (TCAD). It provides the various algorithms of machine learning such as regression, decision tree, support vector machine and k-means clustering and so forth. This book also highlights semiconductor materials and their uses in multi-gate devices, analog and Radio Frequency (RF) behaviour of semiconductor devices with different materials. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in semiconductor materials, machine learning, and electrical engineering.

Machine Learning in Biomedical and Health Informatics

Current Applications and Challenges

Edited by Sudip Kumar Sahana , Rajendrani Mukherjee , Panchali Datta Choudhury , Prasenjit Chatterjee

Discusses topics that include predictive health analytics, pandemic management, AI ethics, application and integration of IoT and ML for effective healthcare, and more. It covers a range of bioinformatics tools and methods and their relation to drug designing and drug screening using ML. It covers clustering techniques and other methods for analysing human heart-related disorders. It explores use of ML in creating adaptive therapies and for tracking diseases like Parkinson's speech, Covid-19, etc. It also discusses medical images analysis and using different AI techniques for solving problem areas in medical images by considering X-rays, MRI, PET.

Microwave Claddings

Engineering Applications

Edited by Sarbjeet Kaushal Gulzar Group of Institutions, Khanna

Series: Advances in Surface Engineering and Tribology

Microwave Claddings presents an effective approach for improving the surface properties of materials, providing distinct advantages compared to conventional procedures like flame spraying or arc welding. It explains how composites, metals, ceramics, and polymers can be coated with microwave cladding to improve resistance to corrosion, durability, and strength. Exploring this promising application of microwave technology, the book demonstrates its usage in various industries, including automotive, aerospace, and oil and gas. The book will interest engineering students and researchers studying tribology, cladding and microwave technology, and manufacturing.

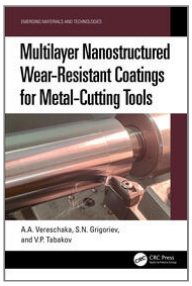
Multilayer Nanostructured Wear-Resistant Coatings for Metal-Cutting Tools



A.A. Vereschaka , S.N. Grigoriev , V.P. Tabakov

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

This reference focuses on the properties of multilayer nanostructured wear-resistant coatings for cutting tools. It provides an extensive overview of modern methods and approaches to creating wear-resistant coatings for cutting tools. The authors present a wealth of experimental data and offer generalizing theories, useful not only in the development of metal-cutting tools with coatings, but also in the creation of nanostructured materials for various applications. The book is intended for engineering and technical workers, as well as graduate students involved in the development, research, and practical application of methods for applying wear-resistant coatings.

From Synthesis to Breakthrough Performance

Edited by Srikanta Moharana Centurion University of Technology and Management, Bolangir, Odisha, India, Bibhuti B. Sahu , Suresh Sagadevan

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

This book delves into the fascinating world of nanocarbon-polymer composites, exploring their synthesis, characterization, and application. It reviews various methods employed to produce carbon nanotubes, graphene, carbon nanofibers, and other nanocarbon materials, shedding light on their unique properties and the factors influencing their synthesis. With an emphasis on scalable and reproducible fabrication processes, the book bridges the gap between laboratory-scale production and industrial applications. It serves as a comprehensive guide for researchers, engineers, and professionals seeking to understand the synthesis techniques used to fabricate nanocarbon reinforcements.

Optimizing Edge and Fog Computing Applications with AI and Metaheuristic Algorithms

Edited by Madhusudhan H S Vidyavardhaka College of Engineering, India, Punit Gupta , Dinesh Kumar Saini

The book covers resource management techniques to enhance resource optimization, security mechanisms and predictive computing in fog and edge computing. Machine learning (ML) can leverage the distributed nature of these fog and edge architectures to perform computation and analysis closer to the data source. The book explores designing ML algorithms that are aware of the resource constraints at the edge and fog layers to ensure efficient use of computational resources. It also examines such security issues as implementing ML algorithms and models to prevent adversarial attacks and ensure data privacy.

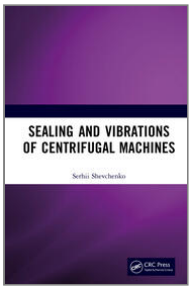
Sealing and Vibrations of Centrifugal Machines



Serhii Shevchenko

Seals are vital to the performance stability of centrifugal machines, influencing everything from sealing efficiency to vibration reliability. This comprehensive guide offers an in-depth exploration of the modeling, calculation, and design of stuffing box and mechanical seals, as well as advanced non-contact sealing technologies.

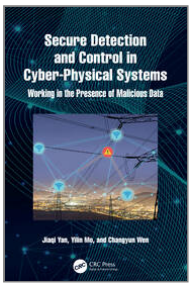
Secure Detection and Control in Cyber-Physical Systems

Working in the Presence of Malicious Data



Jiaqi Yan Institute of Science Tokyo, Japan, Yilin Mo Tsinghua University, Beijing, China, Changyun Wen Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

In this pioneering reference work, Yan, Mo, and Wen explain secure detection and control algorithms for cyber-physical systems; describe their history and development, recent advances, and future trends; and provide practical examples to illustrate the topic. This book is vital for researchers and engineers who are researching and working in the fields of cyber-physical systems, secure detection, control theory, and related topics. It is also hugely beneficial for students in the fields of information technology, control systems, or power systems. Readers should have a basic understanding of linear algebra, convex optimization, and stochastic processes.

Smart Cyber-Physical Systems

Innovations and Real-World Implications

Edited by Ramesh Chandra Poonia CHRIST (Deemed to be University), NCR, India, Kamal Upreti IEC, Ghaziabad, Mohammad S. Khan

Series: Computational and Intelligent Systems

Smart Cyber-Physical Systems (SCPS) are revolutionizing the interaction between the physical and digital realms, driving innovation across diverse fields. This book provides an extensive overview of cutting-edge SCPS technologies, highlighting their applications, challenges, and transformative potential. Designed for researchers, professionals, and students, it offers foundational insights and advanced applications in urban planning, healthcare, transportation, finance, and cybersecurity. It also bridges the gap between theory and practice through real-world case studies and in-depth analysis, showcasing how SCPS addresses critical global challenges.

Smart Grids

Sustainable Energy Systems

Edited by O.V. Gnana Swathika VIT Chennai, Chennai, India., K. Karthikeyan Larsen and Toubro, Chennai, India.

This reference text presents a threat to IoT Security and their Mitigation Strategies in Smart Grid. It further discusses aspects of adaptive demand response management, multiport converter topology and voltage stability in smart grid. Internet of Things-based prioritized load management technique for PV battery-powered buildings is illustrated. Importance of Zero energy buildings, sustainable farming and E-vehicles are discussed. Case Studies on Optimal DG Planning are presented.

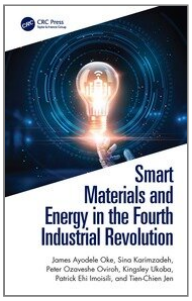
Smart Materials and Energy in the Fourth Industrial Revolution



James Ayodele Oke , Sina Karimzadeh , Peter Ozaveshe Oviroh , Kingsley Ukoba Auckland Park Campus, South Africa, Patrick Ehi Imoisili , Tien-Chien Jen University of Johannesburg, South Africa

This book explores the role that smart materials and energy systems play in driving innovation and sustainability in the Fourth Industrial Revolution (4IR). It covers a wide range of topics in advanced materials science, energy technologies, and the ongoing digital transformation known as the 4IR. By connecting smart materials to large-scale sustainability efforts and clean energy technologies, it assists readers looking for solutions to climate change and global energy challenges, broadening its relevance to environmental policy and renewable energy sectors. It helps readers in materials, chemical, and related engineering disciplines stay ahead and adapt to future industry shifts.

Sustainable Materials and Technologies in VLSI and Information Processing

Edited by Shashi Kant Dargar , Shilpi Birla , Abha Dargar , Avtar Singh , D. Ganeshaperumal

The conference aimed to converge advancements in semiconductor technology with sustainable practices, addressing the critical need for eco-consciousness in the field of Very Large Scale Integration (VLSI) and Information Processing. The primary purpose of the conference was to explore innovative materials, manufacturing processes, and design methodologies that minimize environmental impact while optimizing performance and functionality in electronic devices. Key features of the conference included interdisciplinary discussions on sustainable materials such as biodegradable polymers, low-power semiconductor materials, and recyclable electronic components.

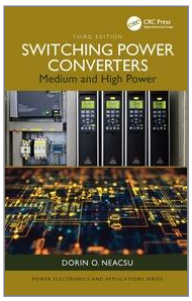
Switching Power Converters

Medium and High Power



Dorin O. Neacsu Woburn, Massachusetts, USA

Series: Power Electronics and Applications Series

The Third Edition of Switching Power Converters goes beyond the design and analysis of conventional power converter circuits to discuss the actual use of industrial technology, covering facets of implementation otherwise overlooked by theoretical textbooks. This edition uniquely presents the historical and market evolution of each technology, allowing the Reader to follow trends. Power electronics represents a mature technology, with a variety of products concurrent on the market, designed and launched from the 1990s to 2020s.

Synthetic Polymeric Materials Based Drug Delivery Systems for Inflammatory Diseases

Edited by Harish Dureja , Vimal Arora , Paul A. McCarron , Vandana B. Patravale Institute of Chemical Technology, Mumbai, India, Kamal Dua

This comprehensive book explores synthetic polymers and their role in designing drug delivery systems for managing various inflammatory diseases, including lung, bowel, and skin conditions, as well as cancer, neurodegenerative disorders, rheumatoid arthritis, and eye-related issues. It also delves into the modulation of immune responses using synthetic polymers and analyzes 3D printing technologies for drug delivery systems. The book addresses challenges and prospects for effective management of inflammatory diseases. This book is intended for researchers and professionals in the fields of pharmaceutical sciences, nanotechnology, and drug delivery systems.

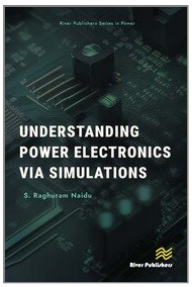
Understanding Power Electronics via Simulations



S. Raghuram Naidu

Series: River Publishers Series in Power

This book introduces Power Electronics by emphasizing computer simulation using the Python programming language. It is primarily a senior undergraduate text but can also be used for a post-graduate course on DC-DC switch power mode converters. It is also a reference for practicing engineers. This book encourages the reader to run the programs and perform numerical experiments. Quite a few simulations in the later chapters have been left as exercises for the reader. Many feedback control issues have been extensively discussed in the chapter on non-isolated DC-DC converters.

Leveraging Fuzzy Logic for Implementation

Edited by Biswadip Basu Mallik Institute of Engineering and Management, India, Gunjan Mukherjee Brainware University, India, Rahul Kar Kalyani Mahavidyalaya, India, Youqing Fan

Series: Sustainable Industrial Engineering and Management Systems

Implementing the circular economy necessitates innovative approaches capable of managing the complexity and uncertainty inherent in the shift from linear to circular systems. Fuzzy logic, a computational approach inspired by human reasoning, provides a framework for navigating these complexities. With its forward-thinking approach and focus on practical applications, this book is an essential resource for practitioners, researchers, engineers, scholars, and policymakers looking to promote innovation and sustainability in today's rapidly changing economic and environmental-conscious environment.

