Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Hachette, or the appropriate overseas agent.

Hosting Earth

Facing the Climate Emergency

Edited by Richard Kearney Boston College, USA, Peter Klapes Boston College, USA, Urwa Hameed Free Immigrations Services, USA

Series: Psychology and the Other

Hosting Earth is a timely and much-needed volume in the emerging literature of environmental philosophy, drawing upon art, science, and politics to explore alternatives to the traditional domination of nature by humans. Focusing on the central role that the human psyche plays in answering our current ecological emergency, Hosting Earth is for anybody invested in the future of our planet and how psychological, psychoanalytic, and philosophical thought can reorient the current conversation about ecology.

An Inquiry Into Meaning and Truth

Bertrand Russell

Series: Routledge Classics

In An Inquiry Into Meaning and Truth, Bertrand Russell returns to philosophy after a long period of writing about education, religion and marriage. Investigating how we can be justified in what we know and how we can reconcile knowledge of the physical world with immediate sensory knowledge, Russell sets out to reconcile the various aspects of his thought since his early logicist period - the view that mathematical truths are ultimately logical truths. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new Foreword by Pascal Engel, placing Russell's book in helpful philosophical context.

Cavendish

Alison Peterman

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

Margaret Cavendish is one of the most important writers and thinkers of the 17th century. Almost entirely self-taught, as well as engaging deeply with the philosophical currents of her time she wrote on a rich array of topics including gender, science and manners. Her utopian novel, The Blazing World, is one of the earliest works of science fiction. This outstanding introduction to Cavendish's philosophy explores the full span of her work. Including a chronology, glossary, and suggestions for further reading, Cavendish is an ideal starting point for anyone coming to Cavendish's philosophy for the first time.

Individuals

An Essay in Descriptive Metaphysics

Peter Strawson

Series: Routledge Classics

Sir Peter Strawson was one of the leading British philosophers of his generation and an influential figure in British philosophy between 1950 and 1970. Individuals, his most important book, is a modern philosophical classic. Bold and ambitious, it sets out to describe nothing less than the basic subject matter of our thought. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new Foreword by Michelle Montague. Also included is Strawson's essay 'Individuals'. Published 30 years after the book itself and until now not widely available, it sees Strawson reflecting on some of the key arguments presented in his book of the same name.

Logic and Knowledge

Bertrand Russell

Logic and Knowledge presents Russell's very best and most important work on these topics in a single volume, which by placing philosophical logic at its core was of monumental importance in shaping the path of analytical philosophy. It includes classics such as 'On Denoting', along with other essays on fundamental philosophical problems including the logic of relations, universals and particulars, and propositions. Logic and Knowledge shows why Russell remains one of the most important philosophers of the last century. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new Foreword by Graham Stevens.

Moral Institutions

An Introduction to Philosophy, Politics, and Economics

Mario I. Juarez-Garcia Tulane University, USA.

Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE) is a promising approach to understanding our complex world and addressing contemporary social issues. The book uses a unified PPE approach which differs from a simple concatenation of moral philosophy, political science, and economics so that the reader can appreciate PPE's distinctiveness. It makes salient the virtues of PPE as a unified approach through a study of two liberal institutions that have been fundamental in making the world a better place: governments and markets. By the end, the reader will be confronted with the difficulty of finding only one right answer to unprecedented questions in a morally diverse society.

Mysticism and Logic

Series: Routledge Classics

Mysticism and Logic is one of Russell's most celebrated collection of essays. They not only set the tone for analytical philosophy in the English-speaking world but are Russell's first proper foray into the role of public philosopher, one he would occupy for years to come. Both scientific and romantic, Russell explores and unpacks some of the thorniest problems in philosophy. These include different ways of knowing, the foundations of mathematics, the ultimate nature of matter and whether we should seek a philosophical theory of causation. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new Foreword by Bernard Linsky.

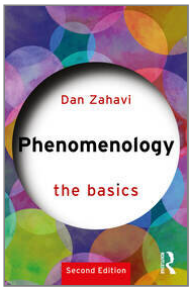
2ND EDITION

Phenomenology: The Basics



Dan Zahavi University of Copenhagen, Denmark

Series: The Basics

A concise and engaging introduction to one of the important philosophical movements of the twentieth century and to a subject that continues to grow and diversify. Yet it is also a challenging subject, the elements of which can be hard to grasp. This lucid book provides an introduction to the core ideas of phenomenology and to the arguments of its principal thinkers, including Husserl, Heidegger and Merleau-Ponty. This second edition has been thoroughly revised and expanded. It contains a new chapter on critical phenomenology and updated discussions of the application of phenomenology in psychiatry, psychology, and qualitative research.

5TH EDITION

Philosophy through Film

Amy Karofsky Hofstra University, USA

This book uses recently released, well-received movies to explore answers to classic questions in philosophy in an approachable yet philosophically rigorous manner. Author Amy Karofsky uses one or more films in each chapter to examine one longstanding philosophical question and assess some of the best solutions to it that have been offered. Each chapter includes discussion questions, an annotated list of films related to the chapter topic, and two or three historically significant primary sources. And a website includes Story Lines of Films by Elapsed Time for each focus film, allowing students to quickly search and navigate all discussed movies.

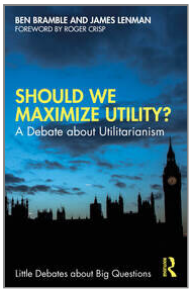
Should We Maximize Utility?

A Debate about Utilitarianism



Ben Bramble Australian National University, James Lenman University of Sheffield

Series: Little Debates about Big Questions

Utilitarianism directs us to act in ways that impartially maximize welfare or utility or at least aim to do that. Some find this view highly compelling. Others object that it has intuitively repugnant results; that it condones evildoing and injustice; that it is excessively imposing and controlling; that it is alienating; and that it fails to offer meaningful practical guidance. The two authors debate various forms of this longstanding ethical theory, arguing for very different conclusions, in a way that is sure to leave readers with new views of their own moral thoughts and lives.

The Philosophy of Leibniz

Series: Routledge Classics

Bertrand Russell's study of the philosopher and mathematician Gottfried Leibniz is one of his earliest books and remains one the most important books on this fascinating and systematic of seventeenth-century thinkers and the only book Russell wrote about a major philosopher. Exploring Leibniz's contributions to epistemology, substance, space and time, the soul and body, and the existence of God, Russell pushes philosophy and logical thought in bold new directions. It remains a vital work in Russell's oeuvre and a landmark study of a major philosopher. This Routledge Classics Edition has a new Foreword by Richard T. W. Arthur.

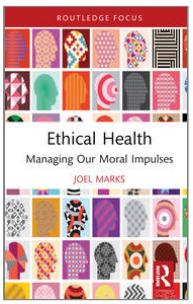
Ethical Health

Managing Our Moral Impulses



Joel Marks University of New Haven, USA

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

This book argues that moralism is a troublesome emotion of the sort one might seek help with from a psychotherapist. Its focus is on how to disabuse ourselves of the illusion that our values are objective, as well as how to manage the manifestations of its residual presence. The author suggests that moralism, conceived as being motivated by belief in objective values, be treated similarly to an emotional problem, akin to the sort addressed by anger management programs in psychotherapy. By exposing our beliefs and desires to rational scrutiny, we can achieve our rational goals without the adverse side effects engendered by a fictitious moral overlay.

2ND EDITION

Attention

Wayne Wu Carnegie Mellon University, USA

Series: New Problems of Philosophy

Wayne Wu's Attention was the first book to provide a systematic overview and assessment of different empirical and philosophical work on attention. In this revised and expanded and updated throughout, this edition includes new chapters on working memory, on automaticity and skill, and attention and ethics. The breadth of coverage provides materials for advanced students and researchers in psychology, cognitive science, and philosophy. Additional features include chapter summaries, a glossary, and suggestions for further reading, making this also an ideal introduction for those new to attention.

Kantian Citizenship

Grounds, Standards and Global Implications

Edited by Mark Timmons University of Arizona, USA, Sorin Baiasu Keele University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Philosophy

This is a collection of new essays on Kant's account of citizenship, the first book-length text on this topic. The chapters connect Kant's philosophy with issues concerning citizenship, including the moral grounds of citizenship rights, the relation between citizenship, human rights and dignity, civic virtues, citizenship in the ethical commonwealth, in particular the moral function of religious rituals, the link between ethical duties and faith, and the relation between religious freedom and political power, democratic participation, the legitimacy of international courts, just war theory, cosmopolitanism, and the contemporary relevance of a Kantian account of citizenship.

Early Analytic Philosophy

Origins and Transformations

Edited by James F. Conant University of Chicago, USA, Gilad Nir University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Philosophy

As the field of analytic philosophy has developed important new questions have emerged about the nature of analytic philosophy itself, with assumptions being challenged and new research paradigms emerging. In this outstanding collection contributors examine these questions and debates. Also includes a book review by Gilbert Ryle, published in volume form here for the first time, that sheds important light on the reception of Frege's Philosophy in the Anglophone philosophy. Will be of great interest to those studying and researching the history of 20th century philosophy, analytic philosophy, and the philosophy of language and logic.

Perspectives from Philosophy of Science

Edited by Tarja Knuuttila , Till Grüne-Yanoff Royal Institute of Technology, Sweden, Rami Koskinen , Ylwa Sjölin Wirling University of Gothenburg, Sweden

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Science

Models are used to explore possibilities across all scientific fields. This book draws together these studies, focusing specifically on how various modeling practices probe possibilities and justify claims concerning them. Essential reading for philosophers of science, epistemologists, and modelers in various scientific disciplines, Modeling the Possible is also suitable for anyone interested in model-based scientific inferences, their validity, and the policy conclusions derived from them.

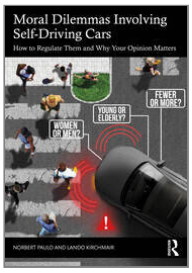
Moral Dilemmas Involving Self-Driving Cars

How to Regulate Them and Why Your Opinion Matters



Norbert Paulo University of Salzburg, Austria, Lando Kirchmair University of the Bundeswehr Munich, Germany

This book prepares readers to take an informed stance on the moral dilemmas involving self-driving cars. It will convince them that the ethical and legal challenges posed by self-driving cars are real, novel, and unavoidable—and that they require a solution. The book also discusses the astonishing discrepancies between existing regulations for collisions involving self-driving cars in some jurisdictions and empirical findings about what people think about how they should be regulated. Finally, it presents advice for policy makers around the globe on how to regulate moral dilemmas involving self-driving cars.

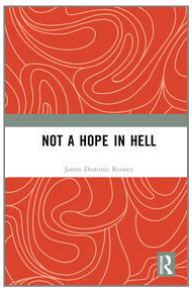
Not a Hope in Hell



James Dominic Rooney

This book aims to diagnose and tackle an old problem: why does God permit sin? The worst-case scenario is that someone remains in a state of sin forever and therefore ends up in hell. If sin is in no way good for anything, and God could have prevented it, why would God allow it? Why is God not simply arbitrary and cruel in saving some rather than others? The book will appeal to academics of metaphysics, theology, philosophy of religion, and medieval philosophy.

Optimism and the Best Possible World

A Philosophical History

Edited by Justin J. Daeley University of Northwestern – St. Paul, USA

This volume presents original essays on the ideas of philosophical optimism and the best possible world. Optimism is often associated with the philosophy of Leibniz. However, there exists a rich tradition of philosophical optimism not only after Leibniz, but before him as well. The chapters in this volume address the philosophical nuances of optimism within the ancient, medieval, enlightenment, modern, and contemporary eras. They cover a variety of thinkers ranging from Plato, Aquinas, Rousseau, Voltaire, Jonathan Edwards, the new optimists of 19th-century France, and the non-theistic optimists of the 20th century.

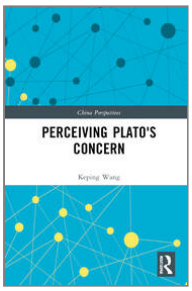
Perceiving Plato's Concern



Keping Wang

Series: China Perspectives

This book focuses mainly on the practical moral poetics in Plato's late masterpiece, the Laws, and applies a comparative approach to Plato's philosophizing and the Chinese way of thinking in the fields of art making, cultivating a good life, and music-poetry education. What is discussed here will be of interest to students and scholars of ancient Greek philosophy, classical studies, art theory, Chinese thought, and poetic education, among others.

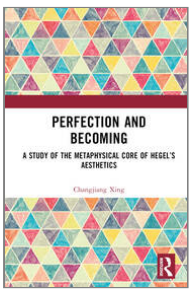
Perfection and Becoming

A Study of the Metaphysical Core of Hegel's Aesthetics



Changjiang Xing

In Hegel's aesthetics, the element of speculative philosophy is always a notorious aspect that attracts the most complaints from modern art criticism. The book, however, justifies the intelligibility in art in light of Hegel's philosophy of metaphysics. The author explores the philosophical motivations of Hegelian aesthetics, its underlying logic, the relationship between metaphysical core and artistic expression, as well as the contemporary significance and value of metaphysicalised theories of art exemplified by Hegelian aesthetics. The book will appeal to scholars and students studying classical German philosophy, German Romantic literature criticism, and modern art theory.

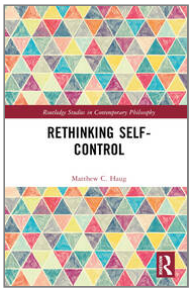
Rethinking Self-Control



Matthew C. Haug William & Mary, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

Despite a wealth of recent philosophical work on self-control, there has been surprisingly little empirically informed work in philosophy on self-control as a psychological trait. This book aims to fill this gap. It combines work from ancient Greek philosophy, virtue ethics, philosophy of action, moral psychology, social psychology, and cognitive neuropsychology to develop a novel hypothesis about what constitutes human excellence with respect to self-control. It argues for an indirect harmony hypothesis, which claims that high trait self-control consists in having an excellent ability to use indirect strategies to achieve motivational harmony that would not otherwise be possible.

The Islamic World and the Mediterranean

From Colonial Legacy to Political and Cultural Interdependence

Edited by Gustavo Gozzi

This book investigates the conflictual relationship between the Islamic world and Western civilization, looking at its history as key to understanding its present. The work turns a critical eye on current Euro-Mediterranean relations, highlighting the need to move beyond the conditionality principle that has traditionally been a cornerstone of European policy toward Arab Muslim peoples and to set this relationship on a new foundation, one that recognizes the interdependency between these two areas. It will be of interest to researchers and academics working in the areas of Legal and Political History, Comparative Law, Legal Philosophy, Law and Religion, and Islamic Studies.

The Relational View of Perception

New Philosophical Essays

Edited by Farid Masrour University of Wisconsin–Madison, USA, Ori Beck Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, Israel

Relationalism is the view in philosophy of mind that particulars in our environment are constituents of conscious perception. It is an important theory of perceptual experience, offering explanations of perception's phenomenal character and its epistemic and semantic role. However, it is has also been criticised for a lack of empirical grounding. In this outstanding collection an international team of contributors examine relationalism and consider its role in philosophy of mind and perception. Essential reading for advanced students and scholars in philosophy of mind.

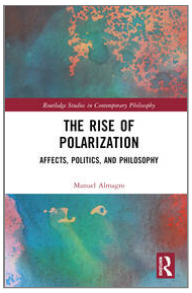
The Rise of Polarization

Affects, Politics, and Philosophy



Manuel Almagro University of Valencia, Spain

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book presents a philosophical analysis of affective polarization. The author examines affective polarization and distinguishes five dimensions of it: the identity dimension, the emotional dimension, the narrative dimension, the credence dimension, and the linguistic dimension. Along the way, he addresses questions such as: How many types of polarization can be distinguished? What are the conditions for a society to count as affectively polarized? What are political narratives and political identities? What do partisans do when they say that they dislike the outgroup?

The Routledge Handbook of Philosophy of Games

Edited by C. Thi Nguyen University of Utah, USA, John R. Sageng Independent scholar

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

Playing games is a basic human activity, and games raise a great number of fascinating philosophical questions. What, exactly, are we doing when we play a game? What is the value of games for human life? And could games be, or someday become, a form of art? Comprising 27 chapters by an international team of contributors, this Handbook is an outstanding reference source to the core concepts, problems and debates in this exciting subject, and is the first collection of its kind. As such, it is essential reading for students and researchers working in philosophy of games, philosophy of sport, digital aesthetics and game studies.

The Routledge Handbook of the Ethics of Immigration

Edited by Sahar Akhtar Georgetown University, USA

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Applied Ethics

Immigration poses one of the major moral and political challenges of the 21st century. Questions of the state's responsibilities towards immigrants, open borders, security, coping with the displacement of people caused by climate change and natural disasters, and deciding who has a 'right to remain' are but some of the significant challenges currently faced by governments, policymakers and humanitarian organisations. This collection is an outstanding reference source to this vitally important topic and will be of great interest to those studying philosophy, politics and related subjects such as law, sociology and social policy.

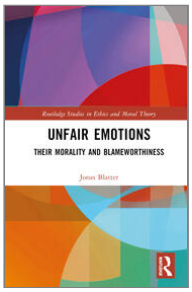
Unfair Emotions

Their Morality and Blameworthiness



Jonas Blatter Ruhr University Bochum, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book examines an everyday phenomenon: that we often perceive other people's emotions as unfair, in a similar way as if they acted unfairly. In the first half of the book, the author shows how an unfair emotion can wrong another person. His account holds that an emotion is unfair to its target if its inherent action tendencies constitute a directed moral hazard to the targeted person. In the second half, the author examines to what extent we are responsible for feeling an unfair emotion, and in what way we can be held accountable for it. He argues not only that emotions can be unfair, but also that there are limits to when we may hold people accountable for them.

Why It's OK to Be a Moderate

Marcus Arvan University of Tampa

Series: Why It's OK

Conservatives and progressives rarely agree on much—but one thing many agree upon is that it's not OK to be a moderate. This book shows they are wrong. Arvan shows that it's OK to be a moderate precisely because not everyone should be one. He makes this case to you, showing that whatever your reasonable political ideology may be, things tend to go best politically when radicals and moderates effectively complement each other's virtues while counterbalancing the other's vices.

Why It's OK to Have Bad Spelling and Grammar

Jessica Flanigan University of Richmond

Series: Why It's OK

As Jessica Flanigan argues in Why it's OK to Have Bad Spelling and Grammar, grammarianism often maintains existing hierarchies, entrenches the advantages of privileged groups, and imposes arbitrary barriers to knowledge production and innovation. For these reasons, Flanigan argues that bad spelling and grammar are OK. It's time to break free from the tyranny of the grammilitia in the name of improving understanding and creativity. As long as speakers and writers can effectively communicate to charitable listeners and readers, people shouldn't care about bad spelling and grammar.

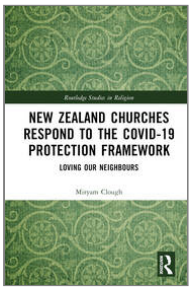
New Zealand Churches Respond to the Covid-19 Protection Framework

Loving Our Neighbours?



Miryam Clough

This book examines the ways in which New Zealand's churches interpreted Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern's "Covid-19 Protection Framework," which saw unvaccinated New Zealanders excluded from access to many aspects of civil life, including church attendance. The book considers the socio-political factors that contributed to a high degree of compliance with measures that Ardern herself acknowledged created "two classes of people" in a country that prides itself on being egalitarian and kind. This book will be of interest to churches, practical and public theologians, and others who are interested in global responses to the pandemic.

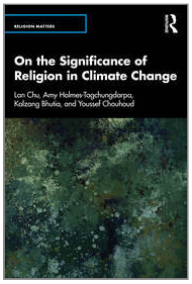
On the Significance of Religion in Climate Change



Kalzang Bhutia , Youssef Chouhoud , Lan Chu , Amy Holmes-Tagchungdarpa

Series: Religion Matters

On the Significance of Religion in Climate Change explores the role of religion in discussions about climate change and the development of responses to climate change on global, state, institutional, and local levels. This volume interrogates the diverse ways religion both acts and is acted upon by different actors, including institutions and nation states in response to climate change. This book hopes to complicate and unravel the complexities of how different religions approach climate change and recommends that religions are taken seriously in the development of climate change mitigation strategies at different scales.

2ND EDITION

Religion in the Media Age

Stewart M. Hoover University of Colorado, Boulder, USA

Series: Media, Religion and Culture

Thoroughly revised throughout, this second edition now looks at the digital age, "new media" and significant role of social media on religion today. While the sheer volume and variety of information travelling through global media changes modes of religious thought and commitment, the human desire for spirituality also invigorates popular culture itself, recreating commodities – film blockbusters, world sport and popular music – as contexts for religious meanings. This second edition of Religion in the Media Age is essential reading for everyone interested in how today mass media relates to contemporary religious and spiritual life.

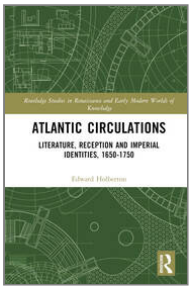
Atlantic Circulations

Literature, Reception and Imperial Identities, 1650-1750



Edward Holberton

Series: Routledge Studies in Renaissance and Early Modern Worlds of Knowledge

Atlantic Circulations investigates literary conversations about empire in the British Atlantic world, c.1650-1750. Reading texts by Anne Bradstreet, John Milton, Daniel Defoe, Benjamin Franklin, as well as writing by overlooked authors who deserve more attention, such as the Quaker anti-slavery activist Benjamin Lay, and the Black classicist Francis Williams, it asks how literary culture interacted with transatlantic debates about law, enslavement, economics and religious freedom.

Food, Feasting and Table Manners in the Early Renaissance

Volume II: From the Iberian Peninsula towards a New World

Edited by Guillermo Alvar Nuño

The present volume focuses on a two-fold issue: food as a cultural element that united Mediterranean European society, and food as a cultural encounter between European explorers and new worlds during the early Renaissance. Therefore, this volume continues the themes introduced in the previous monograph, Food, Feasting and Table Manners in the Late Middle Ages: Volume I: The Iberian Peninsula in the European Context, but takes into account the new, global scale of the era.

Shelter from the Storm?

Edited by Joanne Miyang Cho William Paterson University, USA, Eric Kurlander , Douglas McGetchin

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

Engaging directly with the rich and growing historiography on the origins, course, and consequences of the Holocaust globally and in East, Southeast, and South Asia specifically, thisvolume provides a framework in which we can better understand how global traditions of empire and colonialism matter in our efforts to understand the Holocaust, while indicating that Asian states and peoples were keenly aware of the so-called "Jewish Question" and made efforts, though widely differentiated, to provide shelter from the Nazi storm.

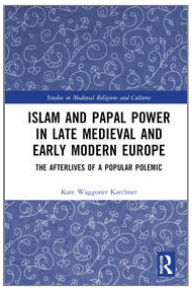
Islam and Papal Power in Late Medieval and Early Modern Europe

The Afterlives of a Popular Polemic



Kate Waggoner Karchner

Series: Studies in Medieval Religions and Cultures

Islam and Papal Power in Late Medieval and Early Modern Europe traces the influential history of another book: Riccoldo da Montecroce's Contra legem Sarracenorum. Around 1301, a Dominican missionary named Riccoldo da Montecroce wrote a treatise on the Qur'an, arguing against the validity of the Muslim faith. Over the next two hundred years, Europeans read, copied, translated, and circulated Riccoldo's work more than any other text on Islam. This study overviews and contextualizes that popularity in order to analyze Christian understandings of Islam in early modern Europe.

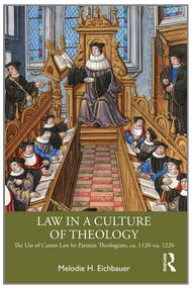
Law in a Culture of Theology

The Use of Canon Law by Parisian Theologians, ca. 1120–ca. 1220



Melodie H. Eichbauer

Law in a Culture of Theology: The Use of Canon Law by Parisian Theologians, ca. 1120–ca. 1220 considers the study of law within its intellectual environment. It demonstrates that theologians associated with the schools of Paris in the twelfth century, particularly Peter the Chanter and his circle, had a working knowledge of Romano-canonical tradition and thought about the human context of the law, which, in turn, reflected the environment in which each master worked. It begins by showing the extent to which law was woven into the fabric of the schools of Paris, and follows with individual case studies.

Music in American Nineteenth-Century History

Edited by Billy Coleman , J. M. Mancini

This book brings together a trail blazing collection of music scholars to explore the intersections, frictions, and resonances between nineteenth-century American music and history. The chapters in this volume unsettle longstanding assumptions about the types of music that were important to nineteenth-century Americans, where that music was performed, why, and for whom. And they underline the ability of music and musical practices to shed new light on questions of race, class, gender, and memorialization in the United States across the long nineteenth century. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of American Nineteenth Century History.

Ahmed Al-Rawi Simon Fraser University, Canada, Carmen Celestini University of Waterloo, Canada, Nicole K. Stewart Texas State University, USA, Joseph M. Nicolaï Simon Fraser University, Canada, Nathan Worku

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

This book provides an empirical analysis, mapping, and assessment of Canadian right-wing extremist (RWE) groups and their conspiracy theories. While the majority of studies on RWE groups focus on American and European actors, this book critically examines conspiracies disseminated by Canadian actors on different online sites and social media platforms. The authors deploy a mapping metaphor to chart the conspiratorial ideas that RWE groups create and share online. It will be of interest to researchers of Canadian politics, conspiracy theories, and the far-right.

The Deployment of Art

The Imperial War Museum's Artistic Records Committee, 1969–1982

Clare Carolin King's College London, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Art and Politics

This book explores the Artistic Records Committee (ARC) of the Imperial War Museum (IWM) as a bureaucratic mechanism that enabled the deployment of art as an instrument of war. This book shows that the ARC was implicated in the 'propaganda war' that the British Government waged to counteract negative public perceptions of Operation Banner after 'Bloody Sunday', and later during Britain's 1982 campaign to recapture the Falklands/Malvinas from Argentina. It will be of interest to researchers and scholars of history of art, museum studies, art and politics, and military and intelligence studies, as well as those studying the recent history of the North of Ireland.

The Lieutenant Nun

Annotated Translation of the Play, Historical Accounts and Documents about Antonio/Catalina de Erauso

Edited by Marta Albalá Pelegrín Cal Poly Pomona, USA, Edward McLean Test Boise State University, USA

Series: New Interdisciplinary Approaches to Early Modern Culture

This volume contains the English translation of the seventeenth-century literary and archival materials about a Basque person who died under the name Antonio de Erauso (b. ~1580, d. 1650), bringing readers closer to an individual who could be considered as a trans ancestor. The book presents early modern scholars working in English with new material essential to understanding the historical and literary figure of Erauso, and historical documentation that provides a glimpse into the terms Erauso (and others) seemingly chose for themselves.

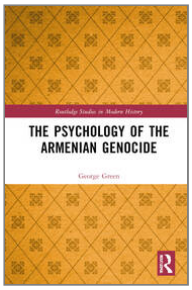
The Psychology of the Armenian Genocide



George Green

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This book examines the radicalization of beliefs, tactics and oppression by a dominant governing group when faced with a subordinate group's historic quest for basic human rights dating back for five centuries. A unique approach, an analysis of archival documents including minutes of Turkish meetings, provides a window into the inner workings and decision-making of the leaders. Their persuasive propaganda campaign is demystified by applying contemporary social psychological research to identify and explain their use of psychological mechanisms to weaponize intergroup prejudice and exclusionary ideology.

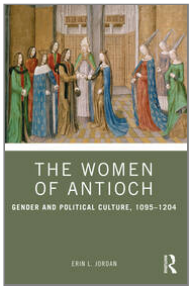
The Women of Antioch

Gender and Political Culture, 1095–1204



Erin L. Jordan

The Women of Antioch is both a biography of four women—Constance, Alice, Constance II, and Maria, all connected through marriage or birth to the crusader principality of Antioch—and an analysis of the political cultures within which they maneuvered, including eleventh-century France, Norman Italy, Antioch and Byzantium. This study will appeal to scholars interested in women, gender and political culture as well as the history and politics of the Latin East.

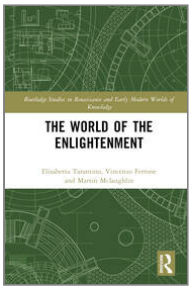
The World of the Enlightenment



Vincenzo Ferrone

Series: Routledge Studies in Renaissance and Early Modern Worlds of Knowledge

The World of the Enlightenment is a wide-ranging discussion of one of the most important cultural phenomena of the modern era. It covers topics from the scientific (such as the approaches of empiricism and humanism), the political (the rights of man, slavery, and colonial independence), and the artistic (modern art and public opinion). The author discusses these topics thematically in ten chapters. This book will appeal to scholars and students alike studying the Enlightenment and the history of intellectualism, as well as all those interested in the history of modern science, politics, and culture.

Vigor Mortis

The Vitality of the Dead in Medieval Societies

Edited by Scott G. Bruce , Stephen Gordon

This volume explores the enduring presence and participation of the dead in the lives of premodern people from the Carolingian period to the end of the Middle Ages. Unlike modern states, which erect barriers to separate the dying and the deceased from the living, premodern societies in western Europe fostered an on-going relationship between the living and the dead that was mutually beneficial to both parties. As these studies show, the dead had many means at their disposal to communicate their needs and disaffection, including ghostly visitations and unquiet corpses. The chapters in this book were originally published in the Journal of Medieval History.

The Museum in Asia

Edited by Yunci Cai University of Leicester, UK

Series: Leicester Companions to Museum Studies

The Museum in Asia advances understanding of the flourishing museum landscape in the region by offering a variety of conceptual tools and frameworks through which museum development can be analysed and understood. This book is the first academic book to explore the museum phenomenon in Asia from theoretical perspectives informed by museum and critical heritage studies, making it an essential text for the teaching of courses relating to museum studies, cultural heritage studies or Asian studies. Academics, students and professionals who are interested in learning more about the theory behind the museum phenomenon in Asia will find this book to be a useful resource.

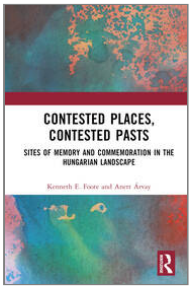
Contested Places, Contested Pasts

Sites of Memory and Commemoration in The Hungarian Landscape



Kenneth E. Foote , Anett Árvay

Contested Places, Contested Pasts focuses on how the First and Second World Wars, Holocaust, Cold War communist period and 1956 Uprising have been memorialized and marked in the Hungarian landscape. The book explores the difficult debates surrounding the remembrance and commemoration of these events. This is the first comprehensive, book-length study of Hungary's commemorative landscapes from the First World War to the present.

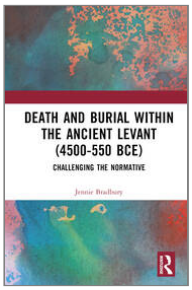
Death and Burial within the Ancient Levant (4500-550 BCE)

Challenging the Normative



Jennie Bradbury

This book explores the type and variety of burial practices within the Ancient Levant and challenges the assumptions of previous attempts to find a normative burial practice. Whilst predominantly focused on the modern regions of Israel, Jordan, Lebanon, Palestine, and Syria, this book also engages with these broader themes across Western Asia and the Mediterranean, adopting an interdisciplinary and cross-cultural approach to understanding temporal and spatial variability. This book is for students and researchers of the Ancient Near East and the archaeology of death and burial.

Decolonial Cultural Practices Towards Pluriversal Cultural Institutions and Policies

Edited by Meike Lettau , Özlem Canyürek

The book critically examines the epistemological disparities between colonialism and capitalism-critical cultural practices and Western art institutions. It does so through the lens of documenta 15, focusing on ruangrupa's lumbung approach, which confronts Eurocentric cultural norms and stimulates a shift towards pluriversal horizons, demonstrating the transformative potential of alternative methodologies. This book provides a comprehensive understanding of how collective methods and practices can cultivate pluriversal horizons in cultural institutions and policies, informed by extensive field research at documenta 15.

Mothering and Archaeology

Past and Present Perspectives

Edited by Laura Seifert , Suzanne M. Spencer-Wood

Mothering and Archaeology brings to light new insights connecting mothering in the past and present by exploring all aspects of this important but frequently under-valued and thus neglected subject and is underpinned by feminist theorizing of motherhood and mothering. Bringing together research on motherhood and mothering in the past with women's contemporary experiences of the relationships of mothering to archaeology, this book provides new insights to researchers in archaeology, anthropology, public history, and women's studies.

Participation and the Post-Museum

Katarzyna Jagodzińska

Series: Routledge Research in Museum Studies

Participation and the Post-Museum discusses the concept of participation in museum practice, as well as ideas that constitute the paradigm of the post-museum. Participation and the Post-Museum argues that museums rooted in the modernist tradition are usually not ready to share power and responsibility with non-experts from outside the museum world. It will be of interest to academics and students of museum studies, culture management, and heritage studies around the world.

The Museum Accessibility Spectrum

Re-imagining Access and Inclusion

Edited by Alison F. Eardley , Vanessa E. Jones

Series: Museum Meanings

The Museum Accessibility Spectrum volume engages with discussions around access to museums and argues that what is impairing the progress of museums towards inclusion is the current ableist model of access. The Museum Accessibility Spectrum will be of interest and importance not only to museum practitioners and researchers, but also to readers with an interest in cultural studies, critical disability studies, translation studies, and inclusive and universal design.

Approaching Social Hierarchies in Byzantium

Dialogues Between Rich and Poor

Edited by Anna C. Kelley , Flavia Vanni

Series: Birmingham Byzantine and Ottoman Studies

Utilising new methodological approaches to understanding not only the poor as a social and economic group but also of the internal means of stratification which informed social organisation within local communities, this book looks at the place of the poor within the multi-layered hierarchies of Byzantine society using evidence from archaeology, art, architecture, as well as narrative, theological, and legal texts. Rather than treating the different levels of society independently, it looks at the social interactions which replicated and reinforced hierarchies but were also subject to negotiation within local communities.

Aristotle in Japan

Reception, Interpretation and Application

Edited by Tomohiko Kondo , Koji Tachibana Chiba University, Japan

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This is the first volume to explore the modern reception and contemporary relevance of Aristotle and his philosophy in Japan, making it a valuable contribution to both global Aristotelian studies and studies of Japanese philosophical traditions. It explores the long historical struggle of Japanese people to read, understand and adopt Aristotle's philosophy in a philosophical tradition different from the West. Suitable for students and scholars of Aristotelian philosophy, as well as those working on Japanese philosophy and classical reception.

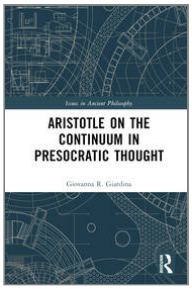
Aristotle on the Continuum in Presocratic Thought



Giovanna R. Giardina

Series: Issues in Ancient Philosophy

This book offers the first comprehensive analysis of the origin and development of the concept of physical continuity in ancient thought before Aristotle, combining a thorough study of Presocratic philosophy with Aristotle's perspective. The book's innovative approach critically analyzes Aristotle's engagement with his predecessors, including the work of Anaximander, the Pythagoreans, Eleatic philosophy, and the Atomists. Suitable for students and scholars of ancient philosophy and the philosophy of science, particularly those working on Presocratic philosophy and Aristotle's thought more broadly.

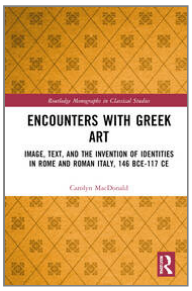
Encounters with Greek Art

Image, Text, and the Invention of Identities in Rome and Roman Italy, 146 BCE-117 CE



Carolyn MacDonald

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

Encounters with Greek Art sheds new light on the invention of ancient identities by focusing on encounters between viewers and artworks swept to Italy on the tides of Roman imperialism between 146 BCE and 117 CE. Readers discover how 'Greekness' and 'Romanness' were imagined and reimagined as powerful devices for grappling with the flux of images, objects, and individuals around the globalised world of the Roman Empire. This book is intended for scholars, graduate students, and advanced undergraduates interested in Greek and Latin literature, Roman visual culture, identity in antiquity, and histories of globalization.

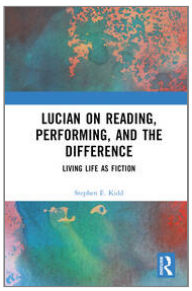
Lucian on Reading, Performing, and the Difference

Living Life as Fiction



Stephen E. Kidd

Lucian's writings raise questions about the nature of reading and viewing the lives of others; this book explores these questions through close readings of Lucian's dialogues and stories. Over the course of seven chapters, this book explores these questions of reading, performing, and the difference via detailed analyses of some of Lucian's best-known works: Hermotimus, Charon, Icaromenippus, Nigrinus, Rooster, True Stories, and others. Suitable for students and scholars of ancient Greek literature, Classics and the Humanities, particularly those interested in questions about Lucian and literary interpretation.

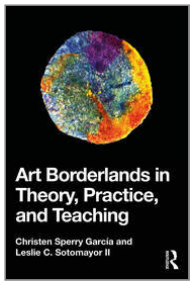
Art Borderlands in Theory, Practice, and Teaching



Christen Sperry García , Leslie C. Sotomayor II

Responding to an absence of Latina/e/o/x and Chicana/o/x artist and teaching resources, Art Borderlands in Theory, Practice, and Teaching shows how artists and educators can use borderlands, in-between geographical, emotional, cultural, and conceptual spaces, in three ways: theory, art practice, and teaching. Using hands-on approaches, the authors model how to use borderlands theories in the classroom by employing arts-based and teaching methodologies. This includes access to Latina/e/o/x and Chicana/o/x centered digital information, interactive classroom activities, artist resources, and beyond the classroom learning experiences.

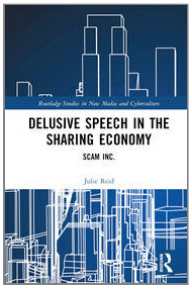
Delusive Speech in the Sharing Economy

Scam Inc.



Julie Reid

Series: Routledge Studies in New Media and Cyberculture

In this examination of how the rise of online sharing economy platforms have facilitated online crime, this book shows how while marketed as trustworthy peer-to-peer services, these platforms are highly vulnerable to misuse by scammers and are used for the dissemination of delusive speech. With a global audience including researchers in communication and media studies, digital media, and media industries, as well as tech journalists, Silicon Valley critics, policymakers, and digital rights advocates, this book unmasks how sharing economy giants like Airbnb contribute to an epidemic of online deception causing real-world harm.

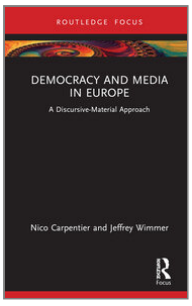
Democracy and Media in Europe

A Discursive-Material Approach



Nico Carpentier , Jeffrey Wimmer

Democracy and Media in Europe is a theoretical reflection on the intersection of democracy and media, through a constructionist lens. This focus allows us to understand current political struggles over democracy, and over media's democratic roles, with the latter ranging from the traditional support for an informed citizenry and the watchdog role, over the organization of agonistic debate and generating fair and dignified representations of society and its many (sub)groups, to the facilitation of maximalist participation in institutionalized politics and media. The volume will interest scholars of media and communication and related fields in the social sciences.

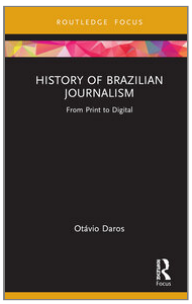
History of Brazilian Journalism

From Print to Digital



Otávio Daros Pontifical Catholic University of Rio Grande do Sul (PUCRS), Brazil

Series: Routledge Focus on Communication and Society

This book constitutes a first-of-its-kind synthesis of the development of journalism in Brazil, considering both its mediations with national social and political life and its relationships of influence and dependence on international economic centers. The author suggests that Brazilian journalism has so far known four phases: doctrinal political journalism, narrative literary journalism, industrial news journalism, and multimedia infotainment journalism. This study is an important touchstone for researchers of Brazilian and Latin American journalism and those interested in the ways in which the media shapes and is shaped by a country's socio-political climate.

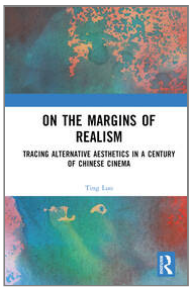
On the Margins of Realism

Tracing Alternative Aesthetics in a Century of Chinese Cinema



Ting Luo

Realism has been endowed with a certain orthodox status as the aesthetic counterpart of China's modernization, and studies of Chinese film history have largely accepted a master narrative of realism as the guiding aesthetic of mainland Chinese cinema. This book argues, however, that alternative aesthetics to realism have always existed in Chinese cinema throughout its history, from the early silent era to the new century. These alternative aesthetics are closely linked to the indigenous Chinese ontology of cinema, namely shadowplay (yingxi). The book will appeal to scholars and students of Chinese cinemas, realism, and modernism.

Parenting in a Digital World

Beyond Media Panics Towards a New Theory of Parental Mediation

Catherine Page Jeffery Univesity of Sydney, Australia

This book focuses on the challenges of parenting in the digital age, providing a counter-narrative to, and critique of, risk and cyber safety narratives, as well as some suggestions for a way forward. Aimed at media studies scholars and students, as well as parents and policy makers seeking a more comprehensive understanding of the broader academic research surrounding young people, media and parenting, this book argues that parent and child knowledges, practices and experiences must be better accounted for within the online safety ecosystem.

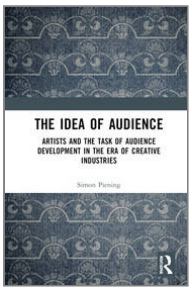
The Idea of Audience

Artists and the Task of Audience Development in the Era of Creative Industries



Simon Piening

What sort of relationship do artists want with their audience? What kind of role do they imagine for the performing arts in their community? The Idea of Audience is a critical examination of the current fields of audience development and arts marketing, and explores the relationship between artists and audiences from the perspective of the artists themselves. The book will be of most interest to students and academics of audience development/arts marketing, theatre/performance and audience studies. It is hoped that the reader will gain greater insight into what artists actually mean when they talk about their audience.

The Living Image in the Middle Ages and Beyond

Theoretical and Historical Approaches

Edited by Kamil Kopania A. Zelwerowicz National Academy of Dramatic Art, Poland, Henning Laugerud University of Bergen, Norway, Zuzanna Sarnecka University of Warsaw, Poland

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

Living images have been the object of devotion as well as targets of destruction, and they have been marginalised in both culture and cultural studies for their ambivalence, as well as their transgressive nature. But what is it that makes images the loci of such powerful properties? The present volume is an attempt to recuperate the living image, to draw it from the margins, and re-illuminate its importance for cultural history. Chapters include close examination of surviving objects and archival research, as well as theoretical reflections.The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history, medieval studies, material culture, theatre studies, and religious history.

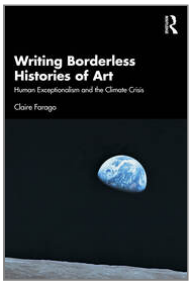
Writing Borderless Histories of Art

Human Exceptionalism and the Climate Crisis



Claire Farago

Writing Borderless Histories of Art is an aspirational, historical, and critical project that offers a fundamental rethinking of the relationship of humans to the rest of nature. Drawing upon writings from a wide range of fields, Claire Farago argues that Art History can play a role in advancing the public's interconnectedness with the planetary life-support system that so urgently needs to be restored. The book is neither a history of ideas nor a search for the origins of art history, but a recognition of the structures that drive its narratives. Its multilayered approach will appeal to art historians, archaeologists, anthropologists, musicologists, and philosophers.

British Writing from Empire to Brexit

Writing, Identity and Nation

Robert Spencer , Howard J. Booth , Anastasia Valassopoulos

This introduction to British literature from 1900–2021 looks at British writing from the perspective of the 2016 Brexit vote and its seismic repercussions. The book covers a wide variety of British literature in order to expose the cultural and political history of Britain, its repeated challenges and highly class-bound, patriarchal structure. Ultimately offering a model to rescue Britain from its current crises and anxieties, this book is an essential read for anyone approaching the study of British literature and culture, as well as those working on postcolonial studies, decolonisation, recent British history and politics, or with an interest in empire and Brexit.

