Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Hachette, or the appropriate overseas agent.

Aesthetic Ethics

Towards A Moral Imagination

Edited by M. Mookie C. Manalili , David Goodman
Woods College of Advancing Studies, Boston College; Director, Psychology and the Other Institute; Harvard Medical School, Diana Boros

Series: Psychology and the Other

The book seeks to challenge and expand the boundaries of how we conceive ethics and morality, proposing that beauty, sublimity and emotional resonances found in the realm of the arts are essential for re-imagining a more just and compassionate world. Aesthetic Ethics hosts the voices and scholarship of significant figures across disciplines, addressing questions at the intersections of aesthetic theory, ethical psychotherapy, and the social order. Practitioners, as well as students and researchers of the humanities, the arts, politics, philosophy, psychology, psychosocial studies, sociology and social work alike will find this an illuminating and revivifying read.

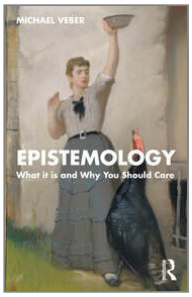
Epistemology

What it is and Why You Should Care



Michael Veber East Carolina University, USA.

Epistemology: What it is and Why You Should Care is an introduction to epistemology written with the student foremost in mind. It provides an overview of basic concepts and problems in the theory of knowledge and directly addresses a question that is often foremost in the minds of students: "Who Cares?" Author Michael Veber first identifies where epistemology is, locating it within the larger field of philosophy, as well other areas of study and life in general.

Feminist Ethics

An Introduction to Fundamental Concepts and Current Issues

Edited by Celia Edell , Charlotte Sabourin

Feminist Ethics: An Introduction to Fundamental Concepts and Current Issues provides a valuable entry point into one of the most dynamic areas of contemporary philosophy. Each chapter concludes with discussion questions and suggestions for further reading, and a glossary is included at the back of the book. The volume constitutes an excellent introduction to the richness and depth of feminist ethics for introductory and advanced students.

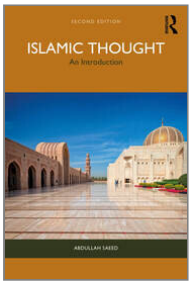
2ND EDITION

Islamic Thought

An Introduction



Abdullah Saeed June 2021 royalty writeback-no bank details.

Islamic Thought is a comprehensive introduction to the philosophies, thought and doctrines of Islam, and examines how Muslim thought has evolved, exploring the production, transmission, and interpretation of religious knowledge, and the trends, schools, and movements that have shaped it. This thoroughly revised new edition offers expanded coverage of Shi'i and other non-Sunni perspectives, alongside the significant emphasis on the Sunni tradition covered in the first edition. Islamic Thought is essential reading for students approaching the study of Islam for the first time and anyone interested in learning more about one of the world's great religions.

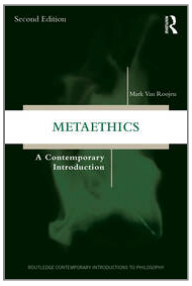
Metaethics

A Contemporary Introduction



Mark van Roojen University of Nebraska, Lincoln, USA

Series: Routledge Contemporary Introductions to Philosophy

This book maps the terrain of the part of ethics that reflects on the nature of ethics itself, a field known as metaethics. It helps upper-level undergraduates and other interested readers understand the main theoretical innovations as reactions to puzzles about moral disagreement, reference, moral epistemology, metaphysics and moral psychology.

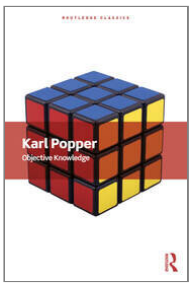
Objective Knowledge

An Evolutionary Approach



Karl Popper London School of Economics, UK

Series: Routledge Classics

The scope of human knowledge is arguably one of humankind's greatest achievements. Since Descartes, however, the theory of human knowledge has been mainly what philosophers call subjectivist: even scientific knowledge was regarded as a special kind of belief, but human nonetheless. In Objective Knowledge Karl Popper breaks decisively and controversially with this view of human knowledge. A brilliant exposition of Popper's theory of knowledge, this Routledge Classics edition includes a new Introduction by Jeremy Shearmur, which provides some helpful context to Objective Knowledge and Popper's philosophy in general.

2ND EDITION

Specters of Marx

The State of the Debt, the Work of Mourning and the New International

Jacques Derrida

Series: Routledge Classics

Published shortly after the fall of Communism, Specters of Marx is one of Derrida's most prophetic books. Whilst many in the West heralded the triumph of liberal democracy, Derrida argues that whilst Communism may have disappeared, the questions posed by Marx continue to haunt us. Translated by Peggy Kamuf and with a new Foreword by Peter Salmon, this Routledge Classics edition retains the original Editors' Introduction by Bernd Magnus and Stephen Cullenberg. It also includes a debate between Derrida and Étienne Balibar published here in English for the first time, as well as corrections made by Derrida after the book's initial publication in French.

2ND EDITION

The Essential Mary Midgley

Mary Midgley , David Midgley

Feared and admired in equal measure, Mary Midgley has carefully yet profoundly challenged many of the scientific and moral orthodoxies of the twentieth century. The Essential Mary Midgley is a must-have anthology of the very best of Midgley's philosophy, incorporating carefully selected excerpts from her bestselling books. This second edition includes some of her best work from the last twenty or so years, including The Solitary Self, Are you an Illusion?, and What Is Philosophy For? Expertly edited and introduced by David Midgley, this second edition includes a new Foreword by Rachael Wiseman.

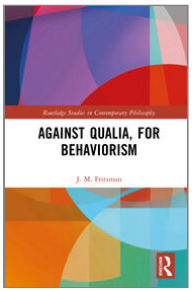
Against Qualia, For Behaviorism



J. M. Fritzman Lewis & Clark College, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

Qualia, or phenomenal consciousness, refer to mental states which are supposedly ineffable, intrinsic, private, and immediately apprehensible in consciousness. This book argues that qualia do not exist, and there is no phenomenal consciousness. It critically engages philosophers who believe in qualia, demonstrating how the intuitions which would support the belief in the existence of qualia are mutually inconsistent. It proceeds to claim that the physical cannot be demarcated from the nonphysical and so the hard problem of consciousness can be dissolved or dismissed. Furthermore, it articulates and defends holistic behaviorism by drawing on Hegel's philosophy of mind.

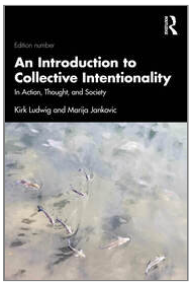
An Introduction to Collective Intentionality

In Action, Thought, and Society



Kirk Ludwig , Marija Jankovic Davidson College, USA.

An Introduction to Collective Intentionality: In Action, Thought, and Society makes a cogent case for the field's importance, presents its central questions, and introduces the main topics of study. Authors Kirk Ludwig and Marija Jankovic masterfully demonstrate why understanding collective intentions is essential for comprehending social dynamics, from everyday cooperation to complex institutional structures. While presenting their nuanced "individualist position," the authors provide a balanced exploration of competing perspectives, ensuring readers gain a comprehensive understanding of ongoing debates and future research directions.

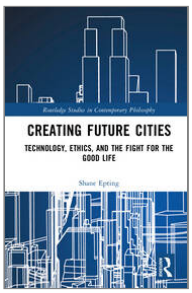
Creating Future Cities

Technology, Ethics, and the Fight for the Good Life



Shane Epting Missouri University of Science and Technology, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book fleshes out the idea that everything about the city involves a fight for the good life. It maintains that cities are groups of people capable of shaping the built environment and its supporting technologies, united by the goal of creating places where people can live their best lives. This is the fight for the city. That fight involves many elements vital to city living, such as streets, land use, historic preservation, and preparation for extreme weather. He argues that fighting for the city is not merely about control. Rather, its purpose is to create environments that foster human flourishing while safeguarding communities against disaster.

Cultural Evolution and Social Ontology

Interdisciplinary Perspectives

Edited by Martina Valković Leibniz University Hannover, Germany, Thomas A.C. Reydon Leibniz University Hannover, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This volume explores connections between two growing and complementary fields of research: cultural evolutionary theory and social ontology. It sheds light on the ontological aspects of cultural evolution that so far have been largely neglected and raises questions for social ontology regarding the relevance of evolutionary aspects of social phenomena. While the contributors vary in their approach to the relationship between social ontology and cultural evolution, they explore their many common themes including power, language, agency, interaction, and social institutions and roles.

Epistemic Dilemmas and Epistemic Normativity

Edited by Eva Schmidt TU Dortmund, Germany, Martin Grajner

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

Recently, there has been a surge of interest in epistemic dilemmas. However, few attempts have been made to systematically connect epistemic dilemmas to a wider range of issues in epistemology and normative theorizing. This volume begins to fill this lacuna. Some of its contributions explore new responses to epistemic dilemmas and others present novel epistemic dilemmas, which connect in interesting ways to other areas of epistemology. Several contributions discuss links between epistemic dilemmas and the nature of epistemic and practical reasons, investigate the nature of evidence or of doxastic attitudes, or explore dilemmas arising in collective or oppressive contexts.

Ground and Fundamentality in Plato and Aristotle

Edited by Richard Neels Oklahoma State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

This is the first volume dedicated to the issues of ground and fundamentality in Plato and Aristotle. It offers new insights pertaining to certain features of ground and fundamentality that will engage with and spark debates in contemporary metaphysics. The chapters address a wide range of issues pertaining to ground and fundamentality including skepticism about these relations, the nature of these relations, their application to gender and social issues, and their application to material explanation.

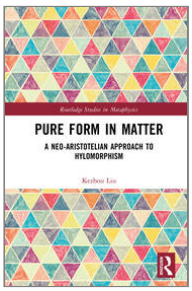
Pure Form in Matter

A Neo-Aristotelian Approach to Hylomorphism



Kezhou Liu

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

This book defends a purist neo-Aristotelian approach to hylomorphism, addressing long-standing debates about the reality of material objects and engaging with contemporary philosophical discussions. It begins with a critical examination of the contemporary "impurist" approach to hylomorphism and then develops a purist conception of form, which is grounded in Aristotle's original framework and contextualized within current theoretical debates. It will appeal to scholars and advanced students of ancient Greek philosophy and metaphysics.

Subjectivity and Selfhood in Chinese Philosophy

Phenomenological, Comparative and Historical Perspectives

Edited by Kai Marchal , Ellie Hua Wang

Series: East Asian Philosophy and Political Thought

Human beings have always been concerned with fundamental questions about their selves, including the deeply personal nature of human experience. The goal of this volume is to rethink these questions against the backdrop of the Chinese philosophical traditions, covering the ideas of major thinkers from Classical to late imperial China, with a particular focus on the fact that human experience is necessarily characterized by the first-person perspective. The contributors to this volume employ different methods (historical, comparative, phenomenological), but they all aim at bringing the rich resources of Chinese philosophy to life in our global present.

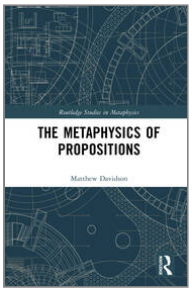
The Metaphysics of Propositions



Matthew Davidson California State University, San Bernardino, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

The book defends an account of propositions on which propositions are structured entities, built up out of properties, relations, and concrete objects. On this account, propositions exist and have truth conditions independent of human minds and linguistic activity. While this view of propositions has existed for over 100 years, it has been under attack over the last two decades. It has come under attack from those who agree that propositions are structured but think that propositions get their semantic properties (things like truth conditions) from human mental or linguistic activity.

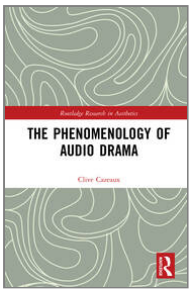
The Phenomenology of Audio Drama



Clive Cazeaux University of Wales Institute, Cardiff, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

Audio drama is overlooked by philosophy even though it raises many philosophical questions. This book shows how phenomenology provides new ways of theorizing audio drama. It gives a clear account of phenomenology's rethinking of embodiment, technology and causality, and how it enables the drawing of relations between audio drama, sound art and audio fiction. Instead of contradiction, sound and the voice emerge as principal expressions of dramatic structure and human being-in-the-world, and audio drama is shown to be an art form that manifests the power of causality to enrich aesthetic sensibility.

The Philosophy of Rudolph Hermann Lotze

A Reassessment

Edited by Nikolay Milkov University of Paderborn, Germany, Michele Vagnetti University of Paderborn, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth-Century Philosophy

Rudolph Hermann Lotze (1817-1881) was a leading figure of late 19th-century German philosophy. Lotze reconsidered the philosophy of German Idealism and initiated an objectivist turn that was instrumental in the development of leading philosophical movements of the 20th century, including analytic philosophy, phenomenology, and pragmatism. This volume seeks to demonstrate the importance of Lotze's thought to the history of philosophy. It provides a comprehensive reassessment of Lotze's thought and analyzes the many different aspects of his logic, metaphysics, epistemology, and philosophy of mind.

The Will Discourse in Late Medieval Philosophy and Theology

Edited by Monika Michałowska Medical University of Lódz, Poland, Michael W. Dunne Maynooth University, Ireland

This volume sheds light on underexplored aspects of voluntarism that were extensively debated in 13th- and 14th-century philosophy and theology. The chapters address a wide range of topics such as second-order volitions, non-velle and nolle acts of the will, conditionality of the will, increase and decrease in the intensity of willing, the ethics/metaphysics and ethics/physics intersections, and the role the will played in explaining social and political phenomena. The volume provides insight into approaches to ethics and moral psychology that sprouted in the later Middle Ages and sparked various arguments and methods for defending the freedom of the will.

Christian Thought

A Historical Introduction

Chad Meister Bethel College, USA, J.B. Stump

Christian Thought: A Historical Introduction offers a clear and engaging overview of the major ideas, figures, and movements that have shaped Christian theology from the early Church to the present day. Now in its third edition, this accessible and engaging book introduces readers to the historical development of Christian thought, emphasizing how theology has been shaped by—and has responded to—changing cultural, philosophical, and political contexts. This new edition features expanded coverage of Eastern Orthodoxy, the Reformation beyond Calvin, and the global expressions of Christianity that have come to the fore in recent decades.

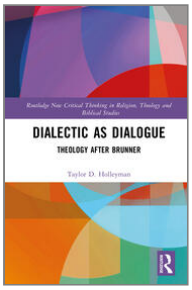
Dialectic as Dialogue

Theology After Brunner



Taylor D. Holleyman

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

Dialectic as Dialogue: Theology After Brunner is an examination of Emil Brunner's theological epistemology with special focus on his reception of dialogical philosophy, its implications for the nature and task of theology, and Brunner's contemporary significance. It will also appeal to readers with broader interests in modern philosophies of religion, epistemology, theological reasoning, and constructive claims regarding the nature and task of theology.

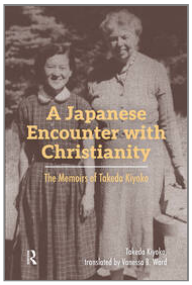
A Japanese Encounter with Christianity

The Memoirs of Takeda Kiyoko



Takeda Kiyoko

Takeda Kiyoko defied stereotypes of modern Japanese women through her remarkable career. Her memoirs highlight encounters with individuals across Asia, the US, and Europe through her work with the YWCA and World Student Christian Federation. Her intellectual development was shaped by studying progressive Japanese thinkers' responses to Christianity and through extensive engagement. Working with the World Council of Churches enabled her travels throughout Asia and Europe, contributing to ecumenical discussions. In the 1950s, she played a crucial role in unofficial diplomacy, helping restore relations between Japan and other Asian nations including China, the Philippines, and India.

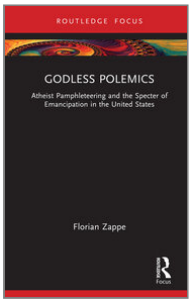
Godless Polemics

Atheist Pamphleteering and the Specter of Emancipation in the United States



Florian Zappe

Series: Routledge Focus on Religion

Godless Polemics examines the role of pamphleteering as a medium for radical critique in the intellectual and cultural history of American atheism, focusing on its function as oppositional and counter-hegemonic discourse. By analysing key pamphleteers from the nineteenth century to contemporary digital activists, this book redefines the role of pamphleteering in the history of unbelief in the United States, highlighting their vital role in introducing affirmative atheist ideas in emancipatory contexts. It will be of particular interest to scholars of religious studies and American studies.

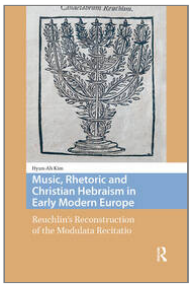
Music, Rhetoric and Christian Hebraism in Early Modern Europe

Reuchlin's Reconstruction of the Modulata Recitatio



Hyun-Ah Kim

Series: Song Studies

This book presents the first in-depth exploration of the relationship between music, rhetoric and Christian Hebraism, by re-appraising the significance of the first German humanist Johannes Reuchlin's study of Kabbalah and cantillation in the light of Renaissance rhetoric. Few studies have investigated how Renaissance humanists learned Hebrew language for the delivery (pronuntiatio) of the Hebrew Bible as an aural-oral tradition. Hyun-Ah Kim examines the way in which 'grammarian-philosopher' Reuchlin reconstructed the modulata recitatio of the Hebrew Bible and its underlying intellectual foundation.

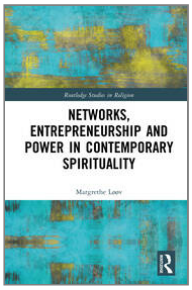
Networks, Entrepreneurship and Power in Contemporary Spirituality



Margrethe Løøv

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

Networks, Entrepreneurship and Power in Contemporary Spirituality offers an in-depth analysis of the social organisation of New Age spirituality. Drawing on empirical research in Norway, it considers: What organizing principles are at play? How is power and authority exerted? How do spiritual entrepreneurs, organisations, and individuals interact? And how does social interaction affect their identities, beliefs, and practices? It will be of particular interest to scholars of contemporary spirituality and the sociology of religion.

Remembering the Dead in Modern China

Religious Rituals of Remembrance

Edited by Stephen Covell , Stuart Young , Ying Zeng

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book is a groundbreaking volume that brings together diverse scholarly perspectives to examine the complex and evolving practices of death, dying, and remembrance in modern China. The contributors show how acts of remembrance provide opportunities to find meaning in the loss of loved ones; to challenge cultural conventions by generating significance from absence in burial rituals; to refashion mourning rites in response to modern political demands; and to forge bonds between urban and rural mortuary communities. This book will appeal to scholars and students interested in the intersection of tradition and modernity in Chinese cultural practices around mortality.

Satanism and Feminism in Popular Culture

Not Today Satan

Edited by Miranda Corcoran

Series: Horror and Gothic Media Cultures

This book constitutes a timely and necessary intervention in the academic study of Satanism. At the same time, the book also constitutes a vital addition to the field of Gothic and Horror Studies. Although recent years have witnessed a revival of interest in figures such as the witch, the zombie and the vampire, Satan and his acolytes have been largely ignored (aside from where they overlap with the witch). This volume seeks to address this lacuna in Gothic Studies by examining how Satanism—particularly as it relates to issues of gender and sexuality—has shaped both the aesthetic and thematic content of horror media over the past half century.

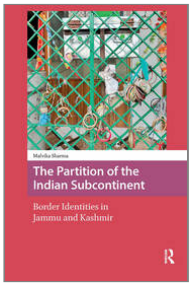
The Partition of the Indian Subcontinent

Border Identities in Jammu and Kashmir



Malvika Sharma

Series: Asian Borderlands

Pir-Panjals, the Himalayan ranges in Jammu and Kashmir, are home to various communities known for their distinctiveness, heterogeneity and diversity. Such diversity is historically embedded in the fluidity embodied by folds of Panjals. These folds encapsulated social, cultural, and religious plurality within the principalities that thrived here. The Partition of 1947 profoundly altered this by carving lines of demarcation—present day line-of-control—into the landscape. This book examines Partition's impact on these pockets of diversity by exploring how Partition's borders continue to shape social, symbolic and religious boundaries and how these boundaries impact shared plurality here.

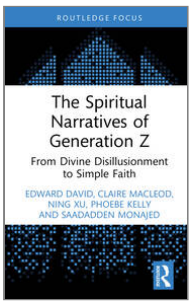
The Spiritual Narratives of Generation Z

From Divine Disillusionment to Simple Faith



Edward A. David , Claire MacLeod , Ning Xu , Phoebe Kelly , Saadadden Monajed

Grounded in pioneering research begun at the University of Oxford, this book is the first study to use story completion and participatory co-analysis to place Gen Z voices at the center of religious inquiry. At its core is a typology of five narratives, from Divine Disillusionment to Simple Faith, that uncover young people's latent beliefs and spiritual aspirations. Combining the breadth of qualitative analysis with the depth of narrative interpretation, this book offers fresh insights into how today's youngest adults are reshaping the religious imagination, engaging with global religions and philosophies through their smartphones.

Therapy, Spirituality, and East Asian Imaginaries

Edited by Ioannis Gaitanidis , Luis Fernando Bernardi Junqueira , Avery Morrow , Sang-yun Han

Series: Health, Medicine, and Science in Asia

This volume explores the global circulation of practices, technologies, and ideas identified as 'East Asian' in alternative therapies and spiritual practices since the 1970s. Case studies range from the incorporation of traditional Chinese medicine into Brazilian naturopathy to self-development seminars promoting Korean national identity. Rather than focusing on questions of authenticity, the book uniquely interrogates how and why the cultures of China, Japan, and Korea have been invoked over the last fifty years to promote specific therapeutic, spiritual, and political agendas worldwide.

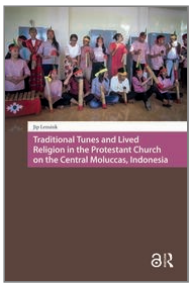
Traditional Tunes and Lived Religion in the Protestant Church on the Central Moluccas, Indonesia



Jip Lensink

Series: Religion and Society in Asia

In the southeast of Indonesia, on the Moluccas, theologians are developing contextual theologies for the Moluccan Protestant church. The Moluccas were colonized by the Dutch for more than three centuries. This book is about the contextualization of church music. Christian Izaac Tamaela proposed and instigated the transposition of Moluccan traditional music to the Moluccan Protestant church. In the book, the author asks how traditional music, as framed within contextual Moluccan theology, is interrelated with lived religion. Working and Caring for Creation

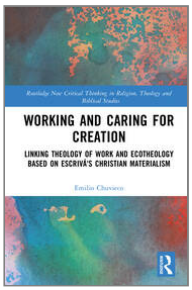
Linking Theology of Work and Ecotheology Based on Escrivá's Christian Materialism



Emilio Chuvieco Universidad de Alcala, Alcala de Henares, Spain

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book presents an innovative approach that connects ecotheology and theology of work. It expands on the concept of Christian materialism proposed by Saint Josemaría Escrivá (1902–1975) to overcome dualisms that ignore the spiritual value of material realities. An additional Trinitarian framework is developed along these lines that proposes a new type of work that is co-creative, co-redemptive and co-sanctifying, following the ad-extra attributes of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit in their providential care for creation. The volume is particularly relevant to scholars of theology with an interest in both work and the environment.

From Cool Britannia to Brexit

A History of Britain since 1997

Pauline Schnapper , Thibaud Harrois

Series: Routledge Contemporary History

From Cool Britannia to Brexit discusses and analyses the last three decades of British political history, looking at why Britain found itself shut out from its immediate neighbours on the continent in 2016, twenty years after the country was celebrated as a prosperous, optimistic and culturally influential "Cool Britannia". This book ultimately shows the limits of the Westminster model of government and the enduring inequalities that affect Britain but also insists on the resilience of its state and institutions.

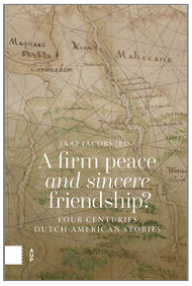
A Firm Peace and Sincere Friendship?

Four Centuries Dutch-American Stories



Jaap Jacobs

This book begins in the seventeenth century, when settlers commissioned by the West India Company settled on the south side of Manhattan and started a settlement that grew first into New Amsterdam and later into New York City. In 2024, both the Netherlands and the United States will commemorate these beginnings through commemorations, exhibitions, conferences and high-level Dutch visits to New York. The stories have a human touch, an emphasis on the individual as the bearer of one culture interacting with another. Feelings of admiration, liberation, expectation and hope play an important role in the stories. But there are also negative sides to Dutch-American history too.