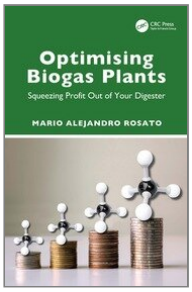
Optimising Biogas Plants

Squeezing Profit Out of Your Digester



Mario Alejandro Rosato Sustainable Technologies SL, Barcelona, Spain

Keeping theory to a minimum without sacrificing scientific rigour, this comprehensive guide offers readers a practical approach to boosting the profitability of their biogas plants. The techniques explained allow for an assessment of a biogas plant throughout its entire life cycle, from critical review of the business plan to the selection of retrofits to recover additional income from the process byproducts. Building upon the laboratory test techniques published in the author's complementary book, Managing Biogas Plants, this text helps readers who are investing in or managing existing industrial biomass plants to optimize processes and profit.

Edited by Beata Mrugalska Poznan University of Technology, Poznan, Poland, Waldemar Karwowski Univ. of Central Florida, Orlando, USA, Tareq Z. Ahram

Series: Industrial and Systems Engineering Series

The world is undergoing a transformation driven by Industry 4.0 and Intelligent Manufacturing Technologies. This book explores the shift from automation and security to well-being and collaboration in industrial systems. This book is designed to captivate managers and researchers in the field of industrial engineering. It also offers valuable insights for students, graduates, and educators focusing on industrial and business management. However, the content is not exclusive to these audiences and will be engaging for any reader with an interest in the subject matter.

Smart Industries in the Gig Economy

Scope, Opportunities, and Challenges

Edited by Iwin S. , K. Martin Sagayam , Digvijay Pandey , G.T. Thiru Arooran , G Bindu , Hatira Gunerhan

Series: Intelligent Manufacturing and Industrial Engineering

This book revolves around the Gig Economy and its multifaceted implications. It takes a broad view by examining the opportunities and challenges posed by the interplay between Smart Industries and the Gig Economy. Smart Industries in the Gig Economy: Scope, Opportunities, and Challenges discusses topics from manufacturing to service sectors, from startups to established corporations, and from localized operations to global networks using the threads of Smart Industries and the Gig Economy to weave a tapestry of innovation and change.

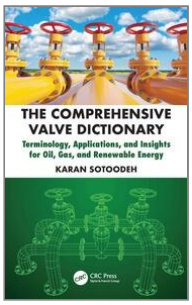
The Comprehensive Valve Dictionary

Terminology, Applications, and Insights for Oil, Gas, and Renewable Energy



Karan Sotoodeh University of Stavanger, Norway

The book is an authoritative and practical reference that demystifies the technical language surrounding industrial valves. It provides detailed definitions of over a thousand valve-related terms, including valve types, components, materials, standards, testing methods, and failure mechanisms. It places significant emphasis on valves used in renewable energy systems, including those for hydrogen production, hydropower, carbon capture and storage (CCS), geothermal energy, and wind power. It is tailored for engineers, designers, manufacturers, and researchers working in oil and gas, petrochemicals, power generation, and renewable energy industries.

A Modern Applied Statistics Guide Using SPSS and Python

Abdel-Salam G. Abdel-Salam Qatar University, Qatar, Jeffrey B. Birch Virginia Tech, U.S.A

Exploratory and Robust Data Analysis: A Modern Applied Statistics Guide Using SPSS and R is an essential resource for students, researchers, and professionals seeking a comprehensive yet practical approach to modern statistical analysis. This book bridges traditional statistical methods with contemporary techniques, emphasizing exploratory and robust data analysis while integrating powerful computational tools such as R and SPSS.

Lectures on Differential Geometry with Maple

Mayer Humi

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

This text is designed to update the Differential Geometry course by making it more relevant to today's students. This new approach emphasizes applications and computer programs aimed at twenty-first-century audiences. The book evolves the course by including topics that are relevant to students. To achieve this goal the book uses numerical, symbolic computations, and graphical tools as an integral part of the topics presented. It is intended for mathematics students, applied scientists, and engineers who attempt to integrate differential geometry techniques in their work or research.

Critical Thinking and Creative Analogies in Statistics, Science, and Technology

Essential Skills for the AI Era

Mark Chang Boston University, USA

Through the lens of critical thinking and creative analogy, this book skillfully blends mainstream perspectives with bold, thought-provoking personal insights, offering readers a fresh and engaging perspective on complex topics. By leveraging critical thinking, creative analogies, and practical examples from statistics, medicine, socioeconomics, education, and technology, it bridges the gap between abstract theory and real-world applications.

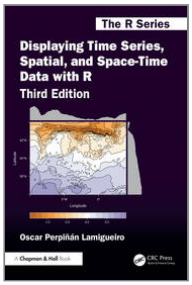
Displaying Time Series, Spatial, and Space-Time Data with R



Oscar Perpinan Lamigueiro ETSIDI-UPM, Madrid, Spain

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The R Series

Focusing on the exploration of data with visual methods, "Displaying Time Series, Spatial, and Space-Time Data with R" presents methods and R code for producing high-quality static graphics, interactive visualizations, and animations, of time series, spatial, and space-time data. Practical examples using real-world datasets help you understand how to apply the methods and code. While the first edition primarily focused on static graphics, and the second edition significantly expanded upon interactive elements, this edition has been thoroughly updated with a modern emphasis.

Exercises and Solutions in Probability and Statistics

Gary Smith

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

Hundreds of engaging, class-tested statistics exercises (and detailed solutions) that test student understanding of the material. Many are educational in their own right—for example, baseball managers who played professional ball were often catchers; stocks that are deleted from the Dow Jones Industrial Average generally do better than the stocks that replaced them; athletes may not get hot hands but they often get warm hands with modest improvements in their success probabilities.

AI Use Cases for Diplomats

Applying Artificial Intelligence to Diplomacy

Donald Kilburg

Drawing on over 21 years of experience integrating technology into foreign affairs, the author reveals how AI is revolutionizing diplomatic engagement, crisis management, and public diplomacy. Readers will discover practical strategies for implementing AI in diplomatic operations, gain insights into the future of AI-driven global governance, and learn when—crucially—not to use AI at all. Whether you're a diplomatic practitioner, a student of international affairs, or fascinated by technology's impact on global relationships, this guide charts the course for diplomacy's next evolution—where human wisdom and AI converge to address our world's most pressing challenges.

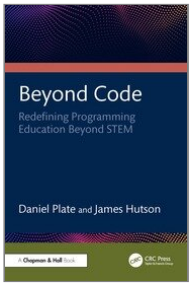
Beyond Code

Redefining Programming Education Beyond STEM



Daniel Plate , James Hutson

AI-powered coding tools are revolutionizing software development, transforming programming from a specialized skill into an accessible educational practice across disciplines. This book investigates how tools such as Cursor AI, GitHub Copilot, and Replit's Ghostwriter are dismantling traditional barriers to entry for learners—particularly those from non-STEM backgrounds—by enabling natural language code generation, intelligent debugging, and interactive, project-based learning. Bridging the gap between theoretical instruction and practical application, the book serves as both a guide and a critical framework for integrating generative AI into curricula.

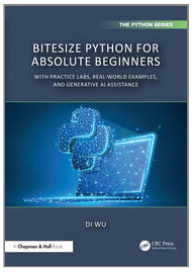
BiteSize Python for Absolute Beginners

With Practice Labs, Real-World Examples, and Generative AI Assistance



Di Wu

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The Python Series

As an introduction to Python, this book allows readers to take a slow and steady approach to understanding Python code, explaining concepts, connecting programming with real-life examples, writing Python programs, and completing case studies. Python programming is broken down into easily digestible lessons of less than 5 minutes each, following the BiteSize approach. It includes coding demonstrations, practice tasks, case studies, and tips to show how you can incorporate generative AI into your learning toolkit. This book is designed for absolute beginners with no prior programming experience. It is ideal for individuals with busy schedules or limited time for studying.

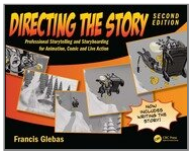
Directing the Story

Professional Storytelling and Storyboarding for Animation, Comic and Live Action



Francis Glebas

This book grew out of desperate need. I was a storyboard artist at Disney and had no idea what I was doing. At Disney I was surrounded by amazing talents. I went into work early and typed up notes on what I was learning. This experience became Directing the Story. I'm currently working on a new theory of story which shows how all the parts of story, character, plot and story work together. I'm including the beginning basics of this theory which allows my students to come up with a story in 7 minutes. Plot takes longer.

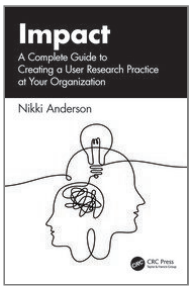
Impact

A Complete Guide to Creating a User Research Practice at Your Organization



Nikki Anderson

Embark on a transformative journey into the world of user research with Impact by Nikki Anderson. In the realm of product creation, understanding your users is the cornerstone of building life-changing products. This comprehensive guide is your key to establishing a robust user research practice within your organization, ensuring that decisions are rooted in empathy, understanding, and a deep connection with your audience. This book is not just a guide; it's a thought partner, offering a step-by-step approach to navigate the complexities of establishing a research practice, making it accessible even for those new to the field.

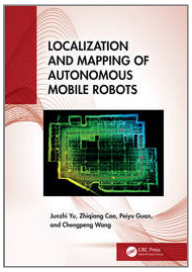
Localization and Mapping of Autonomous Mobile Robots



Junzhi Yu , Zhiqiang Cao , Peiyu Guan , Chengpeng Wang

Localization and mapping play a critical role in the autonomous task execution of mobile robots. This book covers the theoretical and technological aspects of robot localization and mapping, including visual localization and mapping, visual relocalization, LiDAR localization and mapping, and place recognition. It will be of great interest to students and professionals alike in the field of robotics or artificial intelligence. It will also be a great reference for engineers or technicians who deal with the development of robot localization.

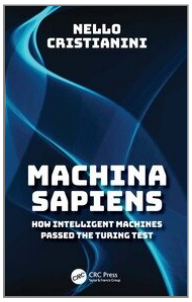
Machina Sapiens

How Intelligent Machines Passed the Turing Test



Nello Cristianini

Can machines think? This troubling question, posed by Alan Turing in 1950, has perhaps been answered: today we can converse with a computer without being able to distinguish it from a human being. Is this the secret of knowledge, and is it now in the hands of our creations? As we try to figure out how to share these powers with the "aliens" who now work at our side, we can wonder what else they may learn tomorrow. Cristianini has authored another brilliant book - written like a gripping thriller - explaining the ideas behind a technology destined to change the world. If our worst terror has always stemmed from fear of the unknown, the cure, since time immemorial, is knowledge.