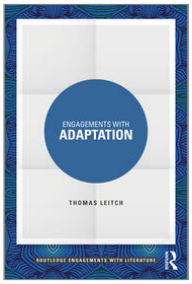
Engagements with Adaptation



Thomas Leitch

Series: Routledge Engagements with Literature

Engagements with Adaptation invites students to consider adaptations on their own terms and to engage with the questions they raise about literary canons, the media industry, the relations among different kinds of media, identities, and the ways digital and social media have complicated the roles of producers and consumers.This accessible and engaging guide shows how the 'anti-discipline' of adaptation studies is adjacent to an array of disciplines, making it a much-needed resource for students interested in television, moving image, digital media, translation, performance, music and art, border studies, race studies, queer studies, disability studies, and ecocriticism.

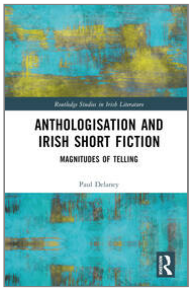
Anthologisation and Irish Short Fiction

Magnitudes of Telling



Paul Delaney

Series: Routledge Studies in Irish Literature

This original new study explores the recent flowering of short fiction in Ireland, analysing the production, dissemination, and reception of the short form in the twenty-first century, and reading contemporary short stories in their many configurations and guises. Anthologisation and Irish Short Fiction brings different writers at distinct stages of their careers into conversation, and This volume aims to illuminate the contemporaneous value of this body of work, its innovative and varied use, and the diversity of its practice. Particular attention is also shown to the fluidity of the short form, to its capacity to disrupt and arrest, and to its progressive, writerly potential.

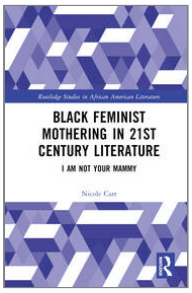
Black Feminist Mothering in 21st Century Literature

I Am Not Your Mammy



Nicole Carr

Series: Routledge Studies in African American Literature

This volume positions Black feminist mothering as much more than biological or caregiving role. Building on key Black feminist tenets, Dr. Carr examines Black women's maternal labors as the radical proclamation of our ability to mother ourselves, tend to each other, and nourish our communities. Far too often, Black women's maternal, intellectual, and political labors are only recognized when in service to white supremacist capitalism. Mammy. Breeder. Welfare queen. This text counters these dehumanizing iconographies, focusing instead on the Black maternal's radical possibilities for freedom.

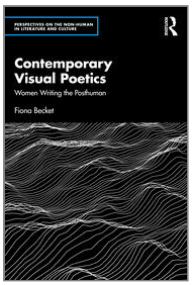
Contemporary Visual Poetry

Women Writing the Posthuman



Fiona Becket

Series: Perspectives on the Non-Human in Literature and Culture

When visual poets reclaim vision, visual poetics becomes feminist praxis. In Paula Claire and Maggie O'Sullivan "vispo" becomes an ecological practice concerned with connectivity in the entanglements of natureculture. In O'Sullivan, Campanello, Bergvall, and Philip spatial and temporal sense (de)formation sustains radical forms of voicing and eyewitness. Finally, works by Mez Breeze and Stephanie Strickland expand our understanding of visual poetry in digital (electronic, VR and AI) contexts in which technology and affect are intimately connected.

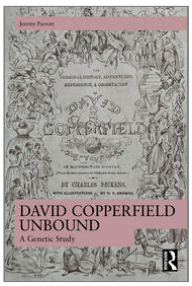
David Copperfield Unbound

A Genetic Study



Jeremy Parrott

David Copperfield was Dickens's most personal novel, a first-person narrative that reworked details of both the author's lived experience and his complex psychological profile. The present study is a highly original exploration of the sources and motivations underpinning this canonical work, treated here as a melting pot of ideas and a proto-modernist masterpiece. Jeremy Parrott casts himself as a literary detective, tracking down clues hidden in the text, following in Dickens's footsteps, and laying bare a previously unsuspected symbolic scaffolding.

Homecoming Veterans in Literature and Culture

Comparative and Interdisciplinary Perspectives

Edited by Niels Boender

Series: Warwick Studies in the Humanities

This book presents 'homecoming' as an analytical lens to better understand veterans' return and reintegration after conflict. Home is held to be multi-dimensional, a concept encapsulating the physical and the social, particularly disrupted by experiences of violence. Homecoming is, therefore, not a mere moment but a process that can unfold over years and decades as old and new bonds of familiarity are forged. Struggles over the home and homecoming are, moreover, endlessly political, bound up in questions of identity and the nation. Looking across times, places, and disciplines, the collection centres both historical and representational approaches to veterancy.

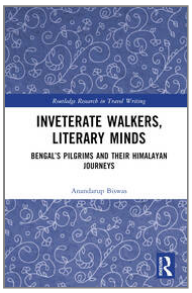
Inveterate Walkers, Literary Minds

Bengal's Pilgrims and Their Himalayan Journeys



Anandarup Biswas

Series: Routledge Research in Travel Writing

Inveterate Walkers, Literary Minds brings under its critical focus the writings of Bengal's travellers (mostly pilgrims) who went, on foot, into Himalayan trails from the late nineteenth to the early and mid-twentieth century. Unlike many European travellers and climbers in the age of empire, who saw the mountain as an obstacle overcoming which was a matter of individual and national pride, these modest walkers, unkempt and raddled in their meagre ways of travel, produced a discourse of surrender in their intimate and reflecting engagement with the mountains.

Kinship as Critical Idiom in Oceanic Studies

Edited by Katharina Fackler , Silvia Schultermandl

This book explores formations of oceanic kinship in transnational American literature and culture from the seventeenth to the twenty-first centuries. The chapters in this edited volume examine how kinship as a critical idiom and conceptual lens can help us rethink forms of human and nonhuman belonging in oceanic contexts. The book's notion of kinship encompasses practices of mutual care which emerge from an understanding of interdependence, collectivity, and affiliation. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Atlantic Studies.

Literature, the Gothic and the Reconstruction of History

The Past as Nightmare

Edited by Neil Cocks , Daniel Renshaw University of Reading, United Kingdom

Since its inception in the mid-eighteenth century, the Gothic imagination has been concerned with the pasts of the societies it emerged from. This collection, made up of contributions from archivists, historians and literary critics, examines how horror fiction and the wider Gothic mode have engaged with the constructed conception of "history". Literature, the Gothic and the Reconstruction of History will be invaluable to students and scholars interested in the confluences of literary and historical endeavour, the creation and depiction of historical constructs in popular culture, and Gothic horror in its myriad forms.

Margaret Atwood's Aesthetics

The Artpolitical

Edited by Dunja M. Mohr , Kirsten Sandrock

Margaret Atwood's Aesthetics recognizes prominent Canadian writer Margaret Atwood's impact as a highly political writer whose literary oeuvre engages with burning contemporary political questions on the personal, imaginative, scientific, and material level. From a variety of cutting-edge critical perspectives, such as risk studies, intersectionality, the nonhuman and the posthuman, Anthropocene studies, and pandemics, the chapters explore the rich and intricate interplay of politics and the arts in Atwood's storytelling, creating an aesthetics understood as the "distributions of the sensible" (Jacques Ranciére).

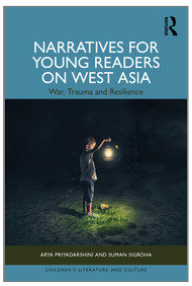
Narratives for Young Readers on West Asia

War, Trauma and Resilience



Arya Priyadarshini , Suman Sigroha

Series: Children's Literature and Culture

Through critical textual analysis of the trauma narratives for young readers written in English on political conflicts and violation of humanitarian values, this book recovers the response to trauma from the margins of the survivor spectrum. By focusing on the experiences of Syrian and Palestinian children, it elucidates how their stories are often portrayed in a manner that not only emphasizes their resilience but also underscores the gravity of the experience.

Narratives of Precarious Migrancy in the Global South

Edited by Gigi Adair , Carly McLaughlin

Series: Routledge Research in Postcolonial Literatures

This volume sets out to challenge and expand Anglophone literary migration studies in the global North with a two-fold approach. It proposes precarious migrancy as a conceptual framework to capture hitherto neglected aspects of subaltern displacement, and it turns to the global South as a site of knowledge production about migration. The chapters discuss literary narratives originally written in Chinese, Kurdish and Italian as well as English, and covering a wide geographical range, to ask what experiences and understandings of migration emerge from global South perspectives.

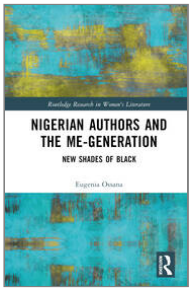
Nigerian Authors and the Me-Generation

New Shades of Black



Eugenia Ossana

Series: Routledge Research in Women's Literature

Nigerian Authors and the Me-Generation explores African literary issues and focuses on Nigerian generations throughout history. It also underscores women authors' relatively unknown or dispersed role and their positions regarding Western feminism. Concurrently, the book acknowledges the emergence of a current Generation called the Me-Generation, dealing with erstwhile taboo themes and genre experimentation. Three contemporary novels are singled out and analysed: My Sister, the Serial Killer by Oyinkan Braithwaite, A Small Silence by Jumoke Verissimo and Freshwater by Akwaeke Emezi

Nigerian Speculative Fiction

The Evolution

Chukwunonso Ezeiyoke

Series: Studies in Global Genre Fiction

This book is an exciting addition to a gap in non-Western genre studies of African fiction. It challenges the dominant canonicity of African literature, overshadowed by texts concerned with the colonial discourse and 'writing back' while exploring speculative themes in Nigerian fiction and writings that stem from an African cosmology and culture. The book examines important twentieth-century precursors of the post-millennial 'boom' in Nigerian Speculative Fiction (SF), reading texts that were omitted from the Nigerian literary canon developed in the 1960s.

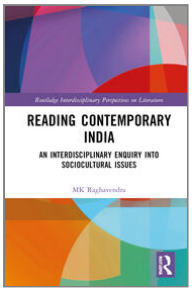
Reading Contemporary India

An Interdisciplinary Enquiry into Sociocultural Issues



MK Raghavendra

Series: Routledge Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Literature

The book is the first ever attempt to examine various socio-cultural aspects of contemporary India ranging from caste and hierarchy and the religious or political conflict resulting from it to literary practice and intellectual life in the public space and making interdisciplinary associations. It does this by going back to various aspects in India's past stretching back several millennia to those owing to public policy after independence. Many of the issues today such as those named above can be traced to racial mixing through centuries which has created a multitude of conflicts that need solutions today.

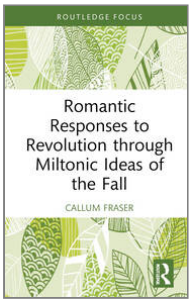
Romantic Responses to Revolution through Miltonic Ideas of the Fall



Callum Fraser

Series: Routledge Focus on Literature

Romantic Responses to Revolution through Miltonic Ideas of the Fall explores the influence of John Milton's epic poem, Paradise Lost, on a range of Romantic and post-Romantic writers. Specifically, the book examines the way in which these writers use the Fall, and the notion of 'fallenness' — as envisioned in Paradise Lost — as a model for writing about their roles as poets/writers in periods of political and cultural turmoil.

The Biopolitics of Childhood in the Long American 19th Century

Edited by Lucia Hodgson , Allison Giffen

Series: Children's Literature and Culture

This edited collection contends that the figure of the child is foundational to the workings of biopolitical power yet remains undertheorized. The study of nineteenth-century biopolitics offers a theoretical framework that promises to increase our understanding of how modern democracies manage their subjects. Recent scholarship has invigorated interrogations into forms of state governance that operate at the level of population, a biological phenomenon defined as a group of individuals linked by racialized fictions of biological commonality. This collection seeks to recognize and position critical childhood studies as essential to these interrogations. T

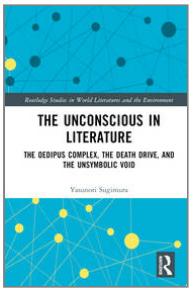
The Unconscious in Literature

The Oedipus Complex, the Death Drive, and the Unsymbolic Void



Yasunori Sugimura

Series: Routledge Studies in World Literatures and the Environment

This book aims to investigate the unconscious in literature using Freudian and Lacanian psychology to analyse the unconscious in a range of literary works. The works of Thomas Hardy, William Golding, and Iris Murdoch are discussed in the first chapter through eight. Based on the argument in these chapters, this volume considers the environmental problem by examining the unconscious in the literary texts, including poetry, in the light of philosophers and critics on ecology.

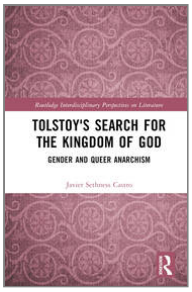
Tolstoy's Search for the Kingdom of God

Gender and Queer Anarchism



Javier Sethness Castro Primary care provider, USA

Series: Routledge Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Literature

This book uncovers queer-anarchist dimensions of the second half of Tolstoy's life (1828–1910), and the Russian writer's later art-works. It features queer-friendly readings of classics like Anna Karenina (1875–1877), "The Death of Ivan Ilych" (1886), and Resurrection (1899). The argument does not overlook the gross misogyny expressed by Tolstoy in either his art or his marriage with Countess Sofia Andreevna Tolstaya. Rather, the author explores the fundamental contradictions between sexism and anti-authoritarianism, while critiquing Tolstoy's self-defeating commitment to patriarchy. The text also praises the writer's late turn toward preaching Christian anarchism

Transport Revolution and Travels to Asia, 1860s-1920s

Edited by Tomasz Ewertowski , Wacław Forajter , Oliwia Gromadzka

Series: Routledge Research in Travel Writing

The authors of this volume aim to deepen the understanding of the influence of these new modes of transportation and their coexistence with older ones by incorporating a comprehensive range of sources written by both European and Asian travellers. The approach presented in this volume is inspired by the anthropology of the senses, the sociology of travel, and the cultural history of transport. These methodological frameworks are applied to accounts of travels to, from, and within Asia. This perspective enables a focus on various contexts not visible in Europe, including imperialism, Eurocentric approaches to modernisation, and the reactions of colonised peoples to these developments.

Travel and Colonialism in 21st Century Romantic Historical Fiction

Exotic Journeys, Reparative Histories?

Edited by Paloma Fresno-Calleja University of the Balearic Islands, Spain, Hsu-Ming Teo

Series: Routledge Research in Women's Literature

This volume focuses on Anglophone romantic historical fiction that involves stories of travel, tourism and migration in both past and present. It questions the reparative function of Anglophone romantic historical fiction to ask: can plots of travel and discourses of tourism empower women while narrating stories of healing for the wounds of the past? This is the first volume to consider how romanticised and exoticised women's historical fiction not only serves the purposes of armchair travel, but may also replicate colonial discourse, unintentionally positioning readers as neocolonial, neo-Orientalist cultural voyeurs as well as voyagers.

Ethnographic Landscapes and Language Ideologies in the Spanish State

Edited by Carla Amorós Negre , Gabriela Prego Vázquez

Series: Routledge Studies in Language and Identity

This book offers a multi-contributor view on the linguistic landscape research in Spain; focusing on both monolingual and bilingual regions of Spain with an interest in initiatives that promote social and linguistic justice without neglecting migrant and international languages in the territory. It observes how some languages, varieties and repertoires are privileged in top-down institutional environments, whilst others respond to bottom-up initiatives that contemplate complex processes of identity construction in Spain, in order to decide whether or not a greater balance between majority and minority languages is achieved in different contexts and spaces nowadays.

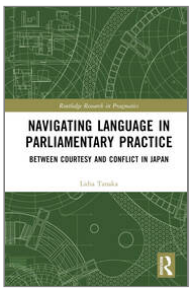
Navigating Language in Parliamentary Practice

Between Courtesy and Conflict in Japan



Lidia Tanaka La Trobe University, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Pragmatics

Tanaka explores the language used in Japanese parliamentary interactions to shed light on the use of language as a tool by politicians to convince, negotiate, persuade, as well as deliver aggression and criticism. By looking at the speech of politicians in the parliament of Japan, Tanaka demonstrates the unbreakable link between language and politics. As a book that explores the commonly overlooked phenomenon of impoliteness in Japan in the context of parliamentary interactions, it is a valuable resource for researchers and academics in the field of pragmatics and discourse analysis as well as a viable resource for undergraduate and graduate students.

Yemeni Poetry on the Frontline

Love and Conflict

Edited by Roberta Morano , Janet C.E. Watson , James Dickins University of Leeds, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Arabic Linguistics

Yemeni Poetry on the Frontline investigates popular literary responses to conflict in the different regions of Yemen, comparing responses to, and expressions of, traditional conflict with those to the new externally fuelled conflict. In its engagement with diasporic Yemeni communities in the UK, the book explores how storytelling and poetry might heighten and enhance both political and public awareness of the situation in Yemen, and lead to wider cultural understanding of diasporic and refugee communities in the UK. This book will primarily appeal to scholars in Yemeni poetry, Arabic literature, Arabic dialectology, and anthropological linguistics.

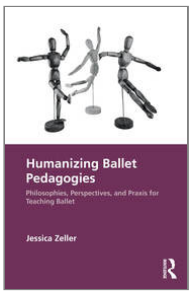
Humanizing Ballet Pedagogies

Philosophies, Perspectives, and Praxis for Teaching Ballet



Jessica Zeller

Humanizing Ballet Pedagogies offers a new take on the ballet pedagogy manual, examining how and why ballet pedagogies develop, considering their implications for students and teachers, and proposing processes by which readers can enact humanizing, equitable approaches. This book supports pedagogical thinking and development in ballet, and reflects how pedagogies come to be: through rationales, dialogues, and practices. This is a valuable resource for those teaching or developing a teaching approach in ballet. It addresses important issues for school owners, administrators, or anyone responsible for supporting ballet teachers or students in the twenty-first century.

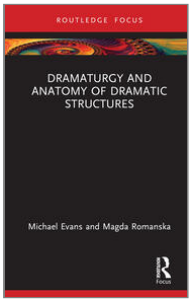
Dramaturgy and Anatomy of Dramatic Structures



Michael Evans

Series: Focus on Dramaturgy

In this book, Michael Evans discusses what he calls standard dramaturgy – a set of seven principles upon which most plays, from ancient Greek dramas to modern works, are based. Taking this essential question and looking at a broad range of Western plays, from Greek tragedies through Ibsen, we can discern a remarkably stable set of dramaturgical principles.

Slags on Stage

Class, Sex, Art and Desire in British Culture

Katie Beswick

Slags on Stage weaves cultural analysis with poetry and art criticism to explore the concept of the 'slag' and its place in contemporary British-English culture. The book traces the etymology of the word slag through the twentieth and into the twenty-first century, thinking through the ways 'slag' speaks to issues of class, sex and desire. Broadly, slag is an insult bound up with women's sexual reputations — but beyond this it is a 'key' word that shapes how we debate and understand culture. This is a fascinating exploration for students and scholars of British drama, theatre and performance, cultural studies and sociology.

Three Plays by Luis Valdez

Fin del Mundo, Valley of the Heart, Adíos Mamá Carlota

Luis Valdez , Michael Mark Chemers UC Santa Cruz, USA

Collecting together Fin del Mundo, Valley of the Heart, and Adíos Mamá Carlota, this book compiles the latest plays of Luis Valdez and explores how they stand to be considered masterpieces by the man who brought the world Zoot Suit and La Bamba. Luis Valdez has been described as the "last of the great American playwrights," referring to a Golden Age of US playwriting that began with Eugene O'Neill and included Tennessee Williams, Arthur Miller, and August Wilson. This collection is a vital and indispensable text for practitioners and students, as well as scholars of contemporary theatre, American, and Chicano performance.

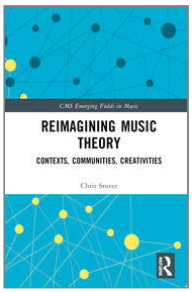
Reimagining Music Theory

Contexts, Communities, Creativities



Chris Stover

Series: CMS Emerging Fields in Music

Reimagining Music Theory invites instructors to rethink how we teach music theory, challenging the traditional, classical canon-based pedagogy and offering new and alternative approaches. This book aims to reimagine music theory as an explicitly and radically dialogic, creative, nimble transdisciplinary space where pluralities of knowledge systems and ways of doing and being can interact and mutually inform one another. Incorporating interviews with scholar-teachers at the forefront of innovative music theory pedagogy throughout, the book offers music theory professors and instructors frameworks for enacting meaningful change in the music theory classroom.

The Transformative Politics of Music Education

Edited by Tuulikki Laes , Gert Biesta Maynooth University, Ireland and University of Edinburgh, UK, Heidi Westerlund

Series: ISME Series in Music Education

This book introduces a unique approach to the interconnections between music education and politics. By taking a broader, more diverse, and explicitly ethico-political philosophical and theoretical stance, the book challenges institutional and structural conditions that may be resistant to change, and expands our understanding of the professional responsibility of music educators in the 21st century to meet a variety of societal and ecological challenges. Relevant to researchers and students across music teacher education and performance studies, it speaks to both conservatoires and university contexts, helping us unlock the transformative capacity of music education.

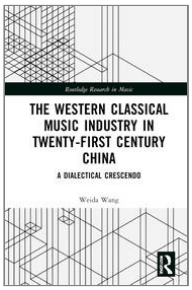
The Western Classical Music Industry in Twenty-First Century China

A Dialectical Crescendo



Weida Wang University of Liverpool, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Music

Weida Wang explores how Western classical music (WCM) has become increasingly popular in China, framing the industry as a complex entity intricately embedded within China's political landscape, cultural economy, and cultural industries. Wang highlights how authorities and organisers strive to build powerful brands to support the industry's growth, aiming to tap into the vast domestic market and showcase China's achievements in WCM on the global stage as part of broader cultural diplomacy efforts. The book will be valuable for those interested in arts/music management, music industry studies, China studies, cultural and creative industry studies, and ethnomusicology.

Tactile Tools for Social Emotional Learning

Activities to Help Children Self-Regulate with SEL, PreK-5

Lori Reichel

Many emotional learning activities—the "E" in Social Emotional Learning—include self-regulation skills typically led by teachers, but why not empower young people by giving them tools to choose their own self-regulation techniques? This practical and comprehensive book features 52 activities focusing on emotional learning, specifically self-regulation skills that incorporate tactile objects students can store in their personal "toolboxes." Tactile Tools for Social Emotional Learning is an important addition to any teacher's toolkit and is key reading for early childhood educators, elementary school teachers, resource/SPED teachers, and pre-service teachers.

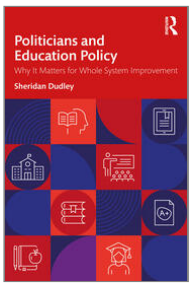
Politicians and Education Policy

Why It Matters for Whole System Improvement



Sheridan Dudley

Based on an in-depth case study, this book reveals how politicians, as policy makers, conceptualise, develop and initiate large-scale education system reform and why it matters for whole system school improvement. It shows how political context impacts the development of education policy and reveals the critical and dynamic relationship between politics, policy and process. Offering unique "insider" insights from an Education Minister, their staff, public servants and key stakeholders, this book is written for all politicians, policy makers and educators involved in school improvement, as well as students of educational leadership and policy.

Aesthetics, Affect, and Making Meaning in Science Education

Edited by Per-Olof Wickman , Vaughan Prain , Russell Tytler

This book offers novel approaches, theoretical insights and results on the development of students' and teachers' interest in science as situated learning. It argues for the importance of the affective and emotional dimensions of teaching and learning in STEM classrooms in parallel to the cognitive dimensions. Its insights can assist policymakers, instructional designers, and teacher educators in considering emotional aspects of learning and values more generally when implementing strategies to foster meaning-making alongside sense-making. It was originally published as a special issue of the International Journal of Science Education.

Ecopedagogy and the Global Environmental Citizen

Critical Issues, Trends, Challenges and Possibilities

Edited by Greg William Misiaszek Beijing Normal University, China

Series: Critical Global Citizenship Education

This edited volume collates over a decade of Greg William Misiaszek's work on ecopedagogy, with a new focus on insights and possibilities for global citizenship education (GCE) scholarship. Originating from Paulo Freire's education models of Latin America, ecopedagogy is centered on understanding the struggles of, and the connections between, human acts of environmental violence, social injustices, and Nature's unsustainability. This book will appeal to academic scholars, educational researchers, teachers, and environmental movement leaders who have interests in GCE, environmental sustainability, sustainable development, environmental teaching, and social-environmental justice.

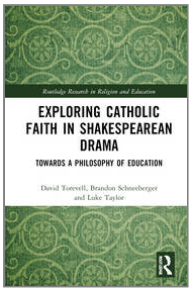
Exploring Catholic Faith in Shakespearean Drama

Towards a Philosophy of Education



David Torevell , Brandon Schneeberger , Luke Taylor

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Education

This pioneering study investigates the connection between Shakespeare and Catholic education. Its authors contend that Shakespeare's plays explore Catholic understandings of human life in ways that remain relevant for Catholic educational institutions today. The first volume to trace the relationship between a philosophy of Catholic education and Shakespearean drama, it will appeal strongly to all those working in Catholic educational settings, particularly those tasked with strengthening the mission of their institution, as well as to scholars and researchers of literacy education, religious education, and to those interested in the dynamic between education and drama.

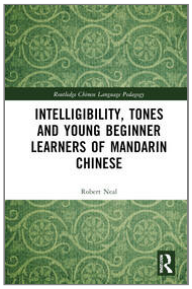
Intelligibility, Tones and Young Beginner Learners of Mandarin Chinese



Robert Neal

Series: Routledge Chinese Language Pedagogy

Set within the context of teaching and learning Chinese at an inner-city secondary school in the North of England and adopting a case study research design, this book aims to develop research-informed insights into the nature of the pronunciation challenges facing beginner learners of Chinese. While existing research has shown that producing native-like tones is difficult for Anglophone learners, the question of how important tones are for intelligibility has been largely ignored. Do heavily accented tones actually matter? Which specific areas of the learners' speech signal mislead their listeners? How aware are learners of their own pronunciation errors?

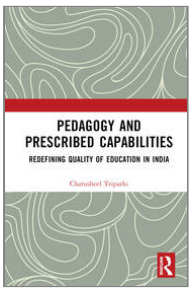
Pedagogy and Prescribed Capabilities

Redefining Quality of Education in India



Charusheel Tripathi

This book questions the validity and reliability of conventional measures of quality education, like enrolment ratio, retention rates, pupil-teacher ratio and availability of infrastructural facilities, henceforth demanding its re-calibration. It moves away from easily commensurable indicators and pursues descriptive indicators of quality, which directly focus on educational processes taking place within the classroom and factors influencing them. It will be useful to students, researchers and teachers working in Education, Psychology, Development Studies and Sociology. It will also be of interest to policy makers and professionals working in education and social development.

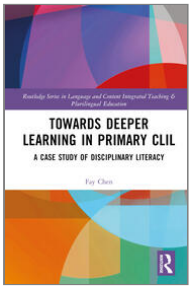
Towards Deeper Learning in Primary CLIL

A Case Study of Disciplinary Literacy



Fay Chen National Cheng Kung University, Taiwan

Series: Routledge Series in Language and Content Integrated Teaching & Plurilingual Education

Chen proposes a disciplinary literacy (DL) approach to Content and Language Integrated Learning (CLIL) planning and teaching in her book, in answer to concerns expressed by some about the growth of CLIL internationally in recent decades. The author tackles the fundamental questions surrounding CLIL implementation with a focus on fostering deeper learning using examples from the Taiwanese context. This book is an essential read for researchers and research students interested in deeper learning, and bilingual and multilingual education programs. It is also a viable resource for teacher educators and teachers who teach in multilingual programs and primary education.

All Subjects in Play: Play-Based Lessons for the Secondary Classroom

Amy Heusterberg-Richards

Even older students can benefit from play in the classroom—and it doesn't mean sacrificing rigor. This book shows teachers how embracing play in secondary classrooms can build content, refine skills, and assess understanding, all while inviting joy back into the classrooms of teens who often feel anxious and disfranchised about education. Each of the 20 lessons includes research-based rationales, step-by-step instructions, samples, student-facing directions, and applications across subject areas. By thoughtfully integrating play-based learning, we can enhance classroom management, maintain academic standards, cover curriculum effectively, and engage older students in meaningful ways.

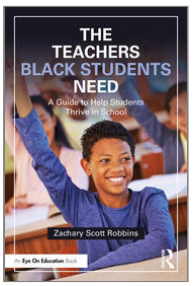
The Teachers Black Students Need

A Guide to Help Students Thrive in School



Zachary Scott Robbins

Who are the teachers Black students need? In this thought-provoking book, award-winning superintendent Zachary Scott Robbins considers this question and the impact its answer has for Black students everywhere. Robbins discusses topics such as helping Black students see schooling as useful and relevant; believing in students and celebrating their growth; helping Black students who experience racial discrimination, violence, and microaggressions in schools; and using your voice to advocate for Black students. Through a combination of stories and practical solutions, Robbins helps us re-imagine possibilities—and take action—on what schools can be for the Black students we serve.

Championing Co-production in the Design of Inclusive Practices

Positioning Children and Young People's Voices at the Heart of Education

Edited by Virginia Kay , Clare Woolhouse

Series: nasen spotlight

This book brings together the voices of practitioners, researchers, parents, and children and young people themselves to explore innovative pedagogies where multiple voices have been actively engaged in co-producing the design of inclusive practices within education. Championing Co-production in the Design of Inclusive Practices champions teaching and learning pedagogies which not only reflect individuality and difference, but actively seek to position children, young people and learners at the very heart of their own educational experience. It is valuable reading for SENCOs, practising and trainee teachers, and school inclusion managers.

How to Be, and Remain, a Compassionate Educator

Learning from Neurodivergent Students for the Benefit of All

Anne Emerson

As educators, the attitude with which we approach our work has considerable impact on the outcome for students. Our assumptions and expectations influence learning both positively and negatively. When we adopt a non-judgemental and encouraging approach, we form positive collaborative relationships with children and their families that increase engagement with and enjoyment of learning and reduces our own frustration and stress. This book is valuable reading for all educators, equipping them with an understanding that allows them to work flexibly and creatively to meet the learning and emotional needs of all pupils.

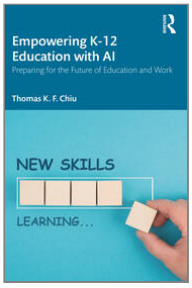
Preparing for the Future of Education and Work



Thomas K. F. Chiu The Chinese University of Hong Kong

This book looks at the impacts of Artificial intelligence (AI) on school education in two areas: AI education, and AI in education. AI education refers to teaching AI; and AI in education refers to using AI to support learning and teaching. Chiu examines the opportunities and challenges of these impacts for teachers and learners, proposes a framework and a set of principles for the two areas with examples, and suggests learning outcomes. This is an essential and thought provoking read for education scholars, teacher educators, and school teachers and leaders who wish to embrace AI to prepare K-12 students for their future education and the workforce.

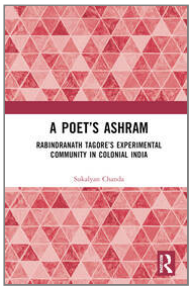
A Poet's Ashram

Rabindranath Tagore's Experimental Community in Colonial India



Sukalyan Chanda Gushkara Mahavidyalaya, India

The remarkably creative life of Rabindranath Tagore (1861-1941) has long been an area of scholarly enquiry. Yet, surprisingly, his role as the founder of an experimental ashram community remains unexplored. A Poet's Ashram retrieves the idea of his ashram through an exploration of his writings on the institutions he built. It traces the history of how the ashram school evolved into a community that practiced egalitarianism, inclusiveness and creativity through its daily existence and explores Tagore's engagement with a range of nineteenth and twentieth century discourses at a critical juncture in the history of modern India and the world.

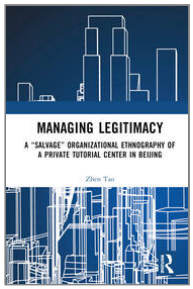
Managing Legitimacy

A "Salvage" Organizational Ethnography of a Private Tutorial Center in Beijing



Zhen Tao

From an out-of-school perspective, the book studies private supplementary tutoring, also widely known as shadow education within the Chinese education landscape. The author presents an organizational ethnography of Smart English, a private English tutoring center in Beijing. Using the concept of "organizational legitimacy" from organizational institutionalism as its framework, the study provides a detailed account of the center's daily operations. It enriches educational ethnographies and will appeal to academics of shadow education, Chinese education, and ethnography.

Plasticity and Education

The Philosophy of Catherine Malabou and Educational Thinking

Edited by Kjetil Horn Hogstad University of Oslo, Norway

Series: Educational Philosophy and Theory

This book explores the engagement between the philosophical concept of 'plasticity' and the radically changing space of educational thinking. Plasticity is a central concept in the philosophy of Catherine Malabou. It represents a new metaphor for the space between the creation, resistance, and total dissolution of form. According to plasticity, the cause and space for change are found inside of form itself, and form accumulates form over time. This book is a collection of a special issue of the journal Educational Philosophy and Theory and two new chapters.

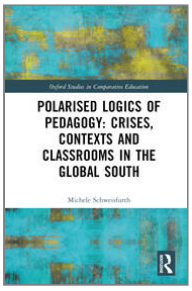
Polarised Logics of Pedagogy: Crises, Contexts and Classrooms in the Global South



Michele Schweisfurth University of Glasgow, UK

Series: Oxford Studies in Comparative Education

This novel book demonstrates the polarised logics that exist between exploring cultural, structural, political and historical contexts as a primary focus for pedagogical research versus an interventionist agenda that isolates pedagogy and its components from their environments. Ultimately providing a timely, informed and balanced discussion of these issues, this book will appeal to researchers, scholars, and post-graduate and doctoral students working in pedagogical research or international and comparative education, and anyone interested in the relationship between education and international development.

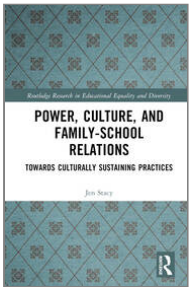
Power, Culture, and Family-School Relations

Towards Culturally Sustaining Practices



Jen Stacy California State University, Dominguez Hills, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Educational Equality and Diversity

This book explores the extent to which common practices in school-based family outreach advance equity or sustain the status quo in power and cultural relations. Showcasing the power of ethnography as tool which can be used to support educators and scholars to understand cultural elements of family outreach programs on a semiotic level, and how transforming these semiotic building blocks can lead to equitable relationships, it will appeal to scholars and researchers with interests in adult education, social foundations of education, critical ethnography, multilingual Adult Basic Education, and family outreach.

Teaching Beyond Dread

Edited by Alexander Means , Yuko Ida University of Hawai'i, USA, Matthew Myers

This book explores the persistence of teaching in this era of dread. The chapters examine the context of teaching in a time of dread, and touch upon different valences of race and pedagogy, as well as pedagogy in relation to global crises of capitalism, technology, and ecology. Taken together, they explore how teaching endures over dread and examine how teaching might be rethought as a creative force for imagination over fatalism, reciprocity over exploitation, thought over fundamentalism, belonging over atomization, love over nihilism, mutuality over narcissism, care over hatred, joy over despair, democracy over fascism, and hope over dread.

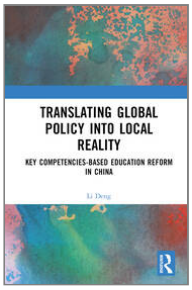
Translating Global Policy into Local Reality

Key Competencies-Based Education Reform in China



Li Deng

This book analyses the global diffusion of key competency-based education (CBE) as a 'global education policy' (GEP), focusing on China's process of adoption and adaptation. Based on a six-year empirical study combining interviews, observations, and document analysis, it examines how national and local actors (including education ministry officials, university experts, teaching and research officers, principals, teachers, students, and parents) interpret, modify, and resist CBE. The book will attract educators, policy makers, and researchers interested in the dynamics of global policy transfer, localised educational reforms, and the complexities of reform in a globalised world.

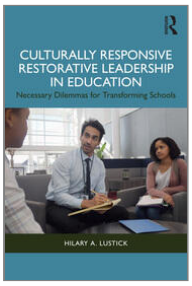
Culturally Responsive Restorative Leadership in Education

Necessary Dilemmas for Transforming Schools



Hilary A. Lustick

Culturally responsive restorative leadership centers restorative justice as a process for school transformation. Drawing upon nearly a decade of combined fieldwork in public secondary schools across the country, this book helps leaders unpack challenges, earn buy-in from their school community, implement sustainable restorative systems, increase equity, and promote school cultural transformation. Chapters explore the most common pressures leaders face and include prompts to help them approach these challenges as opportunities to reinforce their commitment to and purpose for restorative practices. This is a timely and important book for aspiring and practicing educational leaders.

3RD EDITION

American Government

Constitutional Democracy Under Pressure

Cal Jillson Southern Methodist University, USA

This book highlights the dangerous tension between our constitutional principles and institutions and the populist heat that sometimes roils our national politics, including at the current political moment. Our constitutional democracy has been under pressure for some time, but few would deny that fears for its fate have deepened in just the past few years. This new edition offers to help American government teachers lead their students to a nuanced theoretical and practical understanding of what is happening in the politics of their Constitutional democracy today.

An Introduction to the Israeli-Palestinian Conflict

Akan Malici

This book looks at the ongoing and seemingly intractable Israeli-Palestinian conflict as, at root, a struggle over land that began in the late 19th century. As one of the most enduring and bitter struggles we have seen in the last 100 years, the Israeli-Palestinian conflict is a powder-keg, always on the verge of exploding and drawing in the wider region, the international community at large, and in particular, the US. Many of the conversations in these audiences are animated by ongoing myths and problematic talking points. This book fills in the gaps of understanding while puncturing false dichotomies and tearing down walls of ideology or indifference.

10TH EDITION

Keen's Latin American Civilization, Volume 1

A Primary Source Reader, Volume One: The Colonial Era

Robert M Buffington

The tenth edition of Keen's Latin American Civilization inaugurates a new era in the history of this classic anthology by dividing it into two volumes. This first volume retains most of the colonial period sources from the ninth edition but with some significant additions including two new sets of images (representations of Brazilian cannibals and 'casta paintings' of mixed race families), an alternative conquest narrative, two new readings on imperial governance, and three new readings on gender and sexuality, including selections from the autobiography of a Spanish nun who took on a male persona to fight as a soldier in the American colonies.

10TH EDITION

Keen's Latin American Civilization, Volume 2

A Primary Source Reader, Volume Two: The Modern Era

Robert M Buffington

The tenth edition of Keen's Latin American Civilization inaugurates a new era in the history of this classic anthology by dividing it into two volumes. This second volume retains most of the modern period sources from the ninth edition but with some significant additions including a new set of images and a wide range of new sources that reflect the latest events and trends in contemporary Latin America. The 75 excerpts in volume two provide foundational and often riveting first-hand accounts of life in modern Latin America. Concise introductions for chapters and excerpts provide essential context for understanding the primary sources.

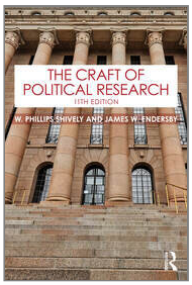
11TH EDITION

The Craft of Political Research



W. Phillips Shively , James W. Endersby

The Craft of Political Research is a non-technical introduction to research design and analysis in political science, emphasizing the choices we make when we design a research project and analyze its results. The book's approach centers on asking an interesting research question, and then designing inquiry into the question so as to eliminate as many alternative explanations as possible. Emphasizing the internal logic of research methods and the collaborative nature of the research process, the greatest strength of the book is its clarity and the large range of political science examples it provides.

Authoritarian Consolidation in Times of Crisis

Venezuela under Nicolás Maduro

Edited by John Polga-Hecimovich , Raúl Sánchez Urribarrí

Bringing together experts from across the social sciences, this book examines the consolidation of authoritarianism in Venezuela under the government of Nicolás Maduro. Taking a comparative perspective, it explains how authoritarians can remain ensconced in power amidst profound economic crisis, widespread social discontent, low approval ratings, and international policies aimed at their removal. The book is relevant to scholars and students of Venezuela, as well as anyone interested in the pressing question of regime crisis survival and authoritarian consolidation.

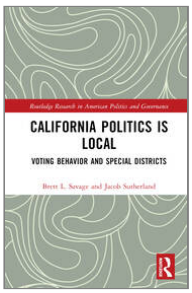
California Politics is Local

Voting Behavior and Special Districts



Brett L. Savage , Jacob Sutherland

Series: Routledge Research in American Politics and Governance

California Politics is Local argues that California politics should be viewed through a local lens due to the unique nature of the principal-agent relationship present in local governments around the state. By leveraging a variety of recent case studies about the contestation of civil rights and public goods and utilizing several novel datasets, this book presents a comprehensive understanding of California local politics as it stands in the 21st century. California Politics is Local brings a fresh perspective to students and scholars of urban affairs, political institutions, civic engagement, and public policy in the Golden State.

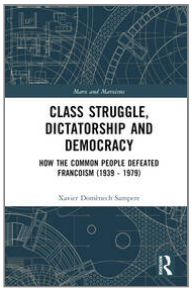
Class Struggle, Dictatorship and Democracy

How the Common People Defeated Francoism (1939-1979)



Xavier Domènech Sampere

Series: Marx and Marxisms

In Class Struggle, Dictatorship and Democracy: How the Common People Defeated Francoism (1939 - 1979) Xavier Domènech Sampere tells the story of Franco's dictatorship, the struggle for freedoms and the foundations on which democracy was shaped. Domènech offers a fascinating insight into the experiences of the workers who suffered one of the harshest and longest dictatorships in European history, but also of the businessmen who benefited from it. Published for the first time in English, this book is a must read for all those interested in the history of fascism, social movements and political transitions.

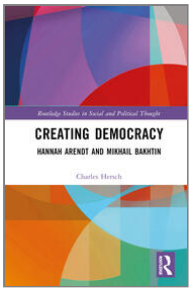
Creating Democracy

Arendt and Bakhtin in Dialogue



Charles Hersch

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

Creating Democracy brings into dialogue for the first time two important theorists of democracy: Hannah Arendt (1906-1975) and Mikhail Bakhtin (1895-1975). Charles Hersch contends that Arendt and Bakhtin have a unique vision of democracy that centers on creation and creativity. This book makes a unique contribution to debates in political theory about the possibility of freedom in modern society, and brings to light a rich vision of democracy that is sorely needed in a time when authoritarianism threatens us more than it has in decades. Students and scholars in political science, cultural studies and literature will all find this book indispensable.

Education and the Politics of Memory in Russia and Eastern Europe

Infested with History

Edited by Sergey Rumyantsev National Academy of Sciences, Azerbaijan

Series: Routledge Contemporary Russia and Eastern Europe Series

This book examines both formal and extracurricular education, and the politics of memory and historical narratives in Armenia, Azerbaijan, Russia, and Ukraine. The misalignment between memory politics and history politics forms a central theme of this book. The book covers issues such as the nation-state, Sovietization, national history creation, memory politics, religion, mass media, nationalism and patriotism, and analyzes the relationship of Azerbaijani and Armenian, Russian and Ukrainian societies with their histories and pasts. It is a timely contribution to the field of Post-Soviet history and Russian and Eastern European Studies.

Globalizations

The Shape of Things to Come

Heikki Patomäki

Series: Rethinking Globalizations

Building on post-Keynesian economic theory and classical theories of imperialism, the book discusses anticipations that neoliberalism will push the world into a new era of insecurity, confrontations, armaments, and wars. Part I delves into the acute geopolitical landscape, especially the war in Ukraine. Part II "Political Economy" focuses on the dynamics of the world political economy and concludes with discussions on connections between economic and normative theory. Part III concerns global political theory, ending with a cosmopolitan vision of the university's future. The chapters in this book, except for chapters 3 and 6, were originally published in Globalizations.

Governing the Crisis

Narratives of Covid-19 in India

Edited by Rahul Ranjan

This book presents a multidimensional approach to understanding the effects of COVID-19 on the lifeworld of the marginalized communities in India. The essays in the volume pursue two interrelated concerns: first, they examine the governance aspect, highlighting institutional failures, a lack of political will, and ideological warfare. Second, they firmly position the crisis – as a narrative tool – at the heart of marginality, thereby explaining the effects of COVID-19 on communities that continue to remain at the nation's margins. The volume will greatly interest scholars and researchers in governance, medical anthropology, public policy, politics, sociology, and South Asian studies.