Across the Aegean

A Century of Forced Migrations Between Greece and Turkey, 1922-2022

Edited by Violetta Hionidou , Dimitris Skleparis

Series: British School at Athens - Modern Greek and Byzantine Studies

This book investigates the major forced population movements across the Aegean in the last 100 years. It uses the 1922-1923 forced population exchange as an intellectual point of departure to investigate the multiple refugee movements across the Aegean and their interconnections. It addresses the forced displacement of not only Turks and Greeks but also Jewish people and Syrians while also investigating the remembering of these episodes, within and beyond Turkey and Greece. Bringing together leading experts on Greece and Turkey, the volume advances a dialogue between national and international historiographies and offers fresh perspectives on the enduring legacies of displacement.

Edited by Laura Hasselt , Marleen Rensen , Leonieke Vermeer , Ernestine Hoegen

Series: Cities and Cultures

This volume invites readers to rediscover Amsterdam through the intimate lens of its inhabitants. Amsterdam Diaries, Life Writing and Identity offers a rich and layered portrayal of the city through the self-narratives of 'ordinary' individuals from the eighteenth century to the present. Together, these diverse narratives offer a kaleidoscopic view of life in Amsterdam, illustrating how the city is both a shared space and a deeply personal landscape.

Bodies and Narrativity Across the Early Modern World

Edited by Vitus Huber

Series: Connected Histories in the Early Modern World

Adopting an interdisciplinary approach and incorporating case studies from Africa, the Americas, and Europe, this volume positions the body as a critical heuristic tool. It moves beyond the dichotomous debate between constructivism and essentialism by emphasizing the interplay of body and narrative.

Central European Elites in Post-Imperial Transition

Locality, Agency, Capital

Edited by Gábor Egry

This book examines how local elites from the dissolved Austria-Hungary managed to survive and often thrive despite the empire's collapse in 1918. When faced with national and social revolutions, these figures—many of whom suddenly found themselves ethnic minorities—seemed destined to lose their positions entirely. Yet a surprising number not only persisted but became essential to the state-building efforts of Austria-Hungary's successor states.

Cultivating and Communicating Natural and Technical Knowledge around 1800

Devotees of Science

Edited by Nikolaj Bijleveld , Arjen Dijkstra , Samuel Gessner

Series: Studies in the History of Knowledge

This is a book about some of the unexpected people and places involved in cultivating knowledge of the natural world and mastery of scientific apparatus around 1800, taking readers across continental Europe from the Enlightenment to the onset of academic professionalisation. The authors widen the horizon of inquiry by looking beyond the scientific elite of academies and prestigious science sponsored by princely courts, the focus of previous major studies of this time period. The case studies together demonstrate that such individuals contributed substantially to the spread of new knowledge and found ways to contribute technical innovations to society.

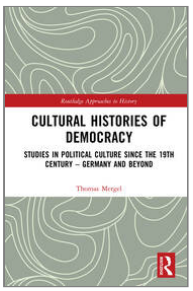
Cultural Histories of Democracy

Studies in Political Culture Since the 19th Century – Germany and Beyond



Thomas Mergel Humboldt University of Berlin, Germany

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

This book brings for the first time in English, Thomas Mergel's inquiries into the history of democracy in Germany with comparative perspective across the 19th and 20th centuries, while offering frequent sideways glances at its Western European and American neighbours. Politics is highlighted as a social and symbolic practice; the body, language, symbolism and routine action are examined as factors that let politics emerge as a process of communication. The contributions in this volume are intended to make the largely German discussion more visible on an international level and to show the application of theoretical concepts.

Disability and Sanctity in the Middle Ages

Edited by Stephanie Grace-Petinos , Leah Parker , Alicia Spencer-Hall

Series: Hagiography Beyond Tradition

This volume significantly expands current understandings of both disability and sanctity in the Middle Ages. Across the collection, heterogeneous constructions, and experiences, of disability and holiness are excavated. Analyses span the 6th to the 15th century, with discussion of holy men and holy women, Western Christian and Buddhist traditions, hagiographic texts, images, and artefacts. It is a powerful rebuttal to the notion of the integral relationship of disability—medieval and otherwise—with sin, stigma, and shame. So doing, it recentres medieval disability history as a lived history that merits exploration and celebration.

Early Western Missions to the Mongols (1245–1248)

The Opening of Diplomatic Contacts with a New World Power

Edited by Peter Jackson Keele University, UK

Series: Crusade Texts in Translation

Early Missions to the Mongols (1245-1248) focuses on a watershed period in the relations of the Christian West with this new and formidable pagan power. It comprises translations of Pope Innocent's letters, together with the limited information available to the papacy prior to 1245; the menacing replies brought back by the Friars; and their reports, which include narratives of their journeys and accounts of the Mongols and their vast empire. The translations are accompanied by introductory material setting the documents in their historical context and by a full commentary.

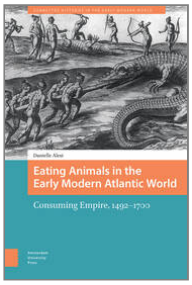
Eating Animals in the Early Modern Atlantic World

Consuming Empire, 1492-1700



Danielle Alesi

This book examines how the perceived edibility of animals evolved during the colonization of the Americas. Early European colonizers ate a variety of animals in the Americas, motivated by factors like curiosity, starvation, and diplomacy. By exploring the changes in animal edibility identifiable in early modern Spanish, French, and English sources in the regions of Mesoamerica, Greater Amazonia, and the east coast of North America, this book shows that animals, foodways, and settler colonialism are inextricably linked and that the colonization of the Americas was not only the beginning of new empires, but also of a long-lasting colonial food culture.

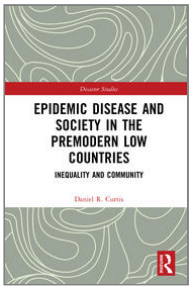
Epidemic Disease and Society in the Premodern Low Countries

Inequality and Community



Daniel R. Curtis

Series: Disaster Studies

In this book, evidence from a long-run history of epidemic-society interaction in the Low Countries shows that most recurring outbreaks were accommodated by communities, and most reactions, responses, and changes seen, were the product of frequent and incremental adaptations, sometimes in periods outside of epidemics. Challenging conventional narratives about epidemics as agents of dramatic change, this book will be of interest to researchers examining historiographical debates about crisis and continuity in European history.

Epistemic Practices and Plant Classification in Premodern European Botanical Knowledge

An Interdisciplinary Treatment

Edited by Fabrizio Baldassarri

Series: Scientiae Studies

This volume aims to uncover the diverse approach to plants in the Renaissance and 17th century that paved the way for a definition of botany as a fully-fledged discipline. Its scope expands beyond the natural historical interest in collections and the fabrication of materia medica: moving from Varchi, Matthioli and Bauhin to Locke, Pinelli, and Linnaeus, among others, the contributions collected here connect practical and theoretical features, dealing with the challenges that characterized any involvement with plants.

Erotic Discourses in History, Culture and the Arts

Edited by Aleksandra Musiał-Pudełko , Nina Augustynowicz , Agnieszka Podruczna

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

This volume examines the enduring entanglement of erotic desire with political, cultural, and historical change. Bringing together interdisciplinary scholarship, it explores how sex, sexuality, and eroticism both shape and are shaped by historical narratives, across diverse periods, geographies, and media. This book will be of value to scholars and students of history, literary and cultural studies, gender and sexuality studies, art history, and queer theory. Its multidisciplinary approach offers both specific historical insights and broader methodological reflections on how the study of eroticism can illuminate the workings of power and resistance.

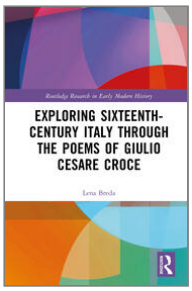
Exploring Sixteenth-Century Italy Through the Poems of Giulio Cesare Croce



Lena Breda

Series: Routledge Research in Early Modern History

This volume translates the poems of Giulio Cesare Croce: a sixteenth-century street poet and singer who plied his trade on the bustling streets of Bologna. Though widely popular in his time, Croce's work has been largely neglected by modern scholarship, and his poems remain largely untranslated into English—despite their frequent reference by Italian academics who recognize their value as vivid windows into Early Modern life.

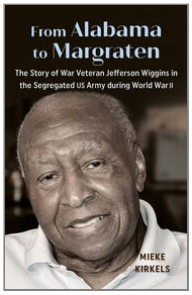
From Alabama to Margraten

The Story of War Veteran Jefferson Wiggins in the Segregated US Army during World War II



Mieke Kirkels

When he returned to the Netherlands in 2009, decades after World War II, Jefferson Wiggins realized that no one he met knew about the segregated US Army during the war, nor did they know about the contribution of Black American soldiers to the liberation of the Netherlands. They were not mentioned anywhere in Dutch history books or in archives. Together with oral historian Mieke Kirkels, Wiggins sat down to record his memories. With newly discovered archival material, and richly illustrated, this book gives a lively account of an undocumented story of WWII, Black American, and Dutch military history.

Living Techno-Natures

Biohybrid Objects, Life, and Technology

Edited by Josef Barla , Marco Tamborini

Series: History and Philosophy of Technoscience

Evolutionary algorithms that imitate nature to solve problems, synthetic DNA that turns plants into living data archives, and the use of autonomous machines inside living bodies are just some examples suggesting that the boundaries between life and technology have become fundamentally blurred in the early 21st century. While the technologization of organisms has a longer history, an increasing biologization of technology can be observed today in bioinformatics, molecular biology, and other fields. Bringing together interdisciplinary contributions, the volume provide insights on the emergence and nature of biohybrid objects from philosophy, epistemology, science and technology studies.

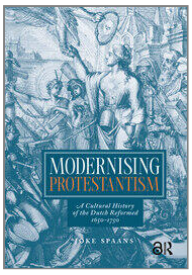
Modernising Protestantism

A Cultural History of the Dutch Reformed, 1650-1750



Jo Spaans

This book provides a revision of the image of the public church under the Dutch Republic after the Peace of Westphalia and before the onset of the 'high Enlightenment'. Traditional church history considers the 17th and 18th centuries a period of decline. Yet this was the high tide of Dutch expansion when Dutch society was extremely rich. Rather than the traditional static image of a rather joyless and ossified orthodoxy, an exploration of the interface between the Reformed church and Dutch society at large reveals a religious culture that had much to offer to various audiences, in the sphere of knowledge production as well as in the form of spiritual solace and everything in between.

Nautical Rutters and New Bodies of Knowledge in the Age of the First Globalization, 1400-1600

Edited by Luis Ribeiro Instituto Superior Tecnico, Lisbon, Portugal, David Salomoni , Henrique Leitão

Series: Maritime Humanities, 1400-1800

The European maritime expansion of the fifteenth century reshaped global politics, economies, and perceptions of space. Central to this transformation was the mastery of long-distance sea routes and the development of rutters—technical documents recording navigational data and geographic observations. This book highlights the indispensable role of rutters and ships' logbooks in early modern navigation and knowledge production. Examining their legal, scientific, and cultural dimensions, it explores their evolution, influence on cartography, and impact beyond Europe, particularly in the Indian Ocean.

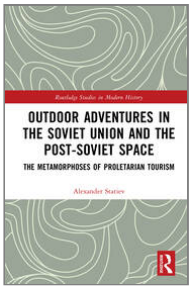
Outdoor Adventures in the Soviet Union and the Post-Soviet Space

The Metamorphoses of Proletarian Tourism



Alexander Statiev

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Exploring the evolution of adventure tourism in Russia from imperial times to the present, this book highlights the distinctive features of Soviet non-commercial expeditions organised by urbanites during their annual vacations. This study benefits from the unique personal perspective of the author who led numerous expeditions across Soviet wilderness. Outdoor Adventures in the Soviet Union and the Post-Soviet Space will be a useful resource to scholars of authoritarianism, especially those studying the latter in the context of cultural and sports history as well as for graduate students taking courses on cultural or social history.

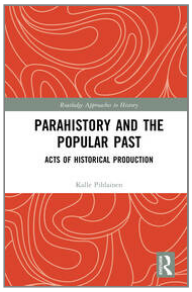
Parahistory and the Popular Past

Acts of Historical Production



Kalle Pihlainen University of Turku, Finland

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

Parahistory and the Popular Past challenges the tired debate over historical fact versus fiction by focusing on what really matters: how different forms of representation create meaning and establish responsibility. Moving beyond traditional disciplinary boundaries, this book diagnoses a fundamental tension between history's objectives and the generic forms available to achieve them. Through detailed investigations of narrative conventions, genre and historical experience, the book distinguishes between the historical and practical past. This book is essential reading for historians, literary scholars and anyone interested in how we make sense of the past.

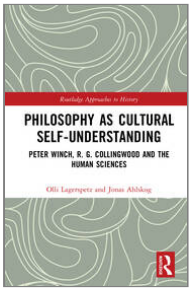
Philosophy as Cultural Self-Understanding

Peter Winch, R. G. Collingwood and the Human Sciences



Olli Lagerspetz Åbo Akademi University, Finland, Jonas Ahlskog Åbo Akademi University, Finland

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

This book argues for the value of reading Peter Winch (1926–1997), one of the important philosophers of the 20th century and known especially for his work on Wittgenstein and the philosophy of the social sciences, paired with R. G. Collingwood (1889–1942), famous for his philosophy of history. An accessible articulation of Winch's and Collingwood's thinking on key points, this volume is valuable reading for students and scholars interested in the philosophy of history and social science, presenting a vision of philosophy as an intellectual and existential pursuit.

Picturing Animals and Plants in Early Modern China and Japan

Innovation, Experiments, and Anxieties

Edited by Fan Lin , Doreen Mueller

The seven articles in this edited volume address the complex meanings that visual representations of plants and animals gained in early modern China and Japan. They aim to understand animals and plants in the new contexts of empirical and epistemological concerns, political and social agendas, and cultural interests. In particular, they examine the ways in which scholars, professional painters, and publishers engendered the sociohistorical meanings of the images.

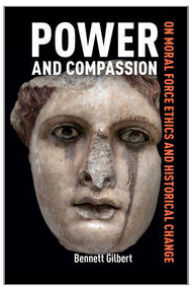
Power and Compassion

On Moral Force Ethics and Historical Change



Bennett Gilbert

This book presents a theory of the morality of human relations deeply drawn from widespread spiritual traditions, offering an account of the full range of sociality that comprises our moral life. Bennett Gilbert argues that the dynamic character of our choices and actions is developed as the center of philosophical inquiry into ethics. Relying on the tradition of philosophical personalism, the author reads moral life in terms of the central worth and value of human personhood. This fully relational concept supports a picture of the clash and cooperation of two great moral forces, power and compassion.

Protagonists of Urban Order from the Middle Ages to the Present

Actions, Ideas, Concepts

Edited by Irena Benyovsky Latin , Martina Stercken , Tonija Andric

Series: Central European Medieval Studies

European cities and towns are considered places with a particular order established by their inhabitants. This volume centres on the authorities, groups, and individuals who formed the rules for common life in urban communities. It considers the protagonists of urban order between the Middle Ages and modernity. The authors focus on the practices that shaped the order of urban communities and in particular on situations in which this order was transformed socially and spatially. By looking at urban order through this lens, the volume sheds light on the complex interplay of interests that can bring about change.

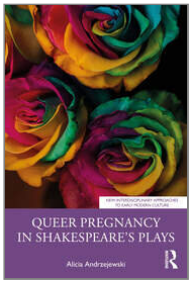
Queer Pregnancy in Shakespeare's Plays



Alicia Andrzejewski

Series: New Interdisciplinary Approaches to Early Modern Culture

Queer Pregnancy in Shakespeare's Plays addresses a conspicuous absence in queer readings of Shakespeare's work: the pregnant body. Through discussions of A Midsummer Night's Dream, Titus Andronicus, All's Well That Ends Well, Hamlet, and The Winter's Tale, this book dismantles the heteronormative frameworks through which pregnancy continues to be read.

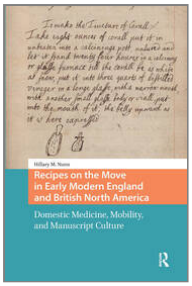
Recipes on the Move in Early Modern England and British North America

Domestic Medicine, Mobility, and Manuscript Culture



Hillary Nunn

Using feminist and ecocritical approaches and recent historical work on early modern trade and commerce, this volume focuses on early modern manuscripts whose travels can be traced from one location to another. It illustrates how recipes came to blend newly encountered ingredients and practices with long-established healthcare methods. Offers attention to the English countryside and the American colonies to expand what is often a London-centered view of English healthcare. This work shows how mobility brought new methods and materials to home healthcare, which in turn influenced how women and their families envisioned their relationships to their environment, their bodies, and their nation.

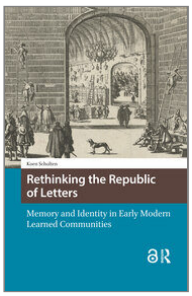
Rethinking the Republic of Letters

Memory and Identity in Early Modern Learned Communities



Koen Scholten

Series: Knowledge Communities

This book offers a revisionist look at the historiography of the Republic of Letters and the community of learning in early modern Europe. It suggests a new approach, conceptualising the learned world as a web of imagined communities in which the members do not know all their peers.This book looks at early modern biographical dictionaries (vitae), eulogies, letters, travelogues, and funerary monuments of early modern learned men to trace the (re)formation of these communities. It thereby offers a novel perspective on early modern learned communities – the many Republics of Letters.

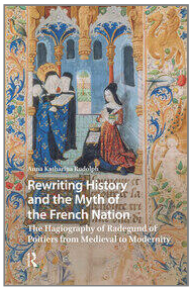
Rewriting History and the Myth of the French Nation

The Hagiography of Radegund of Poitiers from Medieval to Modernity



Anna Katharina Rudolph

Series: Hagiography Beyond Tradition

This analysis of the cult of Radegund of Poitiers, from the 6th century to the 21st, illuminates the roles saints play at the intersection of gender and politics. No other medieval saint was so politically charged or had such an astonishing range of constructed personae. The many "Radegunds" encountered in this study – virgin, wife, mother, royalist, republican, colonizer – can all be interpreted as responses to contemporary political events, shifting spiritual trends, and changing attitudes towards women's role in society or the Church. This ground-breaking study shows how powerful medieval hagiography has been and continues to be in the emergence of nationalism.

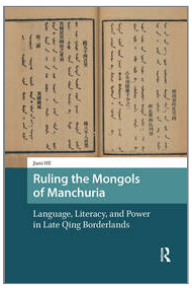
Ruling the Mongols of Manchuria

Language, Literacy, and Power in Late Qing Borderlands



Jiani He

Series: Asian History

At the turn of the 20th century, the Jirim League witnessed a linguistic struggle between Manchu, Mongol, Chinese, Japanese, and Russian powers. The Qing Empire envisioned a trilingual educational system, with the aim of improving the Jirim Mongols' ability to read Chinese, Manchu, and Mongolian. This book challenges the notion of Chinese language reform as a story of linear progression towards national monolingualism, highlights the power of multilingualism in Chinese nationalist discourse from a peripheral, non-Han Chinese perspective, and questions the extent to which national languages dominate the writing of history.

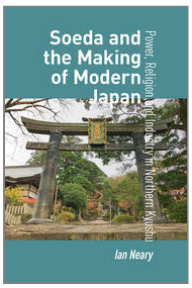
Soeda and the Making of Modern Japan

Power, Religion and Industry in Northern Kyushu



Ian Neary

Series: Politics, Security and Society in Asia Pacific

Soeda, Japan offers a microcosm of Japanese history spanning a millennium. From the 12th century, it housed the strategic Ganjakujo castle until Toyotomi Hideyoshi destroyed it in 1587. The castle controlled access to Mt. Hiko, Kyushu's monastic center until the 1870s. During the early 20th century, the Kurauchi family's coal mines drove local modernization and national industrialization, later employing Korean laborers and Allied POWs during the Pacific War. After contributing to Japan's 1950s economic growth, Soeda's mines closed in the 1960s when the nation shifted to oil. Mayor Fumio (1971-2010) helped, though Soeda continues searching for a new identity in the 21st century.

Songs of Liberation in the Netherlands

The Transatlantic Soundtrack of Freedom

Edited by Frank Mehring

After the Netherlands' liberation from Nazi occupation in 1945, liberation songs became powerful expressions of newfound freedom. This book explores this musical phenomenon through Frank Mehring's work with international collaborators. Drawing from Hugo Keesing's collection of over 300 rare sheet songs at the Freedom Museum in Groesbeek, the book examines how these transatlantic musical expressions captured the nation's euphoria and helped shape cultural memory. These rediscovered songs provide a unique window into the emotional landscape of post-liberation Netherlands, connecting modern readers to this transformative historical moment.

The Cityscapes of Taipei, Hong Kong, and Singapore during the Cold War

Edited by Tze-ki Hon , Ying-kit Chan

Series: Asian Cities

This volume presents a comparative analysis of three key cities: Hong Kong, Singapore, and Taipei, during the Cold War. Strategically positioned within trade networks, these cities served as critical nodes for regional conflicts and cooperation. The comparison focuses on their urban landscapes, drawing on the memories embedded in their collective memoryscapes, the imagery presented in their filmscapes, and the perceptions of their inhabitants, as reflected in fiction and films that portrayed urban life and the experiences of ordinary people. This book explores both the shared characteristics of these cities as frontiers in the bipolar global system and their features as unique spaces.

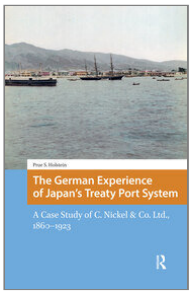
The German Experience of Japan's Treaty Port System

A Case Study of C. Nickel & Co. Ltd., 1860–1923



Prue S. Holstein

Series: Imperialism in East Asia

German merchants were attracted to the British Empire's spheres of influence in northeast Asia from the 1700s. Their numbers increased when Britain established a network of treaty ports in China from 1842 and in Japan from 1858. A latecomer to empire, Germany, unified only in 1871, extended its imperial influence in China in 1898. This is the story of two German merchants, Carl Nickel and his relative and successor Christian Holstein, ancestors of the author's husband, as they built their company, C. Nickel & Co. Ltd. in Kobe into their own waterfront empire contributing to the growth and modernization of the port. This is the story of how they operated in treaty port Japan.

The Great Depression in Eastern Europe

Edited by Klaus Richter , Anca Mandru , Jasmin Nithammer

As the centenary of the Great Depression approaches, this book offers a historical study of its impact on Eastern Europe. Due to its agricultural dominance this region was particularly hard hit. The volume focuses on ten states of the interwar period that had emerged from the Ottoman, Romanov, Habsburg, and Hohenzollern empires and where national sovereignty was particularly contested. By moving the study of economic nationalism from economic history to the center of social and political history, the volume contributes to a much better understanding of states, societies and nationalism in Eastern Europe in the 1930s.

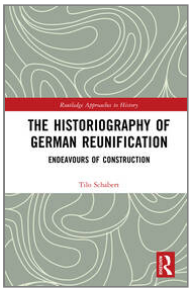
The Historiography of German Reunification

Endeavours of Construction



Tilo Schabert

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

The Historiography of German Reunification presents a critical paradigm for both the de-constructing and constructing process of catching events in the past by a re-presentation of those events in the form of a scholarly sustained story. The supporting argument is this: All historiography constructs, as an endeavour that builds upon already existing and equally constructed documentation concerning the original events. The authors of such documentation are the first historians steering all subsequent historiography. Written in an accessible style, the book will be of interest to scholars and researchers of Historiography, Political History, and European History.

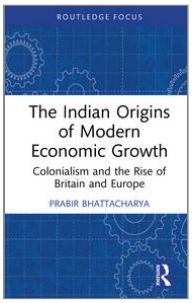
The Indian Origins of Modern Economic Growth

Colonialism and the Rise of Britain and Europe



Prabir Bhattacharya

Modern economic growth first emerged in Britain and then spread to a few other countries in western Europe and the USA. This book argues that it is her control over India which put Britain at the apex of the world economy in the nineteenth century. Technological innovations of the nineteenth century were embedded in that globalisation process. The book is likely to be of interest to a diverse readership, beyond those interested in economic history and growth economics.

The Inner Court of Communist China

Elites and Their Bureaucratic Institutions in an Authoritarian System (1921-2022)

Wen-Hsuan Tsai

Series: China: From Revolution to Reform

This book discusses the mishu (staff member, secretary) system and the operation of the Chinese Communist Party between 1921 and 2022, focusing on the system's impact on high-level politics and decision-making during four key periods. Starting with the Revolutionary War (1921–1945), it moves to the founding of the People's Republic of China and the beginning of the Cultural Revolution (1950–1966), the period of the Cultural Revolution (1966–1976), and finally the period of reform and opening up, bringing the history to the present day (1976–2022). This is the first systematic analysis of the mishu system, offering new insights on the history of the CCP and modern China.