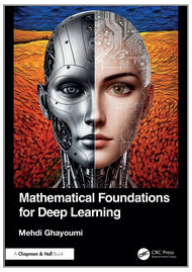
Mathematical Foundations for Deep Learning



Mehdi Ghayoumi University of San Diego

This book bridges the gap between theoretical mathematics and practical applications in artificial intelligence. It delves into the fundamental mathematical concepts that power modern deep learning, equipping readers with the tools and knowledge needed to excel in the rapidly evolving field of AI. Designed for beginners and experts, the book makes mathematical ideas accessible through clear explanations, real-world examples, and targeted exercises. Readers will master core concepts in linear algebra, calculus, and optimization techniques, understand the mechanics of deep learning models, and apply theory to practice using frameworks like TensorFlow and PyTorch.

Ten-Book Bundle on Audit

Various Authors

Series: Security, Audit and Leadership Series

In The Closing of the Auditor's Mind? David J. O'Regan describes internal auditing as an important "binding agent" of social cohesion, for the accountability of individuals and organizations and also at aggregated levels of social trust. However, O'Regan also reveals that internal auditing faces two severe challenges – an external challenge of adaptation and an internal challenge of fundamental reform. The Closing of the Auditor's Mind? is a philosophical audit of a profession on the threshold of crisis.

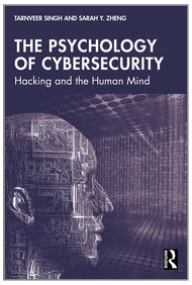
The Psychology of Cybersecurity

Hacking and the Human Mind



Tarnveer Singh , Sarah Y. Zheng

Series: Current Issues in Cyberpsychology

This book takes a fresh look at the psychology of cybersecurity and IT management, discussing the role of cognitive bias and human factors on poor decisions. Written by an experienced CISO and Cybersecurity professional with over two decades of lived experience dealing with cybersecurity risks, the book considers the psychology and motivations of those involved with cybersecurity both as cyber attackers and cyber defenders. It uses case studies and real-world examples to show how understanding the psychology behind cybersecurity can help people improve their security awareness and make more rational choices.

Towards Unmanned Surface Vehicles

Methods and Practices

Huarong Zheng , Chenguang Liu

The book presents the latest overview, methodologies, design practices, and applications of unmanned surface vehicles (USVs). The authors introduce advanced theories and algorithms for the analysis and design of a maritime unmanned surface vehicle system, covering the sensing, path following, navigation, and control of the ocean surface environment. They demonstrate the architectural design, implementation, and field testing of USVs as well as key applications, such as hostile military scenarios, scientific oceanographic observation, and intelligent waterborne transportation. The book will appeal to researchers, graduate students, and engineers interested in USVs.

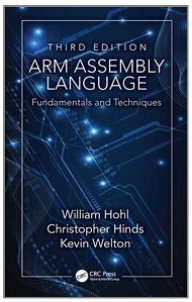
3RD EDITION

ARM Assembly Language

Fundamentals and Techniques



William Hohl Consultant, Austin, Texas, USA, Christopher Hinds ARM, Inc., Austin, Texas, USA, Kevin Welton

This new edition of ARM Assembly Language explains in clear terms how Arm processors are programmed at the most fundamental level. While earlier editions covered much older architectures, the third edition moves entirely into the Cortex-M space, using the Arm v8-M instruction set to illustrate how assembly code for the most modern Arm processors is written. Even if you are writing in JavaScript, Python, C++, C#, or Rust, these high-level programming languages require a compiler or interpreter to transform the code into machine executable instructions, so software engineers as well as hardware engineers benefit from knowing how the underlying processor functions.

Design Workbook Using SOLIDWORKS 2025

Design, Detailing, Assembly & Analysis Basics

Alejandro Reyes , Ronald E. Barr , Thomas J. Krueger , Davor Juricic

Design Workbook Using SOLIDWORKS 2025 is an exercise-based book that guides you through a series of easy to understand, step-by-step tutorials that cover basic SOLIDWORKS commands. The 2025 edition includes updated SOLIDWORKS processes and methods to create models more efficiently than ever before. The intended audience is undergraduate engineering majors, but it can also be used in pre-college engineering courses. The engaging and straightforward lab exercises in this workbook are also ideal for self-learners.

Learning SOLIDWORKS 2025

Modeling, Assembly and Analysis

Randy H. Shih

This book will teach you everything you need to know to start using SOLIDWORKS 2025 with easy to understand, step-by-step tutorials. This book features a simple robot design used as a project throughout the book. You will learn to model parts, create assemblies, run simulations and even create animations of your robot design. There are many books that show you how to perform individual tasks with SOLIDWORKS, but this book takes you through an entire project and shows you the complete engineering process.

Artificial Intelligence in Legal Systems

Bridging Law and Technology through AI

Edited by Eriona Çela , Narasimha Rao Vajjhala , Behrouz Aslani

This book presents a comprehensive analysis of the transformative impact of artificial intelligence (AI) across legal frameworks within the European Union and beyond. It addresses the pressing issue of data protection in the context of Generative Pre-trained Transformer (GPT) technology, emphasizing the EU's commitment to individual privacy rights. The book also evaluates AI's role in public governance and examines the potential of blockchain technology in enhancing legal processes. It is a key resource for postgraduate students, researchers, and professionals in legal fields seeking to better understand the benefits and risks of incorporating AI into legal practices.

Artificial Intelligence, Geographic Information Systems, and Multi-Criteria Decision-Making for Improving Sustainable Development

Edited by Sujoy Kumar Jana , Kamalakanta Muduli The Papua New Guinea University of Technology, Indrajit Pal , Purushottam Meena

Series: Advances in Computational Collective Intelligence

The book looks at how artificial intelligence (AI), geographic information systems (GISs), and multi-criteria decision-making (MCDM) could be used to come up with strategies for building resilience and achieving sustainable development in the Asia-Pacific region. It aims to serve as a valuable resource for researchers, practitioners, and decision-makers in GIS, environmental science, economics, and social science, among other fields. The book seeks to contribute to ongoing education and research efforts in geoinformatics, emergency preparedness, and operations management.

Contemporary Digital Transformation in Chinese Education

Shutao Wang , Junwei Bao

Adopting a macro-meso-micro framework, the book explores the recent developments of digital transformation in Chinese education. From a macro perspective, it examines the socio-cultural background and policy environment of China's educational digital transformation. At the meso level, it analyzes the dynamics and challenges of educational digitalization within the context of regional equity. Finally, it examines the impact of digital technologies on school practices at the micro level. The book will attract academic researchers of educational technology and policy, policy makers, and educational administrators.

Cyber Security, Forensics and National Security

Edited by Vinay Aseri , Sumit Kumar Choudhary , Adarsh Kumar UPES Dehradun, India.

The book serves two very important purposes. One the concept and vulnerabilities due to cyber attacks in all walks of lives are explained along with how to detect and reduce the risk through digital forensics. Secondly, how such threats at a larger proportion puts entire national security on stake. Thus, there are lot of take-aways as the book discusses for the first-time various dimensions of national security, the risks involved due to cyber threats and ultimately the prevention & detection through cyber forensics and cyber security architectures.

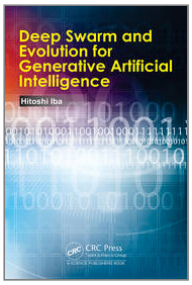
Deep Swarm and Evolution for Generative Artificial Intelligence



Hitoshi Iba University of Tokyo, Japan

The book provides theoretical and practical knowledge about swarm and evolutionary approach, i.e., deep swarm and deep evolution, to generative AI and LLMs (Large Language Models). It also discusses the cognitive differences and similarities between humans and LLMs. In addition, this book illustratively describes the intelligent behaviour of living organisms to clarify how to achieve AI in the direction of artificial life, e.g., LLMs as meta-heuristics and vice versa.

Digital Transformation in Customs and Taxation

A Catalyst for Economic Resilience

Edited by Khaled Hussainey , Nasser Salim Albaimani , Aziza Abdallah Al Qamashoui

Given the technological challenges and structural issues faced by trade, customs and taxation in recent years, governments are looking for innovative ways to transform the traditional to digital. To encourage sustainable practices in trade, customs, and taxation, there is an increasing tendency towards service delivery using digital platforms. This book is thought-provoking platform for researchers, research scholars, practitioners, students, and industrialists to discover recent trends, challenges, methods, models, case studies and structural issues of the global digital transformation of customs and taxation.

Digital Twin and Blockchain for Sustainable Healthcare 5.0

Real-Life Applications and Case Studies

Edited by Monica Gahlawat L J University, India, Sudeep Tanwar Nirma University, Ahmedabad, India

This book investigates blockchain and digital twin technologies to offer insights into their potential applications in the healthcare industry. It explores how these technologies can work together to build a strong and sustainable healthcare ecosystem, improve patient satisfaction, and streamline administrative procedures. Through examples, case studies, it highlights their use in supply chain management, disease prediction, and patient monitoring. It addresses challenges and offers solutions, examining ethical and legal considerations and the integration of patient preferences. The book is aimed at professionals, researchers, and policymakers interested in Healthcare 5.0.

Digital Twins and Simulation Technology

Concepts and Applications

Edited by Lavanya Sharma Amity university, Noida, India., Pradeep Kumar Garg IIT Roorkee, India.

This book provides a comprehensive overview of the concept of digital twins, emphasising its strategic importance across various commercial domains. This book covers the fundamentals, data requirements, tools, and technologies essential for understanding and implementing digital twins. It discusses how digital twins are used for running simulations, analysing performance issues, and generating potential improvements to optimise business processes. The book explores the architecture, historical background, and real-time applications in sectors including urban planning, healthcare, smart cities, and manufacturing.

Intelligent Business Analytics

Harnessing the Power of Soft Computing for Data-Driven Insights

Edited by Nitendra Kumar , Lakhwinder Kaur Dhillon , Mridul Dharwal , Elena Korchagina , Vishal Jain

Series: Advances in Computational Collective Intelligence

The book provides comprehensive and in-depth exploration of how soft computing techniques can be applied in the domain of business analytics. Soft computing is a subfield of AI and encompasses such methodologies such as fuzzy logic, neural networks, genetic algorithms, and swarm intelligence. The book shows these methods can be leveraged to extract valuable insights from vast and complex datasets to enable businesses to make data-driven decisions for improved performance and competitive advantage.

Introduction to Natural Language Processing

Exploring Techniques, Applications, and Challenges

Xiaochun Cheng , Preethi Nanjundan , Jossy P George

Series: River Publishers Series in Rapids in Computing and Information Science and Technology

This book provides a thorough and comprehensive introduction to natural language processing (NLP), a critical field at the intersection of artificial intelligence and computational linguistics. It explores key techniques such as sentiment analysis, which enables the detection of emotional tone in text, machine translation, facilitating the conversion of text between languages, and named entity recognition (NER), which identifies and classifies entities like names, dates, and locations within text data.