Gramsci and the Southern Question

Global Readings, Interpretations and Uses

Edited by Juan José Gómez Gutiérrez , Carlo Verri , Tommaso Baris

Series: Marx and Marxisms

Gramsci and the Southern Question reflects on the special nature of Gramscian thought, linked to the concepts of hegemony, subalternity and the critique of the particular cultural-identitarian and ideological forms of the South and its historical development. After converging with other perspectives such as critical urban theory and cultural and subaltern studies, numerous fruitful lines of research emerged in which the Southern question has been extended from Italy's own North-South divide to other contexts. This book combines general theoretical approaches with studies on the reception of Gramscian concepts in the world's Souths.

Human Rights and the United Nations

Paradox and Promise

Edited by Abigail B. Bakan University of Toronto, Canada, Yasmeen Abu-Laban University of Alberta, Canada

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

This timely collection considers the complex and contradictory role of the United Nations when it comes to human rights around the world. It investigates the United Nations' role as knowledge producer, its relation to non-state actors, and the United Nations' role as a system for grouping sovereign states, where there is uneven buy-in within non-binding agreements and tensions between national sovereignty and human rights. At a time when the world faces existential challenges from climate change to pandemics, which disproportionately impact the world's most vulnerable populations, this book addresses future challenges and possibilities for the United Nations.

Kashmir After 2019

Abrogation of Article 370 and Completing the Partition

Edited by Werner Menski , Muneeb Yousuf

This interdisciplinary volume portrays India's removal of Article 370 and of Jammu and Kashmir's special status in August 2019 as an effort to stop the suffering of its highly diverse people. Though the bold step of August 2019 signified acceptance by both India and Pakistan of the completion of the partition of 1947, latent adherence to dreams of freedom (Azadi) indicates that the current arrangement needs to be more widely understood as a viable peace-making effort. It will be useful to scholars and teachers of political science, sociology, governance, economics, and development studies, scholars interested in Jammu and Kashmir and South Asian Studies.

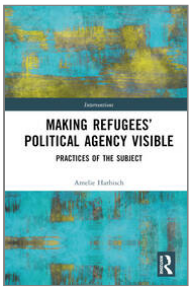
Making Refugees' Political Agency Visible

Practices of the Subject



Amelie Harbisch University of Erfurt, Germany

Series: Interventions

This book centres refugees and asylum seekers as agents of global politics, broadening our thinking about political agency beyond statism, citizenship, and organized political protest. Arguing that to understand forced migration, we must understand the construction of refugees as individual human subjects and how subconscious ideas about refugees influence daily practice the author studies how refugees make meaning about themselves. Forced migration is a key formative phenomenon of international politics but debates habitually discuss displacement only as an abstract number, economic challenge, or security issue.

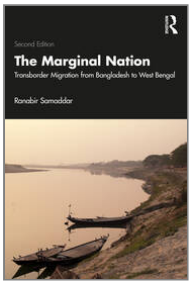
2ND EDITION

The Marginal Nation

Transborder Migration from Bangladesh to West Bengal



Ranabir Samaddar

The Marginal Nation analyses the realities of transborder migration in the South Asia region going beyond the domains of economics and demography. It provides an in-depth look into the historical, cultural and geographic dimensions of migration across the India–Bangladesh border that challenges fixed definitions of borders, nations and identities. Drawing from extensive fieldwork, the author encapsulates the lives and aspirations of migrants exploring the social affinities and historical ties that bind people across territories and 'marginalises' national identity.

The Politics of COVID-19 in Mexico

Governance Meets Government

Edited by Thomas F Legler

Series: The Politics of Pandemics

This book evaluates the factors behind Mexico's painful experience with the Covid-19 crisis, a country that ranked fifth in the world for the number of deaths caused by the virus. Through a series of vignettes, its authors point to pandemic politics as the culprit. With a focus on the nexus of global governance and government in the Mexican case, they underline the politicized nature of domestic, international, and transnational responses to the pandemic.

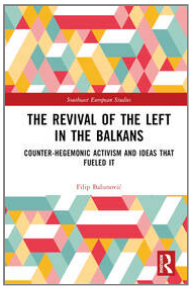
The Revival of the Left in the Balkans

Counter-Hegemonic Activism and Ideas that Fueled It



Filip Balunović University of Belgrade, Serbia

Series: Southeast European Studies

This book explores how the critical discursive breakthrough of social movements in Serbia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Croatia disrupted the post-socialist transitional status quo. It discusses the emergence of new left actors through the lens of a maturation of consciousness, rather than the opening of structural or other "windows of opportunity", suggesting the potential for such actors to emerge stemmed from the exposure of a segment of the populace to critical ideas. This book will be of great value to postgraduate students and scholars in social sciences, particularly those studying social movements and Eastern and South-Eastern European politics.

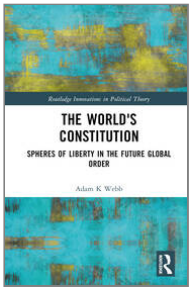
The World's Constitution

Spheres of Liberty in the Future Global Order



ADAM K WEBB

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

The World's Constitution: Spheres of Liberty in the Future Global Order offers a radically different vision of future world order that could work in a global space while shifting the balance of power from state back to society. It draws on older resources in political thought, both Western and non-Western, to upend mainstream notions of statehood and sovereignty that have been taken for granted for too long in the modern era. This book bridges ideas and real world implications, with insights that cut across a wide range of topics from migration and social welfare to personal law systems and channels of representation.

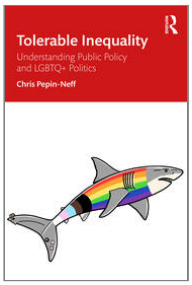
Tolerable Inequality

Understanding Public Policy and LGBTQ+ Politics



Chris Pepin-Neff The University of Sydney, Australia

Pepin-Neff coins the term 'Tolerable Inequality' to examine the ways in which politicians and political actors use the policy process as a tool to make inequality acceptable as a way of keeping power and avoiding penalties. The book explores this concept within the context of LGBTQ+ policy and presents frameworks that allow the public to engage in the policy process in ways that highlight the role of expected political penalties in order to reclaim policymaking in the public interest. A comprehensive text for researchers and students in LGBTQ studies, American Studies, Policy Studies, and Legislative Studies.

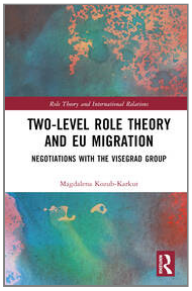
Two-Level Role Theory and EU Migration

Negotiations with the Visegrad Group



Magdalena Kozub-Karkut

Series: Role Theory and International Relations

Applying role theory and Putnam's two-level game framework to the European migration crisis of 2015, Magdalena Kozub-Karkut expertly shows how the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Hungary, and Poland used the crisis to contest their roles in the European Union and how each country and the V4 as a group, subsequently used their new contested roles in the bargaining process within the EU structures. Two-Level Role Theory and EU Migration is an excellent resource for scholars and students of Foreign Policy Analysis, International Relations Theory, European Studies, and Migrations Studies.

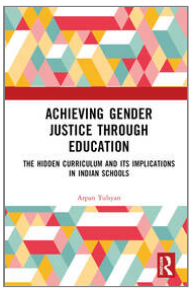
Achieving Gender Justice through Education

The Hidden Curriculum and its Implications in Indian Schools



Arpan Tulsyan

This book delves into the uncharted territories of how gender dynamics subtly shape educational experiences in Indian schools. Unlike traditional educational reforms, this book highlights the overlooked yet powerful influence of the "hidden curriculum"—the implicit lessons that subtly shape students' views on gender, caste, class, and religion. Particularly useful for educationists, educators, policymakers, academics, curriculum developers, teacher training institutes, gender studies departments and centres offering educational studies courses, it offers a compelling read for anyone interested in examining their own educational experiences.

China's Changing Role in the Middle East

Filling a Power Vacuum?

Chuchu Zhang

Series: Changing Dynamics in Asia-Middle East Relations

This book considers China's recent engagement in the Middle East, to what extent its approach has fundamentally changed, and how this role change has been received by regional and other actors. Based on content analysis, qualitative interviews and archival records analysis, the author examines the evolution of Beijing's involvement in the region. The role theory literature and has important policy implications, as it points out the main difference between established powers such as the US and EU and rising extra regional powers, and sheds light on what China's growing economic, political, and strategic clout means for the geopolitical landscape of the Middle East.

Diaspora Engagement at a Time of Crisis

Edited by S Irudaya Rajan , AKM Ahsan Ullah

This book explores the complicated dynamics of the global diaspora and its central role in times of crisis. The chapters in this volume examine how diaspora communities, often scattered across different countries, become crucial actors in times of need in their home countries. Using a mix of real-life examples and academic analysis, the authors document how diasporas mobilise resources, influence policy and provide support in times of crisis such as natural disasters, economic downturns and political unrest. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of South Asian Diaspora.

Diasporic Chinese Voluntary Associations in Transition

Ethnicity, Gender and Community (Re)making in the Asia Pacific

Edited by Ningning Chen , Emily Hertzman , Sylvia Ang
Deakin University, Australia

Recent studies of Chinese voluntary associations (CVAs) have attempted to highlight the theoretical significance of CVAs for understandings of community (re)making. However, the power dynamics inherent in community (re)making has rarely been expounded. In recognition of this, this book weaves together case studies across countries in the Asia Pacific to explore the complex power relations played out in and through the transformation of CVAs. This book was originally published as a special issue of Ethnic and Racial Studies.

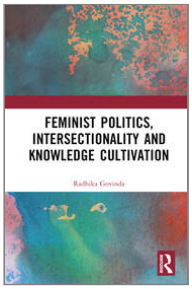
Feminist Politics, Intersectionality and Knowledge Cultivation



Radhika Govinda Lecturer in Sociology, University of Edinburgh, UK

In Feminist Politics, Intersectionality and Knowledge Cultivation, Radhika Govinda engages with intersectionality – as critical theory, as critical methodology and as critical pedagogy – to make sense of feminist politics in India and beyond, and knowledge-making on feminist politics, as such. In doing so, she makes a case for theory-making, conducting empirical research and classroom teaching to be understood as integral parts of knowledge cultivation, each feeding into the other. Uncovering, interrogating and disrupting the politics of coloniality and feminist complicity is an important running thread in the book.

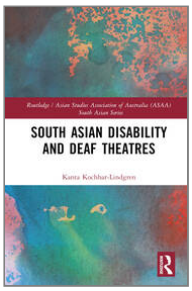
South Asian Disability and Deaf Theatres



Kanta Kochhar-Lindgren Wild Studios Consulting and Creative Production LLC., USA

Series: Routledge / Asian Studies Association of Australia (ASAA) South Asian Series

South Asian Disability and Deaf Theatres investigates translocal intimacies in relation to 21st century transnational South Asian disability theatres in order to lay out new possibilities for accessible theatres. The first book to cover theatre and disability studies in India, it shows that disability literature and theatres assist in delineating ways of reworking the politics of intimacy and belonging -within-and-across-differences. The book makes an important contribution to the broad field of theatre, performance and Disability Studies as well as Feminist Studies and South Asian Studies.

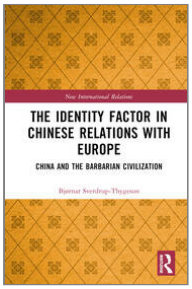
The Identity Factor in Chinese Relations with Europe

China and the Barbarian Civilization



Bjørnar Sverdrup-Thygeson Norwegian Institute of International Affairs, Norway

Series: New International Relations

This book offers a sustained, historically grounded analysis of the identity factor in China-Europe relations. The identity of the modern Chinese state was forged in the context of European emissaries, gunboats, and books. The effects still shape China's policies towards Europe today, as it becomes a focal point in the great power competition between the US and China. The author argues that identity dilemmas are central to Chinese Europe policies, both past and present. This is reflected in the two-pronged composition of the book; one historical section, combined and complemented with one contemporary section.

The Elections in Israel 2022

Edited by Gideon Rahat The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel, Noam Gidron , Michal Shamir

Series: Routledge Elections in Israel Series

The 2022 Israeli elections stand out as a turning point in the country's political history. Following a period of unprecedented political instability, the right-wing government formed following the elections—Benjamin Netanyahu's sixth government—was the most radical in Israel's history. The book will be of particular interest to students and researchers of Israeli politics and society-—especially relating to the events of 2023 and the war in Gaza—as well as to social scientists interested in these political phenomena and their effects on democratic countries worldwide.

African Fans of European Football

Cultural Globalisation in Kenya and Zimbabwe

Edited by Manase Kudzai Chiweshe , Solomon Waliaula

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

This book examines the increasing influence of European football in African societies, considering the processes and significance of being a fan and what this means for the wider globalisation of popular culture. Focusing on fan cultures in Kenya and Zimbabwe, the book argues that African fandoms of European football are practised in ways that resonate with and help reconstruct and perform the socio-cultural substance of the African communities in question. This book reflects how the global and local can coalesce in cultural trends such as football fandom. It will interest sports, leisure, popular culture, and social anthropology researchers in Africa and beyond.

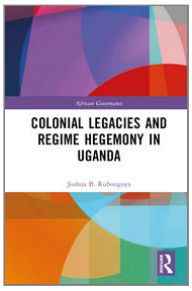
Colonial Legacies and Regime Hegemony in Uganda



Joshua B. Rubongoya Roanoke College, USA

Series: African Governance

This book explains the prevalence of electoral authoritarianism (or multi-party autocracy) in the politics of sub-Saharan Africa and examines why repeated elections have not deepened democracy. Using Uganda as a case study, the book examines the hegemonic regimes that underpin electoral authoritarian regimes in the context of a colonial legacy. This book considers independence struggles as formative moments and the nationalist period as a critical juncture in Uganda's historical experience. Shedding light on how to deconstruct movement politics and consolidate democracy in Africa, this book will be of interest to scholars of African politics and democratization.

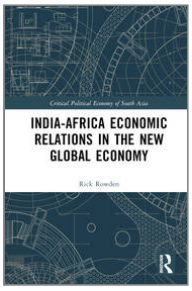
India-Africa Economic Relations in the New Global Economy



Rick Rowden

Series: Critical Political Economy of South Asia

While there have been many books about China's growing economic role in Africa, this book explores the much less well-known story of India's growing economic role in Africa. And like the big debates about China's role in Africa, this book similarly asks if India is acting as a helpful development partner in Africa, an exploitative 'new colonizer', or if the answer ultimately has to do with the degree of agency exercised by African governments.

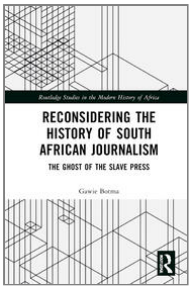
Reconsidering the History of South African Journalism

The Ghost of the Slave Press



Gawie Botma

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Africa

This book dives into the history of slavery at the Cape between 1800 and 1838, reflecting on the fact that several founding journalists and printers were slave owners themselves and advertised slaves as regular "property" in their publications. The book presents an inclusive history of the founding of colonial newspapers and magazines, driven by the question how we in the 21st century should make sense of the role that newspapers and journalism played at key points in the history of slavery and its aftermath.This important book will be of interest to scholars and students of journalism and media history, in South Africa and beyond.

Reflecting on the Past, Shaping the Future: Examining Intellectual Property and Technology Law in Africa

Edited by Bukola Faturoti , Subhajit Basu

Besides the abundance of natural resources, intellectual property (IP) and technology have played a significant role in Africa's ongoing economic growth and development. Based on these premises, this book reflects on the utilisation of both technology and intellectual property in Africa. This book brings together expert contributors to examine how Africa can maximise the opportunities afforded by technology and intellectual property, exploring the intersection of IP and technology in areas such as cultural heritage, tax, education, and agriculture, among others. It was originally published as a special issue of International Review of Law, Computers & Technology.

Religion, Disability, and Sustainable Development in Africa

Edited by Chioma Ohajunwa , Kudakwashe 'AK' Dube , Ezra Chitando University of Zimbabwe

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book investigates the interplay between disability and religion in Africa, and what this means in the context of the Sustainable Development Goals. The importance of meeting the needs of people with disabilities is highlighted specifically in several Sustainable Development Goals as well as being emphasised as a cross-cutting issue across all the goals. Overall, the book invites researchers from across the social sciences to consider how African religious, theological, and philosophical ideas can help towards the inclusion of people with disabilities in the 2030 development agenda in Africa.

South African Transitions

A Safundi Reader on Social, Political, and Intellectual Transformations, 1999-2024

Edited by Christopher Lee , Andrew Offenburger

This book addresses the multiple repercussions of South Africa's democratic transition beginning in 1994 by examining a number of themes with local, national, regional, and global relevance: the politics of nation building, public memory, residential segregation, higher education, media, racism, trade unionism, women's rights, and global climate change, to name only a few. Drawing from the rich archive of previously published articles from the journal Safundi, South African Transitions documents both the country's, and the journal's mutual history over the past quarter century.

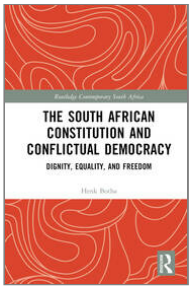
The South African Constitution and Conflictual Democracy

Dignity, Equality, and Freedom



Henk Botha

Series: Routledge Contemporary South Africa

Human dignity, equality, and freedom are central to the South African Constitution. This book examines these values through a conflictual democratic lens, which views conflict, power, and disagreement as constitutive of democracy. The book explores the capacity of value-based constitutional interpretation to create openings for democratic dialogue and emancipatory social struggles. Drawing on the text of the Constitution, case law, academic commentary, and constitutional, political, and critical legal theory, this book will be an important read for researchers of constitutional law and critical legal theory, both within South Africa and beyond.

Unwritten Afro-Iberian Memories and Histories

Race, Ethnicity and Gender in Portugal and Spain

Edited by Yolanda Aixelà-Cabré

Series: Ethnic and Racial Studies

This book sketches out an innovative Afro-Iberian mosaic that puts forgotten memories and histories into circulation, constructing an Afro-Iberian past that is critical of the cultural racialization of Spaniards and Portuguese. It builds an early late modern and contemporary Afro-Iberian history and approaches African and Maghrebi experiences and memories in order to explain the close relation between race, class, ethnicity and gender in Portugal and Spain between 1850 and 2021. This book was originally published as a special issue of Ethnic and Racial Studies.

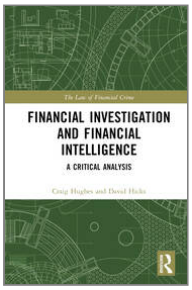
Financial Investigation and Financial Intelligence

A Critical Analysis



Craig Hughes , David Hicks

Series: The Law of Financial Crime

This book critically analyses the conceptual understanding of financial investigation and financial intelligence among UK law enforcement authorities and their commentators. It provides a critical review of financial investigation, including international standards, and how it is perceived and applied by law enforcement agencies. It adopts the position that financial investigation is an evidence-gathering process and not simply related to asset recovery. It identifies the financial footprint as a skillset for routine investigation application. The book will be of interest to students, academics and policy-makers in the areas of Criminal Law, Criminology and Finance.

This work explores the transformative potential of neuroscience in reshaping India's criminal justice system. It examines neurolaw's implications for criminal responsibility, rehabilitation, and the very foundations of legal thought. It covers a wide range of topics, from a neurocriminological audit of Indian criminal codes to an exploration of neuroplasticity in offender rehabilitation. It includes a fascinating case study of the Vipassana meditation program in Indian prisons, illustrating the practical applications of neurolaw principles. It will be an essential read for legal scholars, neuroscientists, policymakers, and anyone interested in the future of criminal justice.

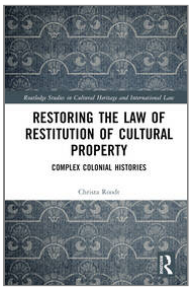
Restoring the Law of Restitution of Cultural Property

Complex Colonial Histories



Christa Roodt

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural Heritage and International Law

This book covers the restoration of the law of restitution of cultural property, matching the time, space and depth dimensions of the law with the time, space and ontology of events that violated persons and desecrated their heritage in the colonial era. It argues that the secondary legal norms and common arguments of private international law can unlock governance functions and strategies that counter the effects of the narrow definition of the 'sacred' and the consistent refusal to consider an alternative chronosophy in restitution claims. The book will be of interest to researchers of cultural property law, heritage studies, indigenous law, provenance, and applied ethics.

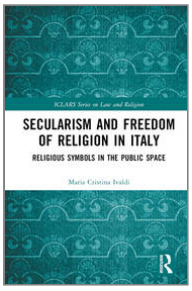
Secularism and Freedom of Religion in Italy

Religious Symbols in the Public Space



Maria Cristina Ivaldi

Series: ICLARS Series on Law and Religion

This book provides an overview of the presence of religious symbols in Italian public institutions from a legal standpoint. The situation is analysed from the perspective of the principles of laicità/secularism, as defined by the Constitutional Court, and freedom of religion. It is argued that while the display of religious symbols in public institutions has been widely investigated doctrinally, the wearing of religious symbols in Italy has generally been neglected. It will be a valuable resource for academics, researchers and policy-makers working in the areas of law and religion, and comparative law.

The Jewish Legal Tradition

Edited by Ari Mermelstein , Suzanne Last Stone , Yair Lorberbaum Yair Lorberbaum, Professor of Law, Bar-Ilan Law School, Israel

Series: ICLARS Series on Law and Religion

This book provides an in-depth exploration of the Jewish legal tradition through the lens of modern legal philosophy. The interdisciplinary approach of the book makes complex ideas accessible, offering insights into how Jewish legal thought both parallels and diverges from modern legal theory. By examining primary sources through a contemporary legal-theoretical framework, the volume offers a pedagogical approach to halakhah. The book is intended for scholars and students of Jewish law, legal theory, and Jewish studies. It is also designed for law schools, Judaic studies programs, and lay readers interested in the philosophical dimensions of religious legal systems.

Trauma-Informed Restorative Dialogues

The Power of Community

Claudia Christen-Schneider

Series: Contemporary Issues in Restorative Practice

This book combines trauma-informed practice with restorative justice to explore how restorative dialogues can support those affected by trauma. It illustrates how trauma-informed restorative dialogues can improve access to justice, promote recovery and facilitate transformation. It also offers pratical guidance to practitioners based on real-life insights from victims, offenders and facilitators across Europe. Aimed at practitioners, academics, policy makers and service providers, this in-depth research fills a gap in the restorative justice literature by demonstrating how trauma-informed principles can strengthen communities and support those affected by serious harm.

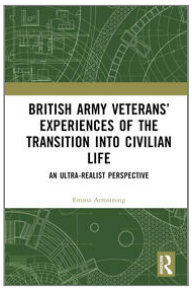
British Army Veterans' Experiences of the Transition into Civilian Life

An Ultra-Realist Perspective



Emma Armstrong

British Army Veterans' Experiences of the Transition into Civilian Life offers an ultra-realist explanation of Army veterans' experiences of the transition into civilian life by drawing upon qualitative data from interviews with veterans, their spouses, and charity workers. It argues that the Army contains its' own Symbolic Order, a model of meaning making, which is distinct from the civilian method of making sense of the world. This work is particularly relevant for advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students, researchers, and policy makers interested in exploring military-to-civilian transitions alongside broader discussions in criminological and social theory.

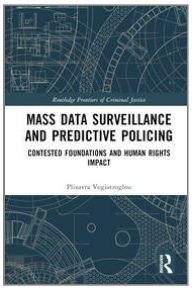
Mass data surveillance and predictive policing

Contested Foundations and Human Rights Impact



Plixavra Vogiatzoglou

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Criminal Justice

This book critically assesses legal frameworks involving the bulk processing of personal data, initially collected by the private sector, to predict and prevent crime through advanced profiling technologies. It questions the legitimacy and impact of these frameworks in light of the EU's powers to provide security while safeguarding fundamental rights, particularly privacy, data protection, effective remedy, fair trial and presumption of innocence.This book should appeal to students, scholars, legal practitioners, policymakers, and data scientists working in the fields of information law, human rights, public policy, security, surveillance, and crime prevention.

Organising White-Collar and Corporate Crimes

Nicholas Lord , Michael Levi

This book explores how we can re-constitute our approach to analysing and empirically investigating the organisation of white-collar and corporate crimes, with a view to building fuller theoretical and empirical accounts. It investigates the mechanisms, relationships, processes and conditions that are necessary for the commission of white-collar crimes, or for their non-commission. It is aimed at critical social scientists, including criminologists and sociologists, as well as socio-legal, business, economics, and political studies scholars. It will also be of interest to practitioners and policymakers keen to learn more about how and why these crimes are organised as they are.

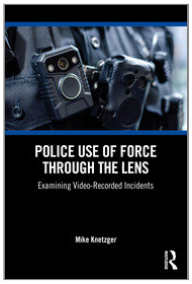
Police Use of Force Through the Lens

Examining Video-Recorded Incidents



Mike R. Knetzger

Police Use of Force Through the Lens provides a comprehensive look at video-recorded use-of-force incidents and how video influences perceptions about the appropriateness of the force used. A thorough discussion of the benefits and disadvantages of cameras—including how camera perspectives can be misleading and incomplete—challenges the presumption of the objectiveness of video and posits a systematic framework to help evaluators or viewers of video-recorded use-of-force incidents arrive at more objective conclusions.

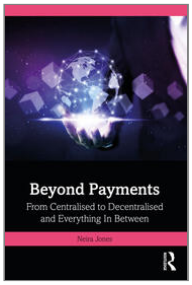
Beyond Payments

From Centralised to Decentralised and Everything In Between



Neira Jones

This is a book about payments, and how they are evolving, from centralised to decentralised, and the new opportunities they present. From blockchain to smart contracts and DeFi, jargon is debunked, and myths are busted. For each concept, a simple framework is used, enabling comparison: mechanics, economics, risks, and the future outlook. It gives the reader a unique classification framework of virtual assets and explains the regulatory landscape. Drawing on real-life examples, the book weaves together the underpinning principles, legislation, and key stakeholders.

Consumer and Innovations in e-Health Services

Examples of European Countries

Anna Dąbrowska , Katarzyna Szalonka , Elzbieta Stanczyk , Alicja Fandrejewska

These advancements, such as telemedicine and electronic health records, facilitate remote access to healthcare services, reducing geographical barriers and addressing the urgent needs of patients. Moreover, they enable healthcare providers to deliver more personalized and accurate healthcare services thanks to integrating technologies like artificial intelligence. E-health optimizes healthcare costs, addresses current, pressing needs of individuals, communities and societies and adapts to the changing landscape of healthcare, making it a crucial and highly relevant topic in today's world.

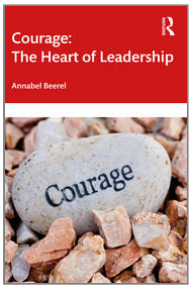
Courage: The Heart of Leadership



Annabel Beerel

Courage lies at the heart of leadership. Leaders need courage to make wise decisions, not self-interested ones. They need to be able to set aside their egos, to feel vulnerable, to face challenge, yet remain principled and hold the course. This book presents the opportunities to make a real difference in organizations, and how one can develop the courage to be an effective leader, step by step. The book is ideal reading for organizational leaders who are seeking ways to break through some of the personal and systemic barriers to leading with purpose and in a way that makes a real difference.

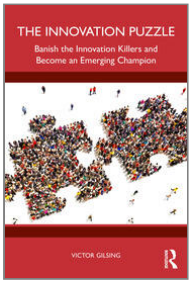
The Innovation Puzzle

Banish the Innovation Killers and Become an Emerging Champion



Victor Gilsing

In The Innovation Puzzle, Professor Victor Gilsing reveals that in most cases, these outcomes cannot be blamed on a lack of funding or a failure to follow innovation gurus' playbooks. Often, the real problem is that companies unwittingly build hidden barriers to innovation within themselves. From the systems they use to structure and monitor their business units to their hiring and promotion policies, not to mention their executives' leadership styles. Many of these processes and practices underpinning their core business activities end up depriving innovation of the time, space, vision, talents, and perseverance it needs to succeed.

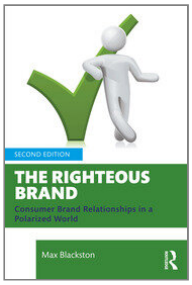
The Righteous Brand

Consumer Brand Relationships in a Polarized World



Max Blackston

Brand management now has to reach beyond traditional marketing objectives in order to encompass identity politics and corporate purpose. But with no grounding or guidance, marketers are swinging wildly from virtue-signalling to "woke-washing"; and in the process, brands are being damaged and careers brought to an abrupt end. Uniquely, this book offers not only updated case studies and content relating to Max Blackston's respected Consumer Brand Relationships model, but goes on to show how an extension of the Brand Relationship concept—to include the ethical, moral, and political values of brands—provides the tools for managing brands in this new environment.

Voices of Innovation - AI

Fulfilling the Promise of AI in Healthcare

Edited by Edward W. Marx Advisory Board Company, Colleyville, Texas, USA, Sakshika Dhingra , Frank Papay , Piyush Mathur

Series: Voices of Innovation

As an industry we have clearly made great technological advancements and yet we find ourselves behind peer industries when it comes to innovation with patient, customer experience, augmented intelligence, virtual care and cybersecurity. One reason for the lack of innovation velocity is the need for a universally adopted model or best practice framework. The time has come for Voices of Innovation - AI. Artificial Intelligence is what some call the 4th transformative revolution in human history.

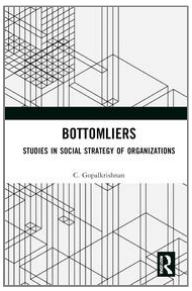
Bottomliers

Studies in Social Strategy of Organizations in India



C. Gopalkrishnan

The subjects or beneficiaries of social work that organizations undertake are usually people or communities that are at the 'bottom of the pyramid'. This book looks at social action programmes and strategies targeted to help the 'bottomliers' or the most vulnerable groups in society. This book focuses on people such as the sick, the poor, the physically challenged, and the old; and explores the intent and strategy of social organizations—charitable, social business, corporate social action programmes and civil society organisations—to help the marginalised and address challenges they face.

Contemporary Issues in Sports Marketing

Edited by Argyro Elisavet Manoli University of Bergamo, Italy

This book explores key issues that are emerging in the field of sport marketing, while calling for further attention to the thriving sports industry. Marketing was one of the first topics to attract sport academics' attention, based on its close relationship with revenue generating activities. Soon after, sport marketing begun to be appreciated no longer as a mere commercial tool, but instead as a wider umbrella of promotional elements that encapsulates aspects such as commercial sponsorship, advertising and publicity, while centring on the fans and the engagement with them. The chapters were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Strategic Marketing.

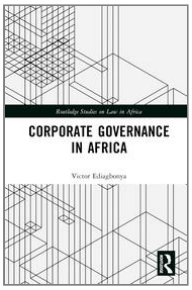
Corporate Governance in Africa



Victor Ediagbonya

Series: Routledge Studies on Law in Africa

This book discusses the issue of limited stakeholder recognition and protection of stakeholder interests within the Anglo-Saxon corporate governance model practised in many Sub-Saharan African countries. It argues that the relative success of the Anglo-Saxon model in developed economies is attributed to the presence of functional institutions, such as effective legal systems, active external markets for corporate control, and organized civil societies, among others. It will interest regulators, bankers, auditor, policymakers and researchers in comparative corporate governance and financial regulation, especially banking regulation and stakeholders in developing and emerging markets.

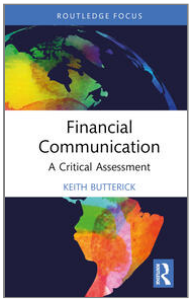
Financial Communication

A Critical Assessment



Keith Butterick

Series: Routledge New Directions in PR & Communication Research

This essential guide to financial communication provides a concise critical overview of this increasingly important field. It challenges existing assumptions about the role and significance of financial public relations and investor relations, and the dominant paradigm of shareholder value. The book explores how the dominant paradigm in financial PR is based on the methodologically and historically incorrect assumption of symmetrical communication. This volume will be of interest to researchers in the fields of public relations, financial communication, accounting and financial management as well as practitioners working in financial PR and investor relations.

Financial Innovation and Sustainability

Green, Blue and Sustainable Finance

Edited by Magdalena Zioło , Małgorzata Zaleska

Series: Finance, Governance and Sustainability

This book delivers a methodological approach to designing and assessing sustainable financial systems. It provides an original contribution by prioritizing ESG factors in the decision-making process of financial institutions and identifying their impact on sustainable financial systems. The author argues that to achieve financial stability, it is necessary to have in place mechanisms designed to prevent financial problems from becoming systemic and/or threatening the stability of the financial and economic system, while maintaining (or not undermining) the economy's ability to sustain growth and perform its other functions.

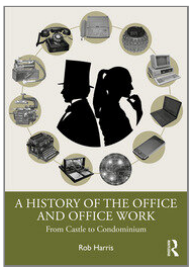
A History of the Office and Office Work

From Castle to Condominium



Rob Harris

This book brings together the office and office working as an economic construct, as a business function, as a building type and as a mode of work. It explores social and economic relations, and it traces the evolution of work and the office over the last four hundred years. It reveals how the nature of work has changed, placing the events surrounding Covid-19 into a longer term perspective. The book emphasises the continuum of change and that today's events are simply the latest stage of change, rather than something entirely novel. Of interest to professionals with a stake in the built environment, and students on related courses: economics, geography, planning and real estate.

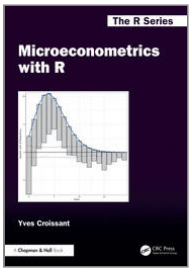
Microeconometrics with R



Yves Croissant Universite de La Reunion, France

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The R Series

Microeconometrics became increasingly popular in the last decades, thanks to the availability of many individual data sets and to the development of computer performance. The book is devoted to the ordinary least square estimator. Matrix algebra is progressively introduced in this part and a special attention is paid on the interpretation of the estimated coefficients. It also goes beyond the basic OLS estimator by testing the hypothesis on which this estimator is based on and providing more complex estimators relevant when some of these hypotheses are violated. The book also presents specific estimators devoted to « special » responses, eg count, binomial or duration data.

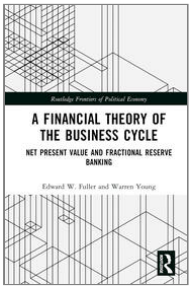
A Financial Theory of the Business Cycle

Net Present Value and Fractional Reserve Banking



Edward W. Fuller , Warren Young

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

A Financial Theory of the Business Cycle presents a new approach to business cycle theory based on the net present value. The book develops a novel diagrammatic approach to illustrate how fractional reserve banking systematically distorts net-present-value calculations. The net present value is the most important concept in the theory and practice of modern finance. In addition to macroeconomists, this book will appeal to financial economists, money and banking experts, accountants, financial analysts, and businesspeople generally.

Blockchain Technology in Project Finance

A Legal and Practical Model for Financing Mega-Investments

Witold Srokosz , Paweł Lenio , Grzegorz Sobiecki

Series: Routledge Open Business and Economics

There is currently no comprehensive scientific study that addresses the problem of financing projects using Distributed Ledger (blockchain) Technology (DLT) that are not themselves embedded in the blockchain ecosystem, particularly in the context of long-term and capital-intensive investments. This book fills this gap. It poses a number of research questions such as what financing model/mechanism is the most effective in the long term where very large financial resources are concerned; are there appropriate legal regulations in place; and can DLT (blockchain) technology provide usability and solutions that can be used in the process of financing capital-intensive investments?

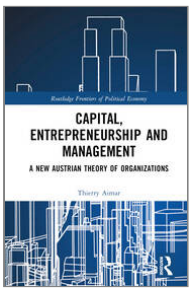
Capital, Entrepreneurship and Management

A New Austrian Theory of Organizations



Thierry Aimar

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Economic and organizational literature has long separated the figure of the capitalist and the manager, but it often continues to assimilate that of the capitalist and the entrepreneur around the notion of risk bearing. Yet confusion between the two prevents any understanding of the essence of capitalism and delivers an erroneous and negative image of the private corporation. This book examines the respective places of both entrepreneurs and capitalists within the organization. The book will be of great interest to readers of economic organization, corporate governance and entrepreneurship.

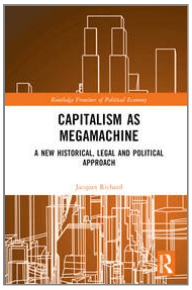
Capitalism as Megamachine

A New Historical, Legal and Political Approach



Jacques Richard

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

The concept of a 'megamachine' - a closed system operating to a pre-established utilitarian purpose which results in the machinization of humanity – has existed in various forms since at least the late 19th century.This book builds on previous attempts to define and analyse the machine and argues that modern industrial capitalism is at the heart of it. This vital book on the crisis of capitalism, the concept of the megamachine and the future of global society will be of great interest to readers across the social sciences and humanities.

Contemporary South Africa and the Political Economy of Regional Development

Edited by Methembe Mdlalose , Isaac Khambule , Nene Ernest Khalema

Series: Regions and Cities

This book contextualises issues relating to three main trends in global discourses on development, which are significant for South Africa, and indeed, for the study of the political economy of regional development in the country from the prism of South Africa as a global capitalist state. These trends include the impact of globalization, regionalisation, and the marginalisation of South Africa and indeed the African continent in the global economy, thus unpacking the possible role that South Africa might play in regional development. It will benefit researchers and students of regional studies, economics and political theory as well as policymakers and planners.

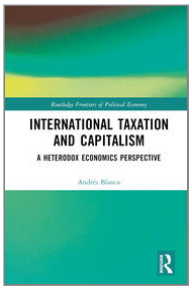
International Taxation and Capitalism

A Heterodox Economics Perspective



Andrés Blanco

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

The book introduces a novel approach to international taxation through the lens of heterodox economic and social theories, in particular Marxism.The book argues that the radical reorganization of the international tax system that has been underway for the last few decades - initiated by the OECD, and furthered by the G20 and the European Union – is a response to changes in the global structure of capitalism, especially in terms of "center-periphery". This book is invaluable reading for anyone interested in global capitalism, the financial system, heterodox economics and Marxist theory.

Islamic Economics and Financial Crisis

Edited by Erhan Akkas

Series: Islamic Business and Finance Series

This book explores the causes of the current economic crisis, evaluates the foundational principles of capitalism that contribute to crises, and investigates how an Islamic economic and banking system could play a role in fostering global stability. It includes theoretical and empirical analysis and assesses the resilience of the Islamic economic system and Islamic financial institutions in the face of economic and financial crises, with a particular focus on OIC member countries. Furthermore, the effects of these crises on income and wealth distribution are discussed. This is a useful guide for researchers and advanced students of Islamic Economics and Finance.

Monetary Policy and Income Distribution

Edited by Sylvio Kappes , Louis-Philippe Rochon Laurentian University, Canada, Guillaume Vallet

This book brings together a number of well-known post-Keynesian scholars who discuss the impact of monetary policy on both personal and functional distribution of income, and even the gendered effect of monetary policy. The chapters in this book raise a number of other questions about monetary policy, that are still underdeveloped in the economic literature. The chapters in this book were originally published in the Review of Political Economy.

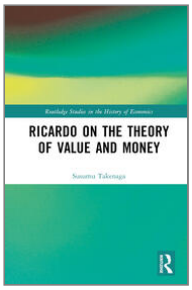
Ricardo on the Theory of Value and Money



Susumu Takenaga Daito Bunka University, Japan

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

This book is a renovative research work on Ricardo's theory of value and money and Takenaga argues that Ricardo's economic theory should be understood as a cost theory of value. He begins by analysing the first chapter of Ricardo's Principles, focusing on the theoretical structure and definition of labour. He then extends Ricardo's characterisation of the theory of value by situating it in context of debates with other contemporary economists, namely Torrens and McCulloch, and ends with a discussion of Ricardo's plans to reform the English monetary regime of his time. A useful resource for economic researchers studying classical English economists.

The Political Economy of Megaprojects in Asia

State Power, Land Control, Financial Flows, and Dispossession

Edited by Hyun Bang Shin , Dong-Wan Gimm Kyungnam University, Republic of Korea

Series: Regions and Cities

This book advances the argument that megaprojects embody the dynamics of multiscalar strategic relations that determine the process and outcome of urbanization. These projects create iconic landmarks, new towns, central business districts, and infrastructure, showcasing intertwined political and economic interests. This interdisciplinary work provides a nuanced understanding of the political economy underpinning Asian urbanization and contributes to ongoing debates on urban development, state-society relations, and the production of space in the context of globalization.

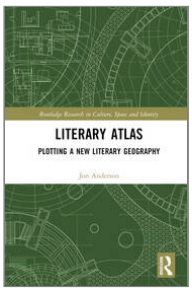
Literary Atlas

Plotting a New Literary Geography



Jon Anderson University of Cardiff, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Culture, Space and Identity

This book documents a new approach to literary geographies based around the Literary Atlas of Wales. It introduces an innovative 'plotted' approach which empowers reading, creates connections to localities, histories, and communities, and inspires interest in literature and geography. It showcases how literary geographies can be mobilised through the plotted approach to reading. Through documenting the Literary Atlas of Wales project, this book outlines how the plotted approach was used to engage with English language novels set in Wales.

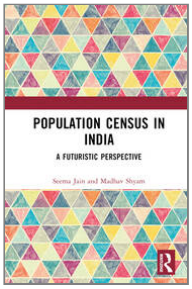
Population Census in India

A Futuristic Perspective



Seema Jain , Madhav Shyam

The population census is the primary data source for any demographic analysis, the execution of social and economic development programs, administrative activity, as well as for policy decisions. special surveys, and scientific research. This book critically analyses key facets of pre-census activity, including its timing, duration, and method of enumeration. It traces concepts and definitions adopted by the census of India back to its beginning in 1872. The authors also study themes such as census legislation, census organization, administrative setups, training strategies, the instruction manual, and the impact of COVID-19 on the census.

Territorial Development in Latin America

Cultural, Economic and Environmental Dimensions

Edited by Diana Morales , Laura Sariego-Kluge , Tiago Teixeira

Series: Regions and Cities

This book discusses one of the most pressing issues of our time -development- and its intricate connection with the territories where development policies are applied. Despite numerous academic and policy interventions, development remains an elusive goal. Hence, this book explains how conceptualisations alternative to economic growth have evolved in Latin American geographical literature and shows their practical applications in various contexts. Scholars, researchers and post-graduate students will find this an invaluable resource, as will policymakers and organizations interested in developmental practices.

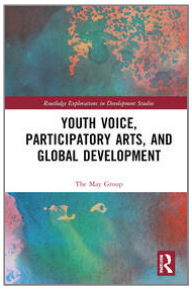
Youth Voice, Participatory Arts, and Global Development



The May Group

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

Youth Voice, Participatory Arts, and Global Development looks at how arts-based methods can promote youth voice and engagement in global development. This book argues that engaging young people's diverse voices, ideas and knowledges in matters that affect them is vital in enabling young people to become active citizens, developing more inclusive societies, and ensuring that development programmes remain accountable to the young people they aim to benefit. This book will be of interest to researchers within international development, arts and youth studies, as well as to development practitioners, and anyone interested in promoting epistemic justice with and for young people.

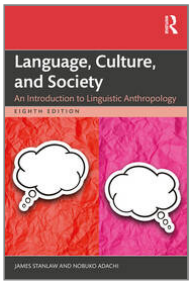
8TH EDITION

Language, Culture, and Society

An Introduction to Linguistic Anthropology



James Stanlaw , Nobuko Adachi Illinois State University, USA

Why should we study language? How do the ways in which we communicate define our identities? And how is this all changing in the digital world? Over seven editions, many have turned to Language, Culture, and Society for answers to questions like these because of its comprehensive coverage of all critical aspects of linguistic anthropology. It also features enhanced and updated pedagogical features, such as learning objectives, updated resources for continued learning, and cross-references to updated encyclopedias of linguistic anthropology.