The Legal Framework of Slavery in the Dutch Republic and Its Colonies

Baastian D. van der Velden

Series: Slavery and Emancipation

This study centers on the Dutch Republic, where Roman law—applied alongside contemporary legislation—was used to regulate the lives of enslaved individuals across its territories, albeit in a highly selective manner. Which provisions of Roman law were implemented, and what lead to the exclusion of others?This book investigates these questions through a historical analysis of the legal transfer of Roman law within both the metropole and the colonies. Special attention is given to the private law governing enslaved persons in the Dutch Republic and its overseas territories.

The Stockholm Bloodbath of 1520

Context and Commemoration

Edited by Heiko Droste , Kurt Villads Jensen

Series: Crossing Boundaries: Turku Medieval and Early Modern Studies

The Stockholm Bloodbath on November 7–9, 1520, during which Kristian II had more than 100 persons executed on charges of heresy, is a turning point in the history of the Northern kingdoms. This bloodbath eventually led to Kristian II's lifelong incarceration, the rise of the Swedish Vasa dynasty, and the end of the Kalmar Union. It has commonly been perceived both as part of Swedish-Danish conflict and also as part of a Swedish civil war. In this volume, fifteen researchers offer new insights both into the events themselves and also, most significantly, into their background and aftermath, which stretch far beyond Stockholm and the year 1520.

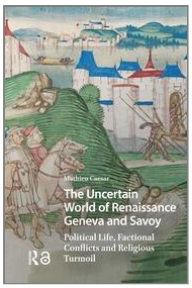
The Uncertain World of Renaissance Geneva and Savoy

Political Life, Factional Conflicts and Religious Turmoil



Mathieu Caesar

Series: Renaissance History, Art and Culture

Uncertainty and instability affected Geneva and the Duchy of Savoy since the mid-15th century. In Geneva, and partially in other towns of Piedmont and the Pays de Vaud, this instability fuelled urban factionalism, confessional conflicts, but also wider discussions about the ways in which society could be reformed. This book looks at how political life worked in a time of great instability, seeking to answer a straightforward—but not easy—question: how did people face and react to political and religious uncertainty?

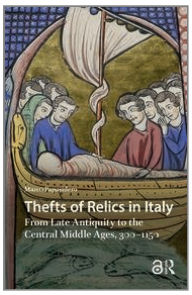
Thefts of Relics in Italy

From Late Antiquity to the Central Middle Ages, 300–1150



Marco Papasidero

Series: Italy in Late Antiquity and the Early Middle Ages

With the birth of the cult of the saints, their relics became valuables whose possession would guarantee prestige, protection, and spiritual benefits to a town, church, or monastery. For this reason the relics began to be stolen, with numerous cases documented throughout Europe. At the same time, a rich hagiographic literature flourished to describe the contexts in which the thefts occurred and to demonstrate their authenticity. This book seeks to reconstruct the cultural history of the theft of relics in the specific context of Italy, from Late Antiquity to the Central Middle Ages, availing itself of an interdisciplinary perspective.

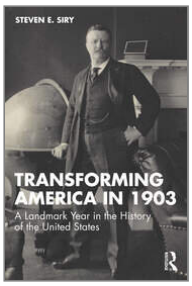
Transforming America in 1903

A Landmark Year in the History of the United States



Steven E. Siry Baldwin Wallace University, UK

1903 was a seminal but overlooked year in the development of the United States. Through an analytical narrative of 31 historic events, this book examines how these 12 months would prefigure and shape significant transformation in the U.S. for over a century to come. Providing engaging reading for students and scholars of the emergence of Modern America and the Progressive Era, Transforming America in 1903 presents an in-depth depiction of a groundbreaking year.

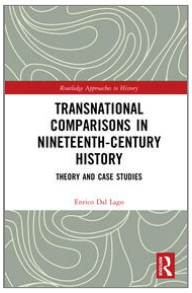
Transnational Comparisons in Nineteenth-Century History

Theory and Case Studies



Enrico Dal Lago

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

Transnational Comparisons in Nineteenth-Century History: Theory and Case Studies emphasises the equal value of comparative and transnational historical investigations, but also argues that every comparative study that looks beyond one nation is intrinsically transnational. This book provides scholars, researchers, and students working on the nineteenth century with a resource for comparative history in both theoretical and practical terms. It combines a methodological introduction with specific case-studies of transnational comparisons of individuals, groups, cities, events, processes, and beliefs within a Euro-American historical context.

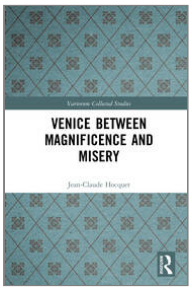
Venice Between Magnificence and Misery



Jean-Claude Hocquet

Series: Variorum Collected Studies

This book combines thirteen chapters previously written by the author throughout his career, discussing the history of Venice throughout this period. It covers topics such as: maritime trade, trade routes from Egypt to England, and how the Venetians exploited their overseas colonies. It also analyses the salt trade, public monopolies, the use of credit, and investment. Venice Between Magnificence and Misery will appeal to students and scholars alike interested in the history of Venice throughout the Middle Ages, as well as the history of maritime trade and business.

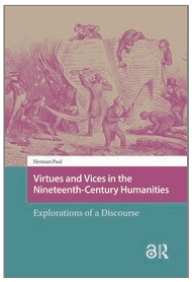
Virtues and Vices in the Nineteenth-Century Humanities

Explorations of a Discourse



Herman Paul

Series: Studies in the History of Knowledge

What do scholars do when they talk about virtues (impartiality, accuracy) or vices (dogmatism, prejudice)? Against the common view that such high-minded talk is largely irrelevant to actual scholarly practice, this volume proposes to treat it as a practice in its own right. Drawing on case studies from the nineteenth-century humanities (with occasional forays into physics, chemistry, and medicine), Paul shows that notions of virtue and vice were an evaluative discourse used across the academic spectrum. Based on more than a decade of research, this volume will be a key reference for scholars interested in virtues, vices, and the history of the humanities.

Wars and Rumours of War, 1918-1945: Japan, the West and Asia Pacific - Series 1

Roger Buckley

Wars and Rumours of War brings together a wide selection of contemporary English-language primary material in order to illustrate how authors from both Asia and the West saw contemporary events. For the first time, this new series makes available books, journal essays and periodical articles, many of which may be absent from standard bibliographies, with a view to widening debate and underlining the diversity of opinion that was available to contemporary audiences in Asia and beyond who were anxious to follow developments as they unfolded.

Weapon Manufacture and Authority on the Frontier of Late and Post-Roman Italy

Eastern Lake Como and the Insula Comacina

Fabio Carminati , Andrea Mariani

Series: Italy in Late Antiquity and the Early Middle Ages

This monograph presents a microstudy of a crucially important and profoundly revealing location: the territory around the modern city of Lecco, which lies on the eastern branch of Lake Como, in Lombardy (northern Italy). Contrary to 'traditional' reconstructions that present eastern Lake Como as a marginal region, where no important events took place in Late Antiquity and the Early Middle Ages, this book demonstrates that the area functioned as a key point of connection across the Roman Empire (the Rhine–Danube limes) and continued to function long after the political collapse of the Empire in the West.

Wilsonianism in Southern Europe and Latin America

The Political Impact of Woodrow Wilson After the First World War

Edited by Maximiliano Fuentes Codera , Giaime Pala

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Approaches to the impact of Wilsonianism have traditionally been developed from the fields of international relations, international law, and the study of global self-determination movements. This book offers a complementary and original perspective by examining the political influence of Wilsonian ideals in the broader crisis of liberalism following the First World War.

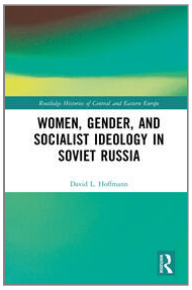
Women, Gender, and Socialist Ideology in Soviet Russia



David L. Hoffmann

Series: Routledge Histories of Central and Eastern Europe

This book examines the place of women in Soviet Russia from the 1917 Revolution through the post-World War II period, discussing how the Soviet construction of gender perpetuated inequality even as it dramatically expanded women's roles in society. The book makes clear the centrality of the Soviet gender order to the country's social, cultural, and political history, as well as providing an important historical case for understanding the broader struggle for women's equality.

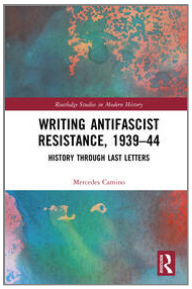
Writing Antifascist Resistance, 1939–44

History Through Last Letters



Mercedes Camino Lancaster University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Writing Antifascist Resistance examines the final letters of five antifascist activists who faced execution during World War II, including three teenagers. From Julia Conesa and Guy Môquet, who were given mere hours to write before their firing squad executions, to Masha Bruskina, Mordechai Anielewicz and Olga Bancic, whose messages were delivered clandestinely, these last letters reveal the human face of resistance against fascism.

Archaeological Perspectives on Contested and Political Landscapes

Edited by Eduardo Herrera Malatesta

Series: Landscape and Heritage Studies

This book focuses on alternative definitions of landscape in archaeology, particularly those that explicitly address landscapes' political aspects. In doing so, this volume emphasizes the non-static, dialogic nature of landscape within a community and acknowledges how a community's composition and its relationship with the landscape can lead to tensions and even violent conflicts with other groups. Understanding how landscapes were created and contested in the past is essential for understanding their political, economic, and cultural manifestations in the present in order to better organize ourselves for a truly integrative future.

Ceramic Perspectives on Connectivity in the Ancient Mediterranean

Edited by Jill Hilditch , Martina Revello Lami

Series: Amsterdam Archaeological Studies

The identification of ceramic imports within prehistoric and historic assemblages has long been the primary indicator for identifying connections between different sites and regions. Approaches such as post-colonial perspectives and network analysis are now beginning to offer more meaningful ways of considering past interactions. What extent do geographical categories such as island, coast, mainland or hinterland influence modern ideas on the dynamics of these ancient communities? This volume uses ceramic studies across multiple spatial and diachronic scales to provide new insights into the connectivity of ancient Mediterranean communities.

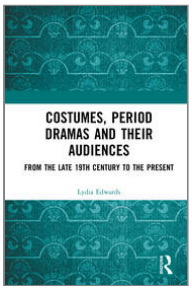
Costumes, Period dramas and their Audiences

From the late 19th Century to the Present



Lydia Edwards

This book considers the notion of 'historical escapism' through both costume and fashion design, illustrating how one informs the other to produce different consumable representations of the past, to quell contemporary anxieties, and to confront generational traumas. This book can be used by students across a wide range of courses including Fashion History, Theatre History, Costume Design, Art History, Film Studies, and Memory Studies. It applies a multi-disciplinary approach to examine the ways in which history is consumed and understood through period dramas.

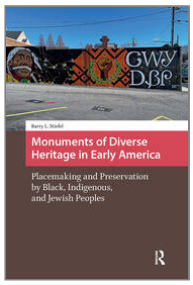
Monuments of Diverse Heritage in Early America

Placemaking and Preservation by Black, Indigenous, and Jewish Peoples



Barry L. Stiefel

Series: Landscape and Heritage Studies

Monuments of Diverse Heritage in Early America: Placemaking and Preservation by Black, Indigenous, and Jewish Peoples explores a more inclusive history of preserving public historic sites. At a time when some Americans have embraced white nationalism in response to unfolding demographic changes and others celebrate individual identities over all else, an inclusive, tolerant, and unifying historical vision is sorely needed. An inclusive, empowering history can provide social cohesion while allowing room for individual groups to have authority over their pasts and representation in public, side-by-side with one another.

Resilience as Heritage in Asia

Edited by Michael Herzfeld , Rita Padawangi

Series: Asian Heritages

This study analyzes forms of collective resilience through manifestations of strength-in-fragility in selected communities in Asia (Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, and Thailand). Persistent resistance to communal erasure taking place through repressive policies and commercialized, multinational urban development insensitive to local communities and values often presents an uphill battle. The authors argue that persisting vernacular spaces located between resistance and co-optation are themselves a form of local cultural heritage in the rapidly urbanizing region.

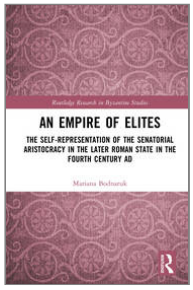
An Empire of Elites

The Self-Representation of the Senatorial Aristocracy in the Later Roman State in the Fourth Century AD



Mariana Bodnaruk

Series: Routledge Research in Byzantine Studies

Empire of Elites investigates the self-representation of the late Roman senatorial aristocracy in epigraphic evidence to illuminate the cultural, social, and political dynamics of the Later Roman Empire. In the Roman hierarchy, the senatorial order stood above all social strata. By examining aristocratic inscriptions and materiality—supplemented by art identified as senatorial and contextualized within contemporary literature—the study situates the self-image of the empire's highest-ranking elites within the broader context of fourth-century imperial society.

Classical Encounters in England's North East

Edited by Edith Hall , Rory McInnes-Gibbons , Edmund Thomas

This is the first book to explore the history of ancient Greek and Roman influences and reception in England's North East, topics which have often transcended social boundaries dictated by working identity, class, religion, gender, and ethnicity. Together, the chapters cover a broad range of themes and topics from architecture, theatre, working-class education, poetry, post-war novels and Hadrian's Wall. This pioneering and richly illustrated study of Classical Reception from a local-historical perspective is of interest to students and scholars working in Classics and the social, cultural, intellectual, and local history of England.

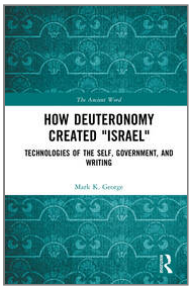
How Deuteronomy Created "Israel"

Technologies of the Self, Government, and Writing



Mark K. George

Series: The Ancient Word

In this book, Mark George argues that the goal of Deuteronomy is not merely to provide ancient Judah with another set of laws but to write "Israel" itself into existence. He reads Deuteronomy as a manual for self-definition with two key aspects: being Israelite means recognizing oneself as a subject under Yahweh's control, and Deuteronomy is the handbook of techniques by which one monitors oneself to become Israel. This book provides an invaluable exploration of Deuteronomy, of interest to scholars and students working on Deuteronomy itself and biblical studies more generally.

Masculinities in the New Testament and Beyond

Edited by Peter-Ben Smit , Laura Pasterkamp

The study of gender in early Christianity has been one of the catalysts for new historical insight into the early Jesus movement and beyond. By focusing on the construction of various kinds of masculinities in early Christian texts, both biblical and extra-biblical, and by showcasing a number of examples of the reception of such texts in the construction and discussion of masculinities, the essays collected in this volume draw attention to a kind of gender that is often in equal measure overlooked as it is influential in the shaping of communities and societies

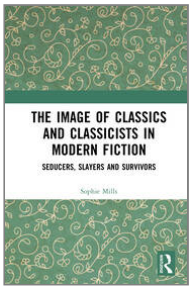
The Image of Classics and Classicists in Modern Fiction

Seducers, Slayers and Survivors



Sophie Mills

This book explores the portrayal of the discipline of Classics and its practitioners as it emerges from fiction written in the United Kingdom and United States from the 19th century to the present day. This is the first book-length treatment of Classics and its practitioners in the popular imagination. It is suitable for students and scholars of classical reception, but also offers a fascinating insight into the perceptions in modern culture of Classics more broadly, of interest to anyone working or studying within the discipline.

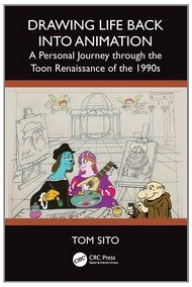
Drawing Life Back Into Animation

A Personal Journey through the Toon Renaissance of the 1990s



Tom Sito

By the 1980s animated cartoons were seen as an artform in decline. An archaic vestige of the old Hollywood studio system. Yet by the 1990s animation was booming. What happened? Join Tom Sito, a veteran Hollywood animator who was there as he takes us deep inside the studio corridors to watch the birth of Roger and Jessica, Bart and Lisa, Woody and Buzz, Shrek, Simba, Mario, Lara Croft and Yu Gi Oh.

Mastering Storyboarding

Professional Techniques for Visual Storytelling

Caroline Hu

This book offers a comprehensive and practical introduction to the fundamentals of storyboarding, making it an ideal resource for aspiring filmmakers, animators, and visual storytellers. It bridges the gap between written scripts and visual storytelling by demonstrating how scenes are translated into storyboard panels. Readers can see how scripts are broken down into individual shots, and how those shots are visually constructed on the page. Whether you're a student or a working professional looking to sharpen your skills, this book serves as both an instructional manual and an applicable and visual reference guide.

4TH EDITION

The Business of Media Distribution

Monetizing Film and TV Content in the AI Era

Jeffrey C. Ulin Former head of worldwide distribution for Lucasfilm, San Francisco, CA, USA, Tim O'Hair

Series: American Film Market Presents

With an insider's perspective, the book explores how an idea moves from concept to profit and how distribution dominates the bottom line: Hollywood stars may make the headlines, but marketing and distribution are the behind-the-scenes drivers converting content into cash. In this fourth edition, new focus will be on the growth and diversification of streaming video – with its inherent issues and maturation – and how AI is poised to impact market segments. As with previous editions, the material is interwoven with perspectives from key industry executives at studios, networks, agencies and streaming leaders.

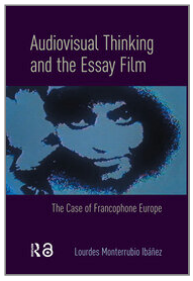
Audiovisual Thinking and the Essay Film

The Case of Francophone Europe



Lourdes Monterrubio Ibáñez

From a semio-pragmatic perspective and drawing on an interdisciplinary and intermedial approach, this book analyses how the audiovisual thinking process manifests itself in essay films. The study is developed in three stages. The first analyses the intermedial forms that are used: the letter, the (self-)portrait, the dialogue, the diptych, etc. The second examines the audiovisual materials that are mobilised. The third addresses the audiovisual procedures that are generated. In its analysis of works by Marker, Godard, Akerman, Varda and others, this book offers a new and detailed understanding of the production, evolution and achievements of the essay film in Francophone Europe.

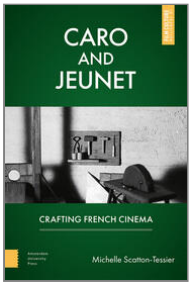
Caro and Jeunet

Crafting French Cinema



Michelle Scatton-Tessier

Series: Film Culture in Transition

The first book to fully focus on French cult filmmakers Marc Caro and Jean-Pierre Jeunet, it brings a scholarly perspective to the filmmakers' collaborative and solo artistic projects as outliers in approach and content. Studying from their beginning passion for animation history to their most current works, Scatton-Tessier establishes their presence and recognition as do-it-yourselfers in comics culture, advertising, and film production. Covering punk, DIY production, intertextuality, performance, and vigilantism through close film analysis and cultural studies research, this book offers a much-needed look at Caro and Jeunet's forty-plus years of artistic innovation.

Series: China Perspectives

Focusing on a decade of controversy surrounding genetically modified organisms (GMOs) in China, this book provides a rigorous, mixed-method analysis of how risk discourses are constructed and disseminated on the social media platform Weibo. Breaking down the mechanisms behind the viral spread of GMO risk information, it examines how message features, contextual factors (e.g., source credibility), network structures, and social contagion processes shape what we believe and share. An essential resource for science policymakers, risk communication professionals, and other stakeholders seeking to navigate the complexities of risk and uncertainty in the digital age.

Critical Approaches to Art, Race and Coloniality in Eastern Europe

Edited by Dorota Jagoda Michalska Central European University in Budapest, Hungary., Marta Zboralska University of Oxford, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Art and Visual Studies

Building on recent scholarship that challenges the supposed historical isolation of Eastern European art from the colonial matrix of power, this book critiques the sometimes uncritical application of established Western postcolonial and decolonial theories to the region's visual production. The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history, colonialism and postcolonialism studies, and Eastern European studies.

Cultural Landscapes of Energy

Constructing Histories of Power, Prosperity, and Decline in Europe

Edited by Corinne Geering , Torsten Meyer

Series: Critical Heritages of Europe

This volume explores the contested heritage of landscapes impacted by energy production. It offers a comparative perspective across Europe on different energy resources and reveals the hidden histories behind current efforts to revalorise the industrial heritage of energy production. The volume contributes new insights to the fields of energy and environmental history, heritage studies, memory studies, landscape architecture, and sustainability science. It provides rich materials on energy landscapes across Europe for researchers as well as policymakers and practitioners interested in energy transition, (post-)industrial heritage, and cultural tourism.

Death, Disease and Mystical Experience in Early Modern Art

Edited by Michael Hill , Jennifer Milam

Series: Visual and Material Culture, 1300-1700

Fear of death and disease preoccupied the European consciousness throughout the early modern era, becoming most acute at times of plague and epidemics. In this series of essays focused on spiritual sensibilities in Renaissance art and its legacies, authors present original ideas about the themes of death, disease, and mystical experience, based primarily on the study of objects and their documented historical contexts. Methodologically wide-ranging in approach, the resulting volume provides novel insights into the interplay between suffering and art making in the Western world.

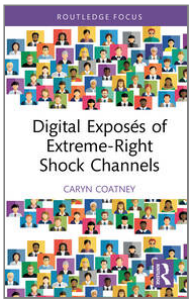
Digital Exposés of Extreme-Right Shock Channels



Caryn Coatney University of Southern Queensland, Australia

This book takes an in-depth look at journalists' developing practices to expose the extreme-right networks that receive many millions of views across the dark web and mainstream platforms. It draws on ideas about journalism's role as a digital guardian, or a gatekeeper, which can engage audiences about the need to counter viral terror content and white supremacist material. The book is intended to be a useful resource to researchers, scholars and students of journalism, communication, media and politics, as well as professionals already operating within the field of journalism.

Doubting Women in Early Modern Italy

Gender, Uncertainty, and Agency

Edited by Marco Faini

This book explores early modern Italian women as agents of doubt. The volume covers a period from the late 15th to the mid 17th centuries, offering critical insight into early modern doubt and investigating how doubt, like other categories of thought, could be gendered. Contributors address the topics of doubt and the Querelle des Femmes, religion, writing, and social networks. The volume offers a multidisciplinary approach to early modern doubt, combining gender studies with religious history, the history of literature, social history, and the history of science.

Exhibiting Chinese Art in Asia

Histories, Politics and Practices

Edited by Chui-fun Selina Ho

Series: Asian Visual Cultures

This volume examines the emerging exhibition complex on Chinese art in early 20th-century China, and from the mid-1950s onwards, the cultural politics involved in Asia with the exhibitions of traditional and modern Chinese art in Taiwan, Japan, Hong Kong and Singapore. It also scrutinizes the curatorial practices that have influenced the interpretation and display of Chinese art amidst the advance of media technology and heritage engagement in the twenty-first century. The volume is inclusive of multiple geo-cultural perspectives, and the dynamic practices that relate art tradition or heritage to more universal spatiotemporal art experience and engagement.

Film Activism in Contemporary Indonesia

Platforms of Participation and Representation

Edited by Edwin Jurriëns , Jemma Purdey , Novi Kurnia

Series: Asian Visual Cultures

This edited volume seeks to evaluate the complex tensions between democratic renewal and regression by focusing on the activist efforts by Indonesian filmmakers to maintain and open spaces for creative experimentation, critical reflection and social diversity. After the fall of the authoritarian New Order regime (1967–98), Indonesia embarked on a journey of renewed freedom, known as Reformasi. In recent years, however, democracy and civic freedoms have been in decline.

Governing the Digital Society

Platforms, Artificial Intelligence, and Public Values

Edited by José van Dijck , Karin van Es , Anne Helmond , Fernando van der Vlist

Series: Digital Studies

Digital technologies have rapidly become integral to communities and societies, bringing both significant benefits and serious concerns. Issues such as misinformation, disinformation, online polarization, discrimination, and widening inequalities have prompted a critical and urgent debate: Can digital societies still be effectively governed? This book brings together insights from various disciplines to address the pressing question: How can we develop and apply principles of (good) governance in digital societies that are organized democracies?