Just War Theory and Artificial Intelligence

Challenges and Consequences

Edited by Maria Power , Maggi Savin-Baden Prof of Higher Education Research at Coventry University, UK

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Artificial Intelligence and Robotics Series

New developments in technology, especially within weapons systems, have challenged our understandings of just war theory as warfare becomes more remote, thus changing the nature of the questions to be asked of and by those engaged in conflict. Covering topics such as drone warfare and the use of wargaming by combatants, this collection seeks to answer those questions with essays from leading experts in the field. It will be a valuable resource for those interested in both the development of artificial intelligence generally and warfare specifically.

Mathematical Foundations of Blockchains

Engineering Principles, Volume 2

Nirdosh Bhatnagar

This book is part of a two-volume work on blockchains. Blockchain is a novel paradigm for a distributed ledger. Volume 1 is on the fundamentals of blockchains and consists of an overview of blockchains, essential elements of blockchains, and the mathematics required for understanding the workings of blockchains. Volume 2 develops mathematical models to enhance the understanding of blockchains. This work can be used by students of electrical engineering, computer science, applied mathematics, and economics. Students in business school can also benefit. It can also be used by professionals and researchers in the field who would like a quick review of the basics of the subject.

Multi-Modal Human Modeling, Analysis and Synthesis

Edited by Jun Yu , Changwei Luo , Chang Wen Chen

Multi-modal Human Modeling, Analysis and Synthesis aims to adopt a structured perspective, building a comprehensive technical framework for multi-modal human modeling, analysis, and synthesis—progressing from local details to holistic perspectives, and from face features to body dynamics. It also explains how multi-modal data can drive realistic face and body synthesis. A standout feature is its focus on Huawei's MindSpore framework, bridging the gap between algorithms and engineering through practical case studies. Designed for researchers and engineers in computer vision and AI, this book balances theoretical foundations with industry-ready technical details.

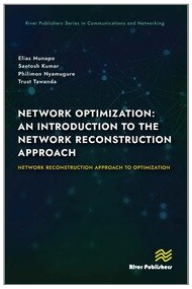
Network Optimization: An Introduction to the Network Reconstruction Approach

Network Reconstruction Approach to optimization



Elias Munapo , Santosh Kumar , Philimon Nyamugure , Trust Tawanda

Series: River Publishers Series in Communications and Networking

This book is an introduction to reconstruction concepts and their applications for solving some network optimization problems. Networks are a mathematical abstraction of a given physical situation, which are described by using nodes, links (directed or non-directed) and link weights defining some associated properties of that physical system. Reconstruction ideas exploit the mathematical structure of a particular problem and find ways to reach the required solution. It is hoped that these ideas will be explored for other mathematical structures.

Postdigital Ethical Futures

Essays in Honour of John Reader

Edited by Maggi Savin-Baden Prof of Higher Education Research at Coventry University, UK, Maria Power

Postdigital Ethical Futures emerged from the work of the Ethical Futures Network hosted by the William Temple Foundation meeting both online and at Trinity College, Oxford. This book illustrates the research being carried out by some of the members of this network by examining the more practical aspects of the subject of religion and the digital, drawing on a wider range of disciplines and was created in memory of John Reader whose idea the text was, who died suddenly in 2023. The book examines issues of ethics as encountered in both the digital and environmental spheres, and seeks to cross of the boundary between philosophy and theology.

The Making of China's Artificial Intelligence and Cyber Security Policy

Players, Governance, and Global Ambition

Edited by Suisheng Zhao University of Denver, USA

The rise of digital technology, particularly artificial intelligence (AI), has transformed societies and international politics. China has responded to the transformation and strived to become one of the global leaders. What is China's approach toward the objective? Who are the major players and stakeholders in the making of digital policy? How has the Chinese state worked with various stakeholders? To what extent has digital technology influenced China's authoritarian governance? How has Chinese society responded to digital authoritarianism? Can China prevail in shaping global digital rulemaking? This edited volume seeks answers to these important questions.

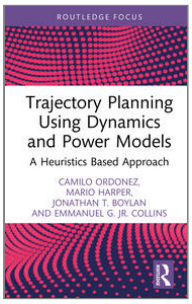
Trajectory Planning Using Dynamics and Power Models

A Heuristics Based Approach



Camilo Ordonez , Mario Harper , Jonathan T. Boylan , Emmanuel G. Collins, Jr.

This book shows how to plan trajectories (i.e. time-dependent paths) for autonomous robots using a dynamic model within the A* framework. It develops a paradigm called Sampling Based Model Predictive Optimization (SBMPO), which generates graph trees through input sampling of a dynamic model, enabling A*-type algorithms to find optimal trajectories. It covers various robotic platforms and tasks, including manipulators lifting heavy loads, mobile robots navigating steep hills, and climbing robots in obstacle-rich environments, among others. It is aimed at researchers, engineers, and advanced students in motion planning and control for robotic and autonomous systems.

The Humanized Internet

Dignity, Digital Identity and Democracy

Akram Alfawakheeri , Monique J. Morrow

In reading this book, there are key themes that are constant such as the notion of identity and identity sets; e-sovereignty and privacy and most importantly the function of an Internet that is inclusive, not "controlled" by a few organizations for their own profitability. Certainly, "enterprising" the Internet has been a process over these past years and there is no intent to set judgement here but rather pause for a moment and reflect on the impact of these technologies to individuals.

Future Transitions in the Mining Industry

Challenges, Controversies and Responses

Edited by Tuija Mononen , Lasse Peltonen

Series: Routledge Studies of the Extractive Industries and Sustainable Development

This volume focuses on mining and the challenges for this industry as it transitions and evolves as the demand for products and responsible and sustainable mining ever increases. It explores the challenges that arise when a society is reliant on the products of mining to maintain their standard of living, yet are simultaneously calling for the implementation of sustainable practices, with many communities also being resistant to mining activities taking place in their own location. It will be of interest to scholars and students of mining and the extractive industries, transitions, and sustainable development, as well as professionals working in natural resource management.

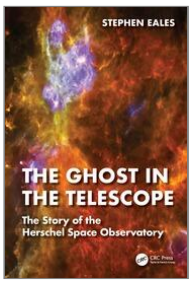
The Ghost in the Telescope

The Story of the Herschel Space Observatory



Stephen Eales

The Ghost in the Telescope is an insider's account of the Herschel Space Observatory, which was built to answer the questions of how stars and galaxies were born. Written in an engaging manner for a general audience, the book tells the stories of the telescope itself, the discoveries it made, and the engineers and astronomers who made and used it. The book, based on the author's own experience and interviews with the key astronomers and engineers, tells the story of the mission, from its original concept on a piece of paper in Venice to the moment after the end of the mission when the engineers had to decide whether to crash the spacecraft into the Moon.

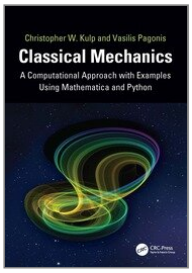
2ND EDITION

Classical Mechanics

A Computational Approach with Examples Using Mathematica and Python



Christopher W. Kulp Lycoming College, Williamsport, PA, USA, Vasilis Pagonis McDaniel College, Westminster, MD, USA

Classical Mechanics: A Computational Approach with Examples using Python and Mathematica provides a unique introduction to classical mechanics, with a focus on computational methods by providing clear and thorough coverage of key topics and includes integrated instructions and treat and ents of computation. The newly updated second edition include two new appendices instructing the reader in both the Python and Mathematica languages. All worked example problems contain both Python and Mathematica code. New end-of-chapter problems explore the application of computational methods to classical mechanics problems.

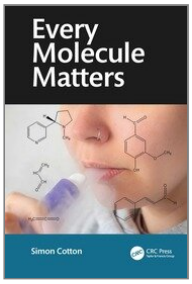
Every Molecule Matters



Simon Anthony Cotton University of Birmingham, UK

These range from the familiar odours which give pleasure to eating (and the spices that add piquancy) and the vitamins that are vital to our survival, to the way in which insects and plants use chemicals to protect themselves. There's controversy, with the compounds of chlorine which range from life-supporting anaesthetics and natural antibiotics to insecticides like DDT, which saved innumerable lives but became an environmental cause-celebre. Through the addictive power of nicotine, smoking tobacco morphed from being a curiosity imported from the Americas to a megapound industry that left human illness and death in its wake.

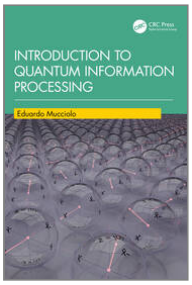
Introduction to Quantum Information Processing



Eduardo Mucciolo

This book introduces quantum computing and quantum communications at the undergraduate level for students in the physical sciences, engineering, and mathematics, assuming no prior knowledge of quantum mechanics. It is a self-contained guide assuming only that the reader is familiar with physics at the college level, calculus (up to and including ordinary differential equations), and some matrix algebra and complex numbers. The book brings the reader up to speed with fundamental concepts in quantum information processing and builds a working knowledge of basic quantum algorithms, quantum error correction, and quantum communication protocols.

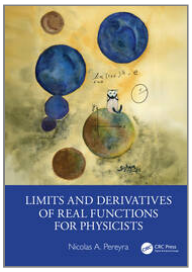
Limits and Derivatives of Real Functions for Physicists



Nicolas A. Pereyra

This book provides an in-depth introduction to the limits and derivatives of real functions, with a strong emphasis on practical applications in physics. The book demystifies the "why" behind calculus principles, making advanced mathematical concepts accessible without sacrificing rigor. This text provides precise definitions and properties of limits, continuity, and derivatives, ensuring a solid mathematical foundation. By emphasizing the connection between calculus and its applications in physics, students gain a deeper appreciation of the material and its relevance to their studies.

Advanced Materials for Next-Generation Technologies

Challenges and New Prospects

Edited by Shrikaant Kulkarni , Vipul Srivastava , Rabah Khenata , Yarub Al-Douri

Presents insight into the advances in materials with special reference to their structure, physical behaviors, and applications. It sheds light on the organizational and orientational order of the atoms responsible for characteristics and distinct architectures in these materials. It discusses how the materials can be maneuvered for attaining structural optimality. It explores novel materials for new technologies that make use of their properties, such as electronic band structure, band gap, half-metallicity, multiferoic behavior, piezoelectricity, thermoelectricity, optoelectronic behavior, and more.

Advanced Solid-state Devices for Emerging Nanotechnologies

Edited by Tarikul Islam , Shakeb Khan , Mohammad Khan , Monika Tomar , Shabana Mehfuz

Advanced Solid-state Devices for Emerging Technologies provides a comprehensive overview of the transformative role played by nanotechnology in the development of solid-state devices for various applications, including efficient signal processing, power, data communication, sensor and IoT-enabled devices. The introductory section of the book provides the fundamental working principles of the solid-state devices for signal processing, energy harvesting and sensing of stimulants, highlighting their significance for addressing some of the present challenges.

Advances in Engineering Materials

Preparation for Sustainable Process Development

Edited by Tamara Tatrishvili , A. K. Haghi

Covers recent developments in materials technology and science, providing deep insight into advanced materials in regard to structural and physical behavior and sustainable real-world applications. It reports on recent developments in the practical application of novel materials for emerging technologies, highlighting exciting mechanical and chemical behaviors and properties of new materials. It also addresses the relationship between structural identities of materials with their property profile.