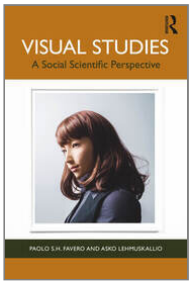
Visual Studies

A Social Scientific Perspective



Paolo S.H. Favero , Asko Lehmuskallio

This book presents a transcultural and generative introduction to the field of visual studies. Aimed primarily, but not exclusively, for students and scholars in the social sciences, it explores the multiple meanings of images and visual culture in human life. The book serves as an ideal introductory text for courses across the social sciences by directing the reader's attention to the generativity and interactivity of imaging practices.

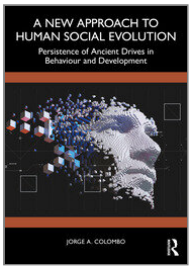
A New Approach to Human Social Evolution

Persistence of Ancient Drives in Behaviour and Development



Jorge A. Colombo

This book provides an important examination into the role of evolution of human traits of dominance as central to understanding social and political events, proposing a new view on human social evolution. This book examines basic biological universal needs and behavioral profiles of non-human living beings, from which humans share essential survival components. It invites readers to think critically about the psychological evolution of the human brain. Using comparative psychology, it argues that the core of human behavior lies in the ancient, animal, universal set of survival resources hidden under various socialisation profiles.

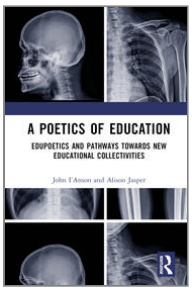
A Poetics of Education

Edupoetics and Pathways Towards New Educational Collectivities



John I'Anson , Alison Jasper

The chapters engage a variety of writers to explore how an edupoetics might intersect with a series of specific educational scenes and concerns that include, for example, the qualities of 'good' research that opens to the other-than-human, the complexities of doctoral supervision, the pedagogics of gender, and the gift of neurodiversity. The book articulates an alternative educational imaginary – an edupoetics – that gestures towards collectivities gathered around matters of intense concern. It will be relevant to scholars in the humanities and social sciences interested in educational theory and the philosophy of education.

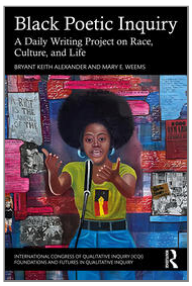
Black Poetic Inquiry

A Daily Writing Project on Race, Culture, and Life



Bryant Keith Alexander Loyola Marymount University, Los Angeles, Mary E. Weems

Series: International Congress of Qualitative Inquiry (ICQI) Foundations and Futures in Qualitative Inquiry

The poems here were written within a 24-hour period of each other and are presented in order of their appearance. Written as a call and response to each other, the poems are at times direct responses in content and form, or a mediation on what the offering triggered in the other. Using poetry writing as a methodological engagement with the reflective and reflexive attributes of autoethnography, this project offers an examination of lived experience and will provide a critical expansion of poetic inquiry. Students and researchers working with qualitative inquiry and in areas from performative writing to Critical Race Studies will find this book a useful addition to their research.

Exploring Ethnography of Outer Space

Methods and Perspectives

Edited by Jenia Gorbanenko , David (Jeeva) Jeevendrampillai , Adryon Kozel

Series: Anthropology of Now

This book explores new methods and perspectives in the anthropology of outer space. Scholarship of outer space has grown significantly in the social sciences, and an international community of anthropologists is starting to produce significant contributions to this work. A primer of innovative ethnographies and an ideal companion to courses on methods, this volume will provide students with a body of accessible, contemporary work on futurisms and outer space. This book will serve as a snapshot of a moment in ethnographically innovative anthropology that will be relevant to a wider academic audience through its exegesis of new methods for the study of distributed communities.

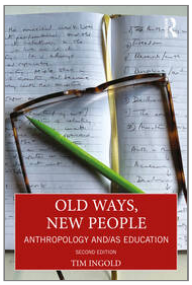
2ND EDITION

Old Ways, New People

Anthropology and/as Education



Tim Ingold

In this second and retitled edition of Anthropology and/as Education, Tim Ingold shows that there is more to anthropology than ethnography, and more to education than teaching and learning. This edition has been revised and expanded throughout and includes a major new chapter on how the educational mission of anthropology can shape the university of the future. This book will appeal to all who are seeking alternatives to mainstream agendas in social and educational policy, including educators and students in philosophy, the social sciences, educational psychology, environmentalism and arts practice.

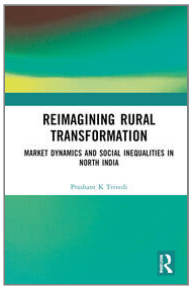
Reimagining Rural Transformation

Market Dynamics and Social Inequalities in North India



Prashant K Trivedi

This book examines the effects of the pattern of growing integration between the rural and urban economies in India. Drawing on in-depth surveys conducted in villages in north India, it examines the rural agricultural economy's transformation, productivity, technology deployment, and social relations over a period of seven years. The book focuses on the socially embedded nature of the dynamics of transformation, weaving analysis around the axis of land, caste, and gender.

Resisting Cultural Narrative Entrapment in Autoethnography

Alec Grant

Resisting Cultural Narrative Entrapment in Autoethnography delves into the nexus of cultural narratives and takes the reader on a journey through the intricate landscape of identity and cultural critique. Each chapter, enriched with dialogues with 'Ash,' our imaginary interlocutor, presents a profound exploration rooted in the philosophical fabric. This book amplifies the discourse on ontological and epistemological reflections often overlooked in narrative autoethnography. Central to its narrative is the concept of cultural narrative entrapment, meticulously dissected to unveil its philosophical underpinnings.

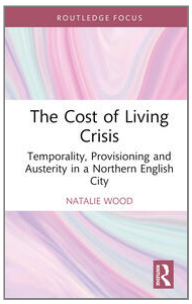
The Cost of Living Crisis

Temporality, Provisioning and Austerity in a Northern English City



Natalie Wood

Set in the Northern English City of Leeds, in the midst of Liz Truss' 49 days in office, what we are now calling the Cost of Living crisis emerges as the most recent incantation of economic decline. The cost of living crisis is both new and not new. With a focus on how economic decline is temporally experienced, Wood explores how consumption habits; find solidarity with the past, claim membership in the present, and grasp at uncertain futures. This book is applicable to scholars of temporality, political and economic anthropology, the anthropology of Britain, economic crisis and consumption.

The Disabled Anthropologist

Edited by Sumi Colligan Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts, USA, Anna Jaysane-Darr Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts, USA

This book brings much needed attention to disabled anthropologists, making clear that "disabled" and "anthropologist" belong together. The disabled anthropologists who contribute to this volume and on which these chapters focus have refused erasure from a profession that would ignore their critiques and creativity. Collectively the volume's contributors demonstrate a shared concern for the wellbeing of disabled ethnographers and interlocutors, whether working with Colombian refugees in Ecuador or those living with chronic pain in Michigan. The Disabled Anthropologist is essential reading for students and scholars working in cultural and medical anthropology.

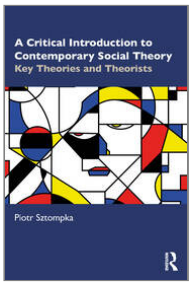
A Critical Introduction to Contemporary Social Theory

Key Theories and Theorists of the 21st Century



Piotr Sztompka

Through a careful exploration of the history of modern social theory, Piotr Sztompka lays the critical groundwork for investigating the development of contemporary social theory from its founding fathers in the 19th century, through the rich contributions of the 20th century, known as "the golden age of theory", up to the most recent developments and illuminates how it is both anchored in and a critique of previous attempts to theorize foundational questions to social being and action. Contemporary theory, the book argues, is then always move toward action, interpersonal relations, social and epistemological realism, and multivalent mechanisms at the root of social phenomenon.

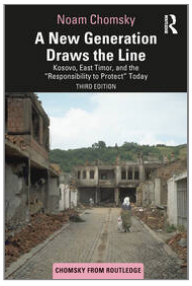
A New Generation Draws the Line

Kosovo, East Timor, and the "Responsibility to Protect" Today



Noam Chomsky

Series: Chomsky from Routledge

In this work, Chomsky explores the West's uses and abuses of the principle of 'human intervention'. An updated foreword by Jean Bricmont explores the ongoing crises of humanitarian intervention in Afghanistan, Libya, Palestine, Syria and Ukraine and reaffirms Chomsky's excoriating critiques of Western foreign policy. As the question of humanitarian intervention looms ever larger, particularly with regard to the Middle East and Eastern Europe, this book is a vital overview of humanitarian intervention and its uses and abuses.

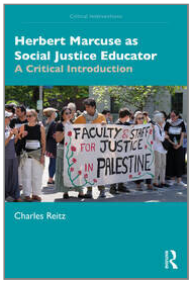
Herbert Marcuse as Social Justice Educator

A Critical Introduction



Charles Reitz

Series: Critical Interventions

By drawing on Marcuse's critical analysis of the political economy, a profound concern for environmental issues, and an explicit critique of educational philosophy, Herbert Marcuse as Social Justice Educator illuminates not only the content and contours of Marcuse's work but its importance for developing critical social scientific thinking and theoretical insight into contemporary issues such as genocide and ecocide, fascism and democratic crises, political economy and social inequality, and the role of culture and media in forming compliant consumer-citizens.

Sociology Through Emotions

A Consider Reader

Edited by Scott R. Harris

Offering an accessible and intriguing look at emotions in society, Sociology Through Emotions collects together contemporary qualitative research that illuminates many of sociology's central concepts and topics, from culture, socialization, and inequality to the family, crime, healthcare, religion, and social movements. This book appeals to instructors who want to highlight the social factors that shape emotions as well as the impact of emotions on social life, and is an attractive supplement for courses on introduction to sociology, self and society, social psychology, and others focused on interaction, culture, and meaning making.

Anthropology and Slavery at the Dawn of White Supremacy

Michael L. Blakey

In the first of three volumes, Anthropology and Slavery at the Dawn of White Supremacy, Michael Blakey discusses both the background and function of anthropological racism as he questions whether racism has always been with us. Using evolutionary, classical, historical, and ethnographic critique, Blakey definitively answers 'no.' The long-standing problem of racism in America, as both an obvious and hidden phenomenon, has been a developing one – with the Civil War as a watershed for American science and society, which has progressed into new versions of the old justifications (as social Darwinism) for continued racial inequity (Jim Crow segregation).

Racial Segregation and Eugenical Science Between the Wars

Michael L. Blakey

This volume examines the rise and decline of racial science and its relationship to the political and social imposition of Jim Crow in the American South, a racialized code of laws grounded upon an inherently racist and prejudicial pseudoscience. The author argues, here, that the study of human beings within the emerging 18th and 19th century institutions of Western science were corrupted by the limited social intuitions of its enslaving, colonizing, and elitist members.

The Blinding Light of Race: Race and Racism in Western Society, Volume 3

Unmarking Whiteness and the New American Racism

Michael L. Blakey

This book criticizes recent performative solutions to racism ('diversity' programs at universities, for example) and White people's 'Fragility' or intolerance of mature criticism. These ideas are locked in an intellectually gated and defensive conversation that effectively denies the ongoing, particular abuses of White supremacy. The book instead proposes expensive educational and economic changes (including reparations) as necessary to achieve real equity.

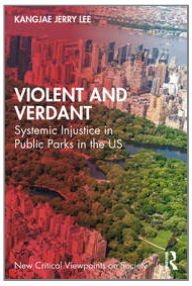
Violent and Verdant

Systemic Injustice in Public Parks in the U.S.



KangJae Jerry Lee

Series: New Critical Viewpoints on Society

Drawing from multiple disciplines such as sociology, history, geography, urban planning, environmental science, and leisure studies, this book takes a two-pronged approach to provide critical and fresh insights on public parks in the U.S. It looks back, illuminating how parks have been sites of enduring violence and oppression. But it also looks forward, offering practical strategies and philosophical reimaginations of parks' conception, development, and management.

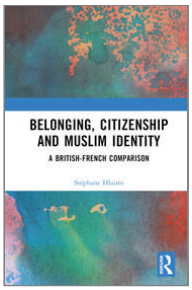
Belonging, Citizenship and Muslim Identity

A British-French Comparison



Stéphane Hlaimi University of Exeter, UK

This book explores belonging among Muslims in Britain and France, asking whether British and French Muslims are citizens first, or Muslims first. Based on in-depth interviews with Muslims in both jurisdictions, it considers three options open to Muslims - assimilation, integration or conflict - and considers the differences in approach that tend to prevail among Muslims in Britain and France. A call for a new paradigm of articulation between Muslim identity and Western citizenship, Belonging, Citizenship and Muslim Identity will be of interest to scholars of sociology, politics, geography and anthropology with interests in inclusion and diasporic communities.

Engagement with Culture in Transformative Times

Mapping the Societal Drivers and Impacts of Cultural Understandings, Practices, Perceptions, and Values across Europe

Edited by Susanne Janssen Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands, Nete Kristensen University of Copenhagen, Denmark, Marc Verboord Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands

At the heart of this volume are the questions: What does culture mean to European citizens in the face of globalisation, digitalisation, diversity, and social inequality? How do Europeans engage with culture in its various forms, and what societal values are tied to this cultural engagement? These questions are explored in depth across the fifteen chapters of this book. By delving into the understandings, practices, perceptions, affordances, and impacts of culture, this book advances the study of the societal values of culture in contemporary European societies, offering insights beneficial to both research and cultural policy work.

Ethnic Cleansing

A Sociological Examination

Larry May

Putting forward the argument that the strength of democracies can be measured in how well minorities – especially ethnic and racial minorities – are treated by the majority, Larry May's Ethnic Cleansing maintains that unjust ethnic cleansing is one of the greatest internal challenges to the modern institutions of pluralistic and multi-cultural states. The first major study to analyze ethnic cleansing from an explicitly normative and conceptual perspective in the last decade, the increase in number and complexity of cases of ethnic cleansing makes this a timely book to understand the challenges that confront contemporary society.

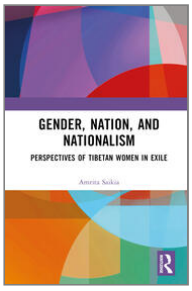
Gender, Nation, and Nationalism

Perspectives of Tibetan Women in Exile



Amrita Saikia

This book looks at the question of the Tibetan nation from the perspective of Tibetan women in exile. It situates Tibetan women within the debate of Tibetan nation-building and nationalism in exile. In doing so, the book explores Tibetan women's construction of the idea of the Tibetan nation, their contributions to Tibetan nationalism, their position in Tibetan society, and the nuances of identity. The author captures the experiences, views, and realities of Tibetan women in exile, drawing from interviews conducted with participants in three Tibetan settlements in India.

Hybrid Labour

Measuring, Classifying, and Representing Workers at the Boundaries of Employment and Self-employment

Edited by Annalisa Murgia University of Milan, Italy

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

This book advances the debate on the hybrid areas of labour by taking the case of work arrangements that destabilise the dichotomies between standard and non-standard work, and between self-employment and dependent employment. By maintaining the connection between structural conditions and human agency, it focuses on how workers at the boundaries between employment and self-employment are affected by social norms and institutions. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of all social sciences, particularly those who study the ongoing processes of individualisation and the novel forms of organising developed in the hybrid areas of labour.

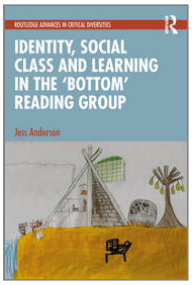
Identity, Social Class and Learning in the 'Bottom' Reading Group



Jess Anderson University of Stirling, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Critical Diversities

The common practice of ability-grouped reading in UK schools, often termed guided reading, influences children's sense of identity, feelings and progress as readers. Drawing on a rich ethnographic study of three primary classrooms, this book reopens a critical inquiry into ability-grouped reading that has been quiet since the 1990s, when guided reading in literacy education became established practice in the UK and the US. A valuable read for scholars of the sociology of childhood and education it should appeal to anyone concerned with making education more equitable, including teachers, school leaders, parents, carers and policymakers.

In a Barbie World

Barbie as Narrative, Symbol, and Cipher

Edited by Anna Gotlib , Claire Elise Katz

In a Barbie World: Barbie as Narrative, Symbol, and Cipher brings together global scholars representing different disciplines and identities to examine the myriad themes that emerge from Greta Gerwig's 2023 film, Barbie. Taking an inclusive, interdisciplinary approach, this collection is the first to undertake a philosophical and academic exploration of Barbie. It offers an accessible yet scholarly contribution to gender studies, politics, philosophy, film studies, bioethics, and education, among others. It will be of value to students of these subjects at undergraduate and graduate level, as well as to broader audiences interested in Barbie and its themes.

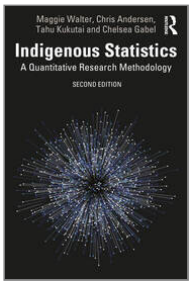
Indigenous Statistics

A Quantitative Research Methodology



Maggie Walter , Chris Andersen University of Alberta, Canada, Tahu Kukutai , Chelsea Gabel

This second edition of the groundbreaking Indigenous Statistics opens up a major new approach to research across the disciplines and applied fields. While qualitative methods have been rigorously critiqued and reformulated, the population statistics relied on by virtually all research on Indigenous peoples continue to be taken for granted as straightforward, transparent numbers. This is an essential text for students studying quantitative methods, statistics, and research methods.

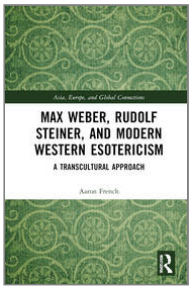
Max Weber, Rudolf Steiner, and Modern Western Esotericism

A Transcultural Approach



Aaron French

Series: Asia, Europe, and Global Connections

This book challenges previous definitions of modernity by comparing Max Weber (1864–1920), often considered the most important sociologist of the twentieth century, and Rudolf Steiner (1861–1925), founder of Waldorfpädagogik and the esoteric social reform movement of anthroposophy. Mobilizing for and against the Far-Right

Edited by Cristina Flesher Fominaya , Damon Eguiarte Flesher

Social movement scholarship has been dominated, until recently, by work on progressive movements. Yet as far-right agendas, narratives, and actors increasingly occupy public space, it is important to recognize, make visible, and understand the important role of grassroots far-right mobilization in facilitating this rise. This book showcases recent scholarship on mobilization for and against the far-right in Europe and the USA, fills in gaps in empirical knowledge on right-wing mobilization and serves as a means through which to test the robustness of existing social movement theory. The chapters in this book were originally published in Social Movement Studies.

New Materialism and Intersectionality

Making Middles Matter

Edited by Katve-Kaisa Kontturi University of Turku, Finland, Taru Leppänen Åbo Akademi University, Finland, Tara Mehrabi Karlstad University, Sweden, Milla Tiainen University of Turku, Finland

Series: Routledge Advances in Feminist Studies and Intersectionality

New Materialism and Intersectionality advances the interplay of intersectionality theories and feminist new materialisms, arguing that co-constitutive influences between these fields will provide feminist and gender studies scholars with improved tools to analyse markers of difference and identity in 21st century realities. In exploring the intersection of new materialisms and intersectionality studies, the volume puts forward a concept of 'the middle'. The volume will interest scholars and students working with intersectionality, feminist new materialist, and posthumanist theories across the humanities and the social sciences.

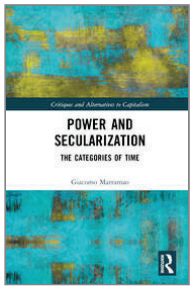
Power and Secularization

The Categories of Time



Giacomo Marramao Roma Tre University, Italy

Series: Critiques and Alternatives to Capitalism

This book offers a geneaological understanding of the condition of our time by reconstructing the complex story of the transition from the 'cyclical time' of the classic era to the 'linear and infuturant time' of the modern world. Arguing that the process of secularization (in its broadest sense) is dependent on the modern notion of cumulative and irreversible time – together with the temporalization of history – Power and Secularization constitutes a conceptual history that will appeal to scholars of social and political theory and philosophy with interests in intellectual history and the genealogical method.

Queering Mayberry

An Exploration of Sexuality and Gender in the Andy Griffith Show

Matthew Thomas-Reid

Queering Mayberry: An Exploration of Sexuality and Gender in the Andy Griffith Show reexamines the show through the frame of queer theory. Amid current debates on Critical Race Theory and LGBTQIA+ rights, the nostalgic pull of the "Myth of Mayberry" remains potent. This work critiques the restorative nostalgia surrounding small-town southern ideals, arguing that disrupting the monolithic image of southern conservative, Christian, cisgender identity requires a critical look at the cultural artifacts that helped shape it. It will be valuable to scholars and students in Appalachian studies, media studies, queer theory, and social history.

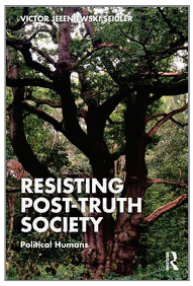
Resisting Post-Truth Society

Political Humans



Victor Jeleniewski Seidler Goldsmiths, University of London, UK

This book explores the crisis of democracy and the rise of populist and authoritarian politics in the West. With attention to the Brexit referendum in the UK and the election of President Trump in the US – events that reflected wider movements across the world the book traces shifting resistance to globalisation and globalised media in increasingly polarised societies. Examining the role of social media in increasingly polarised societies as they respond to multiple crises - COVID-19, mass migrations, growing inequalities or an intensifying climate emergency, this book will appeal to scholars of sociology, philosophy, politics, media and communications and gender studies.

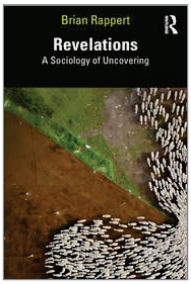
Revelations

A Sociology of Uncovering



Brian Rappert University of Exeter, UK

Revelations sets out to examine both how the making available through revealing is accomplished as well as the implications of revealing. In other words, it is concerned with how revelations are realized and what is realized through them. In taking the pervasive appeal to revealing as its topic, and through drawing inspiration from a range of disciplines, this book should appeal to a variety of audiences; including those interested in secrecy, conspiracy, expertise, celebrity, science and technology.

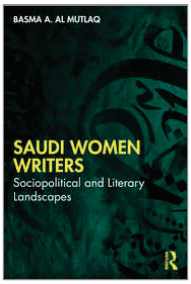
Saudi Women Writers

Sociopolitical and Literary Landscapes



Basma A. Al Mutlaq

Saudi Women Writers: Sociopolitical and Literary Landscapes details the achievements of Saudi women fiction writers from the 1960s up to the present day, many of whose works have yet to be published in English translation. It explores how various Saudi women writers' works reflect deep social, religious and political changes over several key phases: the secularism of the 1960s and 70s, the 1980s religious revival, or sahwa; the post-sahwa period, and the era of globalization. It is an important and unique text which will be of use to both students and scholars of Gender Studies, Literature, Middle Eastern Studies, and Politics.

Self-Destruction of Complex Systems

Communicative and Structural Aspects

Edited by Kirill Postoutenko Bielefeld University, Germany

Series: Complexity in Social Science

This book is the first attempt to provide a general theory of self-destruction in complex systems applicable to natural, social and cultural phenomena. The volume updates some popular models of systemic self-destruction—from autoimmunity and self-organized criticality to imperial overstretch—and discusses some prominent cases (from supernova explosions to the civil war following Russian Revolution of 1917). As such, it will appeal to those interested in complexity studies from the areas of sociology, history, media and communication studies, immunology, computer science, literary criticism, cultural studies, political science and international relations.

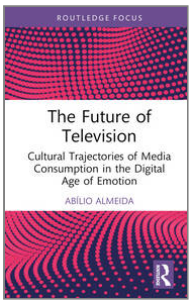
The Future of Television

Cultural Trajectories of Media Consumption in the Digital Age of Emotion



Abílio Almeida University of Minho, Portugal

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

The book argues that television is changing from a singular object, fixed in a particular place, to a social phenomenon distributed across many devices and platforms. It also argues that audiences are increasingly demanding an 'open relationship' with television, as their attention is often distributed across multiple devices and platforms simultaneously. In addition to these aspects, we analyse the evolution of television since its inception, the need for a renewed public service 2.0 in tune with our times, the increasing dominance of talk shows and infotainment, and the new power of television combined with artificial intelligence.

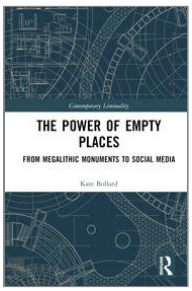
The Power of Empty Places

From Megalithic Monuments to Social Media



Kate Bollard

Series: Contemporary Liminality

Social media has been established as a central feature of the modern world and a propagator of contemporary culture. Political anthropology is employed as a method to understand digital fascination in the modern world. The theory of the void is utilised to examine the destructive features of social media that induce an unreality and provoke users to unfold in alternate ways. Classifying the realm of social media as a void illustrates how the intangible non-place is a divisive feature of modernity. This book is aimed at individuals with an interest in social media, social theory and political anthropology.

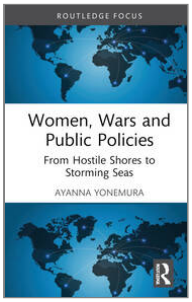
Women, Wars and Public Policies

From Hostile Shores to Storming Seas



Ayanna Yonemura University of California, Davis, USA

Women, Wars and Public Policies shatters the boundaries of conventional antiracism, offering an examination of white supremacy's persistence through the lens of humanity's most pressing challenges. The author tackles migration, war, national security, terrorism, nationalism, and patriarchy, exposing institutionalized oppressions across continents and centuries. Defying identity politics, this book demonstrates the pervasiveness of Western cultural dominance and the need to radically address dominant narratives.

Youth Digital Health and Online Platforms

Dialogue with Peers on Reddit

Martyna Gliniecka CASE, Poland

Series: Routledge Studies in Science, Technology and Society

Youth Digital Health and Online Platforms focuses on young people's use of the digital platform Reddit for health. Drawing upon dialogism theory, the book explores how young people produce a youth-led discourse of youth digital health, different from the adult-led framing represented in youth digital health research, policy, and service delivery. The book can interest scholars and lecturers in childhood and youth studies, Internet studies, and youth health studies. Professionals such as policymakers, service designers/deliverers, online safety educators, and global youth and health agencies can use evidence-based insights in their work with young people.

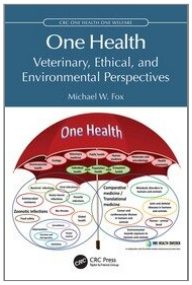
One Health

Veterinary, Ethical, and Environmental Perspectives



Michael W. Fox Fox's Pen Inc (President)

Series: CRC One Health One Welfare

This collection of reflective, critical, philosophical, and practical chapters represents the author's 60 years as a veterinarian, ethologist, and bioethicist. The rising incidence of zoonotic diseases linked with anthropogenic climate change and our impact on ecosystems which threaten biodiversity and the future of humans and other species are examined in this book, the author calling for greater emphasis on holistic healthcare maintenance in response to the escalating costs of human and companion animal health problems. Fearlessly tackling contentious issues and 'wicked problems', Dr Michael Fox offers a veterinarian's perspective of what One Health looks like on the ground.

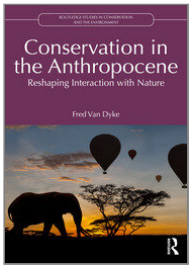
Conservation in the Anthropocene

Reshaping Interaction with Nature



Fred Van Dyke

Series: Routledge Studies in Conservation and the Environment

This book provides a critical assessment of conservation in the Anthropocene grounded in the personal, historical, and cultural development of human interaction with nature. This book argues that conservation can no longer be primarily about preserving nature but must adapt its efforts to promote changes through which humans create a landscape that is neither abandoned nor degraded but used well by humans and non-humans alike. Drawing on global examples, this book will be of great value to students and scholars of biodiversity conservation and environmental science ready to consider a new way of looking at the care and nurture of nature in the Anthropocene.

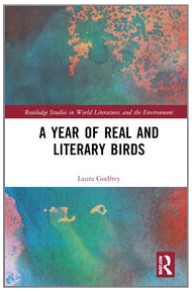
A Year of Real and Literary Birds



Laura Godfrey

Series: Routledge Studies in World Literatures and the Environment

A Year of Real and Literary Birds is simultaneously an almanac of bird life, a work of interdisciplinary literary scholarship, and a chronicle of family life. The book paints an intimate portrait of a place and a diverse cast of authors by bringing to life the birds within landscapes both literary and actual. Using a blend of ecocriticism, animal studies, close reading, and the techniques of creative nonfiction, Godfrey unpacks the ways that authors and ornithologists spanning the centuries have tried to bridge the gap between human and non-human worlds.

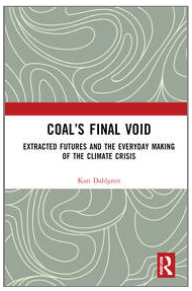
Coal's Final Void

Extracted Futures and the Everyday Making of the Climate Crisis



Kari Dahlgren

This book explores the continuation of coal mining in Australia despite growing awareness of its contribution to the climate crisis. Through an in-depth ethnographic study, Kari Dahlgren reveals the complex and often contradictory ways that miners, lobbyists, and communities navigate the uncertain future of coal. By focusing on the human stories behind this industry, the book sheds light on broader environmental, political, and social issues of global significance. This book is essential reading for scholars, policymakers, and activists engaged in climate and energy debates, as well as anyone interested in the complex human dimensions of the energy transition.

Ecological Ambivalence, Complexity, and Change

Perspectives from the Environmental Humanities

Edited by Simone M. Müller , Matthias Schmidt , Kirsten Twelbeck

Series: Routledge Environmental Humanities

This book provides a systematic, interdisciplinary analysis of the conflicts, issues and tensions associated with today's ecological transformation processes from an environmental humanities perspective. It explores the notion of ecological ambivalence, where conflicting reactions, beliefs, or feelings towards public policies or private practices for 'saving planet Earth' threaten to produce a stalemate. It will be of interest to researchers, academics and students studying environmental humanities, the social sciences and environment sciences. It will also be useful for decision makers, think tanks, NGOs and activists.

Environmental and Social Justice Issues

A Declarative Mapping Literature-based Approach for Achieving Pro-ecological and Social Change

Peter Steidl , Paul M.W. Hackett , Ava Gordley-Smith

This book uses a declarative mapping methodology to examine a range of issues relating to environmental and social justice issues, including climate change, homelessness, refugees, food insecurity, and racial and gender inequality. The book explores how we can bring about change in order to have a meaningful impact on these problems, using a literature-based approach to identify and analyse this through the declarative mapping method, showing how this methodology can be used in the context of these issues.

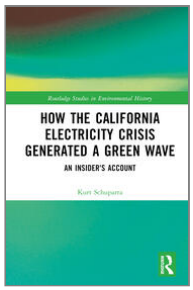
How the California Electricity Crisis Generated a Green Wave

An Insider's Account



Kurt Schuparra

Series: Routledge Environmental History

This book provides the definitive account of a decade-long transformation of energy policy in California with rippling consequences. The author, a state government "insider" during much of this period, tells a story informed by personal experience, access to the key actors of the time, and extensive research. This book engagingly balances policy considerations and political drama to reveal the untold details of how the electricity crisis paved the way for key climate and clean energy policies, and offers unprecedented access to archival material from the Davis administration era. It will be a must-read for energy policy makers, researchers, and environmental historians.

Institutional Diversity and Sustainable Environmental Management

Scalar, Cultural, and Functional Perspectives

Edited by H.M. Tuihedur Rahman School for Res and Env Studies, Dalhousie University, Canada, Ashlee-Ann Pigford Dep of Natural Resource Sci, McGill University, Canada

Coordinated, well-functioning institutions are crucial for tackling environmental challenges like climate change, pollution, biodiversity loss, and resource overuse. This book presents case studies from around the world to showcase how different socio-political institutions interact to influence environmental management outcomes in complex, polycentric institutional settings. Collectively, the cases emphasize the importance of unpacking interactional complexity through an improved understanding of cross-scalar, cross-cultural, and cross-functional institutional interactions.

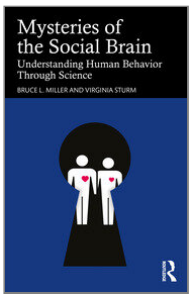
Mysteries of the Social Brain

Understanding Human Behavior Through Science



Bruce L. Miller UCSF Memory and Aging Center, Sandler Neurosciences Center, Virginia Sturm UCSF Memory and Aging Center, Sandler Neurosciences Center

Mysteries of the Social Brain describes the scientific underpinnings of human behavior and values. Through the retelling of fascinating clinical stories of people with neurological conditions, this book explores the parts of the brain that allow humans to thrive as social and creative beings. The authors reveal the relevance of our brain circuits to our well-being—and the well-being of our societies—and show what happens when changes in our brain circuitry drive changes in empathy, altruism, moral beliefs, and creativity. It will captivate general readers as well as clinicians and scientists who are interested in human social behavior, cognition, and emotion.

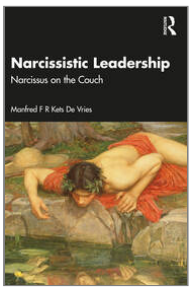
Narcissistic Leadership

Narcissus on the Couch



Manfred F R Kets De Vries

Narcissism has become a contemporary pandemic that seems to have been normalized, accepted and even celebrated, both in society at large and by some of our political and business leaders. Consumerism, competitive urges, individualism, and identity politics are examples of how our present-day culture has reinforced the self-glorification that drives narcissism—this cult of the self. In this book, world-renowned psychology and leadership thinker, Manfred Kets de Vries, explains this modern phenomenon, and imagines how you would help the narcissist on the notional 'coach's couch'.

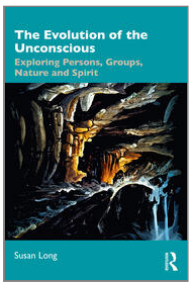
The Evolution of the Unconscious

Exploring Persons, Groups, Nature and Spirit



Susan Long National Institute of Organisation Dynamics Australia

Drawing on over four decades of professional and academic experience, Susan Long explores how the concept of the unconscious has evolved from the 19th to the 21st century, showing that it is more than an individual phenomenon, but also a group, organisational, and institutional phenomena. Broad sweeping and accessible, this book is a valuable resource for organisational psychologists, consultants, and managers exploring psychoanalytic and socioanalytic approaches, as well as those in academic settings wanting to pursue an interest in the unconscious.

Understanding the Technology Behind Online Offending

A Guide for Professionals in the Criminal Justice System

Edited by Jennifer Bamford , Christopher Wise

The book begins by equipping the reader with a foundational understanding of how the internet works before exploring the various ways that people can exploit the Internet to commit crimes. The reader is then introduced to some of the sophisticated ways that individuals may evade detection before we explore the organisations fighting to prevent and capture those offending online. The book includes a contributory chapter from solicitors at Stone King LLP to help the reader understand how the law is evolving to prosecute offenders. There is a further contributory chapter from psychologist Dr Ruth Tully who discusses psychological risk assessment with those who offend online.

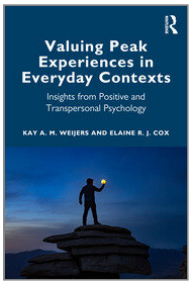
Valuing Peak Experiences in Everyday Contexts

Insights from Positive and Transpersonal Psychology



Kay A M Weijers , Elaine R J Cox

Valuing Peak Experience in Everyday Lives takes Abraham Maslow's concept of peak experience and compares how people have encountered transcendent peak experiences, and related phenomena such as flow and peak performance in their everyday lives. By examining existing research and sharing people's actual encounters in different contexts such as music, education, sport, creative arts and nature, the importance and value of peak experiences and self-transcendence in our lives can be better understood and fostered.

Becoming a CBT Therapist

Thriving in Training and Beyond

Edited by Jason Roscoe Senior Lecturer in CBT at the University of Cumbria, UK

Whilst there are many texts that introduce trainees to the overarching theory, formulations and interventions used in CBT, few describe the lived experience of being a CBT Therapist and of making it through training. Becoming a CBT Therapist takes prospective Cognitive Behavioural Therapists on a journey from applying for a place in a training course through to navigating the challenges of CBT training and developing in their career once qualified. Packed full of vignettes and reflective exercises, this book is a must read for those looking to apply for CBT training, currently undertaking training, or involved in supporting trainees.

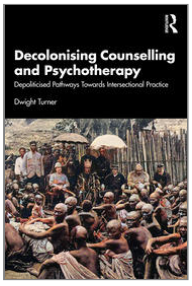
Decolonising Counselling and Psychotherapy

Depoliticised Pathways Towards Intersectional Practice



Dwight Turner University of Brighton, UK

Decolonisation is a term which has become a modern day buzzword as we look to understand the influences of the systemic structures of oppression which have molded all of our identities, yet, in the worlds of counselling and psychotherapy there has been a struggle to understand what this term means in regard to our profession. Decolonising Counselling and Psychotherapy considers the ways in which the systems of colonization have taken over and are continually reconstituted within our profession. This book will be invaluable to counsellors, psychotherapists and psychologists, and to those who want to make our helping professions more inclusive and equitable.

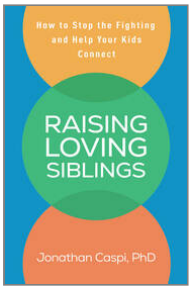
Raising Loving Siblings

How to Stop the Fighting and Help Your Kids Connect



Jonathan Caspi Montclair State University, United States

"Be nice to your sister!" "Stop picking on your brother!" "That's a time-out for both of you." When nothing works to stop the incessant battles, what can exhausted parents do? This supportive, compassionate guide offers clear principles, dos and don'ts, and loads of stories that give readers a fresh understanding of why siblings fight and what to do about it. The book shines a spotlight on family dynamics. The author explains how to quell sibling struggles without taking sides, ways to make kids feel valued without comparing them, when to intervene (and when to step back), how to handle parenting-related couple conflicts, and ways to teach kids the crucial relationship skills they need.

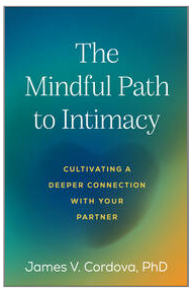
The Mindful Path to Intimacy

Cultivating a Deeper Connection with Your Partner



James V. Cordova Clark University, United States

Lots of couples are comfortable, but are they close? How many people binge-watch TV alone at night, instead of cuddling on the couch? Psychologist James Cordova knows that in a world filled with distractions and busy schedules, many couples struggle to find genuine closeness and understanding. In this empathic guide, he reveals how the transformative power of mindfulness can help couples build stronger, more intimate relationships. Through guided exercises, journaling prompts, and heartfelt stories, readers learn how to be truly present with their partners, communicate more openly, and connect on a deeper level--both physically and emotionally.

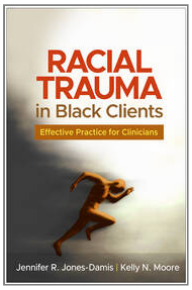
Racial Trauma in Black Clients

Effective Practice for Clinicians



Jennifer R. Jones-Damis Rutgers University, United States, Kelly N. Moore Rutgers University, United States

Understanding and addressing the impact of racial trauma is vital for providing culturally responsive, trauma-informed care. This book explores how racial stressors affect all aspects of Black clients' lives and offers powerful ways to support healing. Therapists and counselors will gain tools for approaching--rather than avoiding--the topic of race in individual therapy and in family, school, and community contexts. Featuring extensive case examples, the book discusses how to incorporate aspects of racial trauma into assessment and case conceptualization; validate clients' pain as well as their strengths; and adapt evidence-based treatments to overcome cultural gaps.

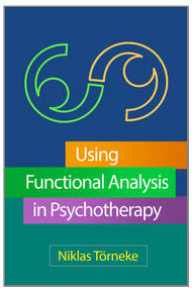
Using Functional Analysis in Psychotherapy



Niklas Törneke

This book shows how psychotherapists from any orientation can use functional analysis (FA) to better understand their clients and specifically target desired changes. Rich case examples illustrate ways to probe difficult emotions and explore the causes and consequences of behavior, with special attention to harnessing the power of metaphor. FA is integral to such evidence-based treatments as dialectical behavior therapy and acceptance and commitment therapy, and is central to the growing movement toward process-based therapies in general. This is the English edition of Vägledning i klinisk funktionell analys, published in Swedish in 2023 and translated and revised by the author.

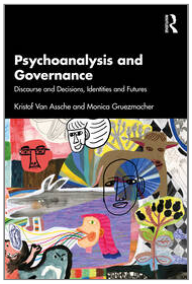
Psychoanalysis and Governance

Discourse and Decisions, Identities and Futures



Kristof Van Assche , Monica Gruezmacher

Psychoanalysis and Governance makes a cogent argument for the use of psychoanalytic perspectives in the understanding of governance, the process of collective decision-making which maintains and reshapes communities. Building on Freudian, Lacanian, and other psychoanalytic traditions, the book enriches our understanding of governance, the way communities remember and forget, are haunted by the past, remain untransparent to themselves yet also retain the possibility of reinvention, of imagining alternative selves, new futures, and discover paths to move in that direction. This book will be a suitable for psychoanalysts, planners, and all those interested in informed governance.

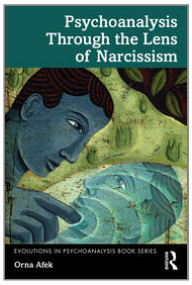
Psychoanalysis Through the Lens of Narcissism



Orna Afek Tamuz Institute for Psychotherapy, Israel

Series: Evolutions in Psychoanalysis Book Series

This critical historical review of psychoanalytic theory and practice reflects on the place of psychoanalysis in contemporary Western culture in light of its preoccupation with the self and associated failure to emphasize the role of close interpersonal relationships as central to the human psyche. With fresh insights on the subjectivity of personality theories, the core features of the narcissistic personality, and the implications of the narcissistic position for theory and clinical practice, this book will interest psychotherapists, psychoanalysts, and other professionals in the field.

Radical Freud

Reconstructing the Bisexuality Thesis

Thomas Olver

Radical Freud reveals a radical dimension to Sigmund Freud's sexual theory that has previously been neglected. Olver offers a return to the radical elements of Freud's work, first by reviewing the ways in which Freud's pioneering sexual theory has been vulgarised since his death, and recentring his texts. Radical Freud will be of great interest to psychoanalysts as well as to academics and scholars of psychoanalytic studies, gender and queer studies, sociology, anthropology, history and philosophy.

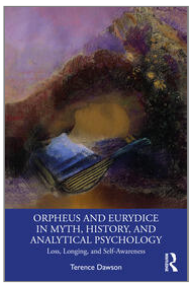
Orpheus and Eurydice in Myth, History, and Analytical Psychology

Loss, Longing, and Self-Awareness



Terence Dawson Independent scholar, teaching in UK and Singapore

This fascinating study shows how the minor Greek story of Orpheus and Eurydice came to have a more persistent and varied impact on Western culture than any other Greek myth. In the last two thousand years, it has captivated the imagination of successive ages. Writers and other artists have turned to it to explore unexpectedly diverse concerns, from classical philosophy, through Christian values, to challenges involving individual psychology and societal well-being. This book will be of interest to analysts, scholars, and students working with Jung's ideas, and to all those interested in adaptations of myth and the implications they harbour.

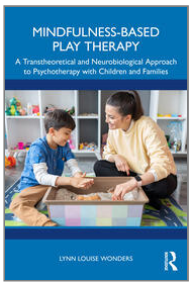
Mindfulness-Based Play Therapy

A Transtheoretical and Neurobiological Approach to Psychotherapy with Children and Families



Lynn Louise Wonders Private practice, Florida, USA

Mindfulness-Based Play Therapy is a transtheoretical and neurobiologically informed guide rooted in the belief that the therapeutic alliance is essential to play therapy's effectiveness. In these pages, clinicians will find the tools they need to help children and families use mindfulness to increase attentional focus and enhance sensory processing, emotion regulation, and reflective awareness. Clinicians will also find a variety of non-directive and directive play-based therapeutic experiences to use in sessions as well as a set of evidence-based practices that supports children with anxiety disorders, trauma, and neurodivergence.