Gustav Klimt and Japanese Art in Fin-de-Siècle Vienna

Deciphering Klimt's Stylistic Evolution

Svitlana V. Shiells

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

This probing and innovative monograph, based on interdisciplinary and multicultural approach, traces the trajectory of the Japanese influence on Klimt's heterogeneous and idiosyncratic oeuvre. Putting Klimt's experimentations with Japanese stimuli in a broad historical and cultural context, it unfolds a vibrant picture of the unprecedented creative dialogue and synthesis of Japanese models by one of the most important modernists. Closely investigating the intricate anatomy of Klimt's art, this ground-breaking project constructs a critical theory of the evolution of Klimt's style and is the first comprehensive study of the role of Japonisme in its genesis.

Internet Vulgarities in China

Cultures, Governance and Politics

Edited by Jian Xu , Dino Ge Zhang

Series: Asian Visual Cultures

Internet Vulgarities in China is the first comprehensive study to critically examine the cultures, governance, and politics of internet vulgarities in the Chinese society. Empirically rich case studies explore the nature, regulation and evolution of internet cultural products, vernacular internet cultures and subcultural online communities which have been deemed 'vulgar' by the state, official media and policy documents. This timely book demonstrates that the disciplinary power of China's 'anti-vulgarity' campaigns stems from the state's strategic use of the ambiguous concept of 'vulgarity' to judge and regulate the aesthetic and ethical dimensions of popular digital media.

Lyrical Experiments in Sinophone Verse

Time, Space, Bodies, and Things

Edited by Justyna Jaguscik , Joanna Krenz , Andrea Riemenschnitter

The 1919 May Fourth movement was the breeding ground for experiments by authors inspired by new world literary trends. Under Mao Zedong, folk songs accompanied political campaigns such as the Great Leap Forward. The most recent stage in Chinese poetry resonates with contemporary concerns, such as technological innovation, environmental degradation, socio-political transformations, and the return of geopolitical Cold War divisions. This volume identifies 3 foci in current discourses: formal crossovers, multiple realities, and liquid boundaries. These three themes often intersect within texts from mainland China, Hong Kong and Taiwan.

Metaphysics and Aesthetics of Decoration

Ornamental Thinking

Edited by Michaela Fišerová University of Jan Evangelista in Ústí nad Labem, Czech Republic, Jakub Mácha Masaryk University, Czech Republic

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

This volume offers a fresh and timely contribution to current discussions of ornamentation, repetition, and affect in aesthetics. It provides new insights into how ornamentation shapes artistic, philosophical, and social practices, positioning it as a dynamic force in contemporary thought. It challenges the traditional notion that ornament is mere decoration and reframes it as a vital philosophical and cultural concept. Drawing on thinkers like Wittgenstein, Heidegger, Derrida, Deleuze, and Foucault, the contributors explore how ornamentation operates as a parergon, a site of affective repetition, and a marker of epistemological shifts.

Navigating the Landscapes of Design Research

Finding Your Way

Edited by Michael R. Gibson The University of North Texas, U.S.A, Keith M. Owens

Series: Design Research for Change

This book provides emerging and established designers and design educators, along with their collaborators, with a means to understand how and why the landscape of design research has come to exist as it does, and how and why its various destinations and pathways connect. It is an accessible "guide" for those in and around design who have little to no experience with planning and conducting research to inform their decision-making. The book will be of interest to scholars and designers working in design studies and design research, as well as to design practitioners who are increasingly called upon to understand and act upon data gleaned from evidence-based research.

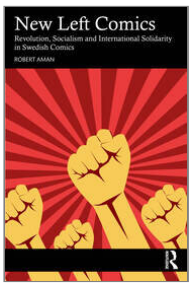
New Left Comics

Revolution, Socialism and International Solidarity in Swedish Comics



Robert Aman Linköping University, Sweden

Series: Global Perspectives in Comics Studies

New Left Comics examines the leftist radicalization in Sweden during the decade immediately succeeding 1968 through the lens of comic books. It looks at four of the most popular and widely read comic books and graphic novels – Johan Vilde, Tumac, Mystiska 2:an, and The Phantom – between 1968-1980, and uncovers the ways in which writers and artists used mainstream comics as a medium to teach and inform readers about various forms of injustices and inequality – as well as utopian futures – by adding social, political, and economic comments.

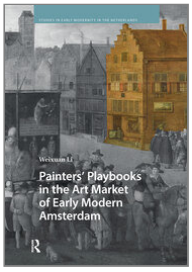
Painters' Playbooks in the Art Market of Early Modern Amsterdam



Weixuan Li

Series: Studies in Early Modernity in The Netherlands

The art market in 17th-century Amsterdam is renowned as a competitive, multi-layered arena where diverse artists catered to a broad and varied clientele. This book introduces an innovative socio-spatial approach, using digital methods to examine the art market, shedding light on the artistic development in 17th-century Amsterdam. By synthesizing various historical sources digitally, this book delves into artists' collective behaviours. It illustrates how the changes in artists' playbooks not only shaped the multi-layered market structure but also influenced artistic innovation in this period.

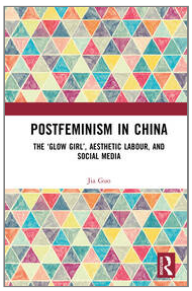
Postfeminism in China

The 'Glow Girl', Aesthetic Labour, and Social Media



Jia Guo

Situated within feminist media and cultural studies, this book examines the everyday aesthetic labour of young middle-class Chinese women and their related social media practices. It also critically contextualises postfeminism within China's paradoxically neoliberal society. Tailored for scholars and students in gender and cultural studies, media studies, and China studies, the book proves especially beneficial for those interested in burgeoning feminist and gender-related research topics in the transnational context of digital China. It appeals to a broader readership intrigued by digital culture, gender dynamics, and notions of beauty in contemporary Chinese society.

Post-Yugoslav Cinema and the Shadows of War

A Study of Non-Representation in Film

Bosnia-Herzegovina is still considered a post-war country. A range of post-Yugoslav films provides spectators with images that offer innovative approaches to the collective past, while simultaneously reframing contemporary experience. This study proposes to call non-representational images appears to offer a more dynamic relationship to the past and the present, while reflecting complex processes of the formation of identity, memory, guilt, and responsibility. But if these dynamics are inherent in non-representational images, is there a way in which they can contribute to overcoming the post-war condition?

Precarity in Western European Cinema

Temenuga Trifonova

Series: Film Culture in Transition

This book explores the new European cinema of precarity, with focus on Western European films, by revisiting some of its most important precursors, including 1930s Popular Front films and 1990s French New Realism, Italian neorealism, and the British New Wave. It identifies themes and motifs in contemporary films and their precursors, as well as important continuities and discontinuities between earlier and later representations of work, class, class struggle, solidarity, precarity, the moral economy of capitalism and neoliberalism and their affective pathologies. Trifonova examines the ways in which the cinema of precarity mediates economic and social capital in the age of neoliberalism.

Rethinking North–South Discourses

Reparations and Historical Injustice

Edited by Bianca Sola Claudio , Filipe Campello

Series: Routledge Global Cooperation Series

This book challenges the asymmetries in dialogues between the Global South and Global North. The book considers how the literature on reparative politics in itself often perpetuates Western-centric models which risk leading to paternalistic approaches, as well as undermining the agency of thinkers, activists, and victims within the Global South. The book considers questions of affirmative action, collective memory, and alternative frameworks for dialogue on reparations. Interdisciplinary by design, this book will be an important read for researchers across the fields of political science, international relations, global studies, and sociology.

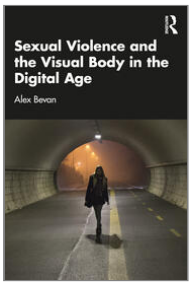
Sexual Violence and the Visual Body in the Digital Age



Alex Bevan

This book traces the role of surveillance technology in film and television depictions of rape in the 2000s. It shows how the stranger rape narrative is popularly used as a sense-making tool for the entanglement of the body, digital technology, and institutions of power. These films and television series interrogate the digital management of self-representation.

Slavery in the Cultural Imagination

Debates, Silences, and Dissent in the Neerlandophone Space

Edited by Marrigje Paijmans , Karwan Fatah-Black

Series: Slavery and Emancipation

This collection examines cultural representations of slavery and indenture across the neerlandophone space (former Dutch colonies) from early modern times to today. Scholars from diverse disciplines analyze how narratives reveal hidden voices in colonial discourse and unrecorded collective emotions. The work spans literature, archives, legal documents, performance, architecture, photography, and philosophy created both in the Netherlands and by enslaved/indentured peoples. By providing this long-term perspective, the collection illuminates the deep historical roots of the colonial cultural archive amid growing interest in colonialism's legacy.

States of Immersion Across Media

Bodies, Techniques, Practices

Edited by Philippe Bédard , Alanna Thain , Carl Therrien

Series: Cinema and Technology

Immersion across media opens our perception to altered states of consciousness. Far from disconnecting us from our surroundings, these experiences reframe how we connect to the world and to others. In this age of technological acceleration, myriad new media forms redefine our immersive habits and patterns of gratification. 'States of Immersion Across Media' invites readers to slow down and reflect on immersive practices, both new and old, their impact on our bodies, the affective attunements they evoke, the disruptions they afford, and the creative encounters they generate.

The Advent of Sound in Japanese Cinema

A Handbook

Edited by Sean O'Reilly

Series: Handbooks on Japanese Studies

The advent of synchronous sound is the most fundamental rupture in the history of cinema. Building on the growing general interest in and the excellent recent scholarship on Japanese cinema's fraught transition to sound, this book paradoxically offers a narrow thematic and chronological focus yet also a broad and diverse range of topics and approaches. Many take for granted the seeming superiority of sync sound to silent cinema, but the drawn-out, hotly contested transition to talkies in Japan shows that in the 1930s, neither spectators nor filmmakers necessarily shared this assumption—and perhaps we should not either.

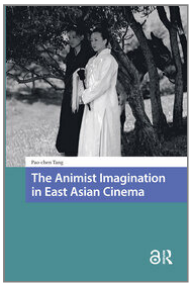
The Animist Imagination in East Asian Cinema



Pao-chen Tang

Series: Critical Asian Cinemas

This book explores the "animist imagination" in contemporary East Asian cinema, where natural elements like winds, trains, balloons, and snowflakes become living entities that co-exist with humans. Pao-chen Tang analyzes this filmmaking approach that redefines cinema while exploring human-nonhuman relationships.The work positions moving images as animate beings, using cinema's inherent animism to examine East Asian history and modern ecological concerns. Through systematic analysis of narratives, stylistic techniques, and cultural implications, the book reveals how this cinematic perspective offers a radical reimagining of our relationship with the nonhuman world.

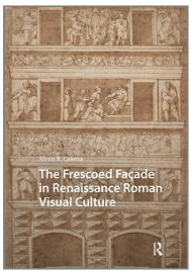
The Frescoed Façade in Renaissance Roman Visual Culture



Alexis Culotta

Series: Visual and Material Culture, 1300-1700

This book explores the once-vibrant tradition of Roman façades adorned with fresco and sgraffito during the 15th and 16th centuries. With many of these façades now lost and documentation severely limited, the author aims to revitalize interest in this endangered aspect of Renaissance visual culture before its final traces vanish. Beyond compiling known examples, the work examines the creation and significance of these painted faces, revealing their crucial position at the intersection of patron identity and artistic innovation during Rome's ambitious self-reinvention. The study offers new perspectives on these overlooked yet culturally significant architectural elements.

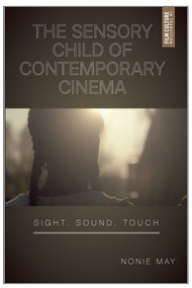
The Sensory Child of Contemporary Cinema

Sight, Sound, Touch



Nonie May

This book examines a poetic film form evident in contemporary cinema that seems intent on capturing the textures, the materials, and the sensations of childhood. These films foreground the child's point of view, construct a child's gaze, and mobilise an aesthetic that evokes a sensory recollection of childhood. The book examines key instances of this aesthetic of childhood in the films Aftersun (2022), The Fits (2015), What Maisie Knew (2013), and Moonlight (2016). May argues that psychoanalytic theory can elucidate the significance of such tactile moments, offering insight into the meaning evoked for the spectator by this sensory, poetic film form.

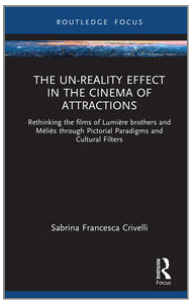
The Un-Reality Effect in the Cinema of Attractions

Rethinking the films of Lumière brothers and Méliès through Pictorial Paradigms and Cultural Filters



Sabrina Francesca Crivelli University of Birmingham, UK

Series: Routledge Focus on Film Studies

This book offers an original rethinking of early European cinema through the lens of its visual and cultural entanglements. Engaging critically with foundational theories by Gunning and Gaudreault, and drawing on art history, visual culture, and intermedial studies, this volume bridges cinema and the visual arts in new ways. Written in an accessible style and complemented by a visual appendix, it speaks to scholars and students across film history, theory, visual culture and interdisciplinary cultural studies. By revisiting the intersections between realism and illusionism, it opens fresh pathways for future research on cinema's intermedial foundations.

Thinking Women and Art in the Long Eighteenth Century

Strategic Reinterpretations

Edited by Mechthild Fend , Jennifer Germann , Melissa Hyde

Series: Visual and Material Culture, 1300-1700

This volume represents state-of-the-art feminist scholarship in the field of 18th-century French and British art and visual culture. Topics range from women and their activities in art and science, to gendered representations of childhood and animals to fashion, femininity and temporality. Some chapters center on individual genres like hunting portraits, or on specific paintings. Others make contributions on the work of familiar actors like Jean-Siméon Chardin. It also brings to the fore lesser-known figures including Marie-Thérèse Reboul. Written by 11 (art) historians, the essays honor the work of the late Mary D. Sheriff.

Trans Men in Malaysia

Decision-Making, Masculinity and Manhood

Vizla Kumaresan

Series: GENDERING ASIAN SOCIETY

Cutting across the disciplines of trans gender studies and psychology, this book examines the psychological decision-making process behind 23 Malaysian trans men's journeys navigating masculinity from childhood through adulthood. Using interviews and grounded theory methodology, the author analyses how trans men reclaim and redefine a form of resilient masculinity that seeks to divorce itself from patriarchal definitions, done through the exploration of relationships with their identities and de-linking male identity from masculinity. The book examines how trans men redefine their masculinity while maintaining proximity to femininity.

Women in Early Modern Venetian Art

Fluid Identities

Sabrina DeTurk University of Maine, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and Art

Through several case studies, this book suggests ways in which the art of early modern Venice may be interpreted through a hybrid analysis of their visual form and social context to expand our understanding of women as active participants in the social, intellectual, economic and political life of the early modern Republic. The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history, gender studies, and Renaissance studies.

Women in the History of Language Learning and Teaching

Hidden Pioneers of Practice from Europe and Beyond (1400-2000)

Edited by Sabine Doff , Giovanni Iamartino , Rachel Mairs

Series: Languages and Culture in History

This volume addresses the historical neglect of women's contributions to language learning and teaching. While the historiography of language education has often focused on male-dominated frameworks, overlooking the pivotal roles women have played, the case studies in this book highlight female pioneers in language education across various cultural and linguistic traditions, from the Middle Ages to the twentieth century. Covering a wide range of languages – including Greek, Arabic, French, and English the book reveals women's agency in shaping language education.

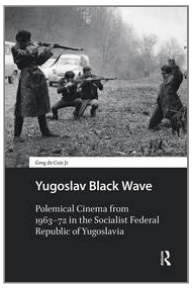
Yugoslav Black Wave

Polemical Cinema from 1963–72 in the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia



Greg de Cuir

Series: Eastern European Screen Cultures

Yugoslav Black Wave was originally published in 2011 by Film Center Serbia. At that time it was the first comprehensive study of the Black Wave to appear in English and is still one of the rare monographs anywhere dedicated to the subject. The Yugoslav Black Wave represented a new generation in Socialist Yugoslav cinema in the 1960s and early 1970s. The author ultimately argues that this phenomenon is maybe the last new wave in postwar European cinema that is still in need of sustained critical attention and wider acknowledgement. This book is a revised and expanded second edition that makes a modest endeavor towards that goal.

The Historical Novel

Jerome De Groot University of Manchester, UK

Series: The New Critical Idiom

In the second edition of The Historical Novel, Jerome de Groot expertly charts the evolution of one of literature's most beloved and complex forms. From its eighteenth-century origins to postmodern and contemporary historical fiction, de Groot reveals how historical fiction continues to challenge, provoke, and transform our understanding of the past. Drawing on a wide range of examples from across the centuries and around the globe, the second edition of The Historical Novel is essential reading for exploring the rich intersection where history meets fiction—a creative borderland where the past continues to be reimagined.

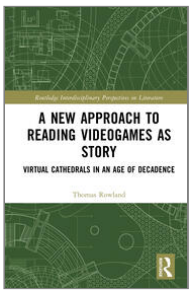
A New Approach to Reading Videogames as Story

Virtual Cathedrals in an Age of Decadence



Thomas Rowland

Series: Routledge Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Literature

This book is a resource for educators interested in teaching videogames as literary texts in English and Language Art classes. The book acknowledges the apprehension many teachers face when considering the introduction of videogames into their classrooms, which may be driven by the fear that their students may know more about the games than they do themselves. This is a legitimate cause for concern considering the amount of exposure students growing up in the 21st century have to videogames.

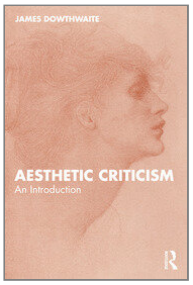
Aesthetic Criticism

An Introduction



James Dowthwaite

Aesthetic criticism has suffered a poor reputation over the last 120 years. Often dismissing it in the form of caricature, a wave of the hand at "mere aestheticism" with its apparently dogma of "art for art's sake", we rarely take it seriously as an approach to art today, and lose sight of its importance in its own time. This book, however, offers an account of aesthetic criticism as a far more rigorous approach to art, literature, and philosophy than is often thought. By considering the principles of aesthetic criticism on their own terms, this book provides a revised understanding of what the approach was, and what it might offer us today.

Discovering Bridget Manningham's Rivall Friendship

A Seventeenth-Century Manuscript Romance

Edited by Jean Brink

This collection of essays represents the very first effort to assess the importance of Bridget Manningham's Rivall Friendship, a 17th-century manuscript that concerns the English Civil War. Bridget is introduced as the granddaughter of 16th-century diarist John Manningham and as the older sister of Thomas Manningham, Bishop of Chichester in the early 18th century.These essays offer analyses of such early modern issues as the intersection of gender and class, linguistic features of early modern syntax, rhetorical defenses of the royalist position, theories of early modern friendship, plot construction and narrative strategies, and the transition from the romance to the novel.

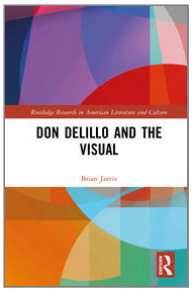
Don DeLillo and the Visual



Brian Jarvis

Series: Routledge Research in American Literature and Culture

Over the course of a prodigious literary career which now spans seven decades, DeLillo has engaged with the problem and the promise of vision. Don DeLillo and the Visual offers a fresh perspective on the lead writer for the Age of the Image. Whilst the author is sometimes characterised and even caricatured as a 'novelist of ideas', this study makes a case for DeLillo as a 'body artist' with a particular fascination for the varieties of visual experience. DeLillo's work dramatizes diverse ways of seeing: the eye of the artist; the scientific stare; the consumer leer; the plagiarised perception of the tourist; the athlete's field of sight; and the seer's sacred vision.

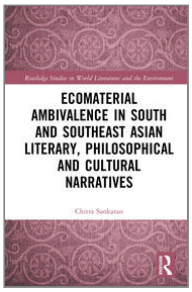
Ecomaterial Ambivalence in South and Southeast Asian Literary, Philosophical, and Cultural Narratives



Chitra Sankaran

Series: Routledge Studies in World Literatures and the Environment

This volume provides a timely contribution to the ongoing conversation on the agency of matter in environmental humanities. The first book offering an important and relevant Asian perspective to this hitherto exclusively westcentric exchange, it focuses on one of the influential theoretical fields to emerge in recent years, 'material ecocriticism,' which engages with the mind/matter value-dualism. This book investigates the complex, ambivalent approach to nonhuman Nature in South and Southeast Asian literary, cultural, and religious narratives to argue that a utilitarian attitude to nature is complicated by a tacit or strong belief in its autonomy and agency.

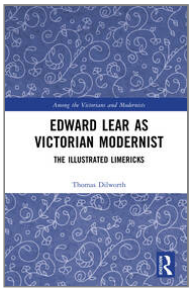
Edward Lear as Victorian Modernist

The Illustrated Limericks



Thomas Dilworth

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

Edward Lear as Victorian Modernist offers a bold new reading of Lear's limericks as foundational works of literary modernism. Far from being mere nonsense for children, Lear's picture-limericks—each a fusion of image and verse—operate as bi-modal metaphors that generate meaning through juxtaposition rather than narrative continuity. The volume also explores Lear's influence on the evolution of the limerick, particularly its later eroticization. By grounding interpretation in both biography and cultural context, this monograph repositions Lear not as an outlier but as a key figure in the genealogy of modernist expression.

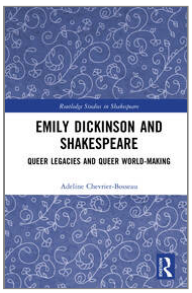
Emily Dickinson and Shakespeare

Queer Legacies and Queer World-Making



Adeline Chevrier-Bosseau

Series: Routledge Studies in Shakespeare

Moving beyond a cisgender, heteronormative framework, this book investigates Shakespeare's queer legacy on Emily Dickinson's work, particularly how this legacy has inflected Dickinson's queer world-making and her conception not only of gender and sexuality, but also of the lyric itself. This study contributes to existing scholarship on theories of the lyric by bringing previously untranslated French writing on the lyric to Anglophone readers for the first time, and by combining several critical and textual approaches.

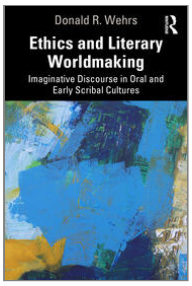
Ethics and Literary Worldmaking

Imaginative Discourse in Oral and Early Scribal Cultures



Donald R. Wehrs

Considering poetry, narrative, and performances from diverse oral societies and the earliest scribal cultures, Ethics and Literary Worldmaking traces ways that both oral and written genres participate in communal shaping and reshaping of affectivity, sociality, deliberation, and evaluation. Ethics and Literary Worldmaking establishes unexpected contexts for addressing literary theory and history relevant to humanities scholarship generally, particularly for those working on ethics and/or science and literature, literary theory, literary history, cognitive literary studies, or comparative studies, but also for teachers of World Literature.

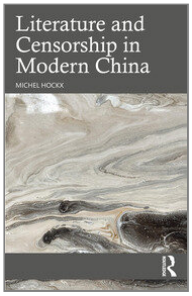
Literature and Censorship in Modern China



Michel Hockx

This innovative study examines literary censorship in China from 1900 to present. Literature and Censorship in Modern China offers invaluable insights into the study of censorship, and the study of China. By placing censorship of Chinese literature in relation to recent censorship theory, this book offers readers a more informed understanding of censorship as an "imposition of form", not only in China but around the world. This study is an invaluable resource for students and scholars of literature and censorship theory.

Literature, Activism and Transformative Learning

Edited by Goutam Karmakar Durban University of Technology, South Africa

This book illustrates how literary narratives can function as a type of activism, spanning socio-cultural, cognitive, intellectual, and political components within and beyond many communities, generations, and nations. These efforts promote ideals such as advancing the cause of social justice, facilitating social transformation, and safeguarding human values, rights, and the integrity of the environment. The ten chapters explore various facets of activism through literary narratives and the notion of social change at the grassroots level.

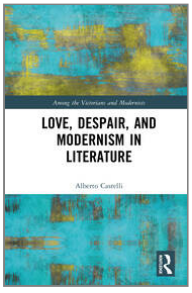
Love, Despair, and Modernism in Literature



Alberto Castelli

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

This groundbreaking volume challenges conventional scholarship by illuminating a critical blind spot in modernist studies: the persistent yet transformed presence of love. While academia has exhaustively examined modernism through lenses of nihilism, disillusionment, and existential silence, the romantic impulse threading through these seemingly barren landscapes remains largely unexamined. This collection reveals the sophisticated love story hidden within modernism's formal innovations—a romance that neither escapes nor succumbs to the movement's characteristic darkness, but rather transforms alongside it.

Narrative Complicity in Stories of Violence from Latin America

Mark Piccini

This book explores why stories of Latin American violence are commonplace. These stories are often set in exotic locations and feature cartel hitmen and carbon copies of cocaine kingpin Pablo Escobar, ragtag guerillas, and bloodthirsty dictators. This book examines how Latin American violence has become a genre catering to Northern audiences' appetite for images of either a violent Latin American Other or one who exists in the supernatural realm of the magical realism genre popularised by Gabriel García Márquez.