Contemporary Advancements in Materials Technology

Novel Solutions to Complex Problems

Edited by Shrikaant Kulkarni , Vipul Srivastava , P. William

Provides novel solutions to the problems in the field of materials technology, helping to pave the way in designing new materials for the future. The authors provide a comprehensive and theoretical understanding as well as experimental findings integrated with theory for furthering research in materials science and engineering. The book looks at advances and trends, tools and technologies, and characterization of smart materials and novel materials, highlighting the correlation between structure-property-utility in the materials. It also deliberates how materials can be fabricated for acquiring optimal performance in tandem with applications.

Fabrication and Advanced Applications of Nanomaterial Based Electrochemical Sensors

Edited by Shashanka Rajendrachari , Vinayak Adimule

Series: Series in Sensors

Fabrication and Advanced Applications of Nanomaterial Based Electrochemical Sensors helps students understand the concept of nanomaterials based electrochemical sensors through simple examples and illustrations. Electrochemical sensors can determine various bioactive compounds, organic molecules, but the further addition of nanomaterials into the electrode can increase their detection limit due to their electrical, chemical properties and huge surface area. These sensors can also detect toxic waste, thereby reducing risk of waterborne diseases, thus this book also enhances environmental awareness and explains how electrochemical sensors contribute to sustainable living.

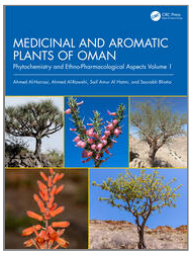
Medicinal and Aromatic Plants of Oman

Phytochemistry and Ethno-Pharmacological Aspects, Volume 1



Ahmed Al-Harrasi , Ahmed Al-Rawahi University of Nizwa, Oman, Saif Amur Al Hatmi , Saurabh Bhatia University of Nizwa, Oman

Medicinal plants have received an impetus recently due to revival of attention in natural products in form of herbal medicines demanding convincing knowledge on their phytochemistry, status, cultivation and utilization. Medicinal plants in the Sultanate of Oman have tremendous potential in terms of ethnomedicinal and food applications. However, these treasures of Oman have not been fully explored until recently.

Nanocellulose

Market Insights, Production, and Global Industrial Applications

Edited by Hind Abdellaoui , Rajeshkumar Lakshminarasimhan , Sanjay M. R. , Suchart Siengchin University of Technology, Thailand

This book deals with the different aspects of the nanocellulose and its composites, starting from resources such as bacterial, biomass and other lignocellulosic materials, different types of Microfibrillated cellulose, nanofiber cellulose, nanocrystalline cellulose, processes and characterization techniques, as well as the different applications in industrial domains. It infers the different processes of nanocellulose extraction following their different forms and sources as well as different products and industries that are currently using nanocellulose. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in chemical engineering, biomaterials, and advanced materials.

Nuclear Reactor Physics and Operation

Neutronic Analysis For Nuclear Reactor Design

Bahman Zohuri , Seyed Kamal Mousavi Balgehshiri , Guglielmo Lomonaco

This book serves as a thorough reference for students, researchers, and professionals in nuclear engineering and reactor physics, offering a detailed exploration of the core principles behind nuclear reactor theory, neutron transport, neutronic analysis, and reactor core design and calculations. Each chapter includes at least one example to illustrate the topics covered, and the latter half focuses on key areas relevant to operating reactors—reactor kinetics/dynamics and in-core fuel management.

Polymers and Functional Materials for a Cleaner Environment and Human Health

Sustainable Technologies and New Research

Edited by Ruby Varghese , Ann Rose Abraham , Shrikaant Kulkarni , A. K. Haghi

This new volume offers an exploration of integrating polymers and functional materials for a cleaner environment and for human health by using state-of-the-art technologies and new research. It covers multidisciplinary sustainability topics with a focus on materials science applications in health and to help mitigate the current environmental crises. This volume links theory and practice and provides up-to-date technical information on sustainable technologies. It delves into a wide array of crucial topics to provide valuable insight into complex sustainable development methods.

Quantum Waveguide in Microcircuits (Second Edition)

Jian-Bai Xia , Duan-Yang Liu Chinese Academy of Sciences, Beijing, PR of China, Wei-Dong Sheng Chinese Academy of Sciences, Beijing, PR of China

This book introduces some theories and experiments of quantum transport and consists of two parts: (1) Non-Classical and Non-Linear Transport and (2) Quantum Waveguide Theory. It provides some foundations of semiconductor micro- and nanoelectronics for the after-Moore age. The two new chapters in this edition present investigations on (1) mesoscopic transport and (2) Rashba electron's spin transport in a straight waveguide with a stub that has a smooth boundary.

Theory of Atomic Nuclei

Foundations

Bożena Nerlo-Pomorska , Krzysztof Roman Pomorski

Theory of Atomic Nuclei: Foundations selects some fundamental problems of the theory of atomic nuclei at low energy. It reviews specific nuclear physics issues in terms of historical development and evolution into more extended theories, which nowadays constitute complete parts of nuclear science. The book allows the reader to understand the structure of the nucleus, i.e., the mechanism that rules in this subatomic world. The book is intended for graduate physics students at universities and nuclear sciences and engineering students at technical universities. It can also be helpful for PhD students and junior researchers in nuclear physics.

Universe, Human Species, Reality

A Physicalist Approach

Jacques Vanier Université de Montréal, Quebec, Canada

Series: Discovering Physics

This book describes the functioning of the material universe with the use of intermediate mathematical language. The book is based entirely on physical phenomena, on reality, and develops the argument that the principle of least action plays the most important role in the functioning of the universe and that, if we extend our study, our work on Lagrangians could provide an answer to our search of the nature of the interactions that seem to take place in the physics involved in the unanswered questions regarding the nature of the intellect, the intellect-brain gap and the nature of mathematics.

Optimal Designs of Sensor Placement in Water Distribution Systems

Water Quality Monitoring and Contamination Detection

Shweta Rathi Assistant Prof, Civil Eng, NIT, Kurukshetra, Rajesh Gupta Professor, HAG, Civil Eng Dep, Nagpur, D. P. Kothari

The dual purpose of regular monitoring and contaminant event detection in the water distribution systems (WDSs) can be achieved through sensors that can monitor general water quality constituents such as pH, residual chlorine, conductivity, temperature etc. This book details different sensor placement parameters considered for contamination detection and regular/routine water quality monitoring in WDSs and their evaluations. It covers Genetic Algorithm based methodology selecting specified number of optimal sensor locations using combined weighted objectives. Applications to different pressure deficient systems and intermittent systems are explained as part of case study in India.

State Failure in the Middle East

Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and Yemen

Neil Partrick

Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

This book assesses why the state is failing in these four particular cases and, where relevant, draws common explanatory themes, while remaining mindful of each country's distinct domestic and international context. Much of the material is based on research carried out in the countries themselves, involving interviews with existing or former state officials, their advisers, senior analysts, or those seeking state authority. Through this process a debate is conducted as to where power lies in each of the four cases.

Parent Power

A Dictionary Guide to your Child's Education and Schooling

Edited by Nicholas Bagnall

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

Originally published in 1974, Parent Power was a comprehensive handbook for parents on education and schooling at the time. Clearly and concisely, it outlined the rights of parents within the education system, and set out how they might be most effectively asserted to achieve results. It was designed as a source of ready answers to the day-to-day problems that faced all parents of schoolchildren in the 1970s. Parent Power was complied by a team of experienced teachers and educational journalists in easy-reference form. Today it can be read in its historical context.

Home–School Work in Multicultural Settings

Edited by John Bastiani

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

Originally published in 1997, the purpose of this collection was to raise the profile of the valuable work that was being done with minority ethnic parents and families in many different settings and circumstances. Contributors discuss issues and concerns and illustrate the range, scope and variety of provision and practice at the time. The collection will be of interest to those with a special responsibility for working with black and bilingual parents in schools and other agencies, and also to teachers and others who work with minority ethnic pupils in mainstream classrooms.

The Contribution of Parents to School Effectiveness

Edited by Sheila Wolfendale University of East London, UK, John Bastiani

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

School and educational achievement is dependent on many complex factors and is usually seen as the key outcome measure by which school effectiveness can be judged. Originally published in 2000, this book aimed to establish whether or not educational achievement can in part be ascribed to the quality and range of home–school links. It provided a timely contribution to the continuing debate at the time on the pivotal relationship between schools and the families which form their constituencies.This book enabled all those interested in education to evaluate the educational benefits of a home–school relationship between pupils, parents, teachers and schools.

Working with Parents

A Practical Guide for Teachers and Therapists

Roy McConkey

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

In the 1980s working with parents in the education and care of their children was more often preached than practised by professionals. Originally published in 1985, Working with Parents, aimed at professionals in training or newly qualified, drew together for the first time many examples of how partnership with parents can evolve and be successful. It not only gives detailed suggestions for working with parents on a one-to-one basis but also describes how to handle parent groups, organise courses, give effective talks and use video.

Moral Education

A Sociological Study of the Influence of Society, Home and School

William Kay

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

In the early 1970s few subjects in schools had grown faster than moral education, and more and more teachers were seeking guidance in a changing and developing field where a training in the 'traditional' subjects could not always provide sufficient help. Originally published in 1975, Dr Kay maintained that a study of the sociological factors involved could give considerable insight into the meaning and purpose of moral education, and in this book he examines the effect on the individual pupil of the home, the school and differing socio-economic class structures and ideologies.

Parents Should Be Heard

Daphne Nicholson Bennett

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

For any parent or parent-to-be this book, originally published in 1972, was intended to open new doors, answering questions about themselves and their children, and be illuminating to many others professionally concerned with parents. Many real-life examples from the author's work demonstrate how parents who are encouraged to express their feelings through discussion in an unjudging atmosphere can better 'solve' their problems and enjoy their children. Readers learn through the experience of these typical parents who overcame fears of expressing their often surprisingly complex feelings.

Schooling, Welfare and Parental Responsibility

Michael G. Wyness

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

In the 1990s, issues of child protection, child abuse and delinquency had generated public and academic concerns over the ability of adults to underwrite the physical, moral and social welfare of children. At the same time, recent educational reform had provoked debate around the shifting balance of power between those most involved in child development – parents and teachers. Originally published in 1996, Schooling, Welfare and Parental Responsibility brings these two agenda together within a coherent theoretical framework and offers an empirical analysis grounded in perspectives of both parents and teachers.

Parents and Teachers

Partners or Rivals?

Lawrence Green

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

Originally published in 1968, this book was for every parent who had ever wondered 'What goes on in my child's school – whom do I ask, what do I ask, and dare I ask?'; and for every teacher who had ever thought, 'How can I get closer to parents and enlist their aid in what I am trying to teach?' At the time Lawrence Green was a junior-school head teacher with long experience in the 'deprived' areas of a large city – and had two children at school. His articles on parent-teacher cooperation in the magazine 'Where?' aroused very wide interest and led to reviews in the national press and appearances on the BBC and ITV.