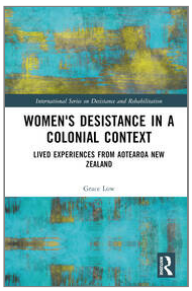
Lived Experiences from Aotearoa New Zealand



Grace Low

Series: International Series on Desistance and Rehabilitation

This book adds to global knowledge of pathways out of crime by exploring the desistance narratives of 15 women with histories of imprisonment in Aotearoa New Zealand (10 of whom identify as Māori, New Zealand's Indigenous population). It explores the women's journeys in and out of crime, including the various socio-structural constraints which could impede the women's desistance efforts, especially for Māori women, and makes recommendations for policy and practice to support them. It is an original contribution to desistance literature that brings greater conceptual clarity to gendered aspects of the desistance process and how these manifest in a colonial setting.

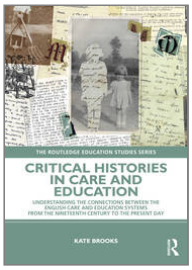
Critical Histories in Care and Education

Understanding the Connections Between the English Care and Education Systems from the Nineteenth Century to the Present Day



Kate Brooks

Series: The Routledge Education Studies Series

This groundbreaking and thought-provoking book puts the care experience at the centre of education history. Engaging and accessible, Critical Histories in Care and Education provides historical insight to the growing field of care studies and reveals how nineteenth century assumptions and prejudices about care-experienced pupils helped shape education policy and continue to do so today. The book is a vital resource for anyone involved in studying childhood, education, welfare and care, and will appeal to anyone wanting to broaden their knowledge and critical understanding of this complex topic.

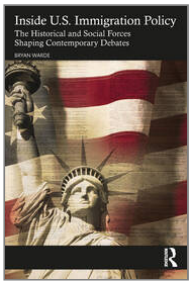
Inside U.S. Immigration Policy

The Historical and Social Forces Shaping Contemporary Debates



Bryan Warde

Inside U.S. Immigration Policy provides a comprehensive introduction to the development of U.S. immigration and immigration policies from the nation's colonial beginnings to the present day. The author offers a thoroughly researched account of immigration policies spanning 1882 to the present and calls upon theories and ideologies that explain conflicting views and shifting attitudes on immigrants and immigration. This book is an excellent addition to a range of undergraduate and graduate courses on social welfare, public policy, social work, sociology, and history.

Social Work, Housing and Homelessness

Robert Hagan , Anya Ahmed

Series: Student Social Work

Shelter is a basic human requirement, yet housing in the UK has increasingly been perceived as an asset rather than the secure base everyone requires for their basic physical and mental health needs and well-being.This book is suitable for both undergraduate and postgraduate social work students as they begin to think of more specialised areas of work in their second or subsequent years, as well as social work practitioners, who will be increasingly aware of the pressures of housing costs on those with whom they work.

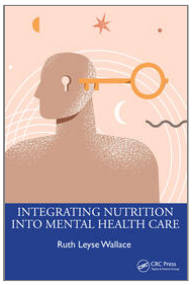
Integrating Nutrition Into Mental Health Care



Ruth Leyse Wallace

Mental health counselors, psychologists, social workers, and psychiatrists realize that nutrition may be a factor in their clients' mental health, but a lack of nutritional science background and resources makes it difficult for them to incorporate nutrition into the care they provide. Likewise registered dietitian nutritionists, new to the field of mental health care (whether in a facility or in private practice), may feel the need for succinct resources geared to this area of nutritional care. Integrating Nutrition and Mental Health Care illuminates the intersection between nutrition and mental health, bridging the gap for professionals in both fields.

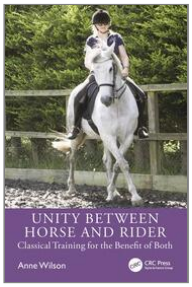
Unity Between Horse and Rider

Classical Training for the Benefit of Both



Anne Wilson Tracking-Up Magazine (Co-Owner)

In this in-depth practical book on classical riding, author and expert rider Anne Wilson demonstrates that the teachings of classical riding can engender a kinder, more ethical way of interacting with horses. Wilson provides a wealth of 'how-to' information, via down-to-earth language and detailed imagery, which will enable readers to put the principles into effect. Unity Between Horse and Rider will be of great benefit to riders in any discipline who have basic knowledge and skills but wish to learn a more ethical, fulfilling way of training and riding. For riders, riding professionals, students and trainers, classical riding is the key to a happy life for horse and human.

The Veterinary General Practice Casebook

Companion Animal Clinics

Edited by Andrew Gardiner University of Edinburgh, Anne Quain Sydney School of Veterinary Sc.

The Vet GP Casebook echoes life at the coal face of companion animal practice. Organised into 'clinics', each chapter feels like a day in the life of a busy general practitioner, where emergencies are juggled with routine consultations. Ideal for senior veterinary students, graduates, those returning to practice, and those seeking a GP workout, this book presents cases as they appear in real life, often messier and less complete than textbook descriptions. The clinical content is complemented by topics on wellbeing and professional practice, as well as recipes for simple and nutritious meals to feed veterinary body and soul.

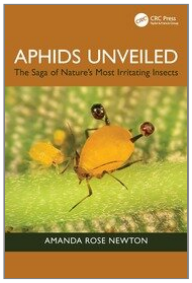
Aphids Unveiled

The Saga of Nature's Most Irritating Insects



Amanda Rose Newton

Aphids Unveiled explores the curious journey of these tiny insects from humble beginnings to becoming the most obnoxious pests for farmers and home gardeners alike. With a witty narrative style and a touch of humor, the book aims to engage readers with the quirky behaviors, social structures, and survival strategies of aphids, all while unraveling the reasons behind their impact on agriculture and horticulture. As an entomologist and professor, Amanda Rose Newton's writing uniquely blends expertise with a passion for storytelling, ensuring Aphids Unveiled is not only informative but also an entertaining read.

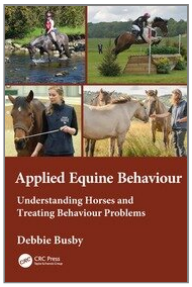
Applied Equine Behaviour

Understanding Horses and Treating Behaviour Problems



Debbie Busby

Combining an in-depth exploration of equine behaviour with clinical practice, Applied Equine Behaviour focuses not just on the horse's behaviour, but on the behaviour of the human interacting with the horse. It will equip readers with the understanding and skills to be effective equine behaviour consultants. Discussing how and why horses sometimes struggle to cope, this book explains how to consult on and treat a range of behaviour problems. It encourages readers to develop a critical biopsychosocial evaluation based on an understanding of how horses evolved, their ethological and physiological adaptations, how they learn, and how they can assess their welfare.

Pathways to African Food Security

Challenges, Threats and Opportunities towards 2050

Edited by Michiel de Haas , Ken Giller

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

This book examines Africa's current food system and future challenges for food security over the next twenty-five years. By 2050, Africa will be home to a quarter of the world's population. It shows that the African food system needs to transform at a faster pace to ensure that the people it serves are food secure. The chapters address topics including climate change, water security, farm sizes, crop yields, conservation trade-offs, food prices, trade, conflict and structural change.This book is essential reading for students, scholars and practitioners who work on global food security, sustainable food systems, food, health and nutrition and African development.

Plant Stress Tolerance

Molecular Mechanisms and Breeding Strategies, Volume Two

Edited by Jen-Tsung Chen

Plant Stress Tolerance: Molecular Mechanisms and Breeding Strategies, Volume Two explores methods of precise management of biotic stressors including pests and pathogens. This is based on advanced molecular technologies including mutagenesis, genetic engineering, genome-wide association study, marker-assisted selection, genomic selection, molecular marker-based platforms, functional genomics, multiple omics tools, high-throughput technologies, computational biology, epigenetic manipulation, and clustered regularly interspaced short palindromic repeats (CRISPR)-based genome editing.

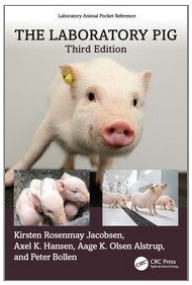
The Laboratory Pig



Kirsten Rosenmay Jacobsen Ilegaard Göttingen Minipigs, Axel Kornerup Hansen Agriculture University, Frederiksberg, Denmark Royal Veterinary & Agricultural University, Aage K Olsen Alstrup Aarhus University Hospital, Aarhus, Denmark, Peter Bollen University of Copenhagen

Series: Laboratory Animal Pocket Reference

This third edition raises the bar for humane care and use of pigs from agricultural sources to genetically and microbiological defined minipigs. Aimed at animal caretakers, technicians, laboratory animal veterinarians and investigators planning and performing studies on pigs, it has been updated with a special focus on refined methods for housing and handling pigs. Continuing its legacy as the premier reference on the care and use of pigs in the laboratory, the small accessible format makes this an easy "go to" book. The third edition aims to contribute to humane use and care for laboratory pigs in all aspects of housing, husbandry, veterinary care and experimental techniques.

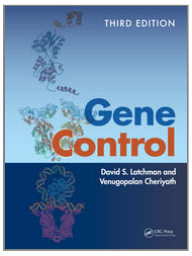
Gene Control



David S. Latchman Birkbeck, University of London, UK, Venugopalan Cheriyath

This updated new edition of Gene Control is the only textbook offering a complete account of gene control for both prokaryotic and eukaryotic organisms. The objective of this edition is to educate students about the fundamental principles and mechanisms governing gene expression, regulation, and function. Each chapter now includes discussion questions to promote critical thinking, and online there are MCQs and animations for students, and a question bank and figure slides for instructors. Gene Control will remain a valuable resource for students, instructors, researchers, and medical professionals exploring various aspects of gene control.

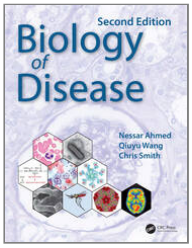
2ND EDITION

Biology of Disease



Nessar Ahmed , Chris Smith , Qiuyu Wang

Biology of Disease describes the biology of many human disorders and disease encountered in a clinical setting. The authors assume no prior knowledge from the reader. Real cases used throughout illustrate the importance of biology in understanding the causes of disease, as well as in diagnosis and therapy. This second edition has been thoroughly updated throughout and is now presented in full colour with increased illustration. Carefully designed for first and second year students in biomedical science programs the book will also be a highly effective reference for health science professionals as well as being valuable to students beginning medical school.

Textbook of General Virology

Edited by Sachin Kumar

This is an introductory text that presents fundamental knowledge and recent advances in virology. The book provides comprehensive coverage of different aspects like classification, structure, emerging viruses, cancer-causing viruses, and viral vaccines. It covers the basic biology of virus existence, evolution, and re-occurrence. It also incorporates the fundamentals of biophysical, and biochemical aspects of viral replication. The book discusses important topics like immunity to viral infections, bacteriophages, and techniques used in virology. The textbook is meant for undergraduate and postgraduate students of microbiology, immunology, genetics, and medicine.

3RD EDITION

Food Policy in the United States

An Introduction

Parke Wilde Tufts University, USA

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

This 3rd edition offers a timely update to the leading textbook dedicated to all aspects of food policy in the U.S. It begins with the economic interests of farmers and food producers and then moves on to examine nutrition policy, food justice, food security and the environment. Building on the success of the second edition, this edition offers greater attention both to food justice issues and to economic methods. It is essential reading for all students, researchers and policymakers seeking to understand U.S. food policy from a range of interdisciplinary backgrounds, including food studies, agricultural and food economics and policy, public health and nutrition and public policy.

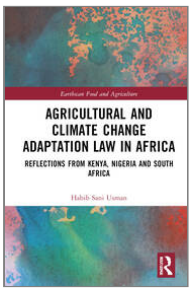
Agricultural and Climate Change Adaptation Law in Africa

Reflections from Kenya, Nigeria and South Africa



Habib Sani Usman

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

This book presents an analysis of climate change and agricultural laws in Kenya, Nigeria and South Africa in order to determine whether they adequately addressed the concept of agricultural adaptation. This book provides a novel, comparative examination of how and to what extent the law promotes agriculture-focused adaptation in these regions.The book identifies gaps in the regulatory frameworks for agricultural adaptation and highlights the lack of adaptive capacity of African agriculture due to weak or non-existing legal frameworks. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of law, climate change, food and agriculture, sustainable development and African studies.

Amphibians of Ecuador

Pipidae, Telmatobiidae, Microhylidae, Dendrobatidae, Ranidae, Bufonidae, and Hylidae, Volume II

Luis A. Coloma , William E. Duellman

Amphibians of Ecuador Vol II is the second of four volumes which explores, in comprehensive detail, the rich amphibian diversity of Ecuador, providing a thorough review of biogeography, amphibian declines, and conservation. This volume covers the Pipidae, Telmatobiidae, Microhylidae, Dendrobatidae, Ranidae, Bufonidae, and Hylidae. Reproductive behavior, where known, is described as are data on vocalizations, larvae and ontogenetic changes. Amphibian distributions are illustrated with physiographic maps with dots. Each volume addresses the declines, extinctions and conservation status of each species and provides notations of their occurrence in reserves.

Biochemistry of Non-Shivering Thermogenesis in Vertebrates

Evolutionary Perspectives

Edited by Naresh Chandra Bal , Punyadhara Pani

This comprehensive reference book covers non-shivering thermogenesis, metabolic rates, and associated diseases. It emphasizes the phylogenetic relations of vertebrate non-shivering thermogenesis (NST) and its evolutionary significance. The book describes how the incidence of metabolic syndromes has reached epidemic levels worldwide due to dysregulation in energy balance. It covers the role of NST in birds and wild animals, and muscle adaptation during hibernation. The book is meant for researchers and students of biochemistry, molecular medicine, and physiology. It is also useful to physicians and health care professionals.

Biotechnology, Multiple Omics, and Precision Breeding in Medicinal Plants

Edited by Jen-Tsung Chen

Biotechnology, Multiple Omics, and Precision Breeding in Medicinal Plants explores the various methods for advancing medicinal plant research. It covers a wide range of approaches, including integrated and advanced plant biotechnology, mutagenesis, nanotechnology, genome-wide association studies, multiple omics tools, and high-throughput technologies. The book highlights the significant impact of combining pan-genomics with metabolomics in medicinal plant research, particularly in understanding how genetic diversity influences the profiles of secondary metabolites and the therapeutic potential of these plants.

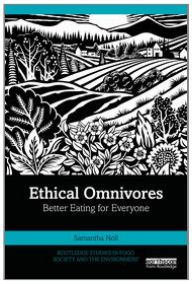
Ethical Omnivores

Better Eating for Everyone



Samantha Noll Washington State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Food, Society and the Environment

This book provides a detailed overview of ethical omnivorism, as well as the philosophical foundations of this movement and diet.While publications in food ethics are largely dominated by vegetarian titles, this book explores the viability of omnivorism, a dietary choice which is not devoid of animal products, but one which embraces eating local, eating organic, and eating humanely raised food products. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of food studies, food, agriculture and animal ethics, environmental philosophy and those more widely interested in making ethical food choices.

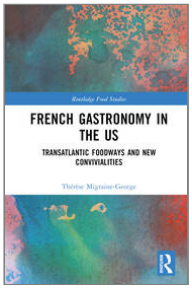
French Gastronomy in the US

Transatlantic Foodways and New Convivialities



Thérèse Migraine-George

Series: Routledge Food Studies

This book focuses on the (re)invention of French food in the US, probing the intricate transatlantic dynamics underlying notions of cooking and eating French. By looking at French gastronomy as both a symbolic formation and an exclusionary practice closely tied to power, class, and race, this book re-centers histories that have been marginalized in traditional narratives of French gastronomy. This book will be of interest to students and scholars from a range of interdisciplinary fields of study including food studies, global French and Francophone studies, cultural studies, media studies, black/African American studies, history, and ethnography.

Hydrogen Peroxide

Signaling Mechanisms and Crosstalk in Plant Development and Stress Responses

Edited by Tanveer Alam Khan , Taiba Saeed , Aqeel Ahmad , Qazi Fariduddin , Mohammad Yusuf

Hydrogen peroxide (H2O2) is recognized as a crucial signaling molecule that mediates physiological and biochemical processes in plants, regulating various development and stress responses. Hydrogen Peroxide: Signalling Mechanisms and Crosstalk in Plant Development and Stress Responses presents a comprehensive overview of hydrogen peroxide's modes of action in plants demonstrating the important role played in plant stress signaling and communication. It introduces key topics in H2O2 research such as plant signaling, molecular responses, and interaction with other hormones.

Molecular Approaches for the Detection of Fungal Phytopathogens

Edited by Deepa Nagaraju , Sreenivasa Marikunte Yanjarappa , Charith Raj Adkar Purushothama

The book discusses recent advancement and updates in the molecular diagnostics of fungal phytopathogens. The techniques covered in the seventeen chapters helps in understanding the importance of early detection of fungal pathogens and their toxins in both post and pre-harvest stages of crop production. The chapters describe the fungal identification and isolation from different sources such as food, feed and cereals using molecular approaches like variants of Polymerase Chain Reaction (PCR) involving generic (genus and species) and gene specific primers, RNA-sequence-based next generation sequence, microarray, Serial Analysis of Gene Expression, etc.

Physiology of Halophytes

Signaling, Omics, and Tolerance Mechanisms

Edited by Nivas Manohar Desai , Ganesh Chandrakant Nikalje

Provides scientific knowledge and expertise on the mechanisms of plant responses to various environmental stresses. It covers the molecular, biochemical, and physiological mechanisms behind salt tolerance on halophytes and saline adaptations. It overviews metabolomic, proteomic, and ionomic adjustment and adaptive mechanisms of halophytes under salinity stress. It also focuses on the role of halophytes for sustainable, eco-friendly environmental and agricultural development. It also covers endophytes-assisted salinity tolerance in halophytes while also discussing salt signaling in halophytes.

Small Molecules in Neurodegeneration

Edited by Nawab John Dar , Shahnawaz Ali Bhat

Neurodegenerative diseases, like Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, and Huntington's, cast a long shadow over millions of lives, stealing memories, independence, and futures. The rising tide of these age-related disorders threatens to overwhelm healthcare systems worldwide, prompting an urgent search for effective treatments. While current options offer temporary relief, they fail to halt the relentless march of these devastating conditions. However, a beacon of hope shines at the intersection of cutting-edge neuroscience and the world of small molecules. This book stands as a testament to this increasing revolution.

Smart Technologies for Sustainable Development Goals

No Poverty

Edited by A.Jose Anand KCG College of Technology, India , Saravanan krishnan Anna University, India

Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) give the UN a road-map for development with Agenda 2030 as target. It was built on the previously established Millennium Development Goals (MDG). This book examines the supporting technologies needed to advance the SDG 1 to end poverty and create a better society. This much-needed book, which is the first of its type to offer a specific focus on the relationship between technology and the SDG 1, will be valuable for academicians working in the subject of global sustainable development. International organisations and representatives of national governments will be able to share knowledge on technological views to eradicate poverty in all means.

Smart Technologies in Sustainable Agriculture

Current and Future Prospects

Edited by Pradeep Kumar , Abhishek Singh , Vishnu D. Rajput , Tatiana Minkina , Anil Kumar Singh

Explores new and advanced technologies used in agriculture, which include nanotechnologies, nanosensors, geotechnologies, artificial intelligence, and more. It highlights the implications of geoinformatics, nanotechnology, and advanced microbial technology and applications in plant and agriculture sciences. It also presents innovative eco-friendly approaches for the improvement of crop productivity and soil fertility. It discusses the advanced technology of GIS, sensors, etc. It gives insight into the role of nanotechnology in plant protection and plant nutrition etc. It provides a comprehensive overview of microbial and biotechnological approaches for sustainable agriculture.

The Pomegranate Genome

Edited by Zhaohe Yuan Nanjing Forestry University, China , Julián Bartual Elche Agrarian Experimental Station, Spain

Series: Genome Designing of Crops

"The Pomegranate Genome," is a comprehensive resource for researchers, scholars, and enthusiasts in the field of pomegranate research. With its seven chapters, the book delves into various aspects of the pomegranate crop, providing an extensive coverage of its botany, taxonomy, germplasm conservation and utilization, genome, and functional genomics.

Visceral Leishmaniasis and Post-kala-azar Dermal Leishmaniasis

Pathogenesis, Treatment and Disease Control

Edited by Veer Singh , Ashish Kumar

This book provides a comprehensive overview of Visceral Leishmaniasis (VL) and Post-Kala-Azar Dermal Leishmaniasis (PKDL). It covers their pathogenesis, treatment options, and disease control strategies. The text elucidates symptoms and diagnosis, offering insights into the complex immunopathogenesis and parasite-host interactions. It examines current therapeutic approaches and emerging strategies for both VL and PKDL, while reviewing the impact of environmental factors like arsenic and antimony on disease progression. Additionally, it discusses preventive measures and the challenges in implementing effective PKDL control strategies.

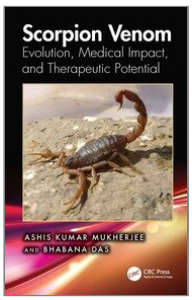
Scorpion Venom

Evolution, Medical Impact, and Therapeutic Potential



Ashis Kumar Mukherjee Institute of Advanced Study in Science and Technology, Assam, Bhabana Das Devicharan Barua Girls' College, Jorhat, Assam

This book offers a comprehensive overview of scorpion biology, exploring their taxonomy, anatomy, and properties of their venom. It reviews the composition and toxicity of venom and their potential therapeutic applications for treating human diseases. It also presents the global epidemiology of scorpion stings, provides clinical insights, and highlights the challenges and advancements in antivenom treatments. It also discusses innovative medical approaches that utilize scorpion venom toxins, underscoring their evolutionary significance and biomedical potential. This book is intended for researchers, clinicians, and students interested in toxicology, pharmacology, and arachnology.

Biotechnological Innovations for Sustainable Biodiversity and Development

Edited by Ranbir Chander Sobti

This book reviews the role of biotechnological innovations in achieving sustainable development goals and conserving global biodiversity. It presents techniques for identifying and characterizing plants and animals, including genomic tools, DNA barcoding, proteomics, and metabolomics. It also discusses responsible bio-resource development and utilization, encompassing conservation strategies, bioprospecting, and sustainable agriculture for preserving agro-biodiversity. It addresses challenges to biodiversity, such as climate change, invasive species, pollution, and disease impact. It targets scientists,environmentalists, students in biotechnology, ecology, and conservation biology.

Microfluidics in Food Processing

Technologies and Applications

Edited by Ayon Tarafdar , Ranjna Sirohi Korea Uni, BARJINDER PAL KAUR , Ashok Pandey , Claude-Gilles Dussap

Series: Sustainable Industrial and Environmental Bioprocesses

This book provides a comprehensive introduction to microfluidization and explores its applications in the food industry. It reviews the use of microfluidics in processing beverages, milk products, cereals, nuts, and meat and egg-based products. The book also covers microfluidics in food micro- and nano-delivery systems, seed protein isolates, the detection of molecular interactions, synthesis of nanomaterials, and extraction of bioactive ingredients. This book serves as a valuable resource for researchers, scientists, and professionals seeking to understand the applications of microfluidics in food processing and analysis.

Metals in Medicine

Volume 2: Metallic Nanoparticles for Biomedical Applications

Edited by Sonali Sundram , Rishabha Malviya , GSN Koteswara Rao

Provides information on and applications of metal-containing compounds that function as essential tools in medical science for the imaging and diagnosis of disease as well as for the prevention and treatment of many diseases. It deals with the application of certain metal-active drugs for disease treatment and diagnosis. It presents promising compounds/complexes for potential therapeutic use, their properties, and the diseases they can treat. It employs real-life applications of metallic drugs including gold- and zinc-based nanosystems in cancer therapy, zinc oxide in disease diagnosis, gold/silver nanoparticles for tissue engineering and biomedical applications, and more.

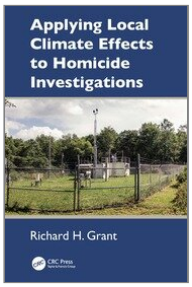
Applying Local Climate Effects to Homicide Investigations



Richard H. Grant Purdue University, USA

Applying Local Climate Effects to Homicide Investigation presents the concepts behind using local climate and weather records to enhance understanding of criminal cases. While sources of such local climate and weather information varies by country and regions, weather conditions are typically measured at airports or grassy areas as part of a national, regional, or state-wide networks using many different instruments. It offers a basic, working understanding of the influence of the local environment on the local climate for forensic entomologists, forensic anthropologists, crime scene investigators, and lawyers.

Dr. Alan R. Moritz and the Origins of Forensic Pathology

Tales That Dead Men Tell

Rob Moritz

Forensic science has become a mainstay of popular culture on television, in movies, books, and podcasts. Dr. Alan R. Moritz (1899-1986) was a highly influential figure in the development of the field of forensic science as we know it today. Dr. Alan R. Moritz and Forensic Pathology fills in a missing chapter on the life, research, and lasting legacy of Dr. Moritz, providing insight into the development of modern forensic pathology practice by examining the momentous contributions and character of one of its true pioneers.

New Food Product Development

Global Strategies and Practices for Successful Innovation

Holger York Toschka

With a new subtitle and author to reflect its global perspective, this book continues the mission of earlier editions to describe stages of food development in detail, beginning with sources of ideas and moving through development, final screening, and introduction into the marketplace. every chapter contains one or more case studies. New chapters address the tools available for food industry and manufacturers to select, sharpen, fine tune and support new food products launches. More attention is given to the influence of global concerns about the deteriorating environment, and here particularly, the role and responsibility of the food industry and those working on new food products.

Edited by Sajad Ahmad Sofi , Khalid Muzaffar , Basharat Nabi Dar , Shabir Ahmad Mir

Series: Innovations in Horticultural Science

Highlights the potential of minor fruits in the human diet and their health benefits due to presence of phytochemicals, fibre, vitamins, and minerals. It studies several minor fruits and their nutritional and bioactive potential, general characteristics, and opportunities for their use in various functional food products. It also provides an overview of postharvest techniques used for minor fruits to preserve quality, enhance shelf life, streamline fruit processing, and develop new value-added products. It details on utilization of minor fruits in meeting the demand for food and nutritional security challenges.

Neuro-Nutraceuticals and Drug Discovery and Delivery in Alzheimer's Disease

Volume 1: Targeting Key Pathological Pathways

Edited by Varinder Singh , Amit Kumar , Parul Sood

Details the underlying pathological, biochemical, molecular, and genetic aspects of Alzheimer's disease. It provides essential insights into the disease and serves as a springboard for the subsequent discussions on potential therapeutic interventions. Chapters cover pathophysiology and diagnosis, the connection of gut microbiome and Alzheimer's disease, drug-induced Alzheimer's disease, and more. It explores various medicinal plants and their secondary metabolites that show promise in treating the condition. Covered are the role of diet, micronutrients, and macronutrients in managing Alzheimer's disease.

Nonthermal Light-Based Technologies in Food Processing

Edited by C. K. Sunil , Megh R. Goyal , Preeti Birwal , R. Mahendran

Series: Innovations in Agricultural & Biological Engineering

Provides in-depth knowledge and understanding of current and emerging light-based technologies and their application in food processing. This book also introduces the role of nonthermal technology for novel food product development. It covers light-based technologies, ultraviolet (UV) light technology, pulsed light (PL) technology, and light-emitting diode (LED) technology. It details a range of modern and emerging light-based food preservation technologies that include ozone, ohmic heading, high-pressure processing, cold plasma, pulsed electric field (PEF), microwave, irradiation, light-based technologies, cold plasma, and more.

Nutraceuticals for the Treatment and Prevention of Sexual Disorders

Edited by Raj K. Keservani , Sharangouda J. Patil , Ivan Aranha

Series: AAP Advances in Nutraceuticals

Highlights the working solutions as well as open problems and future challenges in the use of nutraceuticals in sexual disorder research. It discusses the remedial properties that nutraceuticals possess that can be applied to a range of sexual disorders. Chapters cover use of antioxidants in stress-induced male infertility, role of nutraceuticals in prostate cancer, male sex hormone disturbances, and more. It also addresses the use of nutraceuticals on female sexual disorders and remedial measures in treating breast cancer, cervical complications, pregnancy health and disorders, menstrual disturbances, etc.

Nutraceuticals in Cardiac Health Management

Edited by Raj K. Keservani , Rajesh K. Kesharwani , Praveen Kumar Jain , Bhushan R. Rane , Nayan A. Gujarathi

Series: AAP Advances in Nutraceuticals

Offers an informative update on the most recent scientific evidence addressing the use of nutraceuticals in the prevention and management of heart disease. It demonstrates various nutraceutical components used in the management and prevention of cardiovascular diseases and hypertension in human beings. It summarizes the various functional foods that are involved in preventing the risk of CVDs, the mechanisms of the bioactive components that lower the risk of chronic illnesses, as well as the dietary patterns that are involved in the prevention of CVDs. It also covers specific nutraceuticals, including probiotics, dietary fibers, garlic, green tea, vitamins, tomatoes and more.

Nutraceuticals in Obesity Management and Control

Edited by Raj K. Keservani , Alka Lohani

Series: AAP Advances in Nutraceuticals

Details nutraceuticals that can help control and manage obesity. It clarifies key aspects of nutraceuticals that include sources, extraction, chemistry, mechanisms of action, pharmacology, bioavailability, safety, and various applications. It overviews the prevalence, complications, and current treatment regimens related to obesity. It weighs the significance of functional foods and nutraceuticals for the management of bodyweight and for alleviating obesity comorbidities. It discusses the effect of common naturally occurring nutraceutical substances, along with their mechanisms of action in controlling obesity.

Prebiotic Foods for a Healthy Gut

Scientific Studies to Manage Metabolic Disorders

Edited by Mini K. Sheth , Shruti Dwivedi

Introduces prebiotics as a food component and covers the potential of various prebiotics and their safety, their proven health implications, their mechanisms of action, and their use in day-to-day consumption. It provides an overview of highly dynamic gut molecular ecology and diversity and discusses potential factors that define a healthy gut. It also provides insight into recent developments in shaping the gut microbiota for improved human health. It covers topics including certain prebiotics as functional foods, prebiotic regulatory issues, consumer attitudes, commercialization of such prebiotic therapeutic products, etc.

The Nature of Nutraceuticals

History, Properties, Sources, and Nanotechnology

Edited by Rajesh K. Kesharwani , Prashant Kumar , Raj K. Keservani

Series: AAP Advances in Nutraceuticals

Provides an overview of the health benefits of various natural sources such as fruits, vegetables, herbs, and spices. It covers multiple topics, including the history of nutraceuticals, their advantages and disadvantages, and the various nutrients found in natural food sources. It also details on how to incorporate nutraceuticals into a healthy diet and helpful tips on identifying and purchasing nutraceuticals. 100 Women

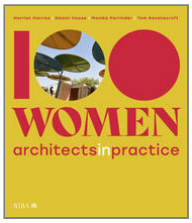
Architects in Practice



Tom Ravenscroft , Harriet Harriss , Naomi House , Monika Parrinder

All the architects in this book deserve international recognition. The reality is, though, that few are household names. Over the last decade, awareness of the need for gender balance in architecture has gained traction. Within the profession, women remain underrepresented, underpromoted and underpaid. Failure to acknowledge women's contribution to the built environment has perpetuated this cycle and impoverished us all. By showcasing 100 exceptional architects – who happen to be women – this book provides a flagship reference to inspire and support everyone working in the profession, no matter how they identify.

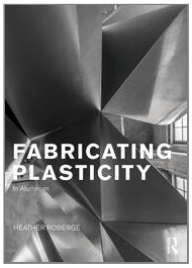
Fabricating Plasticity in Aluminum



Heather Roberge University of California at Los Angeles, USA

This book argues for the value of the material prototype as a critical site of design innovation, through a series of design and architectural case studies. Illustrated by physical objects such as chairs, columns, and building façades, these full-scale material investigations reflect their designers' deep knowledge of material, manufacturing, and geometry. The projects do not simply express how they are made, rather their designers leverage the capacities of metal forming to exert distinctive influence on the object's expression and performance, embracing manufacturing processes as instruments of material innovation.

Practising Wood in Architecture

Connecting Design, Construction and Sustainability

James Benedict Brown , Francesco Camilli

This book explores the methods, philosophies, and possibilities of contemporary teaching practices in architecture. It investigates how architecture students are learning to build with wood and interrogates the consequences for architectural practice. Based on original research conducted over two years, the book explores innovative projects that use wood. These case studies demonstrate the many advantages of wood, including its simplicity of use, its affordability, and its sustainability. The book focuses on ongoing initiatives that can show the educational and professional impact of the use of wood in architecture and construction by students and professionals alike.

2ND EDITION

Residential Retrofit

24 Case Studies

Marion Baeli

The essence of sustainability in buildings is their capability to adapt to change over time. The UK has a large housing stock that has been developed and evolved over generations, and become the fabric and character of our cities, towns and neighbourhoods. The capability of buildings to adapt to changing lifestyles is the root of their sustainability. This book presents a series of innovative and best practice case studies of residential low energy retrofit projects, and illustrates what has been achieved in practice in the UK.

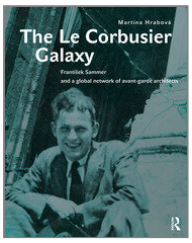
The Le Corbusier Galaxy

František Sammer and a global network of avant-garde architects



Martina Hrabová

Drawing on the author's discovery of an unknown, long-forgotten collection of photographs in an Indian ashram, this book offers an exciting new view of the international community of young architects who served as Le Corbusier's assistants in the inter-war years. It is based on the author's discovery of a collection of some 500 snapshots, assembled by the Czech architect František Sammer between 1931 and 1939, which had been stored unnoticed for more than 70 years in the Sri Aurobindo Ashram in Pondicherry, India. They form a remarkable document of the extraordinary relationships within this close cohort of young architects – many of whom became friends for life.

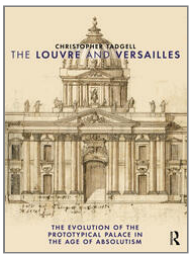
The Louvre and Versailles

The Evolution of the Proto-typical Palace in the Age of Absolutism



Christopher Tadgell

This book traces the evolution of the great palaces of the Louvre and Versailles, from Pierre Lescot's designs for expanding the former in the mid-16th century to the successive grands projets for the transformation of the latter over the course of the 18th century. Detailed architectural analysis is set in the context of the development of the medieval monarchy towards absolutism, the significance of Hispano-Burgundian court etiquette as a formative influence on planning, and the effect of the French monarchy's financial incontinence on royal building ambitions. A wealth of illustrative material and supporting documents brings this comprehensive and authoritative text to life.

Design-Tech: Building Science for Architects

Jason Alread , Thomas Leslie Iowa State University, Ames, USA, Rob Whitehead Iowa State University, Ames, USA

The third edition of Design-Tech provides an indispensable, holistic resource for integrating building technologies into critically designed, performance-based architectural projects. The book's format follows the developmental stages of a typical architectural project; it provides a step-by-step process for addressing and integrating building sciences from first principles of human comfort, materials, structures, and environmental systems to advanced construction systems, and measures of building performance. This will be a must-read for all architecture students looking for an accessible guide to building science.

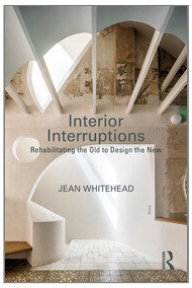
Interior Interruptions

Rehabilitating the Old to Design the New



Jean Whitehead

Interior Interruptions examines the role of the 'palimpsest' and its relationship to narrative, sustainability, design renovation and adaptive reuse. By examining storytelling, palimpsestic characteristics and techniques, the book argues that these devices play a central role in the consideration of the designed interior. It is essential reading for students and professionals interested in the built environment, including, but not limited to, interior design, interior decoration, interior architecture and architecture.

Introducing Architectural Tectonics

Exploring the Intersection of Design and Construction

Chad Schwartz Southern Illinois University–Carbondale, USA

The second edition of Introducing Architectural Tectonics is an exploration of the poetics of construction. Tectonic theory is an integrative philosophy examining the relationships formed between design, construction, and space while creating or experiencing a work of architecture. In this text, author Chad Schwartz presents an introductory investigation into tectonic theory, subdividing it into distinct concepts in order to make it accessible to beginning and advanced students alike. This second edition has been updated to include the tectonic analysis of four new architectural precedents, from Nigeria, Burkina Faso, Mexico and China.

Constructing and Reconstructing History in Twentieth-Century German Architecture

Edited by Alexander Luckmann , Volker M. Welter

The chapters in this book span the years from 1902 to 1991 and interrogate the ways in which architecture constructed and reconstructed these histories, with a primary focus on those voices that were opposed to the dogmas of modernism. All translated into English for the first time, the chapters reflect the changing eras and contours of the German nation. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Art in Translation.

Designing in Times of Crisis

Envisioning and Applying

Edited by Jorge Cruz Pinto , Ljiljana Čavić , Hugo Lopes Farias , Luís Miguel Ginja

Series: Project Thinking on Design

Designing in Times of Crisis offers insights, visions, and strategies for architects and urban designers to question and respond to the crises and challenges of the contemporary anthropocentric world. The book highlights the urgency of addressing global crises and encourages architects and urban designers to consider new approaches related to gender equity, city ethics, and fundamental human rights. It promotes the adoption of sustainable practices that heed the social, economic, and environmental impacts of their work, particularly focusing on Portuguese and Brazilian contexts.

Teaching Carbon Neutral Design in North America

Twenty Award-Winning Architectural Design Studio Methodologies

Edited by Robin Z. Puttock

This book brings to light a diverse range of innovative architectural design studio methodologies formulated to educate future graduates to combat the climate crisis through carbon-neutral design. This heterogenous compilation of strategies encourages wide accessibility to and acceptance by studio professors, as well as administrators and faculty developing architecture curricula. This will, in turn, maximize the impact on curtailing carbon emissions resulting from the construction and operations of our built environment.

Valences of Historiography

Essays on Architectural History

Edited by Gevork Hartoonian

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

The compiled essays offer various themes and ways of approaching historiography. Each chapter probes the state of contemporary theorization of architecture histories, working toward the theme of critical re-writing of history. Essential to each author's contribution is specific traditions created by the mole of history burrowing through the past. This book concerns the historian's conjectures towards capturing the past and present zeitgeist.

Landscape Is...!

Essays on the Meaning of Landscape

Edited by Gareth Doherty , Charles Waldheim Harvard University Graduate School of Design

This book examines the implicit biases and received meanings of landscape. Following on from the previous publication Is Landscape…? which examined the plural and promiscuous identities of the landscape idea, this companion volume reflects upon the diverse and multiple meanings of landscape as a discipline, profession, and medium. This book is intended for academics, researchers, and students in landscape architecture and cognate disciplines. It features contributions from leading voices who challenge the contemporary understandings of the field in relation to capital and class, race and gender, power and politics, and more.

Decolonising the Built Environment

Process, Product, and Pedagogy

Edited by Kundani Makakavhule , Karina Landman

This book provides an important and much-needed comprehensive overview of how decolonisation is shaping the built environment in theory, practice, and as a process/project today. Chapters provide an inclusive and trans-national conversation between a diverse set of academics, design practitioners and thinkers, and activists. This book is structured around three thematic and practical categories: part one studies decolonisation conceptually; part two studies decolonisation as a process; and part three studies the products of decolonisation – as materialized in the form of buildings, urban design, planning, policy, and social practices.

The Protection of Green Spaces for Climate Change Adaptation

Planning Systems, Policies and Instruments

Edited by Maciej J Nowak

Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design

The Protection of Green Spaces for Climate Change Adaptation identifies how spatial planning and climate change adaptation are linked by examining the protection of green spaces in cities across Europe, Africa, the Middle East, South America and Australia. The book identifies how, in each case, spatial planning instruments can influence the protection of green spaces, and whether – and if so how – they are being adapted in response to actual and expected effects from climate change.

Climate Change Effects on Civil Infrastructure

Climate Demands

Mohammed M. Ettouney Weidlinger Associates Inc., New York, USA

Series: Civil Infrastructure Health and Sustainability

Climate change challenges are unlike any hazard that infrastructure and related shareholders have faced for millennia. These challenges, and the systems that are vulnerable to them, as well as the resulting consequences (social, economic, physical, natural, health, costs, etc.) are interrelated in countless manners and span regions, countries, oceans, and continents.

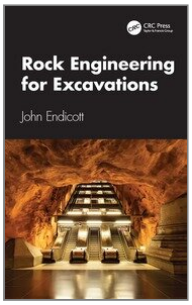
Rock Engineering for Excavations



John Endicott AECOM, Hong Kong

This book introduces the whole engineering process of designing and constructing deep excavations in rock, including caverns, tunnels, shafts, and pits. The process is comprehensively covered from initial site planning to the closure of contracts and resolution of disputes, and the maintenance and final decommissioning or repurposing of underground facilities. The subject material is derived from the author's extensive practice, with reference to successful projects and cases where things went wrong. Written accessibly and starting from the basics, the book serves as a practical guide for undergraduate and master's students, as well as non-specialist project managers.

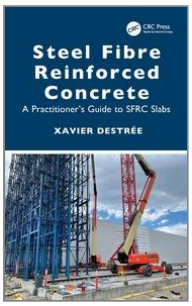
Steel Fibre Reinforced Concrete

A Practitioner's Guide to SFRC Slabs



Xavier Destrée Consulting Engineer, Belgium

Steel fibre reinforced concrete for structures is generally unknown to engineers and contractors. This book presents essential information to enable its use in a variety of conditions; with focus on flat horizontal cast in-situ applications -- ground bearing slabs, ground suspended slabs, suspended elevated slabs, and raft slab foundations for buildings. Material testing and structural testing are covered, and some attention is given to shrinkage and cracking, fire resistance of slabs and walls, and environmental benefits, as well as to future opportunities and challenges.

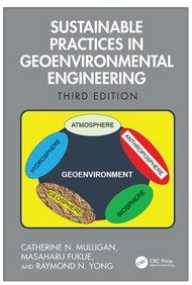
Sustainable Practices in Geoenvironmental Engineering



Catherine N. Mulligan Concordia University, Montreal, Quebec, Canada, Masaharu Fukue Tokai University, Shizuoka, Japan, Raymond N. Yong McGill University, Montreal, Quebec, Canada

This third edition focuses on the application of geoenvironmental engineering procedures and practices to mitigate and reduce the adverse impacts on the geoenvironment from anthropogenic sources including emerging contaminants such as micro and nanoplastics, pharmaceuticals, and fire retarding chemicals. Thoroughly updated with a new chapter and extensive use of case studies to showcase examples of sustainable practices, this new edition discusses many activities that are still generating geoenvironmental impacts that are averse to the quality and health of the geoenvironment. It includes new tools and procedures that have been developed to evaluate and minimize adverse impacts.

Reinforcement for Modern Concrete Structures

Khan Mahmud Amanat

Reinforcement for Modern Concrete Structures provides readers with the foundational information on various properties and characteristics of the different types of rebar used in concrete structures. The book provides a sound background on modern reinforcing materials which is essential for engineers and designers. Civil and structural engineers will appreciate the fundamental information provided for selecting the appropriate kind of reinforcement for their structures and understand laboratory testing to determine the physical and mechanical properties of different types of reinforced concrete.

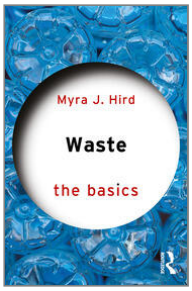
Waste: The Basics



Myra J. Hird

Series: The Basics

This book answers the questions: why are we facing a global waste crisis, and how can we effectively solve it? It identifies the most common types of waste, its major producers, how we manage waste locally, regionally and globally, and why this management is leading to more waste. It unpacks the complex relationship that waste has with global structures of capitalism, neoliberalism, international trade, poverty, racialized and gendered relations, and social injustice. Waste is written for students and general readers interested in waste as a human health and environmental issue, and anyone curious about where objects go once we put them in the trash or recycling bin.