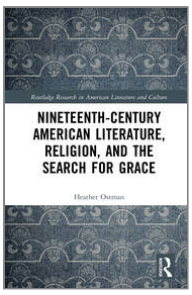
Nineteenth-Century American Literature, Religion, and the Search for Grace



Heather Ostman Westchester Community College, USA

Series: Routledge Research in American Literature and Culture

This monograph explores selected texts by four major American authors: Walt Whitman, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Sojourner Truth, and Kate Chopin. It presents an acute and nuanced analysis of the relationship between these authors and religion. While they critique organized religion and challenge the premise of doctrine and the restrictiveness of religious practice, they also depict mercy, redemption, and renewal beyond church walls —offering a lens for considering the American sociopolitical identity. This volume is a valuable resource for postgraduate students and scholars of American literature, religious studies, and Christian thought

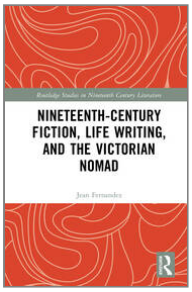
Nineteenth-Century Fiction, Life Writing, and the Victorian Nomad



Jean Fernandez

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth Century Literature

Nineteenth-Century Fiction, Life Writing, and the Victorian Nomad employs canonical literary texts, and introduces new noncanonical works of fiction and autobiography, to uncover how nineteenth-century fiction and life writing engaged with the figure of the nomad as a problematic phenomenon during the Victorian Age. Exploring constructions of the nomad in legal, ethnological, and imperial discourse, this volume examines how literary texts responded to nomadism in national and imperial contexts when global flows of population necessitated by empire operated in tension with policies of sedentarization pursued by the nation and the colonial state.

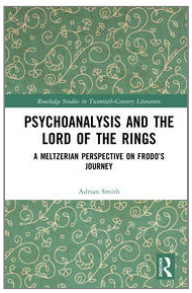
Psychoanalysis and The Lord of the Rings

A Meltzerian Perspective on Frodo's Journey



Adrian Smith

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature

Psychoanalysis and The Lord of the Rings offers a psychoanalytical perspective on The Lord of the Rings, informed by the Kleinian school within psychoanalysis, especially the work of Donald Meltzer. Treating Tolkien's work as a bildungsroman, a forming novel or come-of-age tale, this study tracks Frodo's journey as the evolving ego of the tale whilst other characters, in the main, are his internal objects. This book is primarily for scholars of Tolkien Studies, as well as literary scholars interested in psychoanalysis and psychoanalytical approaches to twentieth-century literature.

Serial Fiction in the Western World

History and Theory

Edited by Giovanni Ragone , Antonio Rafele

Series: Literary Criticism and Cultural Theory

This volume traces the evolution of serial forms from antiquity to the digital age, exploring their role in literature, visual culture and everyday myths. It shows how seriality has shaped imagination and daily life, emerging as both a deep anthropological model and a driving force of modern consumer society. Across the book's various trajectories, seriality is interpreted not merely as a specific mode of cultural production, but as a basic anthropological model and, at the same time, as a foundation of the processes underpinning modern and current consumer society.

Shakespeare and Identity in a Divided World

Kristin M.S. Bezio University of Richmond, USA

Shakespeare and Identity in a Divided World examines some of the most pressing issues about identity and so-called identity politics in the highly polarized twenty-first century. The book uses Shakespeare's plays and the history of sixteenth and seventeenth century England to discuss gender, race, mental health, disability, and fatness as they were perceived in Shakespeare's age and then considers ways in which audiences, readers, and classrooms might use them to think about those same topics in the twenty-first century.

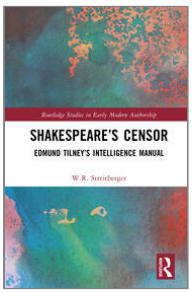
Shakespeare's Censor

Edmund Tilney's Intelligence Manual



W.R. Streitberger

Series: Routledge Studies in Early Modern Authorship

This book situates Tilney's intelligence manual in the emerging genre that developed around intelligence gathering in the late sixteenth century and attempts to explain how he reconciled the tension between his admiration for the aims of humanist history with his political and religious beliefs, matters directly relevant to understanding the sensibilities he brought to his duties and censor of plays and as a producer of plays for the court.

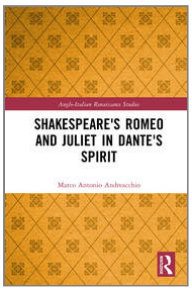
Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet in Dante's Spirit



Marco Antonio Andreacchio

Series: Anglo-Italian Renaissance Studies

This book explores how Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet follows in the footsteps of Dante's revival of Platonic poetry. For the first time in centuries, this book demonstrates that Shakespeare's work offers a viable alternative to the machiavellian reduction of politics to ideology, or to the progressive mechanization of human life that has fueled the rise of barbarism "by another name".

The Routledge Companion to Elizabeth Gaskell

Edited by Elizabeth Ludlow , Rebecca Styler

Series: Routledge Literature Companions

The Routledge Companion to Elizabeth Gaskell addresses Gaskell's works, networks, contexts, and legacies. Contributors draw on a range of approaches including ecocriticism, queer theory, and studies in emotion; paying particular attention to the intersections between race, class, gender and religion in Gaskell's fiction, as well as to the ongoing afterlife of her work in fiction, film, web-series, and fanfiction. With its international and comprehensive scope, this volume offers an invaluable resource which attests that Gaskell continues to be a writer worthy of substantial critical attention, and signals new directions in Gaskell studies and Victorian studies more widely.

Translating the New Philosophy in the Dutch Early Enlightenment (1640-1720)

Lucas van der Deijl

A small group of freethinkers from the Dutch Republic played a key role in the major intellectual changes of the Early Enlightenment (1640–1720). In the wake of Cartesianism, their rationalist ideas transformed debates about science, theology, medicine, and political theory. This book studies the position of 4 translators in these debates on the 'New Philosophy': Jan Hendriksz Glazemaker, Pieter Balling, Abraham van Berkel, and Stephan Blankaart. It presents a comparative history of their Dutch translations of philosophical treatises and seeks to change our understanding of the crucial function of translations, multilingualism, and linguistic purism in the Dutch Early Enlightenment.

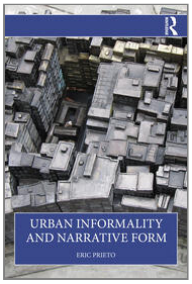
Urban Informality and Narrative Form



Eric Prieto

Urban Informality and Narrative Form brings together literary analysis and spatial planning theory in an interdisciplinary study of urban informality. It examines a diverse array of literary and cinematic fictions from across the globe--West and North Africa, West and South Asia, the Caribbean and Latin America in dialogue with influential social scientific studies of urban informality. With its global breadth and novel methodology (using urban theory as literary theory), this book will be of interest to scholars of urban literature, postcolonial and world literature, and to social scientists working in the spatial planning and policy fields.

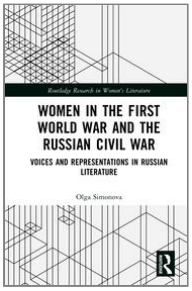
Women in the First World War and the Russian Civil War

Voices and Representations in Russian Literature



Olga Simonova

Series: Routledge Research in Women's Literature

This book explores how Russian literature and autobiographical writing portrayed nurses, women soldiers, and commanders who served in the First World War and Russian Civil War. Simonova's research challenges the traditional perception of war as a masculine domain, introducing the concept of military femininities, particularly 'expanded femininity', combining traditional feminine traits such as consolation, care, and inspiration with bravery, militancy, and leadership. Offering a fresh perspective on gender, war, and memory in early twentieth-century Russian literature, this monograph will appeal to scholars of literature and gender issues, as well as cultural and military history.

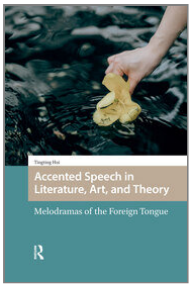
Accented Speech in Literature, Art, and Theory

Melodramas of the Foreign Tongue



Tingting Hui

Series: Languages and Culture in History

This book offers an analysis of speaking, writing, and performing with an accented non-native tongue. Through an evocative blend of theoretical rigor and literary sensibility, Tingting Hui spotlights the "melodrama" of accented speech—a performance that exposes the bodily nature of language, bridging the erotic and the vulnerable, the audible and the visual. By rethinking accented voices as critical figures of resistance and creativity, this book invites readers to embrace the symphony of sounds that challenge norms and unsettle hierarchies. A richly textured journey, it celebrates the accent as a site of desire, vulnerability, and creativity.

Canonization through Translation and Retranslation

English Translations of Journey to the West

Binhua Wang University of Leeds, UK, Yuan Ping

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

This book provides a comprehensive analysis of the various translations of Journey to the West, including three abridged versions by Arthur Waley, Anthony Yu and Julia Lovell. It examines the translation and retranslation of Journey to the West as a typical case of how literature can be canonised through translation. It also explores how Lovell's retranslation in the contemporary context differs from Waley's and Yu's translations and why Penguin would include two translations of the same Chinese novel in "Penguin Classics". This book is of interest to students and scholars in translation studies, language and literature studies, digital humanities, and Chinese studies.

Diagonalism in Online Populist Discourse

David Block Univeristat Pompeu Fabra, Spain

David Block's timely book examines "diagonalism"—how left-wing voices adopt right-wing positions on pandemic policies, free speech, and immigration. In our post-truth landscape, emotions overshadow facts as political discourse becomes entertainment. Block warns that diagonalists inadvertently strengthen far-right ideologies by appearing moderate while exclusively criticizing progressive positions. Essential reading for understanding how public discourse is transforming in the digital age.

Disfluencies We Live with in Japanese

An Interdisciplinary Approach

Edited by Toshiyuki Sadanobu Kyoto University, Japan

Series: Routledge Studies in Applied Linguistics

Sadanobu's research on fluency and disfluency in Japanese reveals that disfluency among healthy native speakers follows predictable patterns and may actually enhance their everyday communication. The book challenges the conventional view that disfluency should simply be eliminated by demonstrating that it serves dual purposes, both as an obstacle to overcome and a valuable communicative tool that speakers learn and strategically employ in conversation. This is an essential book for academics and researchers on oral communication, especially in Linguistics and Japanese studies.

Human Translators in the Machine Age

Massimiliano Morini

Series: Routledge Focus on Translation and Interpreting Studies

Human Translators in the Machine Age examines translation's historical evolution and the unique role of human translators in civilization. It challenges traditional views of translation as mere text adherence, instead framing it as a dynamic process of linguistic and cultural transformation. The book argues that human translation—oral in origin, rich in process, and deeply personal—remains essential in the AI era because it represents how humans receive and modify knowledge. This volume offers both historical perspective and fresh insights on the translator's evolving role, critically engaging with theory while exploring written and spoken discourse intersections

Linguistic Fundamentals of Teaching

A Content-Based Approach for English Language Learning

Judith Kaplan-Weinger

Linguistic Fundamentals of Teaching introduces linguistics for educators with English language learners. It frames linguistics as essential for addressing students' language needs across content areas. Covering language acquisition, morphology, semantics, phonology, and pragmatics within humanities, arts, and sciences contexts, teachers develop LIFT activities integrating language with subject content. These address pronunciation, vocabulary, and communication using authentic materials. This unique resource teaches linguistics through content while providing immediately applicable classroom strategies.

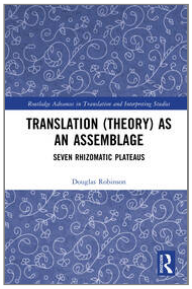
Translation (Theory) as an Assemblage

Seven Rhizomatic Plateaus



Douglas Robinson

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

This experimental book on translation takes its title and methodology from the introduction to Deleuze and Guattari's A Thousand Plateaus. An assemblage (French agencement) works through a complex socio-material network characterized by fluidity, exchangeability, and connectivity. They contrast the assemblage with what they call the "root-tree," which is rooted in stable ontological soil and issues forth into tidy binaries. It will be of interest to graduate students and professors of translation and comparative world literature, those interested in modernist, experimental or avant-garde fiction, and those who also do literary and scholarly translation.

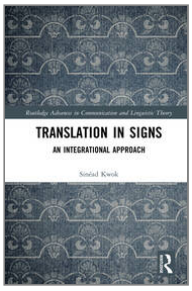
Translation in Signs

An Integrational Approach



Sinéad Kwok The University of Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Advances in Communication and Linguistic Theory

What is translation? What is a sign? This book answers these questions and gives a critical review of how the West has been theorizing translation, in terms of theorizing the sign, a 'unit' of our communication. This book provides a theory of translation based on a theory of the personal, integrational sign that will illuminate readers' own experience with translation and with sign-making. A must-read for students of linguistics, semiotics and translation.

Costuming the Curve

Dressing Bodies of Size for the Stage, Screen, and Life

Jeannie Galioto

Costuming the Curve is a groundbreaking and practical guide that redefines how designers approach body diversity in performance. This book addresses the needs of larger female-presenting bodies, which are often overlooked in traditional costume design and construction training. With a focus on fit, function, and dignity, this book invites professionals, educators, and students to reimagine design through a lens of celebration—not limitation. Whether in the classroom or the costume shop, Costuming the Curve is an essential resource for designers ready to challenge outdated norms and reimagine what is possible when every body is seen, supported, and celebrated.

Fifty Key Performance Artists

Edited by T. Nikki Cesare Schotzko , Adriana Disman

Series: Routledge Key Guides

Fifty Key Performance Artists is a critical introduction to some of the most influential and innovative performance artists from the emergence of the genre post-World War II to the present, whose work has largely been underrecognized and underacknowledged within an English-language context. The collection compiles an international and innovative index of artists who, primarily through body art and live performance, define the field. This is an essential survey of performance art for scholars and students in visual, theatre, and performance studies and for those interested in matters of the body in performance, reception theory, and live art.

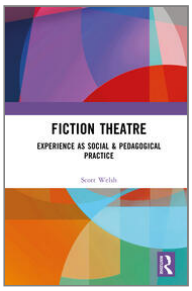
Fiction Theatre

Experience as Social & Pedagogical Practice



Scott Welsh

This book aims to show how a specific form of documentary research, founded in a theatre-making method labelled "real fiction," can be utilised in drama education contexts, such as classrooms and performance spaces. It introduces this process through an exploration of theatre-making practice, based on the author's experience, then applies the method in a drama classroom. Through this process, it reveals the value of utilising practice-based drama methods in education, revealing new ways of teaching drama through praxis inquiry. This book is suitable for readers interested in drama, playwriting, theatre practice, acting and education.

The Black Dance Movement in England 1940 – 2000

Identity, Spirituality and Continuity

Robert Ramdhanie

This book is the first written history of the development of African dance in the UK covering the last sixty years of the 20th century. This study introduces a parallel concept within the British and European exploitative 'triangular slave trade', by showing how powerful cultural heritage circles were being nurtured to enrich popular culture globally. Of necessity therefore, the reader is introduced to the continent of Africa and their religious principles and practices. This study is a valuable resource for students and scholars in performance studies and dance studies.

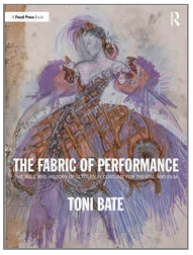
The Fabric of Performance

The Role and History of Textiles in Costume for Theatre and Film



Toni Bate

The Fabric of Performance provides an overview of the narrative properties of textiles and how they have been utilised in the design and construction of costume for dramatic performance in Britain. It explores how textiles can be used as a semiotic tool in the realisation of performance costume, subconsciously transmitting codified signs to the audience through the colour, pattern, weight, drape, texture, and embellishment of the character's clothing. This text will be of interest to costume, textile, theatre, and fashion historians, costume researchers, costume design and construction students, and industry costume practitioners.

The Live Museum

Performance and Art Institutions in 1970s America

Lisa Beisswanger

The Live Museum uncovers the surprising history of live performances in US museums during the 1970s, exploring how and why both art and museums came alive in this era. It reframes this period as a pivotal moment when museums and artists co-created new possibilities for art in motion—an experiment that continues to shape the museum experience today. Iconoclastic yet rigorously historical, this book speaks to scholars and students of art history, performance studies, museum studies, and cultural history, as well as artists, curators, and cultural producers.

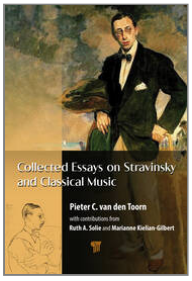
Collected Essays on Stravinsky and Classical Music



Pieter C. van den Toorn

The most celebrated of 20th-century composers, Igor Stravinsky may also have been the greatest. The early chapters in this volume address the dynamics of his music from a number of analytic-theoretical perspectives. Examined initially are the features of harmony, melody, and rhythm that would remain characteristic of his music regardless of the changes in stylistic orientation.

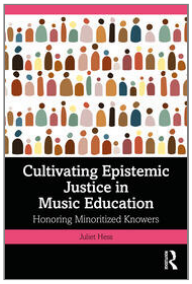
Cultivating Epistemic Justice in Music Education

Honoring Minoritized Knowers



Juliet Hess Michigan State University, USA

Cultivating Epistemic Justice in Music Education helps music educators understand how to support minoritized populations in their capacities as knowers. This book considers music education through a discursive framework of epistemic injustice to foreground issues related to credibility, authority, situatedness, silencing, prejudice, and exploitation. Offering considerations for a range of identities and supported by vignettes, the book is the ideal resource for music education researchers, music teacher educators, practicing teachers, and graduate music education students interested in better serving minoritized populations.

Marin Mersenne and the Study of Harmony

From Sound to Music

Leendert van der Miesen

Series: Scientiae Studies

Marin Mersenne and the Study of Harmony delves into the central role of music among the early modern sciences by focusing on the work of the French polymath Marin Mersenne (1588–1648). Although now regarded more as an art than a science, music was for many early modern scholars a universal science for studying the harmonies present in all beings. Bringing together Mersenne's interests in the physics of sound and hearing, musical composition, instruments, curiosities, and music from outside Europe, this book shows why so many scholars were drawn to music and how music was at the center of the early modern debate on the foundations of knowledge.

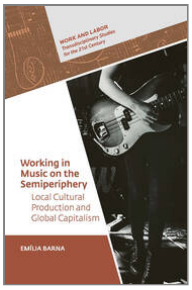
Working in Music on the Semiperiphery

Local Cultural Production and Global Capitalism



Emília Barna

Series: Work and Labor - Transdisciplinary Studies for the 21st Century - CEU Press

While music as labor feeds into the capitalist cultural industries, this book proves that in this sector informality greatly permeates and governs power relations and the allocations of resources. The significant level of informal involvement of the household in the creative and reproductive processes is also explored. It is particularly in the semiperipheral context that the relationship between home-based work and paid work is unbalanced: Emília Barna's field data are from Hungary and range from 2018 to 2021.

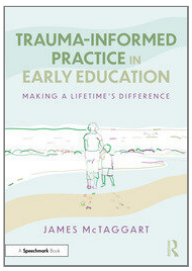
Trauma-Informed Practice in Early Education

Making a Lifetime's Difference



James McTaggart

Many young children experience trauma – how can we help them? Every child will one day face challenges as an adult – how can we prepare them? Research shows that early educators can make a lifetime's difference for both groups of children, and this book is about how. Trauma-informed practice is effective educational practice for all children, and trauma-informed settings have happier, more effective and resilient adults working in them. This book offers a hopeful vision of the power of early education to change lives and is essential reading for all trainee and practising early years educators.

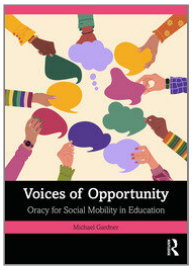
Voices of Opportunity: Oracy for Social Mobility in Education



Michael Gardner

In this book, the vital role of language in shaping the life chances of children from contrasting ends of the social ladder is explored. Grounded in the latest research and the contemporary experiences of educators, it highlights how oracy is a key driver of upward social mobility, especially for the most disadvantaged children. It contrasts the experiences of children from language-rich upbringings with those from language-poor backgrounds, showing how these differences affect access to learning, emotional wellbeing, and future life opportunities. This book is valuable for educators and school leaders seeking to understand the connection between oracy and social mobility.

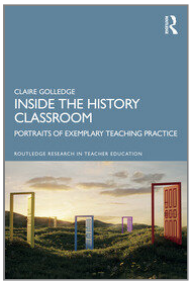
Inside the History Classroom

Portraits of Exemplary Teaching Practice



Claire Golledge

Series: Routledge Research in Teacher Education

This insightful text offers vivid, fly-on-the-wall portraits of history teaching in action. Drawing on long-term observations of four teachers working in diverse school contexts, it explores what "good" history teaching looks like in practice. It delves into the lived complexity of teaching, underscoring how good history teaching plays a vital role in shaping the future by helping students understand the past, think critically about the present, and become informed citizens who contribute meaningfully to their communities.This book is essential reading for current and future history teachers, as well as researchers and academics interested in the lived realities of classroom practice.

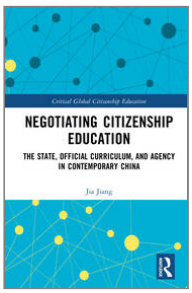
Negotiating Citizenship Education

The State, Official Curriculum, and Agency in Contemporary China



Jia Jiang

Series: Critical Global Citizenship Education

Negotiating Citizenship Education explores the dynamics, tensions, and space in Chinese socialist citizenship education (CE), focusing on how the political, economic, social, and educational structures in China, as well as individual agency, shape CE curriculum, teaching, and learning. This volume traces the historical changes of the Party-state defined citizenship and CE curriculum in response to social changes. Ultimately, it advocates for a reconstruction of CE curriculum, educational system, and civic environment to cultivate agentic citizens.

Resilience in Academic Development

Edited by Elisa K. Bone , Cormac McGrath , Tracy X. P. Zou , Kwong Nui Sim

This book explores the concept of resilience in higher education through the diverse perspective of academic development practices. It asks us to consider the complexity of the systems in which academic developers work, and the varied ways in which academic development practices can support, and build, resilience across these systems.
It explores a range of perspectives on how we may view resilience in higher education, and the ways in which the work of academic developers can contribute to, and is situated within, resilient university systems.

Science Fiction and the Cultural Politics of Education

Mapping the Pedagogical Imagination

Edited by Graham B. Slater

Bringing together diverse perspectives, theoretical approaches, and texts, the book asks what science fiction can bring to cultural politics in education, and how the cultural politics of science fiction can transform educational futures. It also questions whether science fiction can guide educational projects that aim to foster visions of what Fredric Jameson called 'unimaginable futures' and if critical studies of science fiction guide scholars, teachers, and cultural workers to think about the purpose and potential of education in the current moment. This book was originally published as a special issue of Review of Education, Pedagogy, and Cultural Studies.

Transforming English Through Drama

Case Studies in Classroom Practice

Edited by Jane Coles , Maggie Pitfield Goldsmiths University, London

This unique collection promotes and develops 'drama-in-English', a hybrid pedagogy combining reader response theory with literacy research and educational drama. Drawing on experienced practitioners' classroom insights, the authors show how embedded drama approaches can be used to revitalise the English/Language Arts curriculum and motivate young people to make personal and critical connections with their learning. This essential resource benefits all those working in English/Language Arts education: secondary teachers, teacher educators, trainee teachers, and teachers of English as an additional language.

A Teacher's Guide to Instructional Resistance

Overcoming Curricular Challenges to Do What's Best for Your Students

Paul Sutton

Standardized curricula and rigid approaches to teaching don't engage students and don't allow teachers to bring their true expertise to the classroom. But there is another path. In this empowering book, Paul S. Sutton shows how you can use your instructional expertise and skills to better serve students by resisting wrong-headed curricular mandates imposed upon you. You'll learn that you have more power than you think to question and critique the curricular mandates required by your district and school and make small, actionable, yet powerful changes to your practice that will change your classroom culture and bring more fulfilling teaching and more engaged learning.

Fix the Plan, Not the Teaching

Aligning Curriculum, Instruction, Assessment, and Support

Erma Anderson

When great teaching doesn't lead to great learning, the problem often lies in fragmented planning—not teacher performance. This book shows educators how to align curriculum, instruction, assessment, and support into unified learning progressions. It includes ready-to-use templates for immediate classroom implementation, including specialized tools that integrate UDL, SEL, and disciplinary practices into lesson design. This isn't another initiative—it's a practical framework for creating educational experiences where every component works together, empowering K-12 educators to shift from improving instruction to designing coherent learning systems that ensure all students succeed.