Listening to Parents

An Approach to the Improvement of Home/School Relations

Janet Atkin , John Bastiani

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

In the late 1980s positive interaction between home and school in education was receiving attention from politicians, parents and teachers. It was thought that by listening to parents, teachers might gain insight into the ways in which they could work more effectively with children and their families. Originally published in 1988, this book was of great practical value. It draws upon the authors' work over the previous decade to explore the links between listening to the parental perspective on a child's schooling and the development of more effective home/school practice. Still relevant today, this book can be read in its historical context.

Children and Parents Enjoying Reading

Parents and the Literacy Hour: A Teacher's Guide

Peter Branston , Mark Provis

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

With the introduction of the Literacy Hour in 1998, the case for harnessing parental involvement in promoting children's literacy was stronger than ever. Originally published in 1999, this book offered a detailed and practical approach, based on three key concepts: keeping the child in the driving seat, continuing support from the school to the parents and daily reading at home. It is presented in an accessible manner and offers practical advice to teachers in running and evaluating a scheme. It also gives parents a chance to think about the nature of their involvement at word, sentence and text levels, introducing them to the framework of the National Literacy Strategy.

Parents as Educators

Keith Topping University of Dundee, UK

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Home and School

Modern practice in the 1980s was to involve parents increasingly in the education of their children, and was supported by legislation. Particularly when children had special needs, parents required structured training and support to ensure they affectively sustained their vital role as educators at home. Many large-scale programmes to provide this had been developed throughout the world. However, not all of these had been thoroughly evaluated, and the existing literature was scattered and difficult to access. First published in 1986, this book critically analyses over 600 international English-language research reports on the effectiveness of parent training programmes.

The Prime Ministers: 1721–1974

2 volume set

Edited by Herbert van Thal

Series: The Prime Ministers: 1721–1974

This 2-volume set, first published in 1974 and 1975, provides a complete gallery of Prime Ministers, up to 1974, each chapter revealing the constant interaction of personality and circumstance, and the whole collection providing an impressive record of the way the premiership changed with its various incumbents. There is really in law no such office as that of Prime Minister. No statute grants him or her powers. Even the name came into official use only in 1878, and the Prime Minister as such only became known to the law in 1905. The office of Prime Minister has in fact been based on convention and has been shaped by personal and political factors; it is what the holder makes of it.

The Prime Ministers

Volume the First: From Sir Robert Walpole to Sir Robert Peel

Series: The Prime Ministers: 1721–1974

The office of Prime Minister has been based on convention and has been shaped by personal and political factors; it is what the holder makes of it and that is why a sensible way to study the development of the office is by reading the biographies of its holders. Originally published in 1974 (volume 1) and 1975 (volume 2), beginning with Robert Walpole and including Edward Heath, the holder at the time, there had been forty-seven Prime Ministers in all. Yet there had been no book devoted exclusively to recording their characters, actions and achievements, to which the student or the interested general reader could turn for immediate information. These volumes help to fill this gap.

Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union brings together in a 35-volume collection some standout titles from the Routledge backlist. Books examine the immediate postwar period in Europe, and the first moves towards European political cooperation, and the challenges faced in building the European political community. Inter-European national politics are analysed as the continent moved towards integration, as well as internal politics – devolution and regionalism within member states. European foreign policy is examined, as is the thorny issue of European security and a European defence policy and Nato.

Regions in Crisis

New Perspectives in European Regional Theory

Edited by John Carney , Ray Hudson , Jim Lewis

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Regions in Crisis (1980) examines the new perspectives in regional theory that began to be firmly established in many European countries following the international recession of 1973. This book introduces these new perspectives and makes important assessments accessible to an English-speaking audience, with some chapters being specially translated for this edition. They all deal with some of the most crucial contemporary regional problems and regional crisis tendencies in Europe.

The Case of North Africa

Edited by Richard Gillespie University of Liverpool, UK, Richard Youngs University of Warwick, UK

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

The European Union and Democracy Promotion (2002) offers a critical assessment of the strategy upon which the EU promotion of democracy and human rights activity has been based, along with an analysis of its strengths and weaknesses. Contributors from a variety of European and North African countries show how the obstacles to political change in Algeria, Morocco, Tunisia and Egypt are not only to be found within these countries, but also in EU member states such as France and Spain.

Federalism and Federation in Western Europe

Edited by Michael Burgess University of Kent, UK

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Federalism and Federation in Western Europe (1986) analyses the nature of federalism and federation in Europe. It argues that there is an important conceptual distinction between federalism and federation. Federalism is taken to be a multi-dimensional phenomenon arising out of a variety of human experiences, it is a distinctive set of values and attitudes; federation is the organisational expression of this wide diversity. The range of federalism within Western Europe is examined and compared within this conceptual framework.

Edited by James Cornford

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

The Failure of the State (1975) examines the dilemmas faced by governments in the need to reconcile demands for local autonomy, and for increased opportunities for citizens to contribute to the decisions which affect their lives – at the same time as governments are held responsible for the general welfare of society, and under pressure to exert the powers of central government on the behalf of varies groups. This book looks at how these dilemmas have been perceived and debated in Europe, East and West, and what solutions have been proposed or attempted.

Tensions in the Territorial Politics of Western Europe

Edited by R. A. W. Rhodes University of Southampton, UK, Vincent Wright

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Tensions in the Territorial Politics of Western Europe (1987) examines the massive postwar increase in European government intervention, a major element being the development of welfare services provided by sub-central units of government. Governments have faced the dilemma of being electorally accountable for services delivered through differentiated, disaggregated policy systems. The territorial distribution of functions has become a major political and policy issue, and government centres have developed strategies for regulating the function-based policy system.

Britain into Europe

Public Opinion and the EEC 1961–75

Edited by Roger Jowell , Gerald Hoinville

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Britain into Europe (1976) examines how the debate in Britain about EEC membership was conducted between 1961 and 1975. Using survey research data from Social and Community Planning Research it shows how public opinion on this critical issue developed over fifteen years. Roger Jowell and Gerald Hoinville describe the background to the decision to apply; James Spence traces the movements in public mood; Barry Hedges looks at the final four years; Dipak Nandy analyses the role of the media; Martin Collins examines the vote itself; Andrew Duff considers the constitutional implications of the referendum.

Parliaments in Western Europe

Edited by Philip Norton University of Hull, UK

Over the last 20 years economic pressures have forced the governments of Western Europe to take hard and often immediate decisions. Policy-making has become more detached from parliaments as a result. How have the parliaments coped with these pressures and what role do they now play in the political system? Parliaments in Western Europe (1990) provides the first contemporary analysis of the various parliaments in Western Europe. Each author addresses two central questions: to what extent has the legislature been marginalised in policy-making, and to what extent has it been able to maintain popular support?

Regional Policy in the European Community

The Role of Regional Incentives

Edited by Douglas Yuill , Kevin Allen , Chris Hull

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Regional Policy in the European Community (1980) presents a structured overview of regional incentives and policy in the European Community countries, set in the context of the regional problem in those countries. Four main policy elements can be isolated in EEC countries: infrastructure investment; the use of state-owned or state-controlled firms to help develop problem regions; the use of disincentives in regions under pressure; and regional incentive expenditure. This book treats each of the EEC countries systematically, examining the problem – the development of policy, the incentives and a comparison with other countries.

Political Parties in the European Community

Edited by Stanley Henig

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Political Parties in the European Community (1979) looks at the decision by the member governments of the European Community to proceed to the direct election of a European Parliament. It provides a full survey of the parties of the nine EC states, giving both information and analysis on political and electoral systems, party systems, philosophy and structure of major parties, finances, membership and organisation. In addition, it deals with the evolution of transnational groupings of parties both inside and outside the European Parliament, and the concluding chapter places Europe's parties in the overall context of the political societies within which they operate.

The European Union and National Defence Policy

Edited by Jolyon Howorth , Anand Menon King's College London, UK

The European Union and National Defence Policy (1997) focusses on the role that European integration has played in shaping the defence policies of various European countries. The book is divided into three distinct parts: the first outlines the tortuous history of attempts to link defence with European integration and highlights some recent initiatives. The second part includes studies of the four larger member states – France, Germany, Italy and Britain, as well as the Netherlands – providing an insight into the different national factors that condition the impact of EU action. The final part considers the key questions of nuclear weapons and arms procurement policies.

Eastern Europe in the Post-War World

Hubert Ripka

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Eastern Europe in the Post-War World (1961) examines the conditions in the 'satellites' of Eastern Europe before as well as after the Second World War. Its analysis of the effects of Soviet intervention in the satellites, not only on the satellites themselves but also on the Soviet empire as a whole, is a close reading of the politics of Eastern Europe at the time of the Cold War.

Devolution in Context

Regional, Federal and Devolved Government in the EU

John Hopkins

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Devolution in Context (2002) is a work of comparative law that studies Western Europe's revolution in regional governance. It weaves history, politics and law into a coherent examination of the various structures of regional government, as well as examining the theory and practice that underpin Europe's regional revolution and the systems of regional government that developed as a result.

The Limits of European Integration

Paul Taylor

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

The Limits of European Integration (1983) examines the increasing resistance to the loss of authority to EEC institutions in the 1970s and 80s, and the resulting decline in the momentum towards European political integration. The limits which the member states imposed upon their involvement with the European community and assessed, and the various theories and models of integration are discussed.

Europe is my Country

The Story of West European Co-operation since 1945

Peter Wales

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Europe is my Country (1963) is a survey of the movement towards uniting Europe into a single state, introducing Europe geographically and considering the East–West split. It describes how the European economy recovered after the Second World War through the transfusion of Marshall Aid and how various bodies grew to meet varying administrative needs – OEEC, OECD, GATT, the Council of Europe, EEC, and European defence embodied in NATO.

Twentieth-Century Europe

Paths to Unity

Richard Vaughan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Twentieth-Century Europe (1979) traces the development of European unity from the early vision, inspired by the cataclysm of the First World War, to the institutions and the framework of the European Community. Throughout, the aim is to show how the idea and purpose of unity survived amid the turmoil of European politics and pointed the way to the creation of institutions which would allow European states to confront their problems together.

Spain, the EEC and NATO

Paul Preston , Denis Smyth

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Spain, the EEC and NATO (1984) examines the causes and consequences of the paradoxical situation whereby NATO member states welcomed a newly-democratised Spain into their ranks in 1982, with many Spanish citizens being firm opponents to Spain's participation in NATO defences; while Spain's attempt to join the European Community enjoyed widespread public and political support in Spain, but aroused serious resistance within the EEC, particularly by France.

European Movement and the Council of Europe

European Movement

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

European Movement and the Council of Europe (1949) begins with a Foreword by Winston Churchill, in which he states that his 'counsel to Europe can be given in a single word: "Unite!"' The book goes on to examine the history of European unity, and traces the story of the European movement, the political philosophies of political union and economic union, the Hague Congress, and the establishment of the Council of Europe and the European Court of Human Rights.