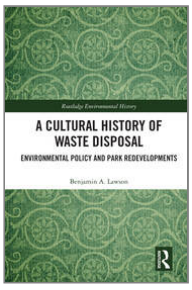
A Cultural History of Waste Disposal

Environmental Policy and Park Redevelopments



Benjamin A. Lawson

Series: Routledge Environmental History

This book offers a historical analysis of landfill sites in New York City, Greater Toronto, and Greater Tel Aviv, using them as case studies to emphasize the global scale of issues concerning waste disposal and park redevelopments. By engaging with both the works of waste historians and literature on waste and discard studies, the book provides theoretical models for analyzing the role of power in municipal systems, as well as human and ecological impacts on waste. This book will be useful for scholars, researchers, and academics studying waste studies, the environment, cities, and sustainable development, as well as for policymakers and environmental/eco artists.

Algae and Fungi

Bioremediation of Refractory Pollutants in Contaminated Environments

Edited by Humaira Qadri , Sartaj Ahmad Bhat Gifu University, Japan, Rouf Ahmad Bhat , Fuad Ameen

This book discusses algae and fungi as the tools for decontamination of the polluted environments and how the remediation techniques aid in biorefining the pollution in environmentally sustainable ways. It covers their applications in containing and controlling pollution along with detailed diagrammatic representations including mechanisms of phyco- and myco-remediation. Recovery of pollutants including heavy metals, pesticides, organic chemicals, radionuclides, and persistent chemicals from polluted ecosystems and wastewater is also covered. Aimed at researchers and graduate students in Environmental Engineering, Algae and Fungi Biotechnology, Applied Microbiology, and Phycology.

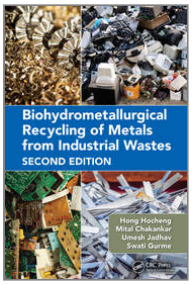
Biohydrometallurgical Recycling of Metals from Industrial Wastes



Hong Hocheng , Mital Chakankar National Tsing Hua University, Taiwan, R.O.C., Umesh Jadhav Nanyang Technological University, Singapore, Swati Gurme

Although many available metal recycling methods are simple and fast, they are expensive and cause environmental pollution. Biohydrometallurgical processing of metals offers an alternative to overcome these issues. This book covers biohydrometallurgy and its application in the recovery of metals from secondary sources like waste. Fully updated for a new edition, it provides readers with a comprehensive overview of different wastes for metal recovery and biological treatment methods that are environmentally friendly and economically viable. It serves as an essential resource for researchers and professional engineers working in chemical and environmental engineering and biotechnology.

Proceedings of the 6th International Conference on Renewable Energies Offshore (RENEW 2024, 19-21 November 2024, Lisbon, Portugal).

Edited by Carlos Guedes Soares , Shan Wang

Series: Proceedings in Marine Technology and Ocean Engineering

The contribution of renewable energy offshore to the total energy production is increasing, as is the interest in this topic. Innovations in Renewable Energies Offshore includes the papers presented at the 6th International Conference on Renewable Energies Offshore (RENEW 2024, 19-21 November, 2024, Lisbon, Portugal), and aims to contribute to the knowledge about the developments and experience obtained in concept development, design and operation of such devices. It will be of interest to academics and professionals involved or interested in applications of renewable energy resources offshore.

Nano-Biochar and Nanoparticles for Soil Health Improvement

Edited by Vishnu D. Rajput , Tatiana M. Minkina

Explores sustainable means of soil improvement through the promising use of nano-biochar and nanoparticles for improving soil quality, as well as for reducing waste. It discusses how nano-biochar can improve soil quality and sustainability and explores the various types of nanoparticles and approaches for improving soil health. Chapters present research on how nanoparticles and nano-biochar can reduce salinity stress, improve soil physiochemical properties, and improve intrinsic soil characteristics. The book also explores the unique soil-microbe interaction and provides insight into nanoparticles and nano-biochar as a means of this interaction.

Reclaimed Waste Materials for Sustainable Pavement Construction

Vivek NIT Srinagar, India, Sandeep Samantaray NIT Srinagar, India, Rakesh Sehgal NIT Srinagar, India

This book provides an overview of the use of various waste materials in pavement construction and their potential impact on sustainable infrastructure development. It explores the use of waste materials as alternatives to traditional pavement materials like asphalt and concrete. It discusses properties and performance of different waste materials and how they can be used in pavement construction including the economic and environmental benefits of using waste materials in pavement construction, including reduced greenhouse gas emissions, lower construction costs, and improved durability and longevity of pavements.

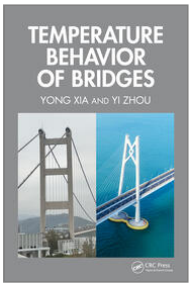
Temperature Behavior of Bridges



Yong Xia , Yi Zhou

This comprehensively studies temperature behaviors of bridges, covering beam, arch, cable-stayed, and suspension bridges and using analytical, numerical, and field monitoring approaches. For each type of bridge, it reports field monitoring results and presents an integrated heat-transfer and structural analysis framework. 25-year field monitoring data of the Tsing Ma Suspension Bridge is presented, the most extensive field data available, and other typical bridges, including the Hong Kong-Zhuhai-Macao Bridge and the Hong Kong Polytechnic University Footbridge, are also used as examples to enhance understanding. The book suits postgraduate students, researchers, and engineers.

Embedding Resilience in the Built Environment Using the EU Taxonomy

Edited by Elzbieta Rynska Warsaw University of Technology, Faculty of Architecture, Warsaw, Poland

EU Taxonomy is the common name for an EU regulation that supports companies in sustainable environmental and climate action (Regulation (EU) No. 2020/852). It is a classification tool designed for investors, companies and financial institutions to define the environmental impact of business activities and the requirements that organizations must meet to be considered as sustainable. Overall, this book is essential reading for decision-makers in the public and private sectors, urban developers, space and spatial designers, architects, planners, community stakeholders, and real estate investors.

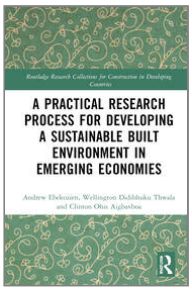
A Practical Research Process for Developing a Sustainable Built Environment in Emerging Economies



Andrew Ebekozien University of Johannesburg, South Africa, Clinton Ohis Aigbavboa University of Johannesburg, South Africa, Wellington Didibhuku Thwala University of Johannesburg, South Africa

Series: Routledge Research Collections for Construction in Developing Countries

This book aims to fill the dearth of practical research guidance and reference material with specific focus on the built environment in developing countries. It has been structured so that each chapter is largely free-standing, allowing the reader (undergraduate, postgraduate, or practitioner) to reference the material with ease. It aims to provide practical guidance on conducting research and on writing a dissertation or report and begins by considering the general research background in a built environment context. A useful reference for higher education students, graduates, postgraduates, and practitioners engaged in all aspects of construction and built environment research.

International Construction Management Research

Igor Martek Deakin University - Australia

Series: Spon Research

This book lays out the evolution of the often contested Construction Management discipline: how is the field defined, what has been discovered to date, who are the researchers involved, where is the research being conducted, what national priorities exist among the many nations now grappling with how to absorb foreign construction expertise, or compete in the global commons. It will assist the fledgling PhD, the budding researcher, as well as the discipline expert, in making better decisions on how to advance the field of international construction management through research that both augments CM education, and directly benefits the industry.

Routledge Handbook of Smart Built Environment

Edited by Weisheng Lu The University of Hong Kong, Chimay Anumba University of Florida, USA

This volume documents the current theories, best practices, and technological advancements in the move towards a Smart Built Environment (SBE). The interrelationships between the various lifecycle stages: design, construction, operation, demolition and the collective benefit of synergy at building level, multi-infrastructure level, and city-level are addressed. Part one covers smart design and construction, part two smart living, and operation and part three the smart city. It develops a holistic approach for research and practice by adopting a multidimensional outlook and is an essential reference work for all built environment stakeholders, from academia through to the professions.

Energy Consumption and Aging Populations

Experiences from Japan and Spain

Edited by Shigeru Matsumoto Aoyama Gakuin University, Japan

This book explores the impact of population aging on energy use patterns in society from both a theoretical and empirical angle, with a specific focus on Japan and Spain. It explores the complex relationship between population aging, time allocation to social practices, and energy resource consumption. Using data from Japan and Spain the book shows that the challenges of an aging society are far more complex and worrying than previously anticipated. Written by researchers in the fields of demography, economics, environmental engineering, geography, physics, and transportation engineering, this book will compel academics and policy makers to reflect on these problems and act.

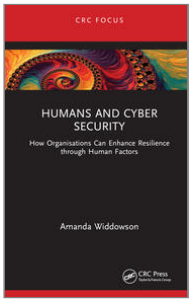
Humans and Cyber Security

How Organisations Can Enhance Resilience through Human Factors



Amanda Widdowson

Cybersecurity incidents are often attributed to "human error". The discipline of human factors recognises the importance of identifying organisational root causes, rather than focusing on individual actions or behaviours. Humans and Cyber Security: How Organisations Can Enhance Resilience through Human Factors proposes that it is easier to change organisational practices than it is individual behaviour. Humans make errors, no matter how well-trained we are. Therefore, it is not enough to simply raise awareness about cybersecurity and it is necessary to enable good cybersecurity behaviours.

Remote Sensing for Geophysicists

Edited by Mukesh Gupta

Geophysical exploration methods are very expensive and invasive methods for surveys. Remote sensing methods are much cheaper and non-invasive for investigating the Earth's surface. This book bridges this gap and aims to integrate exploration geophysics with remote sensing as a cost-effective method and easy to implement for prospecting in different areas. It provides exploration geophysicists with the necessary information to use advanced remote sensing technology in the exploration of oil and gas, minerals, and groundwater. It describes the integration of remote sensing in each of the nine exploration methods based on over 11 case studies from different countries across the globe.

Electronic Waste

Impact on Health, Animals, and the Environment

Edited by Srijan Goswami Delhi Paramedical and Management Institute, India, Moharana Choudhury Voice of Environment (VoE), India, Sangita Agarwal

This book examines the detrimental impact of electronic waste on human health, animal welfare, and environmental ecosystems. The initial chapter discusses the sources, composition, and toxicity of electronic waste.

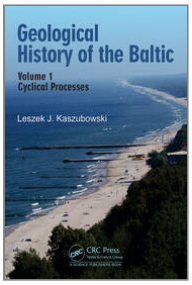
Geological History of the Baltic

Volume 1: Cyclical Processes



Leszek J. Kaszubowski West Pomeranian University of Technology, Poland

The book presents the cyclicity and micro-cyclicity phenomena which occurred during climate changes and during marine transgressions and regressions. As calculated by the author on the basis of geological research, the climatic cycle of the Earth allows a better understanding of climate changes and associated geological processes in the last 20,000 years. In addition, the author discusses the structure of the sub-Quaternary bedrock and analyses complex geological structures of the Baltic Sea Quaternary deposits

Handbook of Innovative Adhesive Technology

Biodegradable and Cost-Effective Binder for Built Environment and Engineering Sciences

Edited by Mehmet Serkan Kirgiz

This book provides an advanced overview of formaldehyde-free binder and materials based on it, including the procedures and prescriptions for their application. It discusses the synthesis of materials, measurement of the physical and mechanical properties as well as the durability, and analysis of the inner structure of such materials. It presents innovative approaches and advanced solutions to manufacture cost-effective as well as ecologically and environmentally friendly formaldehyde-free hydraulic binder and binder-based materials using common construction binders and biodegradable binders.

Smart Technologies for Sustainable Livestock Systems

Edited by Jose Anand A. KCG College of Technology, India, Saravanan Krishnan Anna Uni. Regional Campus, Dejey D

This book discusses the concepts and processes of different livestock systems with the integration of smart technologies. The application of these technologies embedded in livestock systems will enrich the quality of mass production to satisfy the needs of the modern world. The book is intended for engineers, computer scientists, and agricultural analysts working to improve the sustainability of livestock, through smart technologies, such as the AI, Internet of Things and smart sensors.

The Role of Entomopathogenic Fungi in Agriculture

Edited by Sunil Kumar Deshmukh GreenVention Biotech Private Limited, India, Kandikere Sridhar

Series: Progress in Mycological Research

Entomopathogenic fungi are economically important fungi from environmental, agricultural, and human health perspectives. They are an alternative to chemical pesticides. They can also be used as biostimulants and biological control agents for mosquitoes. These fungi are also known to produce a variety of metabolites of industrial significance. They face challenges in the cultivation, fermentation, and purification of products. Their habitats and ecological niches are of special significance for ex situ conservation and the large scale of production of spores.

Zooplankton Challenges in a Changing World

Volume 1: A Worldwide Perspective and Research Approach

Edited by Luis R. Vieira , Fernando Manuel Raposo Morgado University of Aveiro, Dept of Biology

Plankton populations have lived in the oceans for hundreds of millions of years, performing essential functions within marine ecosystems. This book explores emerging and current topics in marine ecosystem plankton research, focusing on pelagic diversity, functioning, and productivity from a multidisciplinary structural and functional view. It also examines the context of environmental stressors and global Climate Change Research and Policy.

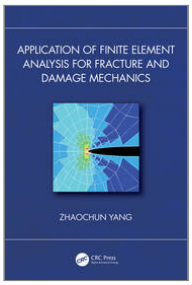
Application of Finite Element Analysis for Fracture and Damage Mechanics



Zhaochun Yang

This book focuses on finite element analysis of various material models and their relevant fracture and damage models using ANSYS. It consists of three parts: Part I introduces the various material models, Part II highlights the finite element modeling of their relevant fracture parameters, and Part III deals with various material damage models. Each part begins with a simple problem with theoretical results compared with finite element results to help readers understand the numerical simulation results. Written for materials and mechanical engineers, this text addresses and provides solutions to the real-life engineering challenge of damage and fracture in materials and structures.

Big Data and Electric Mobility

Edited by Haoran Zhang , Quan Zhou

This book details how to assess electric mobility characteristics within electric vehicles, discussing energy management methods, automated systems, and the enormous potential of data resources mined from software, navigation systems and connectivity. Big Data and Electric Mobility presents methods to mine data specifically for electric vehicles, to comprehend their performance and to present opportunities to develop data-driven technological advancements. Including contributions from experts across the world, the book will look at human mobile behaviour, battery charging and health, powertrain simulation, energy management and multiphysics-constrained optimal charging.

CAR-T Manufacturing

Technologies and Innovations

Edited by Andy Kah Ping Tay

This edited volume describes innovations in all steps of the CAR-T manufacturing chain. These vital descriptions will help practitioners to overcome current challenges during the process and vastly reduce costs and enable timely and accessible administration of CAR-T therapy to patients. This book is an invaluable resource for practitioners in CAR-T manufacturing who aim to improve their quality and efficiency while reducing time and costs. It is also useful for advanced undergraduate and graduate students who wish to gain a strong foundation for continuing research in the field or interacting with practitioners.

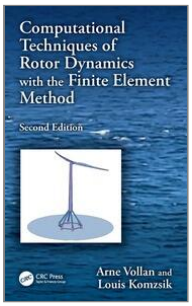
Computational Techniques of Rotor Dynamics with the Finite Element Method



Arne Vollan AeroFEM GmbH, Beckenried, Switzerland, Louis Komzsik Siemens, Cypress, California, USA

This book is focuses on the theoretical foundation of rotor dynamics and the engineering analysis of industrial structures. The theoretical foundation is built on physics, calculus and finite element technology chapters. Computational and numerical techniques provide free vibration and response analyses solutions. The industrial engineering analysis part contains chapters analyzing jet-engine turbine wheels, aircraft propellers and wind turbine blades. The book concludes with a new industrial case study based on a recent modern wind turbine development project.

Distributed Secondary Control of Microgrid Systems

Haoming Liu , Muhammad Yasir Ali Khan , Jingjing Zhai

This book presents a detailed description of the transition from the traditional power system to the Microgrid (MG) system. The authors introduce the fundamental concepts of an MG system along with its different operating modes and classifications. Different benefits, challenges, and technical aspects of an MG are highlighted. They demonstrate different control strategies that are applied at different levels of the control hierarchy, and in particular the distributed secondary control architecture. The book can be useful for senior undergraduate students, postgraduate students, and researchers of electrical power engineering and system control.

Engineering Dimensions, Units, and Conversions

Yongjian Gu United States Merchant Marine Academy, New York

Engineering Dimensions, Units, and Conversions delves into the analysis and application of the dimensions, units, and unit conversions in engineering practical use. It demonstrates the importance of dimensional homogeneity and unit consistency. Offering a comprehensive exploration of both primary and secondary units, the book presents detailed portrayals of various unit systems in both the English system and the SI system. The book is a valuable reference for practicing engineers and researchers engaged in engineering research and development. It will also be of interest to undergraduate and graduate students in all major engineering disciplines.

Ensemble Methods

Foundations and Algorithms

Zhi-Hua Zhou Nanjing University, China

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Machine Learning & Pattern Recognition

Ensemble methods that train multiple learners and then combine them to use, with \textit{Boosting} and \textit{Bagging} as representatives, are well-known machine learning approaches. It has become common sense that an ensemble is usually significantly more accurate than a single learner, and ensemble methods have already achieved great success in various real-world tasks. This edition expands on the previous one with additional content to reflect the significant advances in the field, and is written in a concise but comprehensive style to be approachable to readers new to the subject.

History and Development of Airline Cabin Safety

Fons Schaefers

History and Development of Airline Cabin Safety offers an understanding of how cabin safety evolved over time. It covers six key areas: impact protection, fire protection, egress potential, life support equipment, information and instructions, and cabin professionals. Exploring the organic choreography of accidents, research, technological progress, rulemaking and industry response, the book clarifies that cabin safety enhancements were not well-planned but came incidentally and step by step. The book will interest aviation regulators, aircraft manufacturers and operators, cabin safety professionals (including cabin crew), and accident investigation professionals.

Just Culture and the Criminalisation of Air Accidents

Simon Daniels

This book equips the reader with the tools to understand the meaning of criminalisation in the civil aviation industry. It enables them to resolve problems that arise in risk management within the context of their professional employment. By examining the priorities of pilots, air traffic controllers, and prosecutors, this book analyses the anatomy of criminalisation in civil aviation and works towards constructing solutions that protect the professionals' human rights and the Just Culture concept within the framework of criminal law and practice. The book will benefit airline operators, pilots, air traffic controllers or managers, and aviation business managers.

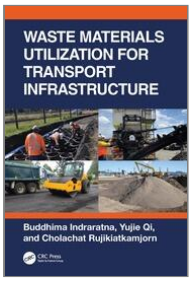
Waste Materials Utilization for Transport Infrastructure



Buddhima Indraratna University of Technology Sydney, Australia, Yujie Qi University of Wollongong, Australia, Cholachat Rujikiatkamjorn

As natural geologic materials become scarce, nations around the world are embracing a circular economy perspective to reduce their carbon footprint. This book provides a unique perspective on this shift by highlighting several methods of waste materials recycling for use in civil infrastructure construction, and transportation geotechnics. This is a valuable resource for academics, practitioners and postgraduate researchers in the fields of transportation geotechnics, ground improvement, and sustainable infrastructure engineering.

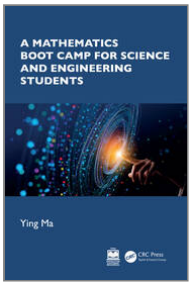
A Mathematics Boot Camp for Science and Engineering Students



Ying Ma

Many students have difficulty applying mathematical techniques to solve problems in science and engineering, even after completing Calculus I and II. Students who are beginning core coursework in their field of study often need additional guidance on practicing, learning, and improving their problem-solving skills for application. This book offers a solution to this issue and is specifically designed to address common errors in mathematical problem-solving for undergraduate science and engineering students. This concise and practical text offers "basic training" in mathematical problem-solving skills for undergraduate students in science and engineering disciplines.

CAD-Based Optical Design with Quadoa

Rafael González-Acuña

Series: Series in Optics and Optoelectronics

In CAD-based optical Optical design with Quadoa, we explore how optical design entails evaluating application requirements and creating optical systems specifically engineered to meet the exact needs of optical instruments. This extensive system may include optics, light sources, sensors, electronic boards, display devices, and other components. Primarily, optical design focuses on determining the shapes, positions, and materials of lenses and mirrors to ensure the optical system adheres to indicated criteria and specifications. To meet specific requirements, lens designers must use optical design software as an aid for their challenging task.

Discrete-Time Signals and Systems

A MATLAB Integrated Approach

Oktay Alkin Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, USA

"Discrete-Time Signals and Systems: A MATLAB Integrated Approach" represents a novel and comprehensive approach to understanding signals and systems theory. Many tools use MATLAB as a computational tool, but Alkin's text employs MATLAB both computationally and pedagogically to provide interactive, visual reinforcement of fundamental concepts important in the study of discrete-time signals and systems. It aims to not only give the student just another toolbox of MATLAB functions, but to use the development of MATLAB code as part of the learning process, or as a litmus test of students' understanding of the key concepts.

Energy Storage

Driving the Renewable Energy Transition

Efstathios E. Michaelides Texas Christian University, USA

Energy Storage provides a thorough and holistic understanding of the operation and state of technology of all the energy storage options. It encompasses all the methods for energy storage, the engineering systems utilized, and the relevant applications from the small device level to the electricity grid level. Using the basis of thermodynamics, the book explains the operation and features of all the available energy storage methods that may be used for the transition to renewable energy. This book is intended for undergraduate and graduate students taking courses in Energy Conversion, Sustainability, Renewables and Energy Storage, and Energy Transition.

A Tribological View

Edited by Jitendra Kumar Katiyar SRM Institute of Science and Technology, India, Anuj Kumar Sharma Centre for Advanced Studies, India, Ranjeet Kumar Sahu NIT Karnataka, India, Zulfiqar A Khan Bournemouth University, UK

Additives improve the surface properties, reducing friction and wear at the interface, and improving service life of interacting engineering systems and components and this book focusses on a comprehensive study of additives in terms of their role in tribological performance of manufacturing processes. It offers the fundamental understanding of tribological performance and the latest developments in reduction of wear and energy consumption through tribological processes in manufacturing integrated with industry relevant results. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in mechanical engineering, tribology, and additive manufacturing.

Advances in Autonomous Navigation through Intelligent Technologies

Edited by Niharika Singh , Thipendra P. Singh , Brian Azzopardi

Series: AAP Advances in Artificial Intelligence and Robotics

Presents today's issues, solutions, and adaptation techniques for creating safe autonomous navigating vehicles with the use of advanced technologies. It discusses autonomous navigation as a major issue in robotics and artificial intelligence. It covers a range of topics that include the architecture of autonomous navigation, algorithms for robot positioning and navigation, methodologies for controlling autonomous systems, self-learning routing protocols for autonomous unmanned aerial networks (A-UAN), and more. It also covers the concepts and algorithms of mobile devices, sensors, and IoT and other related components required for autonomous navigation.

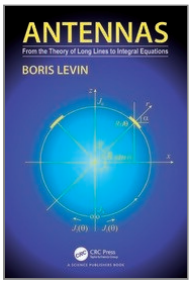
Antennas

From the Theory of Long Lines to Integral Equations



Boris Levin

This book on antenna analysis and synthesis relies heavily on the long line theory. The approach taken in it corresponds to the physical content of antenna problems, simplifies mathematical apparatus, and makes it possible to overcome difficulties. The book presents results of using Hallen's hypothesis about the usefulness of applying capacitive loads. Rigorous methods for analysis of the microstrip and large loop antennas are proposed.

Artificial Intelligence and Optimizing Techniques for Smart Information System Generations

Edited by Aleem Ali Glocal University, Rajdeep Chakraborty Netaji Subhash Engg. College, Nawaf Alharbe

Series: Future Generation Information Systems

This book stands on the shoulders of sustainability engineering insights to identify blind spots in conventional business, engineering, and environmental school curricula that result in substantial missed opportunities. Harvesting these financial gains provides resources to secure environmental and social outcomes. Cutting through the clutter of terminology and approaches, this book uses case studies to outline a proven path to profitably secure "net zero" for facilities and their supply chains. And rather than stopping at the uninspiring target of "doing no harm" it further empowers businesses and other organizations to create additional economic, environmental, and social benefits.

Artificial Intelligence Revolutionizing Cancer Care

Precision Diagnosis and Patient-Centric Healthcare

Edited by Suman Kumar Swarnkar , Abhishek Guru , Gurpreet Singh Chhabra GITAM Deemed to be University, India, Harshitha Raghavan Devarajan

Series: Future Generation Information Systems

This book delves into the transformative power of AI, offering a comprehensive exploration of its role in enhancing cancer diagnosis, treatment, and patient management. From machine learning algorithms that predict cancer progression to sophisticated imaging techniques that improve diagnostic accuracy, this book covers a spectrum of innovations reshaping cancer care. It is an essential resource for medical professionals, researchers, and students seeking to understand the intersection of AI and oncology. It offers a visionary perspective on how cutting-edge technology is poised to enhance patient care and transform the fight against cancer.

Big Data Analytics and Intelligent Applications for Smart and Secure Healthcare Services

Edited by Kamal Upreti IEC, Ghaziabad, Nishant Kumar CHRIST (Deemed to be University), Mohammad Shabbir Alam , Mohammad Shahnawaz Nasir , Debabrata Samanta

Series: Computational and Intelligent Systems

The book provides a comprehensive discussion for utilizing computational models such as artificial neural networks, agent-based models, and decision field theory for reliability engineering. It further presents optimization solutions for smart and secure healthcare services. The text showcases how to predict the failure and repair rates of healthcare subsystems using computational intelligence. It will serve as an ideal text for senior undergraduates, graduate students, and academic researchers in fields including electrical engineering, electronics and communications engineering, computer engineering, and mathematics.

Case Studies on Holistic Medical Interventions

Edited by Sai Kiran Oruganti , Dimitrios Karras , Srinesh Singh Thakur , Kalpana Nagpal , Shashi Kant Gupta

Series: Advancements in Systems Research for Sustainable Development and Interdisciplinary Innovations

The First International Medical Case Reports Conference, 2024(IMED-C) was a pioneering event set to redefine the landscape of medical research and case reporting. This conference was designed to foster collaboration and knowledge exchange among healthcare professionals, researchers, and scholars worldwide. What made this edition exceptional was its virtual online format, breaking down geographical barriers and transforming the way medical knowledge is shared. It was a platform where the latest breakthroughs in medical case reports were unveiled, innovative diagnostic strategies and treatment approaches showcased, and visionary ideas were given a voice.

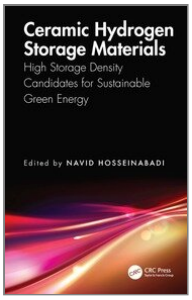
Ceramic Hydrogen Storage Materials

High Storage Density Candidates for Sustainable Green Energy



Navid Hosseinabadi

Ceramic Hydrogen Storage Materials presents the physical, chemical, physico-chemical properties of ceramics as HSMs. It demonstrates how ceramic nanostructures can be specially designed for high surface adsorption of hydrogen and act as hydrogen batteries. Covering hydrogen storage capacity characterization methods, the book showcases how hydrogen has the potential to facilitate decarbonization of the electric power sector by storing energy produced with renewable energy. This book will interest upper-level undergraduate energy and materials engineering students and researchers studying green energy storage materials, hydrogen storage, and alternative transportation fuel.

Creating Smart Healthcare with Blockchain and Advanced Digital Technology

Edited by Rishabha Malviya , Sonali Sundram

Introduces the basic concepts of blockchain in relation to the healthcare sector and offers solutions for enhanced healthcare services, management, and administration. It deals with the use of blockchain in remotely monitoring patients, in creating medical contracts, and in enhancing data transmission security in healthcare. It covers the role of blockchain in patient selection and treatment strategies, in tracking diseases and pandemics, in managing supply chains, and in the health insurance sector. It also presents the challenges that may occur due to digital transformation and looks at how blockchain technology can transform healthcare in the future.

Design and Assessment of Sustainable Products

A Conceptual and Practical Framework

Edited by Magdalena Wojnarowska , Carlo Ingrao

This book questions the current definition of what makes a product sustainable and argues that a holistic approach to sustainable product design is required, one that considers all aspects of a product's life cycle from design to production, to use and then final disposal. It provides a comprehensive understanding of the theoretical and practical framework that underpins a sustainable product. It will be of interest for researchers and students studying sustainable product design, environmental studies, engineering, and sustainable business management, and also a useful resource for representatives of the business community, managers, technicians, decision-makers.

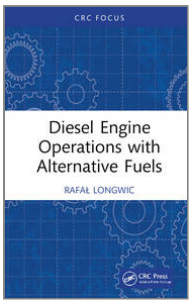
Diesel Engine Operations with Alternative Fuels



Rafał Longwic

This book presents the results of a study that analyzes selected parameters of the combustion process in a diesel engine when fueled with alternative fuels. It discusses the use of a unique test stand consisting of a motor vehicle with a diesel engine adapted to run on different fuels: liquid and gas. Intending to carry out the process of indicating the engine and measuring exhaust gas toxicity under near real conditions, the book demonstrates the implementation of a Worldwide harmonized Light vehicles Test Procedure (WLTP test). This book will interest academic researchers and graduate students studying alternative fuels, vehicle operations, and engine operations.

Handbook of Bolts and Bolted Joints

Edited by Sayed A. Nassar Oakland University, USA, John H. Bickford Independent Consultant, Middletown, Connecticut, USA

This handbook examines key issues affecting bolting in the automotive, pressure vessel, petrochemical, aerospace, energy, and structural steel industries. The editors have successfully created a useful rather than scholarly handbook with chapters written in a straightforward, how-to manner. Theory is discussed only when necessary and the handbook's logical organization and thorough index enhance its usefulness. This new edition includes updated chapters, solved numerical examples, case studies, and a solution manual.This new edition is an essential handbook for professionals, researchers, and students in all fields in which threaded joints are used.

Handbook of Steel for Strategic Applications

Edited by Manish Roy Defence Metallurgical Research Laboratory, India

The present book delineates the recent developments of steel used in strategic applications. It focusses on carbon steel, heat treatable, high strength and low-alloy steel and also discusses ultra-high strength steel and advanced high strength steels. Further, it elaborates the development of austenitic stainless, electrical and tool steel. Each chapter describes the application which illustrates phase transformation and deformation behavior, microstructural features, and advent of new propositions for mitigation and prevention of degradation in steels. This book is aimed at researchers and professionals in steel, metallurgy, and construction engineering.

Vamsi Krishna Kudapa Dept. of Chemical Engineering, UPES, India, Surajit Mondal University of Petroleum and Energy Studies, Dehradun, India

This book provides an overview of the importance of hydrogen separation, its applications, and the role of membranes in this process. It starts with the fundamental principles underlying hydrogen separation and the various types of membranes that are used for hydrogen separation. Further, it explains different fabrication methods including characterization techniques used to evaluate performance and properties. Finally, it covers diverse applications of hydrogen separation membranes backed by case studies and examples. This is an invaluable resource for academics, energy professionals, engineers, researchers, and scientists working on sustainable energy solutions.

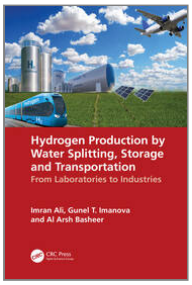
Hydrogen Production by Water Splitting, Storage and Transportation

From Laboratories to Industries



Imran Ali Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi, Gunel T. Imanova Inst Radiation Probs, Sci and Edu Rep of Azerbaijan, Al Arsh Basheer The Univ of California, Davis

This book provides the complete state-of-art of hydrogen production by water splitting including materials used, methods, and instrumentation. It discusses hydrogen production methods with a focus on water splitting (laboratory/industrial scales) followed by its storage, and perspectives. It describes all the methods of hydrogen production i.e. water electrolysis, steam electrolysis, steam reforming, membrane electrolysis, and water splitting. The effects of various radiations (UV, Visible, gamma, X-ray, IR) on hydrogen production are also included. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in materials and chemical engineering, chemistry, and materials science.

Intelligent and Sustainable Engineering Systems for Industry 4.0 and Beyond

Edited by Tulsi Pawan Fowdur University of Mauritius, Mauritius, Dragorad A. Milovanovic University of Belgrade, Serbia., Zoran S. Bojkovic University of Belgrade, Serbia.

The Fourth Industrial Revolution, Industry 4.0, aims to significantly improve the flexibility, versatility, usability and efficiency of future smart factories. However, the concept of Industry 4.0 is not limited to the factory but also encompasses the entire life cycle of the product, from production, supplier to the end user. Industry 4.0 delivers seamless vertical and horizontal integration down the entire value chain and across all layers of the automation pyramid. This is a multidisciplinary book and meant for anyone with a basic engineering background interested in acquiring a solid foundation in the fundamental concepts and the state-of-the-art research trends in Industry 4.0.

Introduction to Software for Chemical Engineers

Edited by Mariano Martín Martín Universidad de Salamanca, Spain

Introduction to Software for Chemical Engineers, Third Edition is a quick guide to using various computer packages for Chemical Engineering applications. It covers a range of software applications, general mathematical packages, process simulators, equation-based modeling languages, optimization software, and specialized software. Different packages are introduced and applied to solve typical problems in fluid mechanics, heat and mass transfer, mass and energy balances, unit operations, reactor engineering, and process design and control. This must-have reference is for chemical engineers looking to grow in their careers through the use of new and improving computer software.

Edited by G. Vennira Selvi PresidencyUniversity, Bengaluru, T. Ganesh Kumar Galgotias Uni., M. Prasad VIT, India, Raju Hajare BMS Institute of Technology and Management, India, Priti Rishi SRMIST, India

This book provides an illustration of the various methods and structures that are utilized in machine learning to make use of data that is generated by IoT devices. Numerous industries utilize machine learning, specifically Machine learning-as-a-Service (MLaaS) to realize IoT to its full potential. On the application of machine learning to smart IoT applications, it becomes easier to observe, methodically analyze, and process a large amount of data to be put to use in various fields.

Key enabling technologies for future wireless, wired, optical and satcom applications

Edited by Björn Debaillie , Philippe Ferrari , Didier Belot , François Brunier , Christophe Gaquiere , Pierre Busson , Urtė Steikūnienė

Series: River Publishers Series in Communications and Networking

This book presents the latest research roadmaps and achievements from the European ecosystem (industry, research, and academia) driving the development of future wireless, wired, optical and satcom applications utilising the mm-wave and sub-THz bands. It covers the entire value chain, including technologies, devices, characterisation, architectures, circuits, 3D heterogeneous integration and packaging. Whether you are a professional in the field or simply interested in the future of communication technologies, this book offers invaluable insights into the technological breakthroughs shaping our digital future.

Layered Nanomaterials for Solution-Processed Optoelectronics

Edited by Manjeet Singh , Ashish Kumar Singh , Balaram Pani

This book will provide different strategies and deliberate engineering concepts for the processing and application of advanced nanomaterials with layered structures for optoelectronic devices to enable device production at industrial scale. It provides exhaustive state-of-the-art knowledge centered on the various 2D nanomaterials and it different types of application in optoelectronic device fabrication. This book is intended for graduate students, researchers and engineers working in the area of advanced nanomaterials, energy conversion andstorage, sensors and different types of optoelectronic devices.

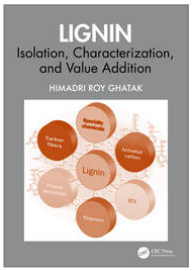
Lignin

Isolation, Characterization, and Value Addition



Himadri Roy Ghatak Sant Longowal Institute of Engineering and Technology, India

This book covers the current know-how on lignin, its sustainable isolation from lignocellulose, characterization of the isolated lignin, and transforming it to add value. Section on lignin isolation dwells upon the well-established commercial delignification methods including recent developments. The Lignin characterization section covers traditional methods based on wet chemistry and advanced characterization techniques. It covers lignin value addition with the possibility of transforming lignin to functional materials backed by figures and graphical presentations. This book is aimed at researchers, professionals and graduate students in chemical engineering and industrial chemistry.

Metallurgical Advances in Coatings and Corrosion

Ojo S.I. Fayomi Bells University of Technology, Nigeria

This book offers a unique narrative and provides insights into the innovative solutions pertaining to corrosion in industrial settings. From safeguarding maritime structures to enhancing the performance of diesel engine bearings in harsh environments, the anthology explores various facets of corrosion mitigation and materials enhancement. Chapters delve into topics such as protective coatings, electrodeposition techniques, alloying effects, and electrochemical dynamics crucial for understanding corrosion mechanisms and resistance. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in materials and metallurgical engineering.

Multi-scale and Multifunctional Coatings and Interfaces for Tribological Contacts

Edited by Ajit Behera National Institute of Technology, Rourkela, Kuldeep K Saxena , Dipen Kumar Rajak Sandip Institute of Technology and Research Center, Shankar Sehgal

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

This book covers development in multi-scale and multifunctional coating including strategies in the preparation, characterization, and properties of both thin and thick multifunctional coating along with their corresponding application. Various technologies for processing, characterization and tribology effect on various coating surfaces/interfaces has been discussed. It explains smart surfaces like piezoelectric materials, shape memory alloy, shape memory ceramic, magnetostrictive materials, electrostrictive materials, dielectric materials, and advanced ceramics. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in metallurgical eng., materials science, and nanosciences.

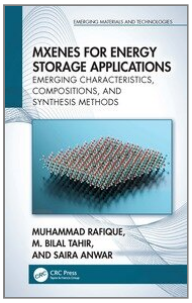
MXenes for Energy Storage Applications

Emerging Characteristics, Compositions, and Synthesis Methods



Muhammad Rafique , M. Bilal Tahir Khwaja Fareed University of Engineering and Information Technology, Pakistan, Saira Anwar

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

This book focuses on two-dimensional (2D) transition metal carbides and nitrides (MXenes) covering structure, precursors, type compositions and unique properties of MXenes. It highlights various promising applications of MXenes-based materials across different energy fields such as catalysis and energy conversion including hydrogen evolution reaction, oxygen evolution reaction and oxygen reduction reaction, supercapacitors electrode materials and so forth. This book provides advanced solutions for all the issues and challenges related to energy storage and conversion. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in materials science, chemical engineering, and nanomaterials.

Nanotechnology in Enhanced Oil Recovery

Edited by Krunal M. Gangawane , Abhishek Kumar

The book presents an in-depth analysis of the various nanotechnologies that have been developed and their potential application in enhanced oil recovery (EOR). It begins with an introduction to EOR and the current state of the oil and gas industry followed by discussion of various nanoparticles used in EOR, including metal and metal oxide nanoparticles, carbon-based nanoparticles, and composite nanoparticles. It also explains the various mechanisms by which nanoparticles can enhance oil recovery, and challenges and limitations of using nanotechnology in EOR. This book aims at graduate students, researchers, and professionals in Petroleum and Chemical Engineering, and Nanotechnology.

Network Security and Data Privacy in 6G Communication

Trends, Challenges, and Applications

Edited by Rajendra Kumar Dept. of SCE, Sharda University , Vishal Jain Sharda University, Greater Noida, India, Danish Ather , Vinay Kukreja , Manoj Singhal

Series: Wireless Communications and Networking Technologies

The text discusses theories including quantum-safe cryptography, zero trust networking, blockchain-based trust management, architectures like heterogeneous networks, software-defined networking, edge computing, and applications such as secure Internet of Things, smart cities, critical infrastructure protection, and secure telemedicine. It further covers deep and light algorithms for detecting fake intrusion in 6G networks, and quantum security in 6G communication systems. It is primarily written for senior undergraduates, graduate students, and academic researchers in the fields including electrical engineering, electronics and communications engineering, and computer science.

Realizing Complex System Design

Edited by Anthony P. Ambler , John W. Sheppard

The creation of complex integrated systems is, in itself, complex. It requires immense planning, a large team of people with diverse backgrounds, based in dispersed geographical locations (and countries) supposedly working to a coordinated schedule and cost. The systems engineering task is not new, but recent scales most definitely are.

Proceedings of the 11th Asia-Pacific International Symposium on Advanced Reliability and Maintenance Modeling (APARM 2024, Nagoya, Japan, 26-30 August 2024)

Edited by Hiroyuki Okamura , Shinji Inoue , Xiao Xiao

Recent Advances in Reliability and Maintenance Modeling contains the papers presented at the 11th Asia-Pacific International Symposium on Advanced Reliability and Maintenance Modeling (APARM 2024, Nagoya, Japan, 26-30 August 2024). The contributions discuss and explore solutions to the various reliability challenges in fields such as power systems, communication networks, transportation, cloud computing, electronic systems, buildings and infrastructure, medical and healthcare, and aviation and railway systems. This book is of interest to academics and professionals interested or involved in the above mentioned areas.

Software Vulnerability Discovery Process: Concepts and Applications

Adarsh Anand , Navneet Bhatt , Omar H Alhazmi

Series: River Publishers Series in Mathematical and Engineering Sciences

This book is an overview of basics and other related fundamentals pertaining to software vulnerability discovery as a process. This collaboration of academia and industry disseminates various practical mathematical modeling-based tools and analytics used for vulnerability discovery. Software Vulnerability Discovery Process: Concepts and Applications is not only for academicians, but also for those who need to understand nature of the vulnerabilities, like a vendor, a client in the domain of complex systems, and for understanding the patch management workflow. Along with these, anyone solving problems within the related application domains will benefit from this compilation.

Solvent Engineering

Yaocihuatl Medina-Gonzalez ENSIACET, Laboratoire de Génie Chimique, Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, Toulouse, France

This book aims to present the concept of Solvent Engineering within a broad scope, ranging from mixtures of solvents to achieve the desired solvation properties, to stimuli-responsive solvents. It covers diverse aspects such as thermodynamics and transfer phenomena associated with solvent engineering, as well as applications found in recent literature, spanning materials across science, biochemistry, chemistry, and separation and purification processes, among others. Solvent engineering is proposed as an innovative strategy to address environmental concerns related to the use of volatile and toxic solvents.

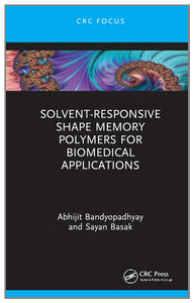
Solvent-Responsive Shape Memory Polymers for Biomedical Applications



Sayan Basak University of Calcutta, India, Abhijit Bandyopadhyay University of Calcutta, India

This book explains the intricacies of one-way shape memory polymers (SMPs), with a particular emphasis on solvent responsive SMPs focussing on fundamental pathways and key principles crucial to the development of these materials. The subsequent section homes in on the specific realm of solvent responsive SMPs, highlighting the potential advantages these polymers offer and critical evaluation of existing shortcomings and research gaps. It further explains how solvent responsive SMPs aim to address challenges and advancements within the biomedical industry. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in polymer engineering, materials science, and bioengineering.

From Fundamentals to Manufacturing, Properties and Applications

Edited by Elango Natarajan UCSI Uni, Malaysia, Kalaimani Markandan Tech & Built Env, Malaysia, Cik Suhana Hassan UCSI Uni, Malaysia, Praveennath G. Koppad Nat Ins Tech, India

The current trend is to develop novel sustainable composite materials to enhance their properties for use in wider range of applications. With an emphasis on SDG 9, SDG 11 and SDG 12, academicians and industrialists have intensified R&D on sustainable composite materials for use in myriad applications such as construction, membrane technology, water purification and energy capture. This book aims to provide comprehensive understanding of fundamentals, properties and applications of sustainable composite materials.

Oil Well Production Mechanism

Training Manual on Well Production Operations for Non-production Engineers (Oil and Gas Production Operations)

Mohammed Ismail Iqbal , Vamsi Krishna Kudapa

This is a comprehensive guide to the intricacies of the oil and gas industry, focusing specifically on production processes. Written by industry experts, the book offers valuable insights into the technical aspects, environmental considerations, and economic factors associated with oil and gas exploration and extraction. Oil Well Production Mechanism serves as a valuable resource for professionals, students, and enthusiasts seeking a comprehensive understanding of the oil and gas industry's production processes. It combines technical knowledge with practical insights, making it an essential read for anyone involved or interested in this dynamic field.