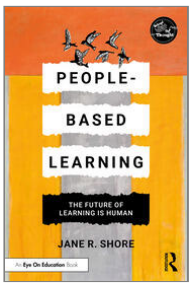
People-Based Learning

The Future of Learning is Human



Jane R. Shore

Project-Based Learning is a buzzword, but what if we shifted it to People-Based Learning? In this insightful book, researcher and experience designer Jane Shore offers a practical guide to building a People-Based Learning orientation in schools, workplaces, and everyday life. The approach reframes learning as something we do with and through one another, where students, colleagues, and communities can all be teachers, guides, and learners. Together, we can build cultures, whether in classrooms, teams, or communities, where every voice is heard, every story is valued, and learning flourishes in the richness of our shared humanity.

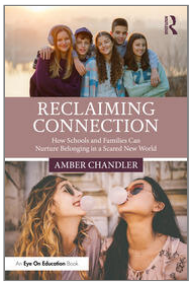
Reclaiming Connection

How Schools and Families Can Nurture Belonging in a Scared New World



Amber Chandler

The global pandemic created an "anxious generation," and everyone is talking about how to "fix" education or improve students' mental health. But what are the challenges students, teachers, and their families are really dealing with on a daily basis? In this unique, important book, experienced middle school teacher Amber Chandler engages us in an honest discussion of how we can counteract the impact of the pandemic by rethinking how communities, families, and schools can collaborate for student success. Reclaiming connection is the way to meet the "anxious generation" where they are and show them how to thrive.

Executive Function and Emotional Regulation in the Classroom

Practical Strategies for Engaging Students and Promoting Independent Learning

Edited by Lynn Meltzer , Julie Dunstan

This book presents research-based strategies for helping students thrive academically, socially, and emotionally by harnessing the dynamic interplay of executive function (EF) and emotional regulation. The expert editors and contributors--including EF pioneer Lynn Meltzer--explain how teachers can support EF and emotional regulation with all learners, including neurodiverse students. Chapters describe ways to build students' ability to set goals, think flexibly, stay on task, manage their behavior, and reduce anxiety and stress. Case vignettes illustrate how the interventions discussed help to enhance student engagement while fostering resilience and independent learning.

3RD EDITION

Handbook of Learning Disabilities, Third Edition

Edited by Cynthia M. Okolo Michigan State University (Emeritus), United States, Nicole Patton Terry Vanderbilt University, United States, Laurie E. Cutting

This definitive handbook is now in an extensively revised third edition with many all-new chapters and new topics. It reviews the breadth of current knowledge about learning disabilities (LD), from core psychological and neurobiological processes to evidence-based instruction. Chapters describe best practices in identifying and supporting students with difficulties in reading, writing, math, and other content areas. Service delivery models that support differentiated instruction and data-based decision making are examined, as are ways to meet the needs of specific populations, including English learners with LD. Prior edition editors: H. Lee Swanson, Karen R. Harris, and Steve Graham.

Special Education and the Juvenile Legal System

Connecting Policy, Research, and Practice to Address the School-to-Prison Pipeline

Natasha Strassfeld

This book addresses a critical gap in our education system: ensuring that youth in the juvenile legal system receive the special education and related services they need. This comprehensive guide provides both the legal framework and practical solutions to help address these systemic failures. By examining the unique struggles of youth at the intersection of multi-systemic involvement, this book serves as essential reading for university students, scholars, practitioners, and policymakers working in special education, educational policy, criminal justice, and social work who seek to understand and improve outcomes at this critical juncture.

Geographical Journeys

Geographers Tell Their Stories

Edited by Kevin Cox

This book provides concise insights from a diverse range of leading scholars reflecting on how they became geographers. Asking how a range of geographers, representative of the field's diversity, this book explores the trajectory of their academic career, their formative influences, interpretive frameworks and divisions within geography, and what it means to have a geographic sensibility. In these ways, the book offers insightful contributions on how geographies and the history of the field get made; and for those considering embarking on a career in geography, just what to expect.

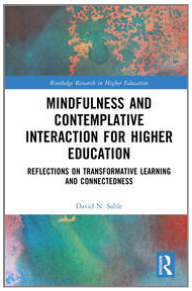
Mindfulness and Contemplative Interaction for Higher Education

Reflections on Transformative Learning and Connectedness



David N. Sable

Series: Routledge Research in Higher Education

This book situates mindfulness and contemplative interaction at the heart of transformative learning for a more sustainable and compassionate world. Drawing on a mixed methods study of a specific set of reflective learning activities introduced to undergraduates in Canada, the book highlights the importance of critical thinking and the necessity of the underlying affective dispositions to transformative learning. It argues that contemplative practices can play a central role in creating an unexpected sense of connectedness even among students who do not agree with each other, who may come from widely different backgrounds, and who may not speak English as a first language.

Trust in and through Academic Development

Edited by Gabriela Pleschová , Kathryn A. Sutherland , Peter Felten , Rachel Forsyth , Mary C. Wright

Trust matters in higher education, yet it is often taken for granted. This book shows how trust—between students and teachers, faculty and academic developers, or individuals and institutions—shapes the ways we teach, learn, and work together. Drawing on fresh research and first-hand accounts from across the world, this book reveals that trust is not static but a dynamic, reciprocal process. It is cultivated gradually through care, credibility, and openness, and it enables people to share vulnerabilities, take risks, and imagine new possibilities for teaching and learning.

Evidence and Insights to Inform Early Years Practice

Edited by Anne Keary Monash University, Australia, Lucas Walsh Monash University, Australia, Janet Scull Monash University, Australia, Susanne Garvis Monash University, Australia

Despite widespread calls for evidence-based improvement in education, until recently little has been known about using research and other types of evidence to inform teaching and learning of young children, particularly in early childhood education and care settings, and the first years of formal schooling. This book will appeal to researchers, early years professionals and policy-makers, and provide directions for how research and other evidence can better inform practice from local to international settings.

From Public Schools to Privatization

Urban Teachers on the Front Lines

Kathleen Nolan Princeton University, USA

From Public Schools to Privatization provides an in-depth and up-to-date critical analysis of the marketization and privatization of urban public schools in the United States. The book argues that both major political parties in the U.S. have embraced marketization and that, in the current moment, we are experiencing an effort to dismantle public education entirely through privatization. Nevertheless, the author suggests that there is hope in the resistance of urban teachers, social justice unionism, and the promise of organizing a broad multiracial, pro-democracy, pro-worker social movement.

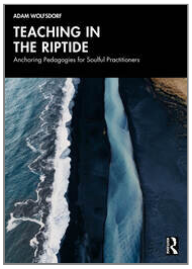
Teaching in the Riptide

Anchoring Pedagogies for Soulful Practitioners



Adam Wolfsdorf

This book takes a deep dive into the psychological underpinnings that motivate students to act in ways that subvert our intended curricular plans. It classifies student subversions into two distinct categories: i) obstructive subversions, and ii) constructive subversions, while also aiming to enhance the educator's own metacognitive awareness and capacities, so that they can act with more flexibility and compassion with their students.Teaching in the Riptide will appeal to a broad spectrum of readers – students, researchers, teacher-educators, educators, pre-service teachers working in the fields of Classroom Management, Educational Psychology, and Pedagogy.

Using Rubrics for Teaching and Learning

Heidi L. Andrade , Susan M. Brookhart

Series: Student Assessment for Educators

Using Rubrics for Teaching and Learning offers practical, evidence-based ideas for how rubrics can serve the multifaceted needs of students. Research shows that rubrics can promote learning, scaffold effective peer and self-assessment while also expediting an informative grading process. Built on four principles of effective application, this accessible book posits that rubrics must be developmentally and pedagogically appropriate, illuminate the learning goals, enable constructive feedback, and produce fair grades. Pre- and in-service teachers who read this book will come away with skills in using rubrics to support learning.

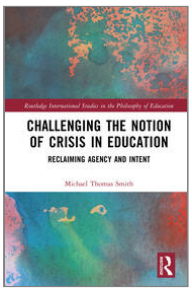
Challenging the Notion of Crisis in Education

Reclaiming Agency and Intent



Michael Thomas Smith American University of Armenia, Armenia

Series: Routledge International Studies in the Philosophy of Education

This book explores the narrative of education being in a state of perpetual crisis and the motivations behind the historical and contemporary tendency to exploit the same. Written as a call for greater media literacy, the book recognises how and when "solutions" to the oft-acknowledged educational crises fail to address root causes, which only ends up maintaining the status quo. This book will be of value to academics, postgraduates and scholars of education interested in a solution centric re-orientation of the ongoing narrative and notions of education.

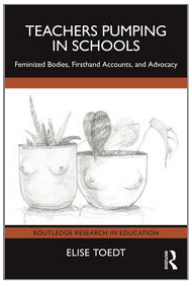
Teachers Pumping in Schools

Feminized Bodies, Firsthand Accounts, and Advocacy



Elise Toedt

Series: Routledge Research in Education

Teachers Pumping in Schools chronicles the daily, visceral experiences of U.S. teachers balancing infant feeding and full-time work. It documents teachers sharing their joys, frustrations, advice, and movements to change the structure of schools to become more friendly to the bodily needs of lactating employees. Grounded in feminist and social reproduction theories, the author illustrates how theory can be a practical tool for reimagining everyday practices within the current patriarchal, capitalist design of schools.

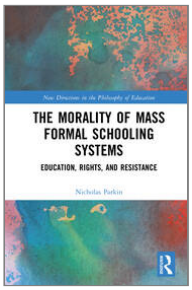
The Morality of the Mass Formal Schooling System

Education, Rights, and Resistance



Nicholas Parkin Auckland Montessori College, New Zealand

Series: New Directions in the Philosophy of Education

This book delves into a novel philosophical and moral analysis of the mass formal schooling system. In the light of the routine and unjust systemic harm to primary- and secondary-aged children caused by the mass formal schooling system, the book acknowledges the need for making efforts towards nonharmful educational alternatives. This book is of relevance to researchers of philosophy of education and education studies, academics, postgraduates and scholars of education, and anyone who is interested in a moral analysis of the dominant education system of our time.

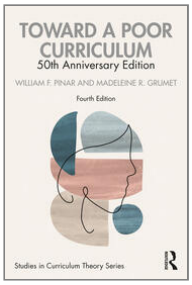
Toward a Poor Curriculum

50th Anniversary Edition



William F. Pinar , Madeleine R. Grumet

Series: Studies in Curriculum Theory Series

50 years since the publication of Toward a Poor Curriculum, William Pinar and Madeleine Grumet reflect on the ongoing need for a poor curriculum – one stripped of distractions such as technology to allow for the reflection and self-questioning at the heart of the book's central methodology of currere. Featuring a brand-new preface cowritten by William Pinar and Madeleine Grumet, as well as revised chapters and a never-before included chapter on the four phases of currere, this edition invites scholars of curriculum theory and teaching methods to revisit the original essays and reconsider their relevance in light of present educational and political challenges.

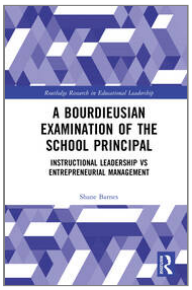
A Bourdieusian Examination of the School Principal

Instructional Leadership vs Entrepreneurial Management



Shane Barnes

Series: Routledge Research in Educational Leadership

This book questions the role and function of the school principal as instructional leader and/or entrepreneurial manager. Combining Bourdieusian sociology and a Christian faith orientation, the work applies a unique lens to this educational leadership dilemma. Presenting an analysis of data generated from semi-structured interviews with CSA principals in South Australia, this text examines the core of the school principal role. This is an indispensable resource for researchers and postgraduate students working in education leadership.

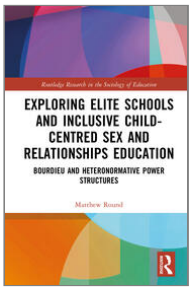
Exploring Elite Schools and Inclusive Child-centred Sex and Relationships Education

Bourdieu and Heteronormative Power Structures



Matthew Round University of Portsmouth, UK

Series: Routledge Research in the Sociology of Education

Contributing to the body of literature that applies Bourdieu to the study of educational institutions, this novel volume considers how elite schools could incorporate inclusive equitable RSE within the existing mechanisms of CPD to provide a programme based on the needs and discomfort of both students and teachers. Calling for schools to develop cultures of conversation and dialogue rather than pedagogies of exposure and discomfort in the context of both sex education and teacher training, this book will benefit academics and postgraduate students in the fields of sex education, research methods in education, and secondary education more broadly.

Designing Lessons in the AI-Infused Classroom

A Five-Stage Framework for Educational Intelligence

Christopher Miller

Designing Lessons in the AI-Infused Classroom shows middle and high school teachers how to redesign their lessons and units with intentional use of artificial intelligence. In a world where students can use tools like ChatGPT to complete traditional assignments without actually learning anything, our new challenge is to design learning experiences that AI can't do for them. Teachers, teacher-leaders, and school technology coordinators will be better prepared to rethink traditional instruction and use AI to complement rather than replace human interaction and self-expression.

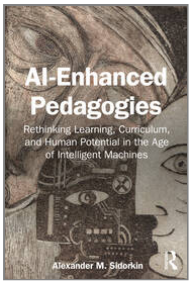
AI-Enhanced Pedagogies

Rethinking Learning, Curriculum, and Human Potential in the Age of Intelligent Machines



Alexander M. Sidorkin California State University Sacramento, USA

AI-Enhanced Pedagogies argues that artificial intelligence has exposed deep flaws in modern education, which now demands a fundamental rethinking of teaching and learning. This book's purpose is to develop a theory of education suited to a world where humans and AI learn together. It proposes that learning should be understood as a collaborative process between people and intelligent tools rather than as an individual pursuit. Sidorkin shows that AI does not diminish human intelligence but expands it. Education must evolve from linear curricular progressions to flexible systems that foster creativity, discernment, and intellectual courage.

The Digital Transformation of Professions

A Roadmap for Remaining Trusted, Relevant, and Future-Ready

Richard Busulwa University of South Australia, Australia, Wahed Waheduzzaman , Nandana Wasantha Pathiranage

Owing to ongoing and accelerating digital technology advancements, many professions are undergoing unprecedented digital disruption. Digital technologies like cloud computing, AI, IoT, and blockchain are fundamentally transforming required professional roles. Given the fundamentally important roles professions play, it is critical that the educators prepare the future workforce of the professions, and professionals themselves understand how their professions are being digitally disrupted, how they need to digitally transform, what this means for professionals, and what actions they can take to adapt to the coming change.

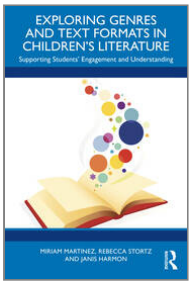
Exploring Genres and Text Formats in Children's Literature

Supporting Students' Engagement and Understanding



Miriam Martinez , Rebecca Stortz , Janis Harmon

This children's literature textbook is based on the textual response framework which recognizes that, while readers' personal experiences and knowledge shape their understanding of literature, readers' knowledge of format and genre conventions is equally important in reading literature. We recognize that textual knowledge includes more than genre knowledge; it also includes knowledge of what is distinctive about different formats of literature. This book helps preservice teachers understand the distinctive features of picturebooks, chapter books, novels in verse, and graphic novels, and what these distinctive features mean for supporting students as they read different formats.

Identity, Criticality, and Advocacy in Young Adult Literature

Training Teachers to Empower Students in the ELA Classroom

Edited by Steffany Comfort Maher , Alice Hays

Identity, Criticality, and Advocacy in Young Adult Literature explores ways to incorporate YA literature as a tool for developing identity, criticality, and advocacy in and out of English language arts classrooms. Censors are stripping young people of the powers to read and learn about the world. To combat this, we share how teachers engage adolescents with YA literature and address issues of identity, criticality, and advocacy. Chapters include topics such as race and identity, technology and artificial intelligence, environmental issues, LGBTQIA+ history, mental health literacy, and more. These teaching methods are relevant for pre-service, middle, and high school teachers.

Quechua Language Instruction and Assessment Across the Americas

Challenges and Solutions

Edited by Marilyn S. Manley , Chad Howe

Series: Routledge Research in Language Education

Quechua, with nearly 10 million speakers living primarily across the Andes, stands as the most widely spoken Indigenous language of the Americas today. Yet, this less commonly taught language (LCTL) continues to face significant challenges. This work illuminates and interrogates current barriers to Quechua language instruction and assessment within the United States, Ecuador, Bolivia, and Peru. Collectively, the contributions to this volume offer a way forward with suggestions and solutions aimed at building the capacity of Quechua language stakeholders.

Anti-Corruption in a Discordant World

Contestation, Abuse, and Innovation

Edited by David Jackson , Inge Amundsen , David Aled Williams

Series: Routledge Corruption and Anti-Corruption Studies

Bringing together perspectives from around the world, this book captures the turbulent contemporary practice of anti-corruption. It shows it to be an arena in which domestic and transnational politics play out, shaping outcomes in often unpredictable ways. The purpose and means of this policy field are disputed and re-interpreted. Populist and illiberal leaders hijack anti-corruption to target opponents, restrict media and civil society, or even legitimise authoritarian rule. The book will attract students, researchers, professionals, and activists interested in how anti-corruption unfolds in a volatile age.

Cultural Security in Contemporary China and Mongolia

Edited by Jarmila Ptáčková , Ondrej Klimes

This book applies the term "cultural security" not exclusively to state- or institution-implemented processes, but also considers the indigenous, bottom-up, and inside-out mechanisms of establishing and maintaining communal cultural security of an ethnic group. Markers of cultural identity differ according to an inside and outside perspective and can be re-defined according to circumstances. Importance of these markers increases when a community feels endangered in their cultural existence, or diminishes when perceived cultural identity is not questioned. The dynamics shaping cultural security are illustrated in examples of communities in the People's Republic of China and in Mongolia.

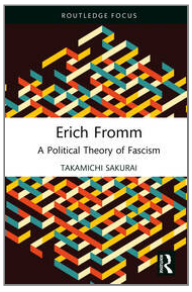
Erich Fromm

A Political Theory of Fascism



Takamichi Sakurai Keio University, Japan

Series: Political Theorists Beyond the Canon

This book positions Erich Fromm as a political theorist despite his limited recognition in this field. It demonstrates how Fromm's political theory transcends disciplinary boundaries, with his psychoanalytic perspective offering crucial insights into fascist politics, authoritarianism, and alienation. The volume contends that Fromm's socio-psychoanalytic analysis and unique characterological approach are vital for understanding contemporary fascism and postfascism. Written in an accessible style, this comprehensive work will appeal to students and scholars researching political theory, particularly those focused on fascism and authoritarianism.

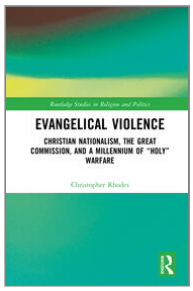
Evangelical Violence

Christian Nationalism, the Great Commission and a Millennium of "Holy" Warfare



Christopher Rhodes Boston University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Politics

Evangelical Violence examines the long history of western states and actors attempting to export and impose Christianity on non-western peoples, and the use of state-administered violence to achieve these "evangelical" goals.This book explores the theological underpinnings of western attempts to spread Christianity and examines how variations in the interpretation of this theological imperative have impacted beliefs and practices of western states. This book will appeal to students and scholars interested in Christian nationalism, colonialism, the history of international relations, and the intersection of religion and politics.

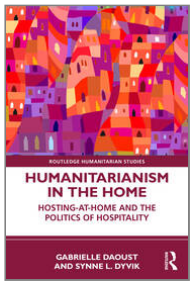
Humanitarianism in the Home

Hosting-at-home and the Politics of Hospitality



Gabrielle Daoust University of Northern British Columbia, Canada, Synne L. Dyvik University of Sussex, UK

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

Focusing on humanitarian responses within the Global South and North, this book critically examines hosting-at-home – that is, people providing shelter in their own home to displaced people – as a widespread yet underexamined and underappreciated response to large-scale displacement. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of humanitarianism, international relations and politics, and refugee and migration studies. It will be of particular interest no doubt to those curious about how humanitarian responses have changed over time, how international organisations as well as 'ordinary people' have responded to humanitarian crises historically and in the present.

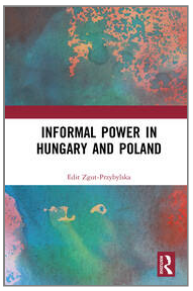
Informal power in Hungary and Poland



Edit Zgut-Przybylska

This book is about the nature of informal governmental power in Hungary and Poland. It highlights the key differences and similarities between the Orbán regime and the Kaczyński regime to show how they make societies dependent on the ruling elite. The monograph explains how coercive practices of these governments could avoid scrutiny of the European Union. The book unpacks the underlying reasons for ineffectiveness of the EU in the context of the changing geopolitical environment and war in Ukraine.

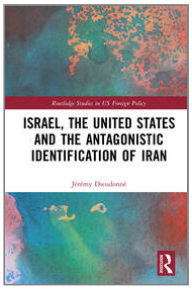
Israel, the United States, and the Antagonistic Identification of Iran



Jérémy Dieudonné

Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy

This book argues that hostility toward Iran is not simply the result of strategic calculations or historical grievances, but is deeply shaped by an internalized understanding of what it means to be "pro-Israel" in Washington—a stance increasingly tied to American political identity itself. By analyzing how this pro-Israel identification has been constructed, institutionalized, and linked to the portrayal of Iran as an existential adversary, the book reveals how U.S. policymakers are routinely confronted with a constrained policy field.

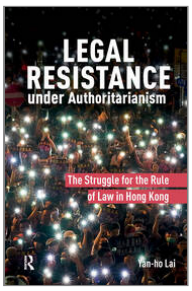
Legal Resistance under Authoritarianism

The Struggle for the Rule of Law in Hong Kong



Yan-ho Lai

An examination of the decline of Hong Kong's rule of law under China's expanding authoritarian influence. While the imposition of the National Security Law in 2020 is seen as a turning point, this book argues that threats to Hong Kong's rule of law began with the 1997 sovereignty transfer. Drawing on comprehensive fieldwork, Yan-ho Lai explores the tensions between legal profession, political authorities and the state's broader authoritarian project between the 2014 Umbrella Movement and the 2019 Anti-extradition Bill Movement.

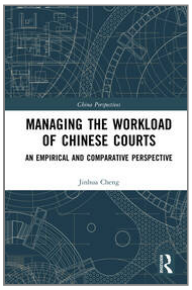
Managing the Workload of Chinese Courts

An Empirical and Comparative Perspective



Jinhua Cheng

Series: China Perspectives

This book presents a systematic empirical study of contemporary China's litigation case volume, judges' workload, and how courts attempt to alleviate the problem of "high caseloads with insufficient personnel" through enhanced management practices. Through nationwide survey data, it indicates Chinese judges bear an exceptionally heavy workload and significant stress, partly due to non-adjudicative works they are required to perform. The author describes how Chinese courts have employed trial management techniques to mitigate this problem. Scholars of court management, comparative judicial systems, and those interested in China studies will find the book appealing.

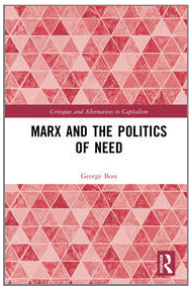
Marx and the Politics of Need



George Boss University College London, UK

Series: Critiques and Alternatives to Capitalism

Marx and the Politics of Need challenges one of the most pervasive habits in contemporary political theory and practice: treating needs as moral facts that sit outside of our politics, and which can be used to judge it. Against this depoliticising impulse, George Boss offers a provocative re-reading of Marx's writings on need, interpreting them not as didactic statements of an abstract philosophy, but as subversive interventions and provocations inseparable from his radical political activism. As such, it will appeal to scholars of politics, sociology, and philosophy exploring Marxist thought, economic justice, and the political dimensions of human need.

Monuments and Territory

War Memorials in Russian-Occupied Ukraine

Mykola Homanyuk , Mischa Gabowitsch

Series: Memory, Heritage and Public History in Central and Eastern Europe - CEU Press

From the very first weeks of Russia's large-scale attack on Ukraine in February 2022, Russian soldiers, politicians, and proxy administrators expended considerable effort interacting with monuments on newly occupied territory. Why did the invaders care enough about war memorials to divert scarce resources to destroying, maintaining, or building them amid a massive war? Why did they remove some memorials and spare others? These are some of the questions this book explores, based on fieldwork in occupied Ukraine and online research.