Politics and Bureaucracy in the European Community

A Portrait of the Commission of the E.E.C.

David Coombes

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Politics and Bureaucracy in the European Community (1970) examines the European project's key institution, the Commission, an assessment that also examines the basic principles on which the European Union is based. It reveals the Commission to be one of the most curious and interesting political institutions of our time – not only from the point of view of international organization, but also as a special kind of governmental institution: a 'responsible bureaucracy' or 'independent officialdom'.

Europe

The Challenge of Diversity

Helen Wallace , Adam Ridley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Europe: The Challenge of Diversity (1985) examines the various proposals for making a diverse European Community more effective, and for extending cooperation to political and security issues as well as economic. The obstacles to agreeing a collective economic programme are discussed in the light of the difficulties of achieving economic and monetary union. The study assesses the legal, institutional and negotiating requirements of adapting to diversity and the need for building bridges to other European partners.

Britain's Bilateral Links Within Western Europe

William Wallace

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Britain's Bilateral Links Within Western Europe (1984) examines the questions of Britain's bilateral relations with its major West European partners – how did the British government adapt to the development of a network of intensive bilateral and multilateral collaboration? This entailed daily contacts between most departments of government on issues ranging from military procurement to educational exchange, from foreign policy to electricity supply, from cooperation against terrorism to the control of plant diseases.

Gaullism

The Rise and Fall of a Political Movement

Anthony Hartley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

Gaullism (1972) is a historical-analytical study of the social and political movement of Gaullism, examining its political philosophy and practice, and its originator Charles de Gaulle. Starting with an analysis of de Gaulle's philosophy and the background of the Third Republic, the book traces the development of Gaullism during the war years and the Fourth Republic, details the founding of the Fifth Republic and its foreign and domestic policy, and examines the problems that came to a dramatic crystallization in the riots of May 1968.

European Organisations

Political and Economic Planning

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

European Organisations (1959) analyses the working methods and techniques of cooperation evolved by the eight principal European organisations – ECE, OEEC, The Council of Europe, NATO, WEU, ECSC, EEC and Euratom. These organisations were set up to meet the need for postwar economic recovery, and the challenge of the cold war. They were designed to bring about continuous and comprehensive cooperation, and this book assesses the reasons for their success or failure and shows which have been the most effective – and why European nations began the move towards the creation of a 'supra-national' state.

A Framework for Development

The EEC and the ACP

Carol Cosgrove Twitchett

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

A Framework for Development (1981) focusses on the link between the European Economic Community and the 60 African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) states. It reviews the experience of EEC–ACP cooperation in the 1970s and comments on the provisions of the second Lomé Convention which was signed in October 1979. The book places EEC–ACP relations in the international political economy context of North–South issues and examines the nature of the Lomé link as a framework for the development of the ACP countries. It contains extensive statistical detail, especially regarding ACP trade with the European countries.

European Defence Cooperation

Trevor Taylor RUSI, UK

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

European Defence Cooperation (1984) considers the varied elements of European defence cooperation and the obstacles to further development of a European pillar within NATO. It argues that closer cooperation would alleviate several problems, including differences between the US and Europe; public unease about defence policies; and constraints on defence expenditure. With references to four areas (nuclear weapons and strategy, arms control, conventional forces and out-of-area activities) it discusses the prospects for increased cooperation, and makes proposals for changes in policy and in institutional arrangements.

European Unity

A Survey of the European Organisations

Michael Palmer , John Lambert , et al.

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

European Unity (1968) examines how the European Economic Community and other European international organisations transformed the relations between the countries of Western Europe in political, economic and defence affairs. It describes the postwar moves to European cooperation and unity and the resulting establishment of various organisations. Each of these are examined separately, in terms of its history and achievements. The origins and structure of each organisation and the working methods and techniques devised by them are described, and the reasons for the relative success or failure in their allotted tasks are analysed.

The United States of Europe

Ernest Wistrich

The United States of Europe (1994) is a sequel to Wistrich's acclaimed After 1992 (also reissued as a Routledge Revival). With The United States of Europe the author seeks to address the developments that have taken place in Europe since, with an emphasis on political issues rather than 'the market'. He looks in detail at the Maastricht Treaty and its implications for future European union. He examines the implications of change in Eastern Europe and the geopolitical consequences of the break-up of the USSR, giving attention to the role of an enlarged and unified EU in international relations and looking at its role within the United Nations.

After 1992

Ernest Wistrich

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Politics of the European Union

After 1992 (1989) argues that the changes of 1992 will precipitate the transformation of the European Community into a full political and economic union, organized according to federal principles. In a thorough examination of its responsibilities in the monetary, economic, social and cultural spheres, it traces the European Community's progress towards its objective of European Union. It suggests ways in which national cultural identities can be preserved within a federal structure and introduces the principle of restricting federal powers to those matters that need common solutions and management, ensuring maximum autonomy and self-government in local communities and regions.

The Nurse as Therapist

A Behavioural Model

Edited by Philip J. Barker , Douglas Fraser

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

This book, originally published in 1985, is intended to complement Philip Barker's previous book Behaviour Therapy Nursing. The latter focussed more on the principles of the behavioural approach to nursing, while this book adopts a more practical approach. It is also shown that the proposed model can be extended beyond psychiatric and learning disabilities into general nursing.

Interpersonal Skills in Nursing

Research and Applications

Edited by Carolyn M. Kagan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1985, this book locates interpersonal skills in nursing in both social psychological and nursing contexts. It exposes nurses and nurse educators to different strategies for assessing, teaching and evaluating interpersonal skills and examines those aspects of specialised nursing care that raise particular issues in the field of interpersonal skills. The book thus combines reports of specific research studies with practical applications.

Nursing History

The State of the Art

Edited by C.hristopher J. Maggs

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

In recent years there has been an immense growth in interest in the history of nursing, both from nurses themselves, who are keen to discover the roots of their practice and profession, and on the part of historians and sociologists of health care to nursing history, women's history and the development of professional groups. Originally published in 1987 this book presents some of the most interesting work in this field from authors in Britain, the USA and Australia and is a major addition to this literature.

Occupational Health Nursing

Edited by Brenda Slaney

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

When this book was originally published in 1980, the speciality of occupational health nursing was only just beginning to be recognised by the nursing profession and the public although nurses had been doing the job for over one hundred years. One of the reasons for this may well have been the lack of nursing literature dealing with the subject. This book, written by tutors of Occupational Health Nursing Certificate Courses and practitioners in industry considers topics and concepts that give the specialism its unique character.

Nurse Education and the Curriculum

A Curricular Model

Fred Greaves

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

The nursing process, the curriculum process and theoretical nursing models are essential areas of concern for those nurses who are involved with the design, planning and implementation of nurse educational programmes. Originally published in 1984, this book reviews and brings together appropriate elements of these three areas. A critical analysis of nursing theory, and relationship of theory to practice, and an overview of nursing models is presented along with an examination of general curriculum theory and practice and nursing applications.

The Nursing Curriculum

Theory and Practice

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1987, this book expands and develops some of the ideas presented in the author's earlier volume Nurse Education and the Curriculum: A Curricular Model. This book expands that theoretical discussion and presents an analytical explanation of curriculum design, development and evaluation as applied to nursing. It also addresses the practical difficulties of building and implementing an effective curriculum for nursing education and discusses ways and means by which the facilitation of planning strategies can be developed.

Psychology for Student Nurses

Jessie Williams

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1954 and as a second edition in 1957, this book provides a survey of the main psychological principles necessary to nurses in their work. As well as being a textbook for nurses in training, it was written in such a way as to be of value to qualified nurses as well. The author drew widely on her experience as psychologist in London Teaching Hospitals including Guys, Great Ormond Street and University College Hospital, and as a lecturer to nurses in training. She illustrates her theme with many practical examples drawn from hospital experience.

Community Medicine

A Textbook for Nurses and Health Visitors

W. E. Waters , K. S. Cliff

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1983 this book gives a basic grounding in community medicine and epidemiology for district, community psychiatric and other nurses and health visitors. It provides the background necessary to an understanding of how diseases occur and spread in populations, and to an appreciation of the possible planning and prevention that such health professionals can undertake. Although the book focuses on medicine and epidemiology, it is written specifically for nurses and health visitors, and throughout a conscious effort is made to relate the discussion to practical work.

Primary Nursing

Nursing in the Burford and Oxford Nursing Development Units

Edited by Alan Pearson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Primary nursing is a system of care which reinstated the skilled professional nurse at the forefront of practical nursing care. Originally published in 1988, this book presents an argument, based on contemporary literature and on the practice in the former Burford and Oxford nursing development units, to support the introduction of primary nursing and nursing beds in general hospitals. It focuses on the philosophy of individualised patient care delivered by a professional nursing service and based on a close, therapeutic relationship between nurse and patient.

International Issues in Nursing Research

Edited by Shirley M. Stinson , Janet C. Ross–Kerr

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1986 this book presents a review of specific international themes in nursing research, particularly methodological issues; policy and funding issues; preparation for nursing research and other perspectives such as publication and the role of professional associations in nursing research development. In the past, geographical political, cultural, educational and economic barriers all contributed to insularity in nursing, but the authors maintain that there are many common problems and the profession can benefit greatly by an exchange of ideas.

Nursing Education

Research and Developments

Bryn D. Davis

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1987 this book presents a number of research-based studies in nursing education, concentrating particularly on the nursing curriculum and its planning, content implementation and evaluation. Some of the chapters report on specific research projects whilst others are more general reviews. The book is written by leading researchers in nurse education in the UK and will be of interest to nurse tutors and teachers and researchers.

Research into Nurse Education

Bryn D. Davis

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1983, this book provides a revealing and comprehensive perspective on nurse education in the 20th Century. The opening chapters look at the students themselves: the sort of people who come into nursing and it examines why the drop-out rate is high and how reality differs from expectations. The following section examines teaching on the wards and the final part is concerned with the education and support of those involved in nurse teaching.

Nurses

The Inside Story of the Nursing Profession

Donald Gould

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Nurses now, just as when this book was originally published in 1988, are under paid and overworked and thousands are leaving the profession every year. But why do many more highly intelligent and well-educated men and women stick to such a difficult and ill-paid job? Donald Gould has tried to discover the answer to this question by interviewing all kinds of nurses. For most the many frustrations and hardships of their jobs are more than out weighted by the immense satisfactions of the daily round.

Origins of General Nursing

C.hristopher Maggs

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1983 this book examines the beginnings of the nursing profession in its present form through one generation of general hospital nurses, Voluntary and Poor Law based, who were recruited and trained between 1881 and 1914. As such, they were the first to go through a co-ordinated and standardised training programme. This study is concerned with the way in which women chose and were chosen to be general nurses and the consequences that their decisions subsequently had for the profession.