Tissue Engineering and Regenerative Medicine

Advances, and Applications

Edited by Shailesh D. Kamble IGDTU, India, Subhash Singh IGDTU, India, Ashwani Kumar Technical Edu Depart, Kanpur, India, Gaurav Dwivedi MANIT Bhopal, India

Series: Advances in Manufacturing, Design and Computational Intelligence Techniques

The text emphasizes the technological advancements in tissue engineering related to biomaterials and biomanufacturing techniques. It further discusses important topics such as 3D bioprinting, process parameter optimization, CNN for stem cell imaging, diabetes risk prediction & Parkinson's disease detection using machine learning, Telehealth systems, acute pancreatitis, and data-driven monitoring of chronic diseases. It is primarily written for senior undergraduates, graduate students, and academic researchers in the fields of manufacturing engineering, biomedical engineering, materials science, biomaterials, mechanical engineering, and production engineering.

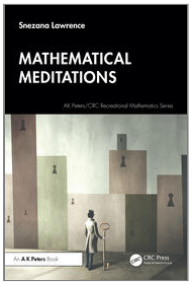
Mathematical Meditations



Snezana Lawrence Middlesex University, UK

Series: AK Peters/CRC Recreational Mathematics Series

The Meditations in this book are the product of thousands of years of mathematical discourse. As you read through the book and work through the various exercises, you will discover new mechanisms that allow you to contemplate and understand some complex mathematical principles. However, the focus will always be wider than a mere dry comprehension of theory, as you will be encouraged to meditate upon the deeper intrinsic beauty of mathematics and what it can reveal to us about the world around us.

The Secret World of Flexagons

Fascinating Folded Paper Puzzles

Scott Sherman , Yossi Elran , Ann Schwartz

Series: AK Peters/CRC Recreational Mathematics Series

The hexaflexagon is a folded paper strip of colored triangles that has long delighted people with how it "magically" changes its appearance when "flexed". This hands-on, comprehensive book goes beyond the hexaflexagon, the standard version of this folded puzzle, exponentially expanding this barely explored field as it brings new options and fresh insights to light. Written in a clear, easy-to-understand, and conversational style; and enhanced with challenges and tips to broaden your flexagon skills and spark creativity, this book is a must for flexagon enthusiasts, teachers, students, libraries, mathematicians and everyone who loves to solve a good puzzle.

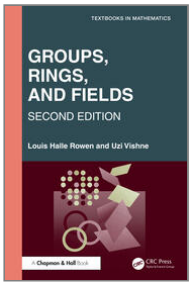
Algebra

Groups, Rings, and Fields



Louis Halle Rowen Bar-Ilan University, Israel, Uzi Vishne

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

Algebra is a subject we become acquainted with during most of our mathematical education, often in connection with the solution of equations. This book deals with developments related to their solutions. The principle at the heart of abstract algebra, a subject that enables one to deduce sweeping conclusions from elementary premises, is that the process of abstraction enables us to solve a variety of such problems with economy of effort. This leads to the glorious world of mathematical discovery.

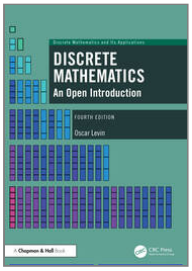
Discrete Mathematics

An Open Introduction



Oscar Levin

Series: Discrete Mathematics and Its Applications

This book aims to provide an introduction to select topics in discrete mathematics at a level appropriate for first or second year undergraduate math and computer science majors, especially those who intend to teach middle and high school mathematics. The book began as a set of notes for the Discrete Mathematics course at the University of Northern Colorado. This course serves both as a survey of the topics in discrete math and as the "bridge" course for math majors.

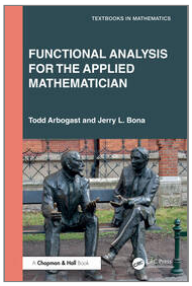
Functional Analysis for the Applied Mathematician



Todd Arbogast , Jerry L. Bona

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

This self-contained volume provides a rigorous introduction to functional analysis and its applications. Students from mathematics, science, engineering, and certain social science and interdisciplinary programs will benefit from the material. It is accessible to graduate and advanced undergraduate students with a solid background in undergraduate mathematics and an appreciation of mathematical rigor. Students are called upon to actively engage with the material, to the point of proving some of the basic results or their straightforward generalizations, both within the text and within the generous set of exercises.

Geocomputation with Python

Michael Dorman , Anita Graser , Jakub Nowosad , Robin Lovelace University of Leeds, UK

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The Python Series

Geocomputation with Python is a comprehensive resource for working with geographic data with the most popular programming language in the world. The book gives an overview of Python's capabilities for spatial data analysis, as well as dozens of worked-through examples covering the entire range of standard GIS operations. Another unique feature is that this book is part of a wider community. Geocomputation with Python is a sister project of Geocomputation with R (Lovelace, Nowosad, and Muenchow 2019), a book on geographic data analysis, visualization, and modeling using the R programming language that has numerous contributors and an active community.

Introduction to Enumerative and Analytic Combinatorics

Miklos Bona University of Florida, Gainesville, USA

Series: Discrete Mathematics and Its Applications

These award-winning textbook targets the gap between introductory texts in discrete mathematics and advanced graduate texts in enumerative combinatorics. The author's goal is to make combinatorics more accessible to encourage student interest and to expand the number of students studying this rapidly expanding field. The book first deals with basic counting principles, compositions and partitions, and generating functions. It then focuses on the structure of permutations, graph enumeration, and extremal combinatorics. Lastly, the text discusses supplemental topics, including error-correcting codes, properties of sequences, and magic squares.

Linear Models with R

Julian J. Faraway University of Bath, UK

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

Linear Models with R, Third Edition explains how to use linear models in physical science, engineering, social science, and business applications. The book incorporates several improvements that reflect how the world of R has expanded since the publication of the second edition. Like its widely praised, best-selling predecessor, this edition combines statistics and R to seamlessly give a coherent exposition of the practice of linear modeling. The text offers up-to-date insight on essential data analysis topics, from estimation, inference, and prediction to missing data, factorial models, and block designs. Numerous examples illustrate how to apply the different methods using R.

Measure Theory and Fine Properties of Functions, Revised Edition

Lawrence Craig Evans University of California, Berkeley, USA

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

This popular textbook provides a detailed examination of the central assertions of measure theory in n-dimensional Euclidean space. The book emphasizes the roles of Hausdorff measure and capacity in characterizing the fine properties of sets and functions. This book gathers together the essentials of real analysis on Rn, with particular emphasis on integration and differentiation. This widely popular treatment has been updated to address all needed corrections and minor edits from the previous Revised Edition. The book includes many interesting topics working mathematical analysts need to know, but ones rarely taught.

Set Theory

An Introduction to Axiomatic Reasoning

Robert André

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

Contemporary students of mathematics differ considerably from those of half a century ago. In spite of this, many textbooks written and now considered to be "classics" decades ago are still prescribed for students today. These texts are not suitable for today's students. This text is meant for and written to today's mathematics students. Set theory is a pure mathematics endeavour in the sense that it seems to have no immediate applications; yet the knowledge and skills developed in such a course can easily branch out to various fields of both pure mathematics and applied mathematics countered when using formal logic.

Applied Statistics with Python

Leon Kaganovskiy Touro University, USA

Applied Statistics with Python concentrates on applied and computational aspects of statistics, focussing on conceptual understanding and Python-based calculations. This book compiles multiple aspects of applied statistics, teaching the reader useful skills in statistics and computational science. This book does not require previous experience with statistics and Python, explaining the basic concepts before developing them into more advanced methods from scratch. It is intended for undergraduate students in business, economics, biology, social sciences, and natural science, whilst also being useful as a supplementary text for more advanced students.

Completely Regular Codes in Distance Regular Graphs

Edited by Minjia Shi Anhui University, China, Patrick Solé Institut de Mathématiques de Luminy

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Monographs and Research Notes in Mathematics

The concept of completely regular code was introduced by Delsarte in his celebrated 1973 thesis which created the field of Algebraic Combinatorics. This notion was extended by several authors from classical codes over finite fields to codes in distance-regular graphs. In recent years many examples were constructed in other distance regular graphs including q-analogues of the previous, and the Doob graph. This book provides, for the first time, a definitive source for the main theoretical notions underpinning this fascinating area of study. It also supplies several useful surveys of constructions using Coding Theory, Design Theory and Finite Geometry.

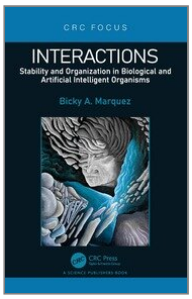
Stability and Organization in Biological and Artificial Intelligent Organisms



Bicky A. Marquez Queen's University,Canada

This book explores the critical need for a holistic understanding of order and intelligence amid advances in AI and hyperconnectivity. From clusters of fundamental particles to the emergence of macroscopic multicellular organisms, the complex organization of interacting components has achieved a degree of stability necessary for life to thrive. The book examines the human brain's cognitive capabilities, adaptability, and the importance of communication in fostering the emergence of superorganisms. The book also emphasizes AI's role in enhancing cognition and addressing global challenges.

Lozi, Hénon and Belykh Chaotic Attractors

New Results Fifty Years On

Edited by René Lozi , Lyudmila Efremova , Mohammed-Salah Abdelouahab , Safwan El Assad

Over the past fifty years, the development of chaotic dynamical systems theory and its subsequent wide applicability in science and technology has been an extremely important achievement of modern mathematics. Chaotic attractors are not a fleeting curiosity, and their continued study is important for the progress of mathematics. This book collects several of the new relevant results on the most important of them: the Lozi, Hénon and Belykh attractors. The chapters in this book were originally published in Journal of Difference Equations and Applications.

Multivariate Statistics

Classical Foundations and ModernMachine Learning

Hemant Ishwaran University of Miami, U.S.A

This book explores multivariate statistics from both traditional and modern perspectives. The first section covers core topics like multivariate normality, MANOVA, discrimination, PCA, and canonical correlation analysis. The second section includes modern concepts such as gradient boosting, random forests, variable importance, and causal inference. Another central theme is the concept of training error. While introductory courses often emphasize that reducing training error can lead to overfitting, training error is also known as empirical risk. Empirical risk is vital in statistical learning theory and is key to determining whether learning is possible.

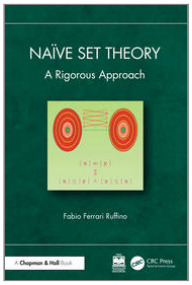
Naïve Set Theory

A Rigorous Approach



Fabio Ferrari Ruffino

This book aims to provide a complete and unitary presentation of naive set theory as the foundation of the whole mathematics. Suitable for undergraduate students, this book focuses on the main foundational issues, trying to clarify explicitly what is (necessarily) assumed as intuitively known and what is rigorously founded on more elementary concepts. It analyses in detail the nature of natural numbers, both as meta-theoretical objects and through their set-theoretical model.

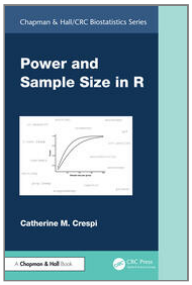
Power and Sample Size in R



Catherine M. Crespi

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Biostatistics Series

Power and Sample Size in R guides the reader through power and sample size calculations for a wide variety of study outcomes and designs and illustrates their implementation in R software. It is designed to be used as a learning tool for students as well as a resource for experienced statisticians and investigators. The book demonstrates calculations in R, and only a basic proficiency in R is assumed. By emphasizing statistical thinking about the factors that influence power for different study designs and outcomes as well as providing R code, this book equips the reader with the knowledge and tools to perform their own calculations with confidence.

Recent Improvements in the Theory of Chaotic Attractors

Edited by René Lozi , Lyudmila Efremova , Michal Pluháček

The theory of chaotic attractors has experienced exceptional development over the last fifty years since the revelation of chaos in mathematics (invented by James Yorke) and symbolized by the "butterfly effect". This book presents some exceptional developments in chaotic attractor theory encompassing several new directions of research such as three-dimensional axiom A-diffeomorphisms, Shilnikov attractors, dendrites and finite graphs. The theory of chaotic attractor is also used as a core for evolutionary algorithms and metaheuristic optimizers in this volume. The chapters in this book were originally published in Journal of Difference Equations and Applications.

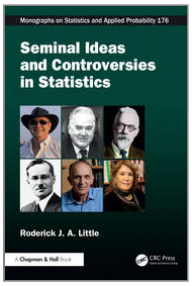
Seminal Ideas and Controversies in Statistics



Roderick J. A. Little

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Monographs on Statistics and Applied Probability

Statistics has developed as a field through seminal ideas and fascinating controversies. This book concerns a wide-ranging set of 13 important statistical topics, grouped into three general areas: Philosophical Approaches to Statistical Inference; Important Statistical Methodology for Applications; and Topics on Statistical Design.

Troubling Notions of Global Citizenship and Diversity in Mathematics Education

Edited by Anna Chronaki University of Thessaly, Greece, Ayşe Yolcu Hacettepe University, Turkey

Series: Routledge Research in Education

This edited volume explores how mathematics education is re/configured in relation to its past, present, and future when the rhetoric of critical global citizenship education is being applied to diverse local settings. First of its kind, to trouble what is at stake when mathematics education is framed within the discourses of citizenship globally (through challenging and problematizing what is understood as 'normal'), this book will be of relevance to scholars, academics, and researchers in the field of sociology of education, anthropology of education, philosophy of education, mathematics education, citizenship studies and international and comparative education.

AI for Creatives

Unlocking Expressive Digital Potential

Vivian Ching , Dinesh Mothi

In a world where the creative sector commands USD$4.3 trillion and makes up 6.1% of the global economy, AI offers unprecedented innovation opportunities. This guide demystifies AI for creatives, blending historical insights with cutting-edge trends and dives into ethical discussions, collaborative achievements, and real-world success stories. Tailored for non-technical readers, it is an indispensable primer for artists, designers, filmmakers, musicians, content creators and educators aiming to unlock their creative potential with AI. It enables readers to discover practical strategies to integrate AI into your creative endeavours and reshape the future of the creative economy.

AI for Understanding Human Conversations

Yair Neuman

Series: AI for Everything

AI and specifically LLMs revolutionize our lives with new technologies appearing at an unprecedented rate. These technologies can potentially change how we understand human conversations, from the dialogues of married couples to diplomatic conversations. The current book explains how to use LLMs to analyze human conversations and how better LLMs can be developed by incorporating a deep theoretical understanding. Drawing on case studies from Pulp Fiction to diplomatic meetings, the book provides detailed, approachable, and theoretically grounded explanations of how LLMs can help us understand conversations.

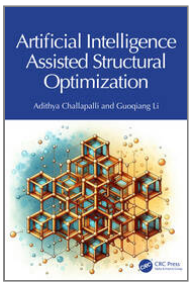
Artificial Intelligence Assisted Structural Optimization



Adithya Challapalli , Guoqiang Li

Discussing both machine learning and design analysis in detail, this book enables readers to optimize their designs using a data driven approach. It discusses the basics of the materials utilized, the manufacturing approach employed and also discusses the use of forward design and inverse design frameworks to discover novel lattice unit cells and thin-walled cellular unit cells with enhanced properties. Inverse design methodologies using generative adversarial networks are proposed to further investigate and improve these structures. Detailed discussions on fingerprinting approaches, machine learning models, structure screening techniques and typical Python codes are also provided.

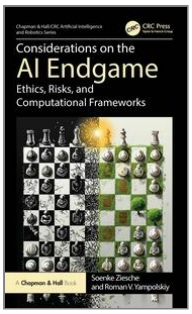
Considerations on the AI Endgame

Ethics, Risks, and Computational Frameworks



Soenke Ziesche , Roman V. Yampolskiy University of Louisville, Kentucky, USA

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Artificial Intelligence and Robotics Series

Written by leading scholars Soenke Ziesche and Roman V. Yampolskiy, this book offers an interdisciplinary exploration into the rapidly evolving field of artificial intelligence and its societal implications. Topics explored include the question of AI identity, the concept of 'ikigai' in AI ethics, and a call to merge Western and non-Western approaches towards universal AI ethics. By offering a balanced mix of theoretical and applied insights, the book serves as an invaluable resource for researchers, policymakers, and anyone interested in the future of AI and the extent of its impact on society.

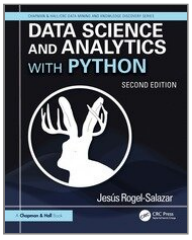
Data Science and Analytics with Python



Jesus Rogel-Salazar Imperial College London, UK

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Data Mining and Knowledge Discovery Series

Since the first edition, we have witnessed an unprecedented explosion in the interest and development within the fields of Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning. This surge has led to the widespread adoption of the book, not just among business practitioners, but also by universities as a key textbook. Designed as a practical companion for data analysts and budding data scientists, this book assumes a working knowledge of programming and statistical modelling but aims to guide readers deeper into the wonders of data analytics and machine learning. Whether revisiting fundamental concepts or diving into new, advanced topics, this book offers something valuable for every reader.

Engineering Drawing and Product Manufacturing Information With 3D Models

ISO Geometrical Product Specification Standards

Frank Mill

This book provides a comprehensive guide to the use of 3D Computer-aided Design (CAD) models for communicating design intent, mainly through the adoption of International Standards Organisation (ISO) methods for describing shape and for depicting dimensions and tolerances on drawing sheets or in other Product Manufacturing Information (PMI) based media. It describes the fundamentals of computer numerical control (CNC) and the generation of 3D printing and additive manufacturing models as well as basic fabrication specifications. Common file types used to store, share and transfer media are described in some depth.

Sean Lyons R.I.S.C International, Ireland, Sara I. James , James Bone Global Compliance Associates, LLC, Lincoln, Rhode Island, USA, Jessie H Lee Better Future Strategies, LLC, Jim Seaman , Michael Gioia

Series: Security, Audit and Leadership Series

In this book, we change the perspective on an organization's operational resilience capabilities so that it changes from being a reactive (tick box) approach to being proactive. The perspectives of every chapter in this book are with a focus on risk profiles and how your business can reduce these profiles using effective mitigation measures. Rather than looking at this from an Operational Resilience compliance capabilities aspect, we have written these to be agnostic of any specific Operational Resilience Framework with the idea of looking at Operational Resilience through a Risk Management lens instead.

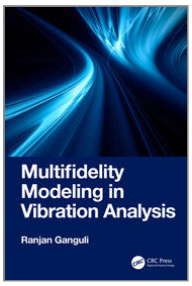
Multifidelity Modeling in Vibration Analysis



Ranjan Ganguli Digital Predilection LLC

The aim of this book is to introduce the concept of multifidelity modeling through structural dynamics case studies. The book focuses on vibration analysis problems to illustrate how multifidelity methods work. Two key methods — the response surface methods and the co-kriging method — are discussed to present the reader with state of the art practices that are easy to implement. Also, two different physics-based mathematical models of a system, the Euler-Bernoulli beam model and the Timoshenko beam model, are used at two disparate levels of discretization.

Organized Skepticism in the Age of Misinformation

Surviving the Kingdom of Gossip

Brett Bourbon , Renita Murimi

This book challenges the idea that truthfulness is a necessary, or even a relevant condition, of information. Instead, the book develops a conceptual framework in which information is understood as gossip, which fits within a more general account of information and knowledge as constrained but contingent social practices. Using this framework, the book provides a nuanced understanding of the "grammar" of gossip that permeates both online and real-world environments, and sheds light on the often overused and confused terms of our time: information, misinformation, and knowledge.

Autodesk Inventor Certified User Exam Study Guide

Inventor 2025 Edition

L. Scott Hansen , Thom Tremblay

The Autodesk Inventor Certified User Exam Study Guide is designed for the Inventor user who is already familiar with Inventor. It provides a series of hands on exercises and tutorials in the use of Inventor to help you prepare for the Autodesk Inventor Certified User Exam. The text covers all the exam objectives for the Inventor Certified User Exam. Each topic is covered in detail, and then is followed up with tutorials and quizzes to reinforce the material covered. This book will help you pass the Autodesk Inventor Certified User exam on the first try, so you can avoid repeatedly taking the exam and obtain your certification sooner.

Autodesk Revit 2025 Architecture Certified Professional Exam Study Guide

Text and Practice Exam

Elise Moss

Autodesk Revit 2025 Architecture Certified Professional Exam Study Guide is geared toward users who have been using Autodesk Revit for at least six months and are ready to pursue their official Autodesk Revit certification. This fast-paced book will get you ready for the certification exam quickly with fun and easy to follow instructions, covering everything from masses to views to documentation. The author brings years of professional experience with Revit as well as wisdom gleaned from preparing her students for the Autodesk Certified Professional exam to provide you with step-by-step instruction and valuable information you'll want to know before taking the exam.

Graph Learning Techniques

Baoling Shan , Xin Yuan , Wei Ni Principal Scientist at CSIRO, Australia, Ren Ping Liu , Eryk Dutkiewicz

This comprehensive guide addresses key challenges at the intersection of data science, graph learning, and privacy preservation. It includes practical insights into brain network analysis and the dynamics of COVID-19 spread, a solid understanding of graphs by exploring different graph representations and the latest advancements in graph learning techniques. The book also offers insights into emerging trends, potential challenges, and the evolving landscape of privacy-preserving graph learning. A valuable reference for advance undergraduate and postgraduate students in Network Analysis, Privacy and Security in Data Analytics, Graph Theory, and Applications in Healthcare.

The Object-Oriented Approach to Problem Solving and Machine Learning with Python

Sujith Samuel Mathew University of Adelaide, Australia, Mohammad Amin Kuhail , Maha Hadid , Shahbano Farooq

This book is a comprehensive guide suitable for beginners and experienced developers alike. It teaches readers how to master object-oriented programming (OOP) with Python and use it in real-world applications. Each chapter is designed for hands-on learning. You'll solidify your understanding with case studies, exercises, and projects that apply your newfound knowledge to real-world scenarios. The progressive structure ensures mastery, with each chapter building on the previous one, reinforced by exercises and projects. This book is your one-stop shop for mastering OOP with Python and venturing into the exciting world of machine learning and data science.

Edited by Vinod M. Kapse , Lalit Garg , Pavan Kumar Shukla , Varadraj Gurupur , Amit Krishna Dwivedi

This is the proceedings of the 1st International Conference (Hybrid) on Applications of AI in 5G and IoT (ICAAI5GI2024). It brings together ground-breaking research and practical insights into integrating Artificial Intelligence within 5G and the Internet of Things (IoT). This compilation highlights the latest advancements and innovative solutions emerging at the intersection of AI, 5G, and IoT technologies. It also delves into a wide array of topics, including the role of AI in enhancing 5G network efficiency, the development of intelligent IoT devices, and the creation of smart environments powered by these cutting-edge technologies.

Applied Swarm Intelligence

Edited by Yaniv Altshuler Research Affiliate, MIT Media Lab, MA

Provides a comprehensive analysis of the tools and techniques used for the development of efficient and robust decentralized infrastructures for various real-life scenarios, ranging from financial investment through blockchain protocols, shared transportation systems and communication networks, to bioinformatics and military applications. Theoretical and practical limitations of such systems are discussed, as well as the trade-offs between the various economic and operational parameters of the systems. The book is intended for researchers and engineers in the fields of swarm systems, economics, agriculture, nutrition and operation research.

Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning for Business

Edited by Namita Mishra , A. V. Senthil Kumar

Series: AAP Advances in Artificial Intelligence and Robotics

Demonstrates how artificial intelligence and machine learning can be used in every aspect of business and as a foundation for complex decision-making. It overviews artificial intelligence (AI) techniques that are used in business. Covering such topics as use of AI in employee training, in stock market prediction, in traffic detection, in opinion mining, in fraud detection, for retail purchase predictions, in online customer support interactions, and more. The use of AI is explored in fields such as garbage systems, agriculture, precious metals, banking, HR hiring, and so on. It provides an overview of frequently used methods, procedures, and models to control business activity.

Blockchain-Based Digital Twins

Research Trends and Challenges

Edited by A. Prasanth , Vandana Sharma , Rajesh Kumar Dhanaraj , Pethuru Raj

Blockchain-based digital twins are poised to influence and be influenced by artificial intelligence, machine learning, and the Internet of Things in integrating and implementing smart contracts across industries. This is detailed in this book, as it introduces and analyzes the challenges and opportunities, details modeling and simulation, and explores the various applications of blockchain-based digital twins. It discusses the security benefits of blockchain and analyses its use for the future of the Internet. The use of a blockchain-based digital twin model in various industries is also explored, including in the healthcare industry, agriculture industry, and mechanics.

Computational Intelligence in Industry 4.0 and 5.0 Applications

Trends, Challenges and Applications

Edited by Joseph Bamidele Awotunde, Kamalakanta Muduli The Papua New Guinea University of Technology, Biswajit Brahma

Series: Advances in Computational Collective Intelligence

The book examines leading Industry 4.0 and 5.0 and Industrial Internet of Things technologies enhanced with computational intelligence (CI) techniques. The book covers modelling, controls, estimations, applications, and systems. It considers this multi-disciplinary domain that is based on data collected from smart sensors. This data is then processed using enhanced CI-based techniques for improved smart automation.

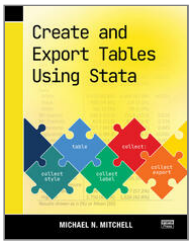
Create and Export Tables Using Stata



Michael N. Mitchell

In Create and Export Tables Using Stata, Michael Mitchell teaches you how to expertly craft custom, publication-quality tables of summary statistics, regression results, and more. Mitchell examined hundreds of published journal articles from many disciplines, searching for commonly used table layouts. This book breaks down how to create the most popularly used tables by guiding you through examples using Stata's table, dtable, and etable commands, as well as the collect suite of commands. This book is integral to anyone reporting data characteristics or analysis. You will learn how to create tables with the layout, formatting, and style you need.

CyberMedics

Navigating AI and Security in the Medical Field

Edited by Varun Sapra University of Petroleum and Energy Studies, Rohit Tanwar , Luxmi Sapra Dev Bhoomi Uttarakhand University

"CyberMedics: Navigating AI and Security in the Medical Field" is a comprehensive exploration of the transformative role of artificial intelligence (AI) in healthcare and the critical importance of securing medical data in an increasingly digital world. As AI technologies revolutionize diagnostics, treatment planning, and patient care, they also introduce new challenges related to data privacy, ethical considerations, and cybersecurity. This book offers a balanced perspective, providing healthcare professionals, technologists, and policymakers with the tools they need to understand and navigate the intersection of AI and security.

Edited by Mohd. Shahid Husain University of Technology & Applied Sciences, Oman, Mohammad Faisal Integral University, India, Halima Sadia Integral University, India, Tasneem Ahmad Integral University, India, Saurabh Shukla , Adil Kaleem

This book provides an insightful examination of cybersecurity threats and their implications across various sectors, including healthcare, agriculture, and government. It covers fundamental concepts in cyber security, including cybercrime laws, cyberbullying, and emerging technologies. It discusses challenges in detecting and preventing cyber threats and analyzes trends in cyber warfare and resilience. This book serves as a resource for understanding the complex relationship between technology and society, equipping readers with the knowledge needed to navigate the evolving cyber landscape. Digital Farming and Smart Agriculture for Sustainable Future

Edited by Febin Daya J. L VIT, India, S. Graceline Jasmine VIT, India, Utku Kose

This book presents the impact and scope of Internet of Things (IoT), Artificial Intelligence (AI), and Machine Learning (ML) in the growth of intelligent digital farming and smart agriculture. It offers insights into advanced analytics, prognostics capabilities, and the development of economic models for creating innovative software applications and tools necessary for developing IoT devices for precision agriculture. It explores the latest advancements in these fields and their applications, gaining valuable insights into the future of digital farming.

Edge AI for Industry 5.0 and Healthcare 5.0 Applications

Edited by Pethuru Raj IBM Pvt.Ltd., India, B. Sundaravadivazhagan , A. Saleem Raja , Mohammed M. Alani

Edge AI is the seamless and spontaneous combination of Edge or fog computing and AI. It enables acquiring real-time insights, which, in turn, leads to the realization of real-time, people-centric, event-driven, business-critical, process-aware, and knowledge-filled software services and applications. This book looks at the unique contributions of edge AI for envisaging and implementing sophisticated business solutions for Industry 5.0 and Healthcare 5.0. It explains how Industry 5.0 fine tunes the human-machine connection and leverages tiny, high-performance AI-centric processors in IoT edge devices for real-time decision-making and application processing.

Embedded Artificial Intelligence

Real-Life Applications and Case Studies

Edited by Arpita Nath Boruah Assam Down Town University, India, Mrinal Goswami Assam Down Town University, India, Manoj Kumar University of Wollongong in Dubai, UAE, Octavio Loyola-González Stratesys, Madrid

This book explores the role of Embedded AI in revolutionising industries such as healthcare, transportation, manufacturing, retail. It begins by introducing the fundamentals of AI and embedded systems and specific challenges and opportunities. A key focus of the book is developing efficient and effective algorithms and models for embedded AI systems, as embedded systems have limited processing power, memory, and storage. It discusses a variety of techniques for optimising algorithms and models for embedded systems, including hardware acceleration, model compression, and quantisation.

Entrepreneurs, engineers, practitioners have already moved towards AI based solutions to reshape businesses. AI/ML will create possibilities, opportunities for improving human life style. AI enabled startups will work on cost effective solutions to solve difficult problems. Recently, many research companies are interested in providing solutions and investing a lot in AI based startups. AI computing tech companies will help to model human speech recognition systems. Also, AI based startups will focus on perception and reasoning of autonomous robotic systems. AI/ML based tech startups will introduce smart online education system for future pandemics.

Generative AI in Higher Education:Guiding Principles for Teaching and Learning

Volume 1

Emmanuel K Nartey

Series: CRC Press Reference Books in Computer Science

Higher education institutions have varied responses to Generative AI (GenAI): some see it as a threat to academic integrity and ban its use, while others view it as an innovative tool and provide guidelines for ethical use. This book emphasizes that the issue isn't with GenAI itself, like ChatGPT, but with how we choose to interact with it.

Intelligent Designs, Innovations and Sustainability in Agriculture 4.0

Edited by Anand Deshpande Angadi Ins Of Tech and Management, India, Vania V. Estrela , Asiya Khan University of Plymouth, UK

Agriculture, a cornerstone of human survival, is undergoing a transformative era where intelligence, innovation, and sustainability converge. "Intelligent Designs, Innovations and Sustainability in Agriculture 4.0" guides readers through this revolution, exploring technologies like AI and IoT that are reshaping farming. This book highlights precision farming, lean production, autonomous machinery, and data-driven decisions, emphasizing sustainable practices to ensure a resilient agricultural future. It serves as both inspiration and a reference for advancing global agricultural practices responsibly.

Varin Khera , Anand R. Prasad , Suksit Kwanoran

Series: River Publishers Series in Computing and Information Science and Technology

This practical book introduces open-source intelligence (OSINT) and explores how it can be executed in different intelligence scenarios. It covers varying supporting topics, such as online tracking techniques, privacy best practices for OSINT researchers, and practical examples of OSINT investigations. The book also delves into the integration of artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML) in OSINT, social media intelligence methodologies, and the unique characteristics of the surface web, deep web, and dark web. This book provides a comprehensive understanding of CTI, TI, and OSINT.

Edited by Muhammad Arif Superior University Sargodha, Pakistan, M. Arfan Jaffar , Oana Geman , Waseem Abbasi

This book "Securing the Digital Realm: Advances in Hardware and Software Security, Communication, and Forensics" is a comprehensive guide that explores the intricate world of digital security and forensics. As our lives become increasingly digital, understanding how to protect our digital assets, communication systems, and investigate cybercrimes is more crucial than ever. This book begins by laying a strong foundation in the fundamental concepts of hardware and software security. It explains the design of modern computer systems and networks to defend against a myriad of threats, from malware to data breaches, in clear and accessible language.

Gauge Theories in Particle Physics 40th Anniversary Edition

A Practical Introduction, Two Volume Set

Ian J.R. Aitchison Prof. Em., Univ. of Oxford, Anthony J.G. Hey Microsoft Research

The fifth edition of this well-established, highly regarded two-volume set continues to provide a fundamental introduction to advanced particle physics while incorporating substantial new experimental results, especially in the areas of the Higgs and top quark sectors, as well as CP violation and neutrino oscillations. It offers an accessible and practical introduction to the three gauge theories comprising the Standard Model of particle physics: quantum electrodynamics (QED), quantum chromodynamics (QCD), and the Glashow-Salam-Weinberg (GSW) electroweak theory.

Calculating Theoretical Yield Is Not Impossible!

A Primer for An Organic Chemistry Lab Course

Michael Leonard

Calculating theoretical and percent yield is a fundamental skill for the laboratory. This book primarily targets Organic Chemistry Laboratory courses at the high school or college and university level, as a supplemental resource to help students master this skill. It begins with simple examples from everyday life, demonstrates the importance of balancing the equation, addresses the role of the mole in these computations, discusses different types of liquids, considers the role of significant figures, and culminates with the planning of syntheses. There are suggestions for further reading as well as practice problems and questions to ensure mastery.

Introduction to Fluorescence

David M. Jameson University of Hawaii, Manoa, USA

This Second Edition of Introduction to Fluorescence helps readers acquire a sound understanding of basic fluorescence theory and practice. It describes general principles in a straightforward way and uses examples from a variety of disciplines to demonstrate them. Since the 1st Edition, significant advances in the field have appeared. For examples phasors, both lifetime and spectral phasors, have become very popular and so a chapter dedicated to this topic has been added. Furthermore, significant advances have been made in fluorescence microscopy methods, including super-resolution and single molecule techniques.

Confinement and Stability of Fast Ions in Fusion Plasmas

Boris Breizman , Sergei Sharapov Culham Centre for Fusion Energy

This book explores the outstanding and rather novel diagnostics of the fast ions and fast ion-driven instabilities coupled to modern theory of near-critical nonlinear wave-particle systems with the particle source and wave damping. Such a theory was first developed by H.L. Berk and B.N. Breizman in mid-90th, and it delivered an extra-ordinary number of results successfully explaining the experimentally observed energetic ion-driven instabilities.

Statistical Mechanics of Liquids and Solutions

Intermolecular Forces, Structure and Surface Interactions

Roland Kjellander University of Gothenburg, Sweden

The statistical mechanical theory of liquids and solutions is a fundamental area of physical sciences with important implications in other fields of science and industrial applications. Statistical Mechanics of Liquids and Solutions: Intermolecular Forces, Structure and Surface Interactions is the second in a series of two on this subject. While the first volume introduced equilibrium statistical mechanics in general and statistical mechanics of liquids and solutions at an introductory level, the second volume presents an advanced treatment of the subject and penetrates much deeper into liquid state theory.

2ND EDITION

Hands-On Accelerator Physics Using MATLAB®

Volker Ziemann Department of Physics and Astronomy, Uppsala University, Sweden

Hands-On Accelerator Physics Using MATLAB(R), second edition provides a broad introduction into the physics and the technology of particle accelerators from synchrotron light sources to high-energy colliders. It covers the design of the beam optics, of magnets, and of radio-frequency systems, followed by a discussion of beam instrumentation and correction algorithms. Later chapters deal with the interaction of beams with targets, the emission of synchrotron radiation, and with intensity limitations.

Metalloids in Biology

From Function to Toxicity

Edited by Geetika Sirhindi Punjabi University, Punjab, Renu Bhardwaj Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, Nitika Kapoor Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, Chandra Shekhar Seth Department of Botany, University of Delhi

Metalloids belong to class of elements that exhibit physiochemical characteristics intermediating between those of metals and non-metals. Some are quasi-essential for the overall growth and development of plants. Metalloid toxicity hinges on their cellular concentrations where low levels aid plant development whereas high levels cause harmful effects. This book is aimed to give updated and scientific insights to readers and researchers associated with plant stress physiology, agricultural sciences and environmentalist working for well-being of environment.

Micro Plastics

Detection, Extraction, Remediation Techniques, and Future Perspective

Edited by Nirmala Kumari Jangid , Rekha Sharma

This book is focused majorly on the Detection, Extraction, Remediation Techniques, and future perspective of microplastics. This book will include characteristics, fluctuations, distribution, and water remediation of microplastics using various functionalized nanomaterials. This book also will cover the impact of microplastics, discharged from domestic and various industrial fields such as pharmaceutical, clothing, polymer industries, etc. for the reader-free quantification of poisonous substances in water. This book is aimed at researchers, graduate students, and faculty members who can apply their knowledge in the emerging field of research on microplastic remediation.

Piezoelectric Materials

Design and Applications

Edited by N. B. Singh , Dev Kumar Mahato

This book comprises various chapters on these smart materials, which encourage more materials research efforts to develop better ferroelectric and electrostrictive ceramics for future applications. Several methods have been discussed in the chapters based on their cost and applications. Each chapter is unique as it is written by eminent authors from various renowned institutions who share their research experiences on electrically active smart and very smart materials. The book presents bulk, thick-film, and thin-film forms of these materials that have now proved their worth and together they will constitute a strong portfolio for future applications in electronics.

Proofs and Logical Arguments Supporting the Foundational Laws of Physics

A Handy Guide for Students and Scientists

Jules J. Berman

For scientists and curious laypersons, Proofs and Logical Arguments Supporting the Foundational Laws of Physics: A Handy Guide for Students and Scientists examines the most important laws and relationships taught in science courses, attaching a short and accessible proof or logical argument for each assertion. Every person should seek to understand why we think we know what we know about the natural world. Among the essays included in this book, we will find proofs Pauli's exclusion principle, Heisenberg's uncertainty principle, the principles of special relativity, and many of the laws of physics and chemistry that no scientist should accept on blind faith alone.

Specialty Polymers and Materials

Advances, Technologies, Applications, and Future Trends

Edited by Shrikaant Kulkarni , Vasi Shaikh

Focuses on specialty polymers and polymer-based materials in novel application areas, discussing the synthesis and preparation methods, the derived materials from them, and how they are applied. It covers applications that vary from biomedical and defense to high-performance coatings and smart materials for catalytic, agricultural, environmental, and packaging applications. Chapters explore the characteristic and distinct properties of specialty polymers, such as biodegradability, high performance, smart behaviors, and other distinct characteristics.

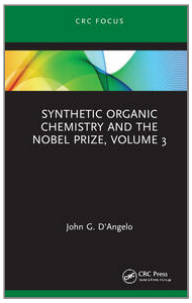
Synthetic Organic Chemistry and the Nobel Prize, Volume 3



John G. D'Angelo Alfred University, NY, USA

Series: Synthetic Organic Chemistry and the Nobel Prize

The Nobel Prize is the highest award in science, as is the case with nonscience fields too, and it is, therefore, arguably the most internationally recognized award in the world. This unique set of volumes focuses on summarizing the Nobel Prize within organic chemistry, as well as the specializations within this specialty. Any reader researching the history of the field of organic chemistry will be interested in this work. Furthermore, it serves as an outstanding resource for providing a better understanding of the circumstances that led to these amazing discoveries and what has happened as a result, in the years since.

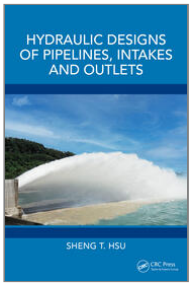
Hydraulic Designs of Pipelines, Intakes and Outlets



Sheng T. Hsu GT International, Taipei, Taiwan

This book addresses hydraulic design considerations of integrated pipeline systems, including intakes, conduits, and outlets. Based on the author's experience of over 50 years working with hydraulic designs of structures as well as designs, analyses and trouble-shootings of pipeline systems, the book discusses actual design practice and presents a range of real-world examples of projects conducted and participated in by the author. This applied approach gives the book a uniquely practical focus. The book serves as a reference for practitioners as well as a textbook for postgraduate students.

Cyanotoxins in Drinking Water

Fundamental Concepts and Solutions

Harold Walker Worcester Polytechnic Inst., Massachusetts

This textbook provides students with a more holistic, systems-based perspective of Harmful Algal Blooms, or HABs and HAB toxins, while explaining details on occurrence, health effects, and treatment processes for the removal of HAB cells and toxins from drinking water. It includes significant content on basic concepts, and system design, and includes problems and questions to inspire further studying, making it suitable for senior undergraduate and graduate-level students. This book is also a useful resource for professionals and academics in technical activities related to HABs and HAB toxins in drinking water.

German Diplomatic Documents 1871-1914

Series: German Diplomatic Documents 1871–1914

Originally published in English between 1928 and 1931, selected and translated from Die Große Politik der Europäischen Mächte, these 4 volumes represent a collection of invaluable primary resource material. They are mainly made up of exchanges between the German Foreign Office and its representatives in London, some correspondence between Berlin and continental embassies and important minutes by the German Chancellor or Foreign Minister. The volumes present an extensive picture of the alternating phases of relations between Great Britain, Germany and subsequently, the United States leading up to the eve of the First World War.

German Diplomatic Documents 1871–1914 Volume 2

From Bismarck's Fall to 1898

Series: German Diplomatic Documents 1871–1914

Originally published in English in 1929, this second volume of the German Diplomatic Documents covers a much shorter period: 1890–1898. During this period there was no war or revolution in Europe, but the sphere of German and indeed European politics became enlarged. The documents in this volume deal with questions raised by diverse regions such as Armenia, Morocco, Tunisia, Tripoli, South Africa, Crete and Cuba. The papers here reissued show that colonial expansion is a recognised part of the official German programme. As with the first volume, the policy exhibited in the despatches of this volume are governed almost exclusively by the ultimate idea of war.

German Diplomatic Documents 1871-1914 Volume 4

The Descent to the Abyss, 1911–1914

Series: German Diplomatic Documents 1871–1914

Originally published in English in 1931, this fourth and final volume of documents brings the reader to the brink of World War I. The despatches beg the question of whether war was inevitable and if so, could it have been postponed? The question of whether the British Empire needed to have taken part in it, and how far its action or inaction was responsible for the outbreak is also discussed.

German Diplomatic Documents 1871–1914 Volume 1

Bismarck's Relations with England 1871–1890

Series: German Diplomatic Documents 1871–1914

Originally published in English in 1928, this volume deals mainly with Anglo-German relations at the end of the 19th Century. Chancellor Otto von Bismarck's voice can be heard clearly in the documents which give an extensive picture of the alternating phases of relations between Great Britain and Germany, as influenced by their respective obligations and interests in the international issues which united or divided the Powers over a period of twenty years. The strongest impression which these documents leave is the revelation of how greatly the mentality of the western world changed since they were drafted, and especially during the decade which came after World War I.

German Diplomatic Documents Volume 3

The Growing Antagonism 1898–1910

Series: German Diplomatic Documents 1871–1914

Originally published in 1930, this volume opens with some selections dealing with the situation created by the victory of Japan over China in 1904 which opened a new epoch in the history of the Far East. It includes two momentous conflicts profoundly affecting international relations – the Boer War and the Russo-Japanese War. It also touches at many points on the long discussions aiming at a naval agreement, with or without some form of general understanding, between England and Germany. Through the Alliance with Japan and the Entente with France it leads up to the separation of Europe into two rival camps.

Charity and Philanthropy in Nineteenth-Century Britain

Volume II: Charity, Philanthropy, Celebrity

Edited by Kevin A. Morrison

At the beginning of the nineteenth century, many individuals were motivated by their religious creeds to give. As religious faith began to wane in the period, others were inspired by humanitarian commitments or moral (but not necessarily scriptural) zeal. The contents of this volume introduce readers to the many individuals who distinguished themselves through charity and philanthropy, including Angela Burdett-Coutts, Florence Nightingale, Grace Kimmins, the Earl of Shaftesbury, and the American George Peabody, and the causes they took up.

Charity and Philanthropy in Nineteenth-Century Britain

Volume V: The Business of Charity and Philanthropy

Edited by Kevin A. Morrison

From newsletters and magazines to bazaars and dinners to festivals and concerts, charities and philanthropic enterprises competed among one another to obtain financial support for their causes, justify their expenditures and, to borrow a phrase from a recent historical study, "monetize compassion." Richly illustrated, this volume documents the business of charity and philanthropy.

Charity and Philanthropy in Nineteenth-Century Britain

Volume III: Networks and Collaborations

Edited by Kevin A. Morrison

Through contributions of money and time, many individuals made a variety of philanthropic enterprises possible. Just as often, however, benevolent efforts emerged from and were carried out through networks of individuals and public cooperative groups. The materials in this volume introduce readers to various forms and practices of collaborative philanthropy and royal patronage, such as the Governesses' Benevolent Institution, the Evangelical Party of the Church of England's Society for the Relief of Distressed Widows, and the British Red Cross.