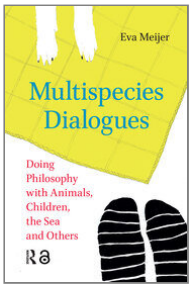
Multispecies Dialogues

Doing Philosophy with Animals, Children, the Sea and Others



Eva Meijer

Eva Meijer develops a new understanding of the concept 'dialogue', which includes embodied, material and spatial interaction. Meijer does not do this alone: each chapter of the book is devoted to a dialogue, or set of dialogues – with street dog Olli, a community of former lab mice, amphibian neighbours, the North Sea, and many other beings. Taking multispecies dialogues seriously is a way to do justice to more-than-human agency and to become more worldly in a time dominated by humans. Rethinking the model of the dialogue also opens up new ways of doing philosophy in multispecies world, which is urgently needed to address the ecological, political and philosophical problems of our time.

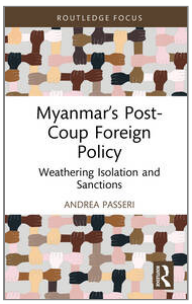
Myanmar's Post-Coup Foreign Policy

Weathering Isolation and Sanctions



Andrea Passeri University of Malaya, Malaysia

Series: Politics in Asia

Passeri unpacks the highly polarized and dysfunctional reaction of the international community vis-à-vis Myanmar's 2021 military coup, as well as the strategy utilized by the ruling junta to counter the diplomatic fallout of the power grab and ensuing civil war. The book shows that Myanmar's military-installed regime is neither irrational in its foreign policy choices, nor marginalized on the global stage due to Western sanctions and isolation. Quite on the contrary, the troubled and conflict-prone Southeast Asian country currently enjoys a growing geopolitical centrality in the region and beyond.

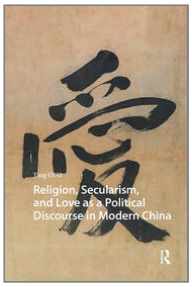
Religion, Secularism, and Love as a Political Discourse in Modern China



Ting Guo

Series: China: From Revolution to Reform

What is the meaning of love in modern Chinese politics? This book offers the first systematic examination of the ways in which the notion of love has been introduced, adapted, and engineered as a political discourse for the building and rebuilding of a secular modern nation, all the while appropriating Confucianism, Christianity, popular religion, ghost stories, political religion, and their religious affects. The insights of this exploration expand not only the discussion of the role of emotions in the project of Chinese modernity, but also the study of affective governance and religious nationalisms around the world today.

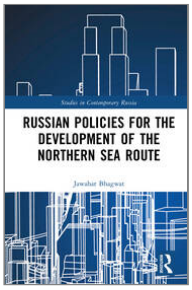
Russian Policies for the Development of the Northern Sea Route



Jawahar Bhagwat

Series: Studies in Contemporary Russia

This book explains Russian policies for developing the Northern Sea Route (NSR), analysing Moscow's public policy and national and geopolitical considerations in developing national maritime transport routes. The state's organisational structure and regulatory framework are analysed to provide a comprehensive review of the participation of the regions of the Russian Arctic in the development of the NSR and the role of public-private partnership mechanisms. Despite Western sanctions, Russia has continued its steadfast focus on developing the NSR, modifying its policies to keep its flagship project in the Arctic on track. This book assesses whether these goals are viable.

Short Games and Active Learning in Political Science

Edited by Derek Glasgow , Mark Harvey , Ryan Gibb , James Fielder

As political science instructors have increasingly turned to games and simulations in the classroom to educate and engage, scholars have worked to demonstrate their effectiveness, and to justify their use to skeptical colleagues. With instructional time always at a premium, this book focuses exclusively on short games and simulations: activities that are limited to one class period. Additionally, this book provides ready-to-use activities for teachers to utilize across Political Science subfields: American politics, International Relations, Comparative Politics, Public Policy and Administration, Political Theory, and activities that are not easily categorized into a field.

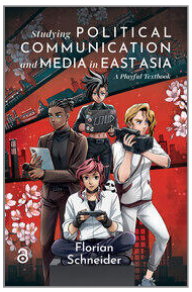
Studying Political Communication and Media in East Asia

A Playful Textbook



Florian Schneider

This textbook provides essential methods for studying political communication in East Asia, where diverse media systems intersect with political structures ranging from democratic to autocratic. Recognizing communication as central to politics, the book offers a flexible analytical toolbox using examples from Japan, Korea, and Chinese-speaking regions. The chapters work independently or as a gamified course that demonstrates how information societies shape behavior. By emphasizing East Asian contexts, the text helps readers understand both regional dynamics and broader 21st-century political communication, essential for comprehending contemporary politics globally

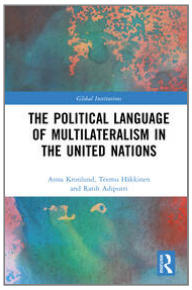
The Political Language of Multilateralism in the United Nations



Anna Kronlund , Teemu Häkkinen , Ratih D. Adiputri

Series: Global Institutions

This book explores the politics of multilateralism in the context of three United Nations (UN) pillars: human rights, peace and security, and development. The authors analyze the language of multilateralism as employed when the UN handles cases of transnational challenges and seeks to establish an international response and argue that conceptual politics of multilateralism taking place in the UN concerning key contemporary challenges illustrate a lack of shared understanding of multilateralism, but also broad interest to promote alternatives for multilateral cooperation as an activity.

The Prospects of a Pluriversal Transition to a Post-Capitalist, Post-Carbon Future

Edited by S. A. Hamed Hosseini University of Newcastle, Australia, Alexander Dunlap , Barry K. Gills University of Helsinki, Finland

Series: Rethinking Globalizations

This book critically engages with a central dilemma facing counter-hegemonic movements as global crises intensify: how to foster systemic change while maintaining the plurality of their struggles. The Prospects of a Pluriversal Transition to a Post-Capitalist, Post-Carbon Future explores the tensions between fragmentation and convergence, autonomy and solidarity, and the risks of compartmentalization in pluriversal politics. The volume examines movements resisting extractivism, food sovereignty initiatives, feminist and care-based ethics, commons-based governance, and radical pluriversalist networks that challenge dominant power structures.

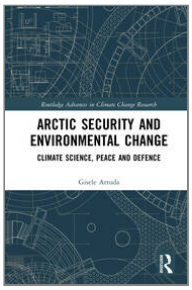
Arctic Security and Environmental Change

Climate Science, Peace and Defence



Gisele Arruda

Series: Routledge Advances in Climate Change Research

This book examines the nexus of environmental change and defence in the Arctic as a national and global security issue. In an era dominated by a new range of threats and priorities, Gisele Arruda discusses the militarisation process in the High North and explores how climate change is impacting the maritime, infrastructure and defence systems dynamics. Contextualizing the Arctic region as part of a global security geo-space, the book has a particular emphasis on the security and geopolitical implications to societies, the northern territories, coastal communities, and maritime routes of Arctic states.

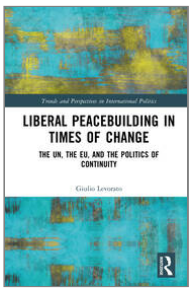
Liberal Peacebuilding in Times of Change

The UN, the EU, and the Politics of Continuity



Giulio Levorato

Series: Trends and Perspectives in International Politics

This book explores why and how, in an era in which conflicts are turning into arenas of strategic competition, international organizations have become the ultimate guardians of liberal peace.International organizations display policy continuity at a time when authoritarian models of conflict resolution are gaining traction thanks to streamlined objectives, fast-paced solutions, and reduced normative commitments. Confronting the challenges posed by illiberal actors, the United Nations and the European Union have entrenched their survival with that of the liberal international order, and of liberal peace in particular.

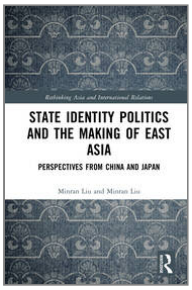
State Identity Politics and the Making of East Asia

Perspectives from China and Japan



Minran Liu

Series: Rethinking Asia and International Relations

This book examines how the evolving state identities of China and Japan have interacted with the regional order and its prospects for both cooperation and conflict. It focuses on how domestic actors in both countries construct and mobilise state identities, how domestic politics interact with international relations, and how these identities shape regional order. Through analysis of China's and Japan's evolving approaches to key post–Cold War regional initiatives, the author demonstrates why state identity politics is vital to understanding Sino-Japanese relations and broader regional dynamics in East Asia. .

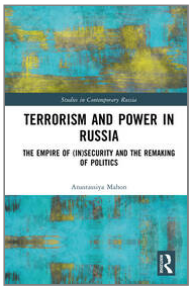
Terrorism and Power in Russia

The Empire of (In)security and the Remaking of Politics



Anastassiya Mahon

Series: Studies in Contemporary Russia

Why is it that in Russia, crises so often become framed as terrorism—and what does this tell us about power, politics, and state control? This book examines how the Kremlin has used the language of terrorism to shape Russia's domestic, regional, and international politics, from the Chechen wars to Syria and the 2022 invasion of Ukraine. Combining securitisation theory with a three-level analysis, it traces how securitising actors and speech acts reframed terrorism as an existential threat, enabling exceptional measures at home, influence across Russia's near abroad, and claims to counterterrorism leadership internationally.

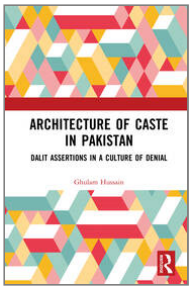
Architecture of Caste in Pakistan

Dalit Assertions in a Culture of Denial



Ghulam Hussain

This groundbreaking book examines caste intersectionality in South Asia through rich ethnographic fieldwork in Pakistan. It reveals how caste—often denied by nationalist and religious discourses—continues shaping hierarchies and political structures across Hindu, Muslim, and Christian communities. Moving beyond Indian caste frameworks, it shows caste in Pakistan isn't a "Hindu problem" but a transreligious social structure. The book analyzes how privileged and oppressed groups invoke history to construct identities, demonstrating systematic discrimination against Scheduled Castes and Pasmanda communities. Essential for scholars of caste studies, sociology, and South Asian studies.

Asia's Maritime History and Identity at Cultural Crossroads

Edited by Sreedevi Santhosh , Samjaila T. H. , Preethi S. , Steffi Santhana Mary S , Uma Maheswary , L. Santhosh Kumar

Asia's 'great highways' and 'wide common' of the sea function as routes for trade and commerce that underpins globalization. Due to unprecedented human trafficking at sea, the ocean has largely become a repository for plastic pollution, waste and effluents. Complex oceanic-ecosystems make it inconceivable for human beings to take stock of the interdependence of seas, earth and atmosphere, 'missing in context' for redressal.

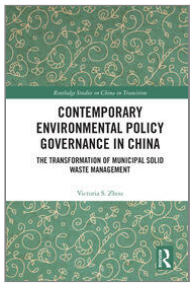
Contemporary Environmental Policy Governance in China

The Transformation of Municipal Solid Waste Management



Victoria S. Zhou

Series: Routledge Studies on China in Transition

This book examines environmental governance in China during the Xi Jinping era. Drawing on extensive fieldwork, this book uses the eco-transformation of waste management as a case study to reveal how central authorities exert political pressure to enforce national policy visions, while local governments frequently resort to "minimum compliance"—a strategy that allows local authorities to cope with and sidestep centrally mandated policies while avoiding the consequences of policy failure. Offering fresh insights into China's policy processes, this book will be a valuable resource to students and scholars of Chinese Politics and Environmental Policy.

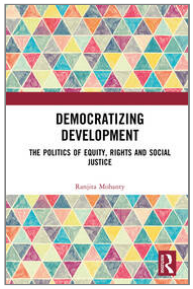
Democratizing Development

The Politics of Equity, Rights and Social Justice



Ranjita Mohanty New Delhi, India

In India, democracy was added to the model of development by combining economic development with social justice post second world war. Examining development through the lens of the most marginalized, the book shows why democratization of development is of such significance to them. It shows the role of both the state and civil society in infusing development with democracy with primary ethnographic research and empirically drawn cases, and supplements these with theoretical and analytical arguments. Drawing from multiple streams of social science, this book will be of interest to scholars, students and policy makers in development studies, sociology,anthropology, and policy studies.

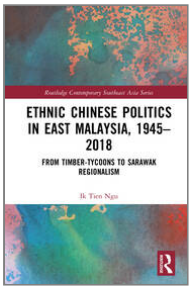
Ethnic Chinese Politics in East Malaysia, 1945–2018

From Timber-tycoons to Sarawak Regionalism



Ik Tien Ngu

Series: Routledge Contemporary Southeast Asia Series

Ngu explores how Malaysia's Barisan Nasional (BN) regime—once celebrated as a model of consociational democracy—achieved broad political domination through its structures and systems across the country, including in the Chinese-majority municipality of Sibu in Sarawak. However, the study reveals how the regime deviated from ideal consociational principles, ultimately alienating ethnic minorities and fueling the rise of subnational regionalism. The book focuses primarily on the role of Chinese timber tycoons under the leadership of the Sarawak United Peoples' Party (SUPP). Their influence over local social and political domains enabled them to broadly dominate local society.

Ethnicity and Ethnic Minorities in Post-Soviet Eurasia

Edited by Vincenc Kopeček , Martin Lepič , Libor Jelen

Series: Routledge Contemporary Russia and Eastern Europe Series

This book focuses on the study of ethnic minorities in post-Soviet Eurasia, their self-perceptions, and their relations with ethnic majorities. Offering a unique systematic comparison of selected cases using ethnicity as the main concept, the book argues that the Soviet notion of ethnicity stood at the centre of Soviet administrative structure, consequently having a profound impact on how individual ethnic groups in the former USSR understood themselves and imagined each other, how political institutions in individual Soviet republics and ethnic autonomies were formed, and how this institutional setting defined the distribution of political power between ethnic groups.

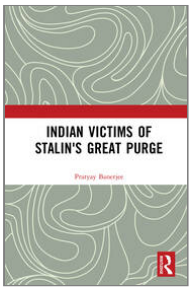
Indian Victims of Stalin's Great Purge



Pratyay Banerjee

This book explores Indians who fell victim to Stalin's Great Purge (1936–1938) through political biographies of seven revolutionaries—Virendra Chattopadhyaya, Abani Mukherjee, G.A.K. Luhani, Muhammad Ali, Abdullah Safdar, Abdul Qayuum, and Muhammad Nisar—who traveled to Russia and worked with the Communist International. Using extensive archival research from Soviet, Indian, and university archives, it reveals unexplored experiences of Indian communists in Soviet Russia, challenges rigid historical narratives, and uncovers forgotten revolutionaries from India's independence struggle. Essential for scholars of South Asian history, Russian history, and global communist movement.

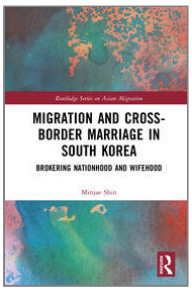
Migration and Cross-Border Marriage in South Korea

Brokering Nationhood and Wifehood



Minjae Shin University of Bristol, UK

Series: Routledge Series on Asian Migration

Rather than treating them as logistical intermediaries, this book reconceptualizes the role of cross-border marriage brokers in South Korea, facilitating mobility while also helping to shape narratives around gender, family, and national belonging in contemporary Asia. Situating the Korean case within a wider Asian context, the book highlights shared patterns and divergent developments, framing brokerage as part of broader debates on migration, multiculturalism, and contested belonging. It will appeal to scholars, policymakers, and practitioners in migration, Asian, and gender studies.

Sanskrit Hymns Across Traditions

Studying Stotras

Edited by Hamsa Stainton , Anna Lee White

Series: Routledge Studies in Asian Religion and Philosophy

Sanskrit hymns of praise (stotra/stuti/stava) have been popular and influential within multiple religious traditions for thousands of years. Sanskrit hymns remain lively, meaningful parts of the religious lives of countless Hindus, Buddhists, and Jains today, and new stotras continue to be composed and recited around the world. A valuable pedagogical resource for educators teaching about Asian religions and literature, especially in comparative contexts, this book also establishes the foundation for future research and scholarship on a genre of religious poetry popular across South Asian religious traditions.

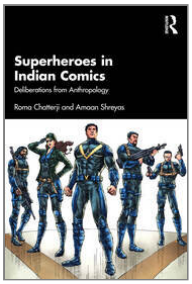
Superheroes in Indian Comics

Deliberations from Anthropology



Roma Chatterji Department of Sociology, Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi, India, Amaan Shreyas

Exploring the work of three publishing houses who publish Superhero Comics, this book analyses their techniques of narration through open-ended plots, frequent re-boots of the storyline, extended story arcs. Through an analysis of commercial superhero comics, the volume draws attention to a fluidity embedded in Superhero Comics, which is influenced by external pressures of distribution and production that are generally ignored in the desire to view a comic text as a discrete and disembodied whole. Superhero comics then emerge as a post-modern vehicle to test serious socio-political issues in the mode of fantasy.

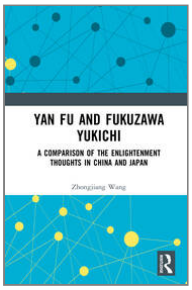
Yan Fu and Fukuzawa Yukichi

A Comparison of the Enlightenment Thoughts in China and Japan



Wang Zhongjiang

This book compares the enlightenment thought of China and Japan amid 19th-century Western imperialism, offering a groundbreaking analysis of how two iconic thinkers shaped their nations' divergent paths to modernity. Through twelve analytical chapters, it explores how Yan Fu of China and Fukuzawa Yukichi of Japan navigated the paradox of tradition versus progress. Key themes include their contrasting approaches to Western science, political freedom, economic reform, and cultural identity. It is essential for historians, Asian studies scholars, and policymakers as it bridges philosophy, political science, and intellectual history.

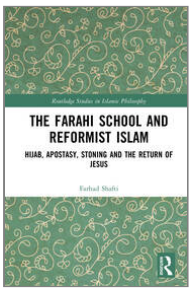
The Farahi School and Reformist Islam

Hijab, Apostasy, Stoning and the Return of Jesus



Farhad Shafti University of Glasgow, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Islamic Philosophy

Examining the emergence and development of the Farāhī school of thought and its methodology, this book explores the four case studies of stoning, apostasy, hijab, and the return of Jesus. The Farahi School and Reformist Islam is the first academic work to go beyond the Farāhī school's theory of Qur'anic coherence, aiming to derive its methodological features through original analysis and a case study approach. It will appeal to advanced students and scholars of Islam, particularly those interested in Qur'anic exegesis and Islamic jurisprudence.

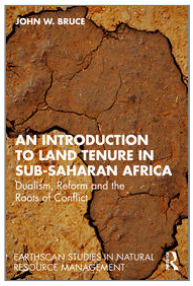
An Introduction to Land Tenure in Sub-Saharan Africa

Dualism, Reform and the Roots of Conflict



John W. Bruce

Series: Earthscan Studies in Natural Resource Management

Written by a scholar-practitioner with over four decades of experience, this book is an accessible introduction to land tenure and its implications for African development.The author reviews Africa's experience of evolution in customary land tenure and the often-difficult experience of the new nation in land tenure reform, including their failure to prevent further loss of land by rural populations and the unwitting contribution of some reform elements to that loss. This book will be of great interest to students, scholars and practitioners wanting to understand the role of law and land tenure in African development.

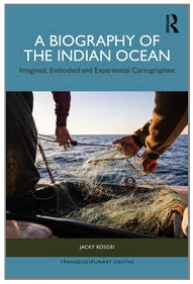
A Biography of the Indian Ocean

Imagined, Embodied and Experiential Cartographies



Jacky Kosgei

Series: Transdisciplinary Souths

This book examines East African coast texts, especially Kenyan, through cross-generic works in English and Kiswahili - historical novels, Indian Ocean novels, oral history, testimony, and poetry. It challenges existing Indian Ocean knowledge archives by highlighting local expressions from personal, intimate perspectives of seafarers including divers, sailors, fishers, and beach operators. These local articulations create intimate maps of the sea from ground-level viewpoints. Essential for scholars in literary/cultural studies, African studies, and Indian Ocean studies.

Ecology, Decoloniality, and African Literature

Edited by Goutam Karmakar Durban University of Technology, South Africa, Deirdre C. Byrne

This book addresses the pressing issues of environmentalism and its representations in African literature. It emphasizes how African writers articulate the consequences of ecological degradation while engaging with decolonial thought that underscores the epistemic importance of the enslaved and colonized quest for humanity and challenges Western narratives' exclusivity. The chapters in this volume underscore the necessity to preserve the ecosystem of the oppressed, an ecology upholding connection with Indigenous people shaped by modernity's constraints.

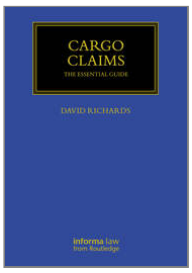
Cargo Claims

The Essential Guide



David Richards

Series: Maritime and Transport Law Library

Cargo claims are the most frequent form of third-party liability incurred by carriers by sea and their P&I insurers. This new book examines every aspect of cargo claims from a legal and practical perspective and complements other legal textbooks which specialise in bills of lading or charterparties. Written for practitioners and those working on cargo claims day-to-day, the book will be invaluable for ship operators, shipping law firms, barristers' chambers, cargo recovery agencies and P&I insurers. Readers will gain a comprehensive guide to the handling of cargo claims by way of a detailed analysis of the underlying legal principles and through practical guidance.

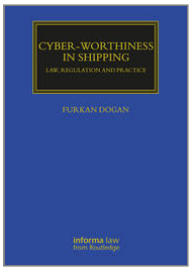
Cyber-worthiness in Shipping

Law, Regulation and Practice



Furkan Dogan

Series: Maritime and Transport Law Library

As the maritime industry undergoes a technological transformation, traditional legal doctrines must evolve to address new challenges. This book explores the legal and operational implications of Maritime Autonomous Surface Ships (MASS) and the increasing reliance on digital systems in modern shipping. For practitioners, this book solves pressing legal and operational problems. It clarifies how existing maritime regulations (such as UNCLOS, SOLAS, and the ISM Code) apply to autonomous and digitalised ships, identifies gaps in current legal frameworks, and proposes necessary updates to ensure compliance.

International Investment Law in the Commonwealth Caribbean

Jason Haynes

Series: Commonwealth Caribbean Law

International Investment Law in the Commonwealth Caribbean employs rigorous doctrinal analysis that places Caribbean experiences at its centre, while also building readers' analytical capabilities for engaging with complex issues in international economic law. The book is unique in showing how investment law operates in small island developing state contexts, making abstract legal concepts accessible through analysis of Caribbean case law, whilst also developing critical thinking skills. Each chapter integrates traditional black-letter law instruction with critical analysis, drawing on Third World Approaches to International Law (TWAIL) and post-colonial theory.

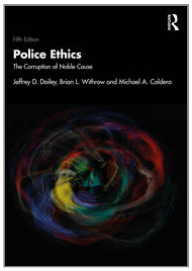
Police Ethics

The Corruption of Noble Cause



Jeffrey D. Dailey , Brian L. Withrow Texas State University, San Marcos, Michael A. Caldero

Police Ethics provides an analysis of corruption in law enforcement organizations. This new edition offers police administrators direction for developing agency-wide corruption prevention strategies through an application of the Model of Circumstantial Corruptibility. In response to recent issues affecting the relationship between police departments and minority communities, like the Black Lives Matter organization and the death of George Floyd, this new edition provides workable solutions. Finally, this edition contains a discussion on what might be an emerging trend in American policing we call the over-politicization of the policing function.

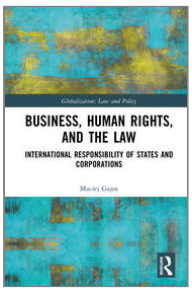
Business, Human Rights, and the Law

International Responsibility of States and Corporations



Maciej Gajos

Series: Globalization: Law and Policy

This book explores how the rules of international responsibility can be applied to cases of human rights violations involving multinational corporations. It examines why international law fails in the context of business-related human rights abuses and how its potential can be harnessed to restore its adequacy. It proposes a model of international responsibility that seeks to close accountability gaps related to corporate activities. The work engages with recent developments as well as salient cases in this field, and will be of interest to academics, researchers and policy-makers working in the areas of International Human Rights Law, Business and Human Rights, and Law and Society.

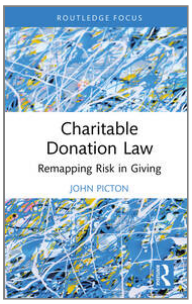
Charitable Donation Law

Remapping Risk in Giving



John Picton

Charitable donation law faces a persistent challenge when testators leave gifts to charities that no longer exist, creating uncertainty that often leads to costly litigation between intended beneficiaries. This book examines how traditional legal scholarship has attempted to resolve these disputes, and proposes fundamental reforms to create robust, donor-friendly frameworks. This interdisciplinary analysis will be of particular interest to researchers in charity law and comparative legal studies. The book's integration of doctrinal analysis with policy critique and reform proposals makes it essential reading for academics working at the intersection of private law and social policy.