Behaviour Therapy Nursing

Philip J. Barker

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

The behavioural approach in nursing practice is the main concern of this book, originally published in 1982. Although the discussion concentrates on the fields of psychiatry and learning disabilities, it is also relevant to other areas of nursing such as the care of the elderly or of sick children. The book traces the development of behaviour therapy from its beginnings in the experimental laboratory work of Pavlov, Skinner and Watson to the more recent influences of social learning theory. A survey is made of the major stages in the therapy process, and this is followed by a detailed description of possible types of treatment.

Nursing Management and Education

A Conceptual Approach to Change

Michael P. Bowman

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1986, this book examines the nature of management in nursing and discusses the relevance of management education to the job of the nurse. It examines key reports and legislation of the day as they affected the health service in general and nursing in particular. It aims to assist senior nurses in their teaching of management education and to assist first-line nurses in understanding and applying the principles of management to their own practice to improve patient care. Learning objectives are given throughout the book to ensure that the nurse can check their own understanding and apply the theory to real situations.

Social Skills for Nursing Practice

Peter French

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

The acquisition of professional interpersonal skills remains one of the key skills in the practice of nursing. Originally published in 1983 and as a second edition in 1994, this established book maintains that social skills can be learnt, and that patient care can improve by anticipating and preventing problems. The book shows how nurses can develop personally and professionally by actively learning social skills in preference to their haphazard acquisition in practice. Drawing on a wide body of writing, research and nursing theory each chapter concludes with reflective activities and self-evaluation tasks and is preceded by learning objectives.

Social Skills Training and Psychiatric Nursing

Owen Hargie , Patrick J. McCartan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

When it was originally published in 1986, this book was one of the few to be written on social skills and mental health specifically for nurses. Yet it is nurses who are uniquely placed to improve the skills of those with mental illness since it is they who often have most contact with patients or clients. This book examines the place of social skills training in the practice of psychiatric nursing. It provides relevant background to the evidence for limited social skills in psychiatric patients and the expanding role of the nurse and considers more practical elements such as selection and assessment of patients for a programme, goal-setting and role play.

Community Nursing

Research and Recent Developments

G. Baker , J. M. Bevan , L. McDonnell , B. Wall

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1987, this book is based on material generated by the former Department of Health and Social Security (DHSS) research project into development in community nursing since the 1974 reorganisation of the National Health Service in the UK. The community nursing staff involved comprised health visitors, district nurses and practice nurses. A wide range of issues which have enduring relevance today include staffing levels, education, health service priorities, government policies, changing professional roles and innovations in professional practice. The authors consider evaluative research undertaken to assess the pros and cons of developments.

Nursing in Contemporary Society

Una Maclean

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nurse Education and Nursing Care

Originally published in 1974, the main aim of this book is to help nurses to a deeper understanding of those whom they are learning to serve. The author explains the relevance of sociology to contemporary nursing, showing that patients cannot be fully understood or properly treated without a knowledge of the social background of their complaints, and without knowing something about the families upon whom they depend and who are dependent upon them. A sociological perspective can also help nurses in regard to their position: nurses play a wide variety of roles in a wide range of situations. A chapter is devoted to relationships within hospitals, particularly with doctors.

Public Policy and the Tax System

Edited by G. A. Hughes , G. M. Heal

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Public Policy

Originally published in 1980, this volume reviews and synthesises some of the analytical models used by economists in the late 20th century to tackle certain major questions of public policy, and specifically issues of fiscal policy in its widest sense. The essays, dedicated to the economist James Meade and written by contributors who were associated with him at Cambridge provide students and professional economists with an understanding of the ways in which specific taxes and general fiscal instruments may be used to achieve the goals of public policy with respect to the distribution of income and wealth.

Policy and Action

Essays on the Implementation of Public Policy

Edited by Susan Barrett , Colin Fudge

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Public Policy

It is widely appreciated that policies, however carefully formulated, too often fall down at the implementation stage. This collection, originally published in 1981 and which includes a number of case studies illustrating the roles and workings of the agencies involved, focuses on implementation in public policy. Part 1 reviews the literature on implementation and provides a theoretical context for examining the ten case studies in Part 2, which cover such policy areas as public expenditure, employment, housing, social services, health, planning and land.

Public Policy and Economic Theory

J. M. Oliver , G. H. Webster

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Public Policy

Originally published in 1970 this textbook on applied economics focusses on those parts of theory which have specifically made a contribution to policy problems. The book provides a coherent treatment of the subject at a particular level – the subject being the application of economic theory to government intervention in the economy. The first part deals with the techniques and size of such intervention and the accepted objectives.

Implementing Public Policy

Ruth Levitt

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Public Policy

Originally published in 1980, this book takes as case studies various policies arising from the Control of Pollution Act 1974 and traces their implementation and impact. The information about disposal of toxic waste on land, bathing water quality, noise abatement zones and industrial air pollution offers fruitful areas of investigation, highlighting different aspects of environmental pollution policy and its wider implications as well as illustrating vital components of the implication process, including enforcement and discretion. Many of these issues are as pertinent now as when the book was first published.

Family Doctors and Public Policy

A Study of Manpower Distribution

John R. Butler , J. M. Bevan , R. C. Taylor

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Public Policy

Originally published in 1973, this book investigates the spatial distribution of General Practitioners (GPs) via the Designated Area Allowance (DAA) which was introduced in England amid controversy in 1966. It analyses the effectiveness of the DAA and presents the results of a survey conducted among general practitioners in England, covering the patterns of geographical mobility among GPs, the relationship between choice of practice area and other connections with the locality. It also discusses the professional and personal differences between GPs in areas which are well served with GPs and those which are not.

Housing and Public Policy

Stewart Lansley

Housing in the UK and globally has long been an area of central and local government concern, and this reflects its vital importance for both individual and social welfare. Despite increased public expenditure on housing in the post-war years housing remains a major problem area of social and economic policy. While housing standards have risen on average, significant sections of the community continue to endure poor housing conditions and prospects. Originally published in 1979, this study considers the role of public policy in housing, presenting a critical and contemporary account of policies in the late 20th century.

Nineteenth-Century Communications: A Documentary History, 1780-1918

Edited by Karin Koehler , Nicola Kirkby , Kathleen McIlvenna , Eleanor Hopkins , Ellen Smith , Harriet Thompson

This four-volume collection contextualises primary sources related to nineteenth-century communications, including periodical articles, institutional and administrative records, material artefacts, and manuscript material such as correspondence, minutes, and memoirs. The collections contributes to improving understandings of how nineteenth-century, especially Victorian, communication media, infrastructure, and technology have shaped the globalised, networked world in which we live today.

What Has Been. A Novel, by Eliza Kirkham Mathews

Edited by Jonathan Sadow , Elizabeth Neiman

Series: Chawton House Library: Women's Novels

What Has Been, originally published in 1801, is an affecting, lively, and accessible read for scholars and students of the long eighteenth century. Eliza Kirkham Mathews' portrait of a struggling female novelist connects and also distinguishes What Has Been from novels by now-canonical female authors of this period. Simultaneously, it provides a new vantage-point for assessing obscure or long-forgotten novels. This volume will be of great interest to teachers and scholars of the long-eighteenth century and Romantic era.

Nineteenth-Century Communications: A Documentary History, 1780-1918

Volume IV: Nation, Empire, Globe

Edited by Ellen Smith , Karin Koehler , Nicola Kirkby , Eleanor Hopkins , Harriet Thompson , Kathleen McIlvenna

This volume pays particular attention to Britain's embeddedness—and role in shaping—a rapidly expanding global communications network. In particular, it reflects the links between communications and Britain's imperial and colonial projects. It covers: the development of imperial communication routes and infrastructures and the introduction of imperial penny postage; the ramifications of new technologies and media of communication for warfare and diplomacy; emigrants' correspondence; and the domestic significance of communication infrastructure in relation to British national identity.

Nineteenth-Century Communications: A Documentary History, 1780-1918

Volume III: Cultures of Communication

Edited by Kathleen McIlvenna , Karin Koehler , Eleanor Hopkins , Nicola Kirkby , Ellen Smith , Harriet Thompson

This volume illuminates some of the manifold ways in which Britain's communication infrastructure affected everyday life in nineteenth-century Britain. Accordingly, it highlights socio-economic, cultural, and material repercussions of selected aspects of mediated communication. It covers: the rise and role of the communication worker; the campaigns surrounding Sunday labour; the connections between new leisure opportunities and activities; concerns about morally suspect uses of new media and technologies of communication; and the presence of changing communication practices in material culture.

Nineteenth-Century Communications: A Documentary History, 1780-1918

Volume I: Reforming the Mails

Edited by Karin Koehler , Nicola Kirkby , Kathleen McIlvenna , Eleanor Hopkins , Ellen Smith , Harriet Thompson

This volume focuses on the development of mail services between ca. 1780 and 1860. It takes as its starting point John Palmer's proposal to reform the mail coach system in the 1780s. As part of this volume, the following themes and subjects are covered: mail services prior to the introduction of the penny post; campaigns for and against the introduction of Rowland Hill's scheme for penny postage; cultural responses to, and repercussions of, the introduction of the penny post in 1840; the 1844 letter opening scandal; and the development of mail infrastructure from 1840 onward, including the development of rural post routes and the use of the railways for the conveyance of the mail.

Nineteenth-Century Communications: A Documentary History, 1780-1918

Volume II: Invention, Innovation, Transformation

Edited by Nicola Kirkby , Karin Koehler , Eleanor Hopkins , Kathleen McIlvenna , Ellen Smith , Harriet Thompson

This volume foregrounds the close, and mutually informing, relationships between mediated communication and technological innovation during the nineteenth century. It draws attention to the fact that communication was a driver of innovation, but also considers how communication practices adapted to new media and technologies. The following themes and subjects are covered: the development of the telegraph; mail trains, travelling post offices, and accelerated public communication; the development of and cultural responses to steam-packet technologies and infrastructures; the development of and cultural responses to submarine and transoceanic telegraphy; and the beginnings of telephony.

E.S. Dallas Elsewhere

A Companion to E.S. Dallas in 'The Times'

Edited by Graham Law , Jenny Bourne Taylor

Providing a collection of E.S. Dallas's work, this volume explores the significance of the Scottish writer's practical and theoretical contributions to the criticism and journalism of the mid-nineteenth century, as well as offering an edited selection of Dallas's writings in the Victorian press. This book provides a comprehensive listing of around 250 contributions to other periodicals, and offers a generous edited selection of around 40 articles that are representative of this body of work as a whole. The source materials were published between the summer of 1850, just after Dallas left Edinburgh University, and early 1881 when a posthumous article appeared two years after his death.

Feudalism

J. S. Critchley

Originally published in 1978, this global comparative survey investigates the political, social and economic features of feudalism. While Europe remains its point of departures, it considers many other societies and their history, such as China and Japan, Ethiopia and Latin America, explaining what about them is described as feudal and why. The book spans a period ranging from Confucius and Herodotus to Mao Tse-tung. It also surveys and compares different instances of such phenomena as vassalage and military lordship, feudal kingship, clientage and patronage, serfdom, debt bondage and the feudalism which has so often been the target of modern reformers and revolutionaries.