Charity and Philanthropy in Nineteenth-Century Britain

Volume IV: Philanthropy, Charity and Social Activism

Edited by Kevin A. Morrison

From the abolition of the slave trade to the building of the People's Palace for East London, social causes are inextricably intertwined with the charitable giving and philanthropic impulses on which they rely for tangible support. This volume focuses on individuals who, unlike those documented in volume two, did not have significant financial resources but were nevertheless leading figures in the philanthropic landscape, such as Walter Besant or Edmund Hay Currie. It also focuses on efforts that were not strictly about providing services or support but in advocating for social change as well.

Charity and Philanthropy in Nineteenth-Century Britain

Volume I: The Spur of Religion

Edited by Kevin A. Morrison

The volume explores the role religion had in charity and philanthropy in the long nineteenth-century. Although charity is, arguably, rooted in the Old Testament and the New Testament and philanthropy, as a concept, emerges in the seventeenth century, it was only in the nineteenth century that these concepts assumed their modern form. The materials in this volume provide essential context for understanding the role of religion in nineteenth-century charity and philanthropy. Topics be covered include the Church of England, Protestant dissenting religions, the Christian Social Union, the Catholic Church in Ireland, Judaism, and the Salvation Army.

Charity and Philanthropy in Nineteenth-Century Britain

Edited by Kevin A. Morrison

The nineteenth century in Britain was a markedly philanthropic and charitable age. Building on trends that began in the 1700s, philanthropic activity and charitable practices became widespread, often institutionally organized and directed, and targeted an astonishingly diverse array of fields: education and child welfare, the arts, family planning, animal welfare, medical reform, and the eradication of social ills. The sources in this five-volume edition provide a foundational basis for studying the many reasons for and the varied practices of giving in the period. The primary sources are accompanied by editorial commentary, and will be of great interest to students of history.

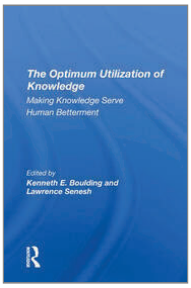
The Optimum Utilization of Knowledge

Making Knowledge Serve Human Betterment



Kenneth E. Boulding , Lawrence Senesh

In these proceedings from that conference, which was sponsored by the Academy of Independent Scholars, the contributors examine several of the key aspects of learning: the importance of knowledge in decision making, the role of our educational system and other systems in producing and disseminating knowledge, and the relationship between knowledge and the physiological, psychological, and cultural bases of the learning process. The misuse of knowledge–or the overuse of ignorance–the authors note, could threaten the existence of the entire planet, if the kind of thinking exemplified by the nuclear arms race prevails.

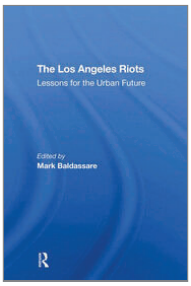
The Los Angeles Riots

Lessons for the Urban Future



Mark Baldassare , David O Sears , Edgar W Butler , Peter A Morrison

The Los Angeles Riots is crucial to everyone's understanding of the contemporary urban environment and will be ideal as a supplementary text in urban politics, sociology, and urban planning and policy courses as well as in current affairs. This book addresses three questions: What were the causes of the Los Angeles riots, what actually took place, and what are the consequences and meaning of the riots for U.S. cities? While sounding an urgent warning signal to the governments and citizens of other U.S. cities, The Los Angeles Riots presents solutions and policy recommendations for avoiding a repeat of such unrest in the future.

The Reception of Unconventional Science

Seymore H Mauskopf

The book consists of four studies, each of which considers the response of a scientific community to an unconventional theory or claim: the acausal physics of Heisenberg; Wegener's geological theory of continental drift; acupuncture; and the statistical argument for extra-sensory perception. As they reveal a wide range of reactions to orthodoxy, the studies themselves exemplify the range of approaches the historian may use in examining scientific unconventionality.

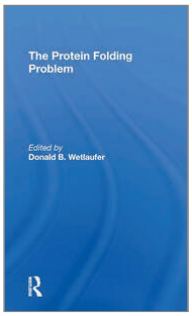
The Protein Folding Problem



Donald B Wetlaufer

This book introduces the central problem of folding mechanisms as well as a number of other closely related issues. This book is neither a textbook nor a treatise. Rather, it is an attempt by several investigators to convey the excitement and challenges of those aspects of the folding problem in which they are actively engaged. The contributors give brief introductions to protein folding from the perspectives of molecular architecture, stability and dynamics, phage genetics, DNA exons, general physiology, and natural selection. They point out emerging new directions, including the suggestion of a class of diseases that result from protein folding defects.

Research and Development

Linkages to Production in Developing Countries

Mary Pat Williams Silveira

In Research and Development, an international group of experts explore ways to organize research and development programs; create flexible and appropriate linkages to promote supplier-user interactions at national, regional, and international levels; and design policy instruments to encourage and finance research and development. The contributors also outline suggestions for pioneer projects in such areas as a technological services delivery system for small industries; a local technology system for rural areas; a fund-syndicating technology delivery system for later enterprises and investors; linkages to improved productivity in under-utilized capacity; and identifications of needs in the I

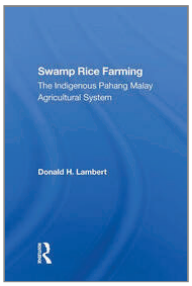
Swamp Rice Farming

The Indigenous Pahang Malay Agricultural System



Donald H Lambert

Dr. Lambert discusses the historical development of Pahang Malay rice farming, its dependence on indigenous knowledge of local ecology, and its adaptability to adverse conditions. Dr. Lambert suggests that well-adapted indigenous farming systems found throughout the world should be studied and the adoption of these successful agricultural practices should be encouraged by governments and development planners.

Sweet Potato Pest Management

A Global Perspective

Richard K. Jansson , Kandukuri V Raman

Sweet Potato Pest Management draws on the work of researchers from around the world to summarize the research on pest management in this important crop. The contributors address issues of crop protection and biology of pests and their associated disease disorders. They also present data on the biological control of pests and on biotechnological and conventional methods for developing cultivars with resistance to pests. Additionally, the researchers look beyond the field to address regulatory issues and the socioeconomic problems of pest management.

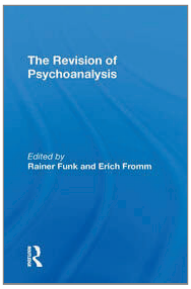
The Revision of Psychoanalysis



Erich Fromm , Rainer Funk

Of special interest to today's readers are his continuing efforts to understand the meaning of sexuality, his critique of Herbert Marcuse's vision of psychoanalysis, and the implications of a Freudian analytical social psychology for the reform of social arrangements. This book is essential reading for psychologists and for social and political theorists in many disciplines. For psychoanalysts, it provides Fromm's most provocative and unique recommendations for the revision of psychoanalysis.

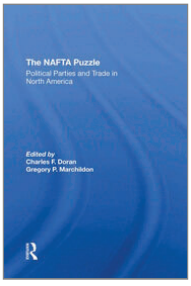
The Nafta Puzzle

Political Parties and Trade in North America



Charles Doran , Gregory P Marchildon

The NAFTA Puzzle: Political Parties and Trade in North America explores the political background of trade liberalization culminating in the signing of the historic North American agreement more than a decade after the North America Accord idea had been outright rejected. Experts from Canada, the U.S., and Mexico examine how each political party grappled with trade as the constituent base, interest group pressures, and ideologies shifted over broad time periods. The book treats each of Canada's long-standing national parties, the Republican and Democratic parties in the U.S., and Mexico's PRI historically, concluding that North America's principal parties have flip-flopped on the trade

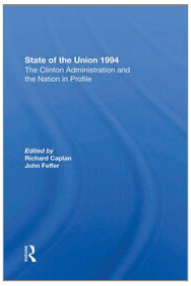
State of the Union 1994

The Clinton Administration and the Nation in Profile



Richard Caplan , John Feffer , Gerald Horne , John Cavanagh

State of the Union 1994 assesses the Clinton administration's first year in office and lays out progressive policy alternatives in the realms of foreign and domestic affairs. It charts the course of the nation in fourteen critical areas, giving readers a solid basis of information on which to compare trends historically and internationally and to make reasoned judgments about where the United States is and ought to be headed. It offers specific recommendations—such as a "global New Deal" for trade, a single-payer health-care system, a national jobs program, and a streamlined, reorganized national security establishment—in creating a valuable resource of policy ideas that work.

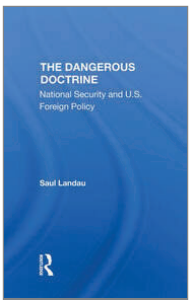
The Dangerous Doctrine

National Security and U.S. Foreign Policy



Saul Landau

In The Dangerous Doctrine, Saul Landau reviews the history of national security doctrine from Truman's declaration that national security was at stake in Iran, Greece, and Turkey and the way that actions taken in the name of national security are placed above and beyond the reach of the law and the Constitution. Congress's role in previous national security scandals, argues Landau, has been not only to investigate covert action and violations of congressional mandates but to help restore credibility and integrity within the system. The unfortunate result, however, has been to recreate conditions that allow the next administration to abuse the law by appealing to the vagaries of national secu

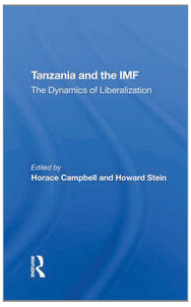
Tanzania and the IMF

The Dynamics of Liberalization



Horace Campbell , Howard Stein , Joel Samoff

Tanzania and the IMF focuses on the recent debate on the consequences of structural adjustment for developing economies, which took place between the World Bank and the United Nation's Economic Commission on Africa and underlines the need for further investigation of this important economic strategy. This volume places the apparent Tanzanian policy reversal regarding the International Monetary Fund (IMF) in the context of economic, political, and social changes in the 1980s, focusing on the nature and impact of the liberalization process.

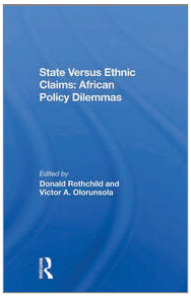
State Versus Ethnic Claims

African Policy Dilemmas



Donald Rothchild , Victor A Olorunsola

To analyze the issues of how today's independent African states can preserve and enhance their coherence while accommodating the legitimate demands advanced by ethnic groups for autonomy and particular interests, leading African and non-African experts met in Bellagio, Italy, to address four central issues: the state and its implications for ethnicity; the claims of ethnic groups; policies to manage competing claims; and the dialectic of autonomy and control. This book, in which policy analysis is applied to the search for creative state-ethnic relationships, represents the results of their efforts.

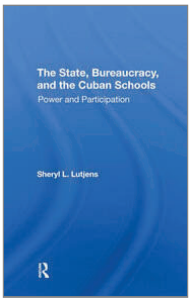
The State, Bureaucracy, and the Cuban Schools

Power and Participation



Sheryl L. Lutjens

Examining the effect of the reform process of 'rectificacion' that began in Cuba in the mid-1980s, Sheryl Lutjens uses the Cuban experience as a context for investigating the problem of democracy and democratic change. She turns to an examination of Cuban schools to explore questions of bureaucracy and participation. Exploring development and reform in the Cuban state, Lutjens looks at the effects of strong centralization in education policy.

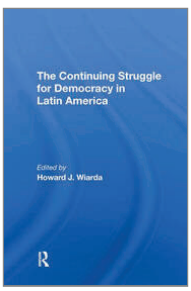
The Continuing Struggle for Democracy in Latin America



Howard J. Wiarda

The authors of The Continuing Struggle for Democracy in Latin America examine the significance, for both Latin America and the United States, of the dominance of authoritarian political systems in most Latin American countries; explore the implications of assessing Latin America through our own liberal-democratic and often ethnocentric biases; and discuss the possibility of deriving a theory of democracy from the Latin American experience, rather than our own.

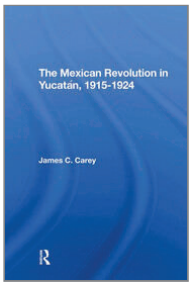
The Mexican Revolution in Yucatan, 1915-1924



James C Carey

Focusing on the lives of two revolutionary leaders, Salvador Alvarado and Felipe Carrillo Puerto, this book shows how the Mexican Revolution affected the State of Yucatan, a region that had boasted of its independence from Mexico City and where a dominant social minority had long refused meaningful change for the indigenous population. Dr. Carey considers the complexities of achieving reform in a rigidly divided society, discussing the conflict between the need of Yucatecan society to take account of its ancient Mayan cultural background while adapting to the land and labor reforms of modern Mexico.

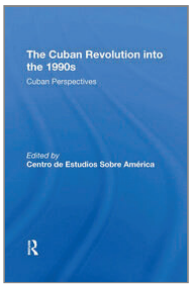
The Cuban Revolution into the 1990s

Cuban Perspectives



Centro De Estudios Sobre America, Ronald H Chilcote

Taking into account the difficulties Cuba faces as it confronts changing international trade relations and diminishing aid following the breakup of the Soviet Union, contributors examine specific economic problems, such as the large external debt and shortages of material goods. They also address various aspects of domestic life in Cuba, including the youth movement and gender roles. Finally, they offer retrospective views of the Cuban Revolution–its origins; its accomplishments in the areas of health care, education, and social services; and obstacles to the realization of its ideological objectives.

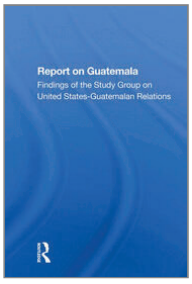
Report on Guatemala

Findings of the Study Group on United States-Guatemalan Relations



The Johns Hopkins Foreign Policy Institute, School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS)

Report on Guatemala focuses on the nature of Guatemalan politics, possibilities for democratization, and the options available to U.S. policymakers during the regime of General Rios Montt. Also included in this book are two papers, commissioned by the Central American and Caribbean Program (CACP), that present starkly contrasting views of Guatemala. The Rios Montt regime fell from power after the initial writing of this report, but their findings nevertheless provide an excellent overview of the debate on U.S. policy toward Guatemala.

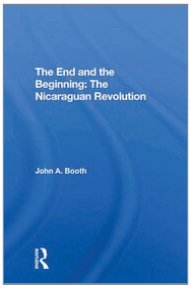
The End and the Beginning: The Nicaraguan Revolution



John A. Booth

What has happened in Nicaragua since the 1979 insurrection that toppled the government of Anastasio Somoza Debayle? And what does this mean for Nicaragua's future? Dr. Booth traces the origins of the revolution, in part, to a 150-year-old conflict and to the economic and political forces that led to U.S. intervention in Nicaragua and the establishment of the Somoza dynasty. This book also provides an up-to-date view of the radical social and political changes that are occurring in these first few years of government by the Sandinistas.

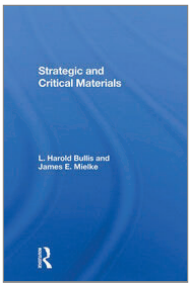
Strategic and Critical Materials



L. Harold Bullis , James E Mielke

Strategic and Critical Materials discusses concerns regarding the U.S. dependency on imports for supplies of strategic minerals and materials, the possibility that U.S. economic, political, and strategic decisions might be unduly influenced by arbitrary actions of foreign suppliers and the concern that the Soviet Union may be pursuing a so-called "resources war" with the West. The authors of this book examine these controversies and stress the need to consider basic resources, foreign policy, industry, and technical issues in an interrelated fashion.

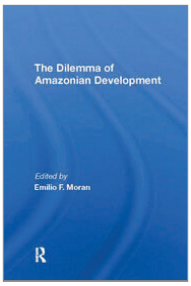
The Dilemma of Amazonian Development



Emilio F Moran

This book is the first to apply the combined approaches of anthropology, geography, ecology, economics, and sociology to the analysis of the Amazon River region. The authors use the methodologies of environmental and social impact assessment in a variety of Amazonian settings to derive realistic evaluations of the dangers and potential of current development approaches. A central theme of the book is the need for the government planners and local populations making these necessarily complex decisions to consider the realities of the local environment.

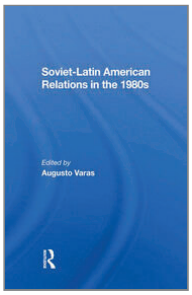
Soviet-Latin American Relations in the 1980s



Augusto Varas

Soviet–Latin American Relations in the 1980s explores case studies of the economic, political, and military influence of the Soviets in Latin America, analyzing the dynamics of relations with the Soviet Union from a historical perspective. They focus on bilateral relations between the USSR and Mexico, Costa Rica, Brazil, Peru, Nicaragua, Argentina, and Cuba, examining how regional actors perceive Soviet interests and vice versa. In addition, they provide a broad overview of Soviet-Latin American relations, particularly in light of U.S. regional hegemony.

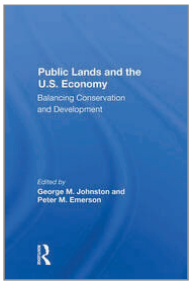
Public Lands and the U.S. Economy

Balancing Conservation and Development



George M Johnston , Peter Emerson

The contributors consider public and private interests in the federal lands in light of political realities and uncertainties, giving particular: attention to efficiency-versus-equity issues, privatization fair market value, and the income-producing potential of publicly owned assets. Major sections of the book focus on timber, nonfuel minerals, rangelands, and energy resources. Based on a recent conference sponsored by The Wilderness Society, the book reflects the views of conservationists, scholars, industry representatives, and state and federal officials.

State and Society in Brazil

Continuity and Change

John D Wirth , Edson De Oliveria Nunes , Thomas Bogenschild

State and Society in Brazil explores the transition of the Brazilian government from military rule transition to democracy, creating for the first time a pluralistic and democratic political culture. Contributors to this book focus on two themes: how the enormous state apparatus inherited from the military is responding to new demands for growth and equity, for more private initiative, and for increased accountability; and how both political elites and the traditionally weak and fragmented political parties are coping with pressures for change across the social spectrum.

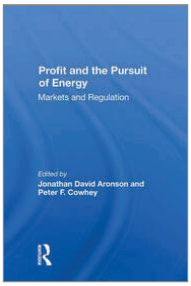
Profit and the Pursuit of Energy

Markets and Regulation



Jonathan D Aronson , Peter F Cowhey

The authors provide answers to such questions as: How do oil company operations influence government policies? What kinds of energy projects can be financed by existing financial institutions? How does the availability of insurance affect innovations in energy? They also examine how major investors and governments make decisions about the management of the volatile mix of political, economic, and technological risks that buffet the energy sector; critique the conventional wisdom concerning the major fuels; and project the likely evolution of the world energy market over the next decade.

Puerto Rico's Revolt for Independence

El Grito de Lares

Olga Jimenez de Wagenheim

Looking at the imperial policies and conditions within Puerto Rico that led to the 1868 rebellion known as "El Grito de Lares," Dr. Jiménez de Wagenheim compares the colonization of Puerto Rico with that of Spanish America and explores the reasons why the island's independence movement began decades after Spain's other colonies in the region had revolted. Through the extensive use of previously unresearched archive material, she examines the economic and social backgrounds of the leaders of the rebel movement, corrects many errors of earlier accounts of the revolt, and offers new interpretations of its impact on Spanish-Puerto Rican relations.

The United States and Japan in the Western Pacific

Micronesia and Papua New Guinea

Grant K Goodman , Felix Moos

The authors point out that the interests of the United States and Japan in this region too often–and unnecessarily–operate in isolation from one another and in direct conflict. Cooperative U.S.-Japanese efforts are vital in this area; whatever plans are made for the region, they must be island-specific, culturally congruent, politically sensitive, and economically viable.

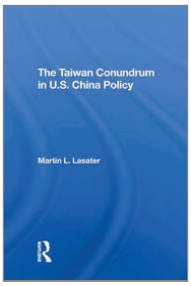
Taiwan Conundrum



Martin L Lasater

The Taiwan Conundrum explains the complex policy interaction between Washington, Taipei, and Beijing in the context of their respective values, politics, strategies, and interests. In an era of growing nationalism on mainland China and Taiwan, tremendous strain is being placed on relations across the Taiwan Strait. As demonstrated by the 1996 Taiwan missile crisis, conflict between the two Chinese sides is a growing possibility, with important implications for U.S. security interests in peace and stability in the Western Pacific.

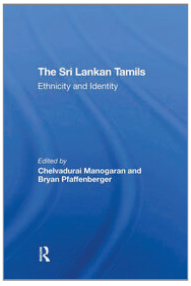
The Sri Lankan Tamils

Ethnicity and Identity



Chelvadurai Manogaran , Bryan Pfaffenberger

Exploring the roots of conflict in Sri Lanka, the book traces the distinct historical origins of the Sri Lankan Tamils, discusses the impact of colonial rule, assesses the country's caste system, and questions the governments land settlement policy as well as other discriminatory practices. This exploration enables the contributors to explain the rise of militant movements in Sri Lanka particularly the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, who demand the right of self-determination. Finally, the volume addresses the explosive issues of separatism and secession.

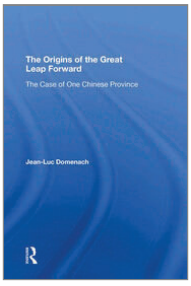
The Origins of the Great Leap Forward

The Case of One Chinese Province



Jean-luc Domenach , Mark Selden

The author's documentary sources enable him to illuminate the development of provincial and local political life as well as to gauge popular reactions to the dictates of the center. Domenach presents a lucid analysis of the setbacks in agriculture in 1956 and 1957, the rise of economic corruption, and the launch of the CCP rectification campaign in 1957. Despite the enormous impact of the Great Leap on Chinese politics and economics in the decades that followed, it has proven immensely difficult to research. Domenach's contribution thus stands out as an original and important work on the period.

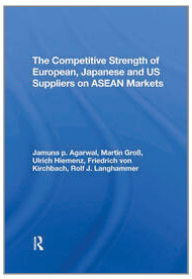
The Competitive Strength of European, Japanese, and U.S. Suppliers on ASEAN Markets



Ulrich Hiemenz , Rolf J Langhammer , Jamuna P Agarwal , Martin Gross

This study evaluates micro- and macroeconomic determinants for the export performance of European suppliers to the markets of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). By comparing marketing strategies and the respective economic environment of suppliers from EIH"ope , Japan , and the U S - the major exporters to the ASEAN region - an attempt is made to trace the causes for the declining export market shares of European companies and to suggest appropriate policy measures to reverse this trend , which has continued since the early 1970s .

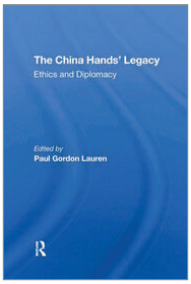
The China Hands' Legacy

Ethics and Diplomacy



Paul Gordon Lauren

This volume combines the perspectives of former "China Hands" - American Foreign Service officers and journalists in China during and after World War II accused of disloyalty, and in some cases treason, for reporting on events as they saw them - looking back upon their personal experiences with those of noted scholars; together the two groups explore the China Hands' legacy and its meaning for the future. The China Hands' Legacy explores the ethical dilemma of what a public official's responsibility is when one believes one's government's policy is wrong.

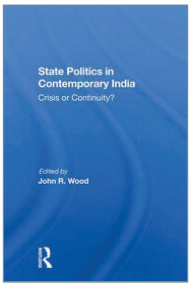
State Politics in Contemporary India

Crisis or Continuity?



John R Wood

The articles in State Politics in Contemporary India examine the politics of seven of India's major states during the Indira Gandhi years to assess the effects of central government's intervention and the intensification of political conflict. Among the themes covered are the political results of social and economic change, the rise of previously disadvantaged groups in politics, struggles over agrarian benefits, electoral strategies and performance, the fragmentation and "deinstitutionalization" of political parties, and the changing nature of the relations between the states and the central government.

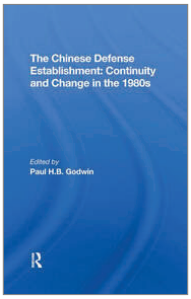
The Chinese Defense Establishment

Continuity and Change in the 1980s



Paul H B Godwin

The Chinese Defense Establishment: Continuity and Change in the 1980s looks at China's defense establishment in light of the critical decisions were made that led to Beijing's alignment with the West against the USSR and to revitalize its armed forces and evaluates the problems the Chinese must overcome to achieve their objectives. The authors go beyond narrow issues of weapons and military equipment to explore the interrelationships of defense, national security, professional military education, command and management, army and society, the militia, and revised conceptualizations of people's war, thus bringing the future of China's defense establishment into broader perspective.

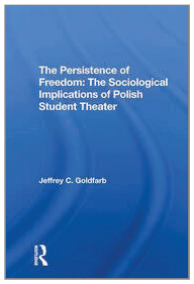
The Persistence of Freedom

The Sociological Implications of Polish Student Theater



Jeffrey C Goldfarb

In The Persistence of Freedom: The Sociological Implications of Polish Student Theater, Dr. Goldfarb points to inadequacies in prevailing models of Communist societies and asserts that cultural freedom may be realized not only as dissent in opposition to a prevailing order, but also in the existence of institutional vehicles for independent expression. This sociological study of cultural freedom examines the relatively unhindered Polish theater movement in terms of the organizational context and cultural traditions that support it.

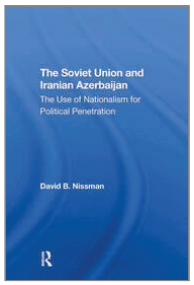
The Soviet Union and Iranian Azerbaijan

The Use of Nationalism for Political Penetration



David B Nissman

Analyzing the development of the institutions aimed at directing and coordinating a national liberation movement among the Azeris of Iran in Soviet Azerbaijan and their impact in Iran, Dr. Nissman utilizes rich and unexplored academic, mass media, and propaganda sources in the USSR and Iran. He also surveys the development of the political relationship between the Azeris of the Soviet Union and those of Iran--who originated the spread of Bolshevism among Iranian Azeri oil workers in 1905--and examines the legacy of this movement today.

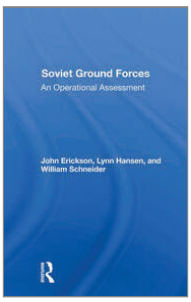
Soviet Ground Forces

An Operational Assessment



John Erickson , Lynn Hansen , William P Schneider

Soviet Ground Forces provides essential background information for an assessment of Soviet political behavior and explores the heart of Soviet conventional military strength, capabilities, and intentions. Beginning with a full-scale historical analysis of the evolution of the forces from World War II to the present, this study is the first comprehensive treatment of this central element in the modern Soviet military structure. This aspect of the modern Soviet military structure is examined in detail by three uniquely qualified specialists.

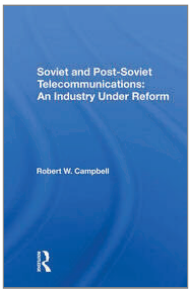
Soviet and Post-Soviet Telecommunications

An Industry Under Reform



Robert W Campbell

Robert Campbell briefly outlines the origins and development of Soviet telecommunications, assessing its organizational and technological capacities as well as its potential for further growth. He provides an informative analysis of the progress made so far toward the goals of a healthy telecommunications system and a modern, market-oriented economy and shows that the system inherited from the Soviet period falls far short of what is needed and describes the many changes in policies and institutional structures that will have to be made if the system is to be modernized and expanded.

Soviet-East European Survey, 1986-1987

Selected Research and Analysis from Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty

Vojtech Mastny

RFE/RL has built up over the years a large research capacity, where Western-trained specialists describe and analyze developments in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union by drawing on radio and television monitoring, Soviet and East European print media, and Western scholarly publications. They also make use of RFE/RL's archives and library, which includes many samizdat publications as well as more than 120,000 volumes in 30 languages. Several years ago, RFE/RL decided to make these reports more accessible to the general reader by having a distinguished scholar select the most important ones to be included in an annual volume.

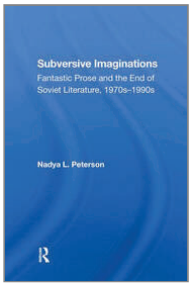
Subversive Imaginations

Fantastic Prose and the End of Soviet Literature, 1970s-1990s



Nadya Peterson

Viewing the mutual interaction of Soviet/Russian literary output with aspects of the dominant culture such as ideology and politics, Nadya Peterson traces the process of mainstream literary change in the context of broader social change. She explores the subversive character of the fantastic orientation, its Utopian and apocalyptic motifs, and its dialogical relationship with socialist realism, as it steadily gathered force in the latter Soviet decades. The shattering of the mythic colossus did not put an end to these opposing forces, but rather diverted them in various unexpected directions–as the author explains in her concluding chapters on the new "alternative" literatures.

Security Implications of Nationalism in Eastern Europe

Jeffrey Simon , Trond Gilberg

The contributors look at developing problems and trends in the region, including the cooling of relations between the USSR and individual countries in Eastern Europe, the continuing economic crisis, changing social structures, the influence of the intelligentsia, and the eroding importance of ideology as a key part of Eastern Europe's political culture. The second half of the book focuses on the impact of these shifts on political and military relations between the USSR and Eastern European countries and on the efficient functioning of the Warsaw Pact.

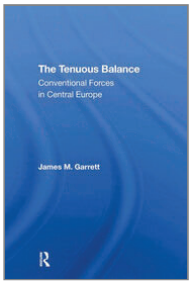
The Tenuous Balance

Conventional Forces in Central Europe



James M Garrett

Uncertainty of success may deter Soviet risk-taking forty-nine years out of fifty but not in that fiftieth year if Soviet leaders should face an apparent threat to their continued hegemony in Eastern Europe or an opportunity to settle their European power problem once and for all. If nuclear weapons deter only each other, crisis stability depends upon NATO's appearing able to ward off invasion by conventional forces.

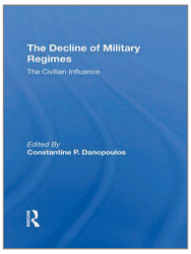
The Decline of Military Regimes

The Civilian Influence



Constantine P Danopoulos , Robin A Remington , James Brown , Claude Welch

This book demonstrates that the timing as well as the degree to which the armed forces leave the levers of political power and the nature of the successor regime depend on both external, societal, or ecological factors as well as internal, organizational, or institutional ones.

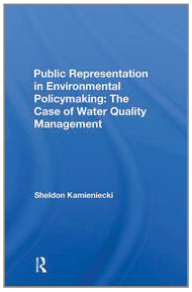
Public Representation in Environmental Policymaking

The Case of Water Quality Management



Sheldon Kamieniecki

Professor Kamieniecki's systematic probing of the determinants that make some officials more adept than others at accurate calculation of public preference uncovers imbalanced public representation due to several factors. He concludes with an evaluation of citizen participatory mechanisms and consequent recommendations designed to elicit a wide range of public opinion, a prerequisite for acceptable environmental planning.

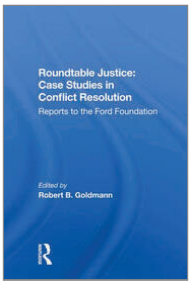
Roundtable Justice: Case Studies in Conflict Resolution



Robert B. Goldman

Roundtable Justice: Case Studies in Conflict Resolution describes seven cases in which third-party intervention was employed to settle complex social and economic disputes. The authors provide detailed accounts of how mediation came about in each case, how it was conducted, the settlements that resulted, and the follow-up that was required. Demonstrating the potential of third' party intervention for resolving the growing number of disputes in society today, they also show how, in practical terms, conflicts can be resolved.

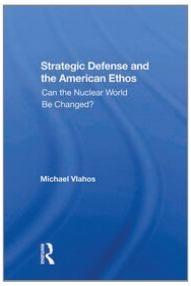
Strategic Defense and the American Ethos

Can the Nuclear World Be Changed?



Michael Vlahos

Strategic Defense and the American Ethos links the larger cultural process from which strategic posture is ultimately derived to the utility of strategic defenses. If strategic defenses are a product of cultural pressures, they must also promote the goal of such pressures: enhanced national security. This is the promise of Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI). Dr. Vlahos argues that SDI offers an escape from a strategic cul-de-sac and provides an alternative to a national security policy many Americans believe to be unworkable.

The Diplomatic Record 1992-1993

Allan Goodman

The Diplomatic Record continues in its fourth year to offer the most comprehensive storehouse of current information available on international diplomatic relations, including a look ahead to ongoing negotiations, a chronology of diplomatic events for the year and a bibliography of current diplomacy-related publications. For 1992-1993, the focus is on the emerging post-Soviet order as well as on new and continuing diplomatic efforts in Bosnia and Somalia. The concluding essay on the Rio environmental conference ends the volume with a look toward 1994.

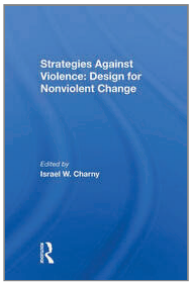
Strategies Against Violence

Design for Nonviolent Change



Israel W. Charny

The contributions are organized around three themes: the person, the community and the culture, and the world. Topics include a model for nonviolent strength to counter aggression by others; an examination of the psychology of Adolph Eichmann, with some startling conclusions about how men should cultivate their normal aggressive emotions and enjoy fantasies of violence; how the American democratic process can be turned unknowingly toward disastrous collective violence; and the problem of reducing the contagion of violence spread by daily newscasts of violent events.

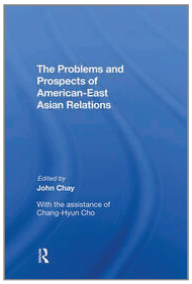
The Problems and Prospects American-East Asian Relations



John Chay

Issues discussed include the "new policy" toward the People's Republic of China (Was there, in fact, a sudden shift in U.S. policy?); the attitudes of the American people and Congress toward the Republic of China; the friction between the United States and Japan and the implications of the existing imbalance in trade between the two countries; and the potential for continuing and increasing problems in U.S.-Korean relations. Throughout, the authors present an analysis of past and current conditions as a tool for use in formulating sound, effective policy for the future.

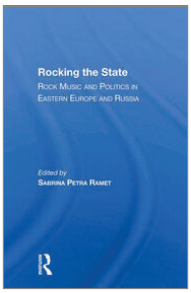
Rocking the State

Rock Music and Politics in Eastern Europe and Russia



Sabrina Petra Ramet

Bringing together some of the world's leading authorities on rock music under communism, this book analyzes the rise of specific rock groups throughout Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, examining the broader social culture in which they operated and evaluating the political ramifications of their popularity. The authorities knew that although these bands could not overthrow the state, they could sing up a storm, and, indeed, rock the state.

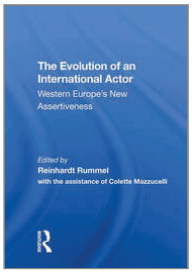
The Evolution of an International Actor

Western Europe's New Assertiveness



Reinhard Rummel , Vera Erdmann-Keefer

Challenges from both the Soviet Union and the United States have triggered new approaches to the old problem of a distinct European defence - among them the European answer to President Reagan's SDI concept, the Western European Union, and European suggestions for East-West arms control negotiations. This book presents the combined research of a group of European and American scholars who evaluate the scope and substance of present-day security co-operation among West European nations.

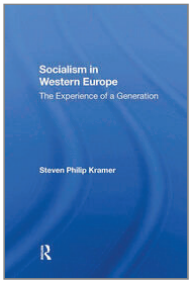
Socialism in Western Europe

The Experience of a Generation



Steven Philip Kramer

This book explores what socialism in Western Europe meant for the generation that came to maturity after World War I. Dr. Kramer captures individual aspects of the socialist experience through interviews with socialist leaders who have been a significant part of the movement since the 1930s and who represent the great diversity of European socialism. Each interview begins with a brief description of the individual and the party. A general introduction interprets the role of this generation in the history of European socialism.

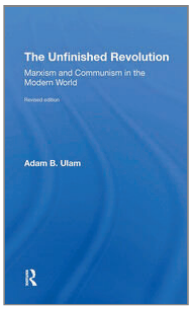
The Unfinished Revolution

Marxism and Communism in the Modern World



Adam B Ulam

Ulam then examines the relationship of Marxism to other schools of contemporary socialism and to other radical and revolutionary theories. He traces the development of Marxian thought, explains why it has been the potent force in certain societies–while in other societies its influence has been insignificant–and analyzes how Marxism and Leninism have affected the shaping of Russian Communism. Finally Ulam looks at Marxism in the future: the role it will play in the development of the Soviet Union, and how it will affect the contemporary crisis of liberal institutions in the West.

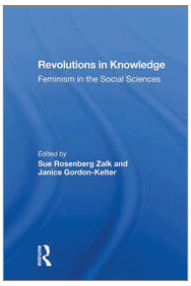
Revolutions in Knowledge

Feminism in the Social Sciences



Sue Rosenberg Zalk , Janice Gordon-Kelter

Revolutions in Knowledge is an indispensable book not only for feminist scholars and their students but for anyone who cares about how scholarship is conducted and about what is happening at its frontiers. In this important volume, we have a progress report in which some of the most active scholars in the feminist movement survey the results of feminist research in their respective fields. They examine the inherent biases that are being overcome and the new perspectives that are emerging in what has become a virtual revolution in the social sciences and humanities.

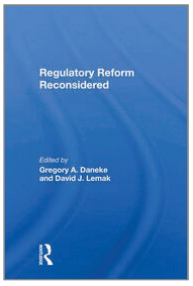
Regulatory Reform Reconsidered



Gregory A Daneke , David J Lemak , Charles L Kennedy , Gerald Barkdoll

Regulatory Reform Reconsidered focuses on social and environmental regulation as they evaluate problems of costly and ineffective regulatory measures and argues that, although some programs have been made more cost efficient, performance has not improved, and offers alternatives for increasing effectiveness. The authors also analyze case studies to explore specific reform alternatives, and most conclude that successful reform is generally brought about by improving the cooperative relationship among business, government, and the public.

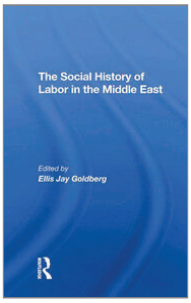
The Social History of Labor in the Middle East



Ellis Goldberg

This volume presents an overview of literature on the history of workers in the Middle East since 1800 to bring together new directions in research. It explores the history of labor by situating state-led industrialization within the context of older artisanal social communities.

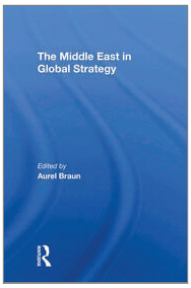
The Middle East in Global Strategy



Aurel Braun , Edwin H Fedder , Avner Yaniv , Gerald Steinberg

This book emphasizes the vital links between international politics and strategy and provides a comprehensive analysis of strategic interests of the major international actors in the Middle East. It contends that the policies of the superpowers toward the Middle East are fragmented and unproductive.

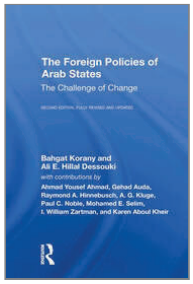
2ND EDITION

The Foreign Policies of Arab States

The Challenge of Change



Bahgat Korany , Ali El-Din Hillal Dessouki

This book offers an analysis of trends in Arab foreign policies since 1984, including an early analysis of the effects of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent coalition victory over Iraq. The inclusion of Jordan and Sudan allowed for fuller understanding of the foreign policies of states.

Superpower Involvement in the Middle East

Dynamics of Foreign Policy

Paul Marantz , Blema Steinberg , John Sigler , Shmuel Sandler

Superpower Involvement in the Middle East makes a major contribution to our understanding of Soviet and U.S. policy in the 1980s, highlighting explanatory variables that are likely to persist into the next decade. The contributors to this book offer an explanation of Soviet and U.S. policy in the Middle East by exploring how the superpowers define their goals in the region, the factors that both stimulate and constrain the United States and the Soviet Union in the implementation of their objectives, and how their mutual perceptions influence behavior.

The Making of Modern Lebanon

Helena Cobban

This book provides a vivid and readable account of Lebanon's development since its first emergence in 1585, unravelling the intricacies of the sectarian/religious groups and the special kinds of communities which have sunk 900-year-old roots in the remote fastnesses of the Mount Lebanon interior.

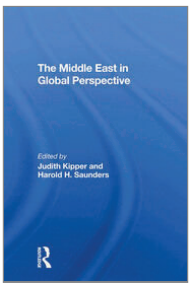
The Middle East in Global Perspective



Judith Kipper , Harold Saunders

Reflecting both Middle Eastern and Western perspectives, this book provides a well-balanced and refreshing analysis that will be valuable to scholars, students, journalists, diplomats, and businesspeople interested in this volatile region. A wide spectrum of thoughtful perspectives is provided by the contributors, who include eminent scholars from the Middle East and the West, military analysts, bankers, economists, journalists, diplomats, politicians, and statesmen. In the wake of the Gulf War, these insights create building blocks for a regional peace process.

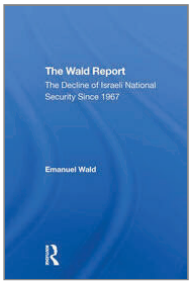
The Wald Report

The Decline of Israeli National Security Since 1967



Emanuel Wald

The Wald Report is Colonel Emanuel Wald's report to Israeli Chief of Staff Moshe Levi regarding the diminishing effectiveness of Israeli National Security. Wald's findings are supported by a detailed analysis of the steady decline of the Israeli Defense Forces' (IDF's) administrative and operational abilities. From tactical victory in the Six Day War, to stalemate in the Yom Kippur War, to failure on the ground in the Peace for Galilee War, Wald carefully traces the erosion of the IDF's tactical proficiency. He faults weaknesses in command professionalism, force structure, preparation for war, and wartime command and control.

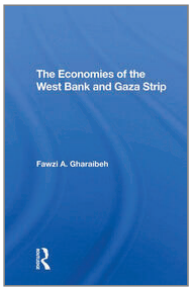
The Economies of the West Bank and Gaza Strip



Fawzi A Gharaibeh

This book examines how land expropriation, the growing number of Jewish settlements, and restrictions on the tapping of water resources have all retarded agricultural potential in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Dr. Gharaibeh examines how political developments and the course of the Arab-Israeli dispute will determine the future economic status of the area, providing extensive data from both Israeli and Jordanian sources.

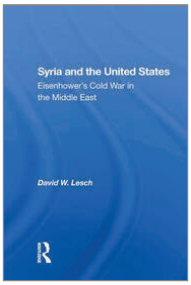
Syria and the United States

Eisenhower's Cold War in the Middle East



David W. Lesch

Lesch offers important new insight into the roles played by Iraq, Syria, Egypt, and the United Nations as well as a thorough examination of the Syrian political scene. Focusing on regional politics and utilizing newly available primary documentation, Syria and the United States offers a multidimensional analysis of Syrian-American relations during the Eisenhower years and presents a new interpretation of the "Syrian crisis" and the evolution of U.S. foreign policy that led to it.

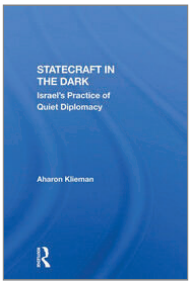
Statecraft in the Dark

Israel's Practice of Quiet Diplomacy



Aharon Klieman

Covert agreements and operations are a fact of world affairs. Secrecy in diplomacy remains as much a challenge for international politics as it is for national and foreign policy. This study undertakes to address aspects of clandestinely at both the domestic and external levels. Secret diplomacy's mixed fortunes in this century are first surveyed, along with many of the criticisms levelled against such practices, following which other positive features of back-channel or quiet diplomacy are suggested.

AI for EVERYTHING

Artificial intelligence (AI) is all around us. From driverless cars to game winning computers to fraud protection, AI is already involved in many aspects of life, and its impact will only continue to grow in future. Many of the world's most valuable companies are investing heavily in AI research and development, and not a day goes by without news of cutting-edge breakthroughs in AI and robotics. The AI for Everything series will explore the role of AI in contemporary life, from cars and aircraft to medicine, education, fashion and beyond. Concise and accessible, each book is written by an expert in the field and will bring the study and reality of AI to a broad readership including nterested professionals, students, researchers, and lay readers.