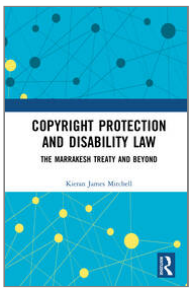
Copyright Protection and Disability Law

The Marrakesh Treaty and Beyond



Kieran James Mitchell

This book provides a one-stop, comprehensive guide to the Marrakesh Treaty and its relation to copyright protection and disability law. Beginning with an exploration of the origin and impact of the "global book famine", the volume contextualises the role of copyright law in restricting access to the written word. Detailing the core philosophical underpinnings of the debate, the book offers new interpretive insights into the classic justifications of copyright protection through the lens of inclusivity. It will be of interest to researchers in the field of copyright law, policy, and disability rights legal theory.

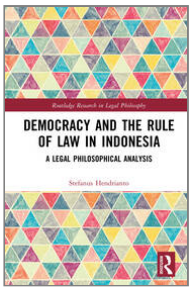
Democracy and the Rule of Law in Indonesia

A Legal Philosophical Analysis



Stefanus Hendrianto

Series: Routledge Research in Legal Philosophy

This book explores democratic development in Indonesia—the world's third-largest democracy after India and the United States. Through case studies, it looks at two rival versions of democracy: the republican form and the electoral form, and posits that electoral democracy is not sustainable without republican institutions, laws, and norms. The book invites readers on an intellectual journey to explore the republican ideal through the lenses of philosophy, law, politics, and the history of the problem of democracy in Indonesia.

EU Accession and the Rule of Law

Pre-accession Assistance and the Western Balkans

Edited by Marko Novakovic , Marina Matic-Boskovic

This book offers a critical examination of how the EU's Instrument for Pre-accession Assistance (IPA) has influenced governance and legal reform across the Western Balkans and beyond. Focusing on six countries at different stages of the accession process, Serbia, Montenegro, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Albania, Croatia, and North Macedonia, this book assesses the IPA's evolving role as a mechanism for strengthening the rule of law. Through country-specific analyses, the book explores how IPA funding has supported judicial reform, anti-corruption measures, and legal harmonisation, while also considering the long-term effects in Croatia, the region's only EU member state.

Financial Crime and the Office of the European Public Prosecutor

Protecting EU Financial Interests in a New Institutional Landscape

Edited by Celina Nowak

This book examines the realities of the functioning of the European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO) along with the actual cooperation with other stakeholders in the EU and in the Member States. Based on examples of five Member States taking part in the EPPO from the beginning - Germany, Italy, Lithuania, Romania and Slovakia - as well as Poland, which used to be a non-participating Member State and only recently joined the EPPO, this collection analyses the legal framework as well as the practical experience of cooperation in this field. The book will be an invaluable resource for academics and researchers in the areas of EU Criminal Law, EU Law and EU Constitutional Law.

Flexibilities in Copyright Law

Edited by Caterina Sganga , Tatiana Eleni Synodinou

This book explores the intricated evolution of flexibilities in copyright law, addressing some of the most pressing challenges the copyright balance has faced in the past decades. In the digital age, copyright law's role as a regulatory framework has grown, demanding even greater clarity and flexibility regarding access and use of protected works. EU harmonization efforts have added complexity by introducing detailed rules that impact on the copyright balance.

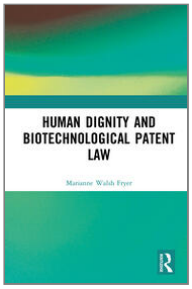
Human Dignity and Biotechnological Patent Law



Marianne Walsh Fryer

This book suggests a new legal framework to improve coherence in the definition of human dignity in European biotech patent law, by way of a novel court structure. Examining judicial interpretations of human dignity in biotech patent law across European jurisdictions, the book looks at the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR), the European Patent Office (EPO), the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU), and national courts. It explores how biotech patent law has shaped the concept of human dignity, influencing judicial reasoning beyond its original trade law context. The book will be of interest to researchers of IP law, patent law and human rights, and biotechnology.

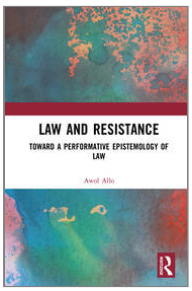
Law and Resistance

Toward a Performative Epistemology of Law



Awol Allo

This book explores a fundamental paradox at the heart of law and resistance: while law emerges from acts of resistance, it systematically denies this origin once established. Law and Resistance considers the different ways in which a politics of resistance is enabled in the courtroom: as it uncovers a performative logic that contingently conditions, and thus breaks open, law's otherwise closed normativity.

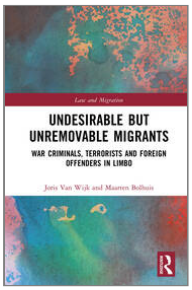
Undesirable but Unremovable Migrants

War Criminals, Terrorists and Foreign Offenders in Limbo



Joris Van Wijk , Maarten Bolhuis

Series: Law and Migration

Across the globe, thousands of alleged 'criminal' migrants find themselves trapped in limbo. They are unwanted in the countries hosting them but cannot be deported because they are stateless, because human rights law prevents it, or because they themselves do not cooperate. These individuals are referred to as Undesirable But Unremovable migrants. This book traces the emergence of UBUs, shows how their numbers have increased dramatically over time, and reveals the inability of states to develop coherent policy responses. The book benefits anyone engaged in the study, development, or implementation of governmental policies concerning migrants accused of being involved in crime.

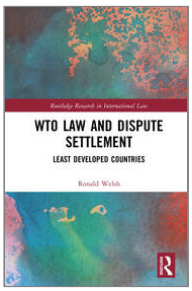
WTO Law and Dispute Settlement

Least Developed Countries



Ronald Welsh

Series: Routledge Research in International Law

This book examines the World Trade Organisation (WTO) Dispute Settlement Understanding (DSU) from the perspective of the world's Least Developed Countries (LDCs). This book explores the issues behind LDCs difficulty engaging with the DSU, with only one dispute brought. Arguing that WTO action alone will not address all these issues, the volume advocates that the LDCs must themselves be prepared to take measures to address current weaknesses and makes recommendations as to how they may overcome some of their DSU engagement issues. The book will be of interest to researchers in the field of international trade law, international law and dispute resolution.

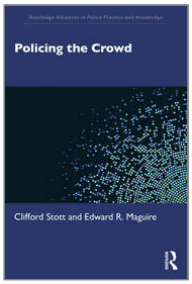
Policing the Crowd



Clifford Stott , Edward R. Maguire

Series: Routledge Advances in Police Practice and Knowledge

This is the first comprehensive account of how crowd psychology has transformed policing. Drawing on dramatic case studies from Britain, Europe, and the United States, it reveals how crowd psychology and policing intersect, why disorder spreads, and how legitimacy can be won or lost in the space of a single decision. Written from inside the process, it offers unmatched insight into how evidence has directly shaped policing practice and policy reform. Combining compelling case studies with theoretical clarity, it provides scholars, practitioners, and policymakers with a powerful framework for understanding and managing one of democracy's greatest challenges.

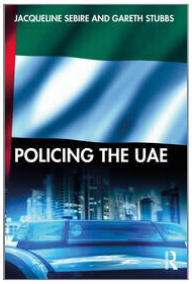
Policing the UAE



Jacqueline Sebire , Gareth Stubbs

This is the first textbook designed specifically for students, officers, and educators working within the unique legal, cultural, and operational context of UAE. Instead of assuming a Western model, this book draws on local examples, legislation, and organisational structures to reflect how policing is actually delivered in the region today. Written by former operational police officers and current educators, the book balances academic clarity with practical relevance, making it suitable for use across diploma, undergraduate, and CPD programmes, providing a much-needed resource for those preparing to lead and serve in 21st-century law enforcement.

Exploring Human Trafficking Pathways and Narratives of Desistance

Edited by Sean Byrne Boston University, USA

In the seven book chapters that follow, researchers have conducted both qualitative and quantitative analyses of human trafficking, focusing primarily on sex trafficking. Authors delve into the complex world of human trafficking through the lens of personal narratives of participants, including sex traffickers, sex workers, social workers, and law enforcement. Drawing from firsthand accounts, the book illuminates the intricate pathways that lead individuals into human trafficking and the challenges faced by those who attempt to leave.

Natural Resource Extraction and Violence Against Women in Rural Places

Drilling Down on Patriarchy

Walter S. DeKeseredy , Joseph F. Donnermeyer , Jayne Mooney

Series: Routledge Studies in Rural Criminology

This book integrates three discrete bodies of knowledge (violence against women, green criminology, and rural criminology), and (1) describes the nature, extent, and distribution of VAW in rural boomtowns around the world, (2) critiques what the authors refer to as an anomie model of VAW in rural boomtown communities, and (3) introduces the concept of patriarchal social reorganization and demonstrates that globalization and natural resource extraction did not bring VAW to rural communities, but rather intensified an existing problem. This is essential reading for all engaged in rural and feminist criminology, violence against women, and natural resource extraction.

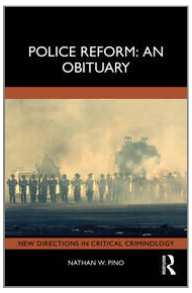
Police Reform: An Obituary



Nathan W. Pino

Series: New Directions in Critical Criminology

This book argues that police reform efforts around the world should be extirpated and replaced with locally developed and led non-carceral alternatives that can produce community safety, social justice, and quality of life over the long-term from a decolonial, feminist, anti-capitalist, and abolitionist perspective. Since the book concerns current, important debates regarding police defunding and abolition, it will be a useful resource for students and scholars of criminology, policymakers, local stakeholders, nongovernmental organizations, and activists involved in various social justice movements around the world.

The Routledge International Handbook of Sensory Criminology

Edited by Kate Herrity , Kanupriya Sharma , Janani Umamaheswar , Jason Warr

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This Handbook reimagines what criminology can become when we take the senses seriously. Centring the sensory as fundamental to the experience of harm, justice, and resistance, it explores how power is heard, felt, inhaled, touched, and moved through, from courtrooms and prisons to museums, marine ecologies, colonial archives, transitional spaces, high-crime zones and urban streets. It is essential reading for students, scholars and early career researchers in criminology, sociology, law, anthropology, geography, gender studies, politics, and cultural studies, as well as those interested in decolonial approaches, sensory methods, and interdisciplinary justice research.

Variably Legal Markets

Rethinking Markets and Crime

Edited by Letizia Paoli University of Leuven, Belgium, Nicholas Lord

Series: Routledge Studies in Crime, Security and Justice

This book offers a novel perspective for conceptualising legality in market exchanges. It challenges the conventional binary of "legal" versus "illegal" markets by introducing the concept of variably legal markets - arenas of exchange where legality is conditional, multidimensional, and context-dependent. This collection will be essential reading for students and scholars of criminology, economics, and law. It will also be useful for policymakers and practitioners seeking to understand and govern the messy realities of modern markets.

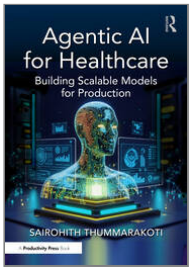
Agentic AI for Healthcare

Building Scalable Models for Production



Sairohith Thummarakoti

Agentic AI for Healthcare: Building Scalable Models for Production is the first comprehensive technical guide that focuses specifically on designing and deploying agentic AI systems within complex clinical and operational healthcare environments. Unlike traditional AI systems that passively infer outcomes, agentic AI involves systems that actively make decisions, coordinate with other agents, and take initiative toward long-term goals, making them ideal for dynamic and high-stakes healthcare settings. What sets this book apart is its deep technical focus tailored for computer scientists, architects, and AI engineers who are building real-world healthcare solutions.

High-Activity Nuclear Waste Management

Becoming a Responsible Ancestor

Daniel Metlay

High-Activity Nuclear Waste Management Policy: Becoming a Responsible Ancestor describes the technical, social, and political challenges of developing a deep-mined, geologic repository for high-activity nuclear waste. It emphasizes how the technical estimates of repository performance affect non-technical considerations, such as trust and risk perceptions, and how those considerations in turn affect the technical determinations. The book will interest nuclear waste and nuclear energy and safety researchers, policy makers, and administrators. It will also benefit graduate students taking courses in nuclear waste management, technology ethics, and public/energy policy.

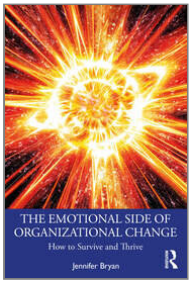
The Emotional Side of Organizational Change

How to Survive and Thrive



Jennifer Bryan

Typically, people are afraid of having to face emotions and manage them. This is particularly problematic when a leader is trying to enable a change within an organisation. So how do leaders and managers of change address emotion – this book delves into the aspects of change that managers often don't like to acknowledge but need to embrace to truly understand behaviours and implement change. This book brings together foresight tools, such as horizon scanning and trend analysis, along with organisational development tools, such as team, systems and process analyses, to really bottom out the type of change they are planning.

The Myths of Project Management

Bradley Rolfe

Despite the increasing proliferation of project management frameworks and best practices, the failure rate of complex projects remains extraordinarily high. This book examines how organizations systematically undermine the projects they commission and why traditional approaches to project management are failing managers. The Myths of Project Management challenges readers to let go of the seductive lie of control, and to become a better manager of complex projects. It will be of particular interest to senior project managers, program managers, and portfolio directors.

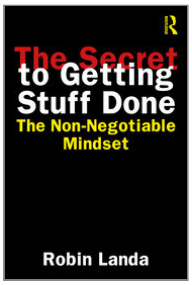
The Secret to Getting Stuff Done

The Non-Negotiable Mindset



Robin Landa

The Secret to Getting Stuff Done introduces a four-step identity-based system that transforms wishful thinking into consistent, meaningful action: identify what truly matters to your future self; focus on the critical few actions that move the needle; act consistently - regardless of how you feel or what's happening; make it non-negotiable - no debates, no excuses. This isn't another habits book. It's a blueprint for building automatic behaviors that serve your highest aspirations. Instead of relying on motivation, you'll learn to create deep internal commitments tied to who you are becoming—so the right actions happen without daily struggle. Whether you're pursuing professional goals, creative work, or personal growth, this approach makes progress feel natural instead of forced.

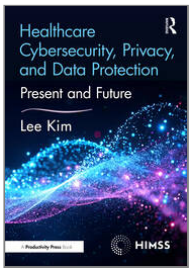
Healthcare Cybersecurity, Privacy, and Data Protection

Present and Future



Lee Kim

Series: HIMSS Book Series

Patient information is not like other types of information. It is very personal. That is why healthcare information must be kept both private and secure. Yet, there are many challenges. From technical misconfigurations to vulnerabilities and human mistakes, there are several reasons why healthcare cybersecurity programs face common pitfalls. The strength of a program largely depends on how well it is governed—and how well we are managing who (and what) has access to our systems, networks, devices, and physical spaces; when they have access; and why they have access.

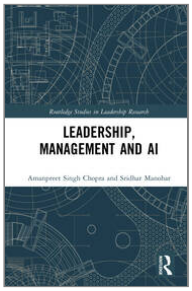
Leadership, Management and AI



Amanpreet Singh Chopra , Sridhar Manohar

Series: Routledge Studies in Leadership Research

This book is about the future of leadership and organisations with the integration of Artificial Intelligence in the business ecosystem. The book, from the perspective of academic inquiries, suggests that the emergence of Artificial Intelligence as a transformative force in business calls for redefining traditional competitive and leadership theories and frameworks. With the integration of AI in organisational hierarchy, leadership need to deliberate on what to delegate and how much to delegate to AI for the decision-making process and what kind of firewalls would be required to have oversight on AI and move towards developing and deploying 'Responsible AI'.

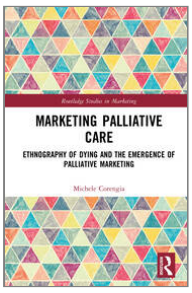
Marketing Palliative Care

Ethnography of Dying and the Emergence of Palliative Marketing



Michele Corengia

Series: Routledge Studies in Marketing

Drawing on a decade of ethnographic research in palliative contexts across Switzerland, Italy, and the United States, this book unfolds a radical question: can marketing grasp dying? Can it offer not only tools, but a language for societies to relate to finitude? Through the case study of a COVID-designated hospital in Locarno, the conceptualization of the temporal consumer, and the unveiling of palliative clearings, it develops a new epistemology of marketing at the threshold of life. Bridging marketing, medical humanities, and palliative care, this volume will speak to scholars, healthcare professionals, and all those seeking a vocabulary for dying in market society.

Public Governance on the Blockchain

Edited by Usman W. Chohan , Sven Van Kerckhoven

Series: Routledge Studies in Public Economics and Finance

The adoption of blockchain for governance purposes, particularly in public governance, lags behind other applications such as cryptocurrencies and decentralized finance. What impedes this adoption? Are existing governance systems deemed sufficient by key stakeholders? Is inertia or cost hindering the transformation through blockchain innovations? Or has the potential of blockchain in public governance been overstated? This book aims to address these questions comprehensively by leveraging the expertise of interdisciplinary scholars who undertake a holistic examination of the role, potential, and limitations of blockchain technologies in public governance.

Sustainability and Competitive Advantage

Text and Cases

Jacqueline P Mundkur , Srinivasan. R. Iyengar

This book aims to link a company's investments in sustainability to enhanced competitive advantage. It allows a rare glimpse into different companies (drawn from large and small-sized as well as across public and private sectors), that have made deep commitments to sustainable practices. While each case opens up a unique situation, the common thread is the non-linear trajectory of these sustainability programs. This book will be useful to the students, researchers, teachers of Strategy, Sustainability, and Environmental studies, ESG, Environmental science, Sociology, and Public Administration.

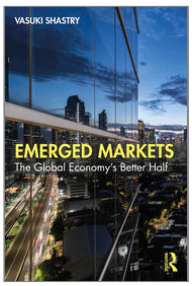
Emerged Markets

The Global Economy's Better Half



Vasuki Shastry

This book builds a compelling case that a new settlement is needed, that rebalances power, well beyond existing arrangements such as the G20, and creates a shared vision to build economic growth and prosperity. The alternative is a world which lurches from crisis to conflict, jeopardising peace and prosperity. The very phrase "emerging markets" connotes that some countries are still developing and cannot compete with mostly Western global economic heavyweights. But the rise of China and India have not been isolated phenomena, with many other emerged countries also becoming confident about their place in the world: these are emerged markets, not the Global South or the Third World.

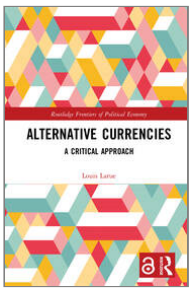
Alternative Currencies

A Critical Approach



Louis Larue Department of Culture and Learning, Aalborg University, Denmark.

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

A wide variety of new forms of money have been developed in recent decades as a challenge or complement to the official, dominant currencies. This book focuses on radical alternative proposals as well as on small-scale experiments, and makes use of the analytical tools of philosophy and of economics, with one main question in mind: Can alternative currencies constitute desirable alternatives to the present monetary system? This book is addressed to researchers in economics, politics, and philosophy of money, especially those working on alternative monetary systems.

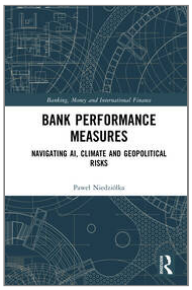
Bank Performance Measures

Navigating AI, Climate and Geopolitical Risks



Paweł Niedziółka

Series: Banking, Money and International Finance

The reforms introduced in the aftermath of the global financial crisis of 2007-2009 have had the desired effect, in that banks are better capitalised, have higher liquidity buffers and the share of non-performing loans is low. This book argues, however, that we still need to remain vigilant. The world has not yet recovered from the pandemic, and we are now faced with new challenges, particularly climate, technological and geopolitical risks. The book evaluates a commercial bank in the context of the climate crisis and risk. It will find an audience among students, academics, researchers in finance and banking, as well as policymakers and regulators.

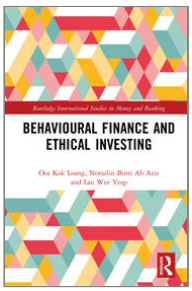
Behavioural Finance and Ethical Investing



Kok Loang Ooi , Norazlin Binti Ab Aziz , Wee Yeap Lau

Series: Routledge International Studies in Money and Banking

Contextualising the effective and ineffective approaches to Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) implementation across the globe from a behavioural finance perspective, this book covers a range of considerations that must be made when firms choose the sustainable path. The book begins with a critical examination of ESG investing and assumption that they consistently deliver superior financial returns. It then explores how cognitive distortions, incorrect information, and technological innovations may impact ethically motivated investors, leading them to make choices that are behaviourally vulnerable if not irrational.

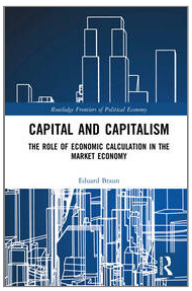
Capital and Capitalism

The Role of Economic Calculation in the Market Economy



Eduard Braun Clausthal University of Technology, Germany

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Capitalism is an economic system where almost all production and trade activities are organised by enterprises whose purpose is to maximise the return on the capital that has been invested in them. In contrast, this book develops a theory of capital that is, at the same time, a theory of capitalism - the theory of capital in this book takes account of the term "capital" as understood and used in actual business life. The book will be of great interest to readers in the areas of Austrian economics, institutional economics, history of economic thought, varieties of capitalism and financial accounting.

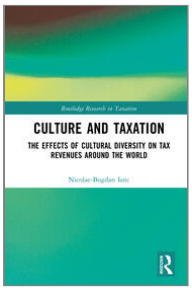
Culture and Taxation

The Effects of Cultural Diversity on Tax Revenues Around the World



Nicolae-Bogdan Ianc

Series: Routledge Research in Taxation

Tax revenues, as a percentage of GDP, significantly vary all around the world. It is well-established that people pay taxes when they are satisfied with the quality of public services and institutions and this volume argues cultural value is also a critical factor in explaining the variation in tax revenue. The book focuses on the differences in tax revenues, government policy, budgeting, and tax structure, across both developing and developed countries. The book is addressed to researchers in economics, business schools, public policy and other areas with an interest in taxation and the impacts of cultural dynamics on the economy.

Edited by Monika Meireles , Vania López , Elizabeth Concha , Antonio Mendoza

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

This book examines the relationship between the prevailing economic model and its environmental impact. The chapters in this edited volume focus on two key themes within the Latin American context: the various manifestations of nature's financialization, particularly through the operations of transnational mining companies, and the consequences of an increasingly financialized neo-extractivism; and the new forms of financial mechanisms for supporting the energy transition. This book will be of interest to readers of heterodox perspectives on the economy, environment and development.

Globalization and High Public Debt

The Impact of Financial Interdependence

Edited by Aline Darbellay , Norbert Gaillard , Michael Waibel

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

The core argument of this book is that the high degree of financial interdependence forged during the "golden age" of globalization from 1991–2016 is now the main impediment to the reduction of the elevated public debts observed in many countries. Therefore, it investigates how the world economy may be deleveraged and how interdependence may be reduced or, wherever possible, made compatible with a deleveraging process. Owing to its multidisciplinary approach, the book will attract the interest of scholars and students from wide ranging fields, including political scientists, economists, and lawyers.

Green Policies and Practices

Edited by Nguyen Anh Thu , Anuj Kumar , Vu Thanh Huong

The theme of the conference, "Green Policies and Practices: Catalyst or Pressure for Trade and Investment", reflects one of the most pressing debates of our time: the balance between economic growth and environmental sustainability. As global trade and investment deepen, the urgency of integrating green standards into policies and practices has never been greater.

Handbook of Japan's Foreign and Domestic Policies During the Decade of Abe

Edited by Tosh Minohara

Series: Handbooks on Japanese Studies

No Japanese leader has dominated Japan's recent political landscape more than the late Abe Shinzo. With the this as the basic premise, the main objective of this compiled volume is to examine and assess Japan's foreign and domestic polices during the 2010s, a decade which largely overlaps with Abe's tenure as prime minister. This book is much more than a mere study of Abe's leadership, however, as it ventures far beyond the traditional scope of diplomatic and political history by incorporating a multidisciplinary approach. The contributors comprise not only historians and political scientists, but also sociologists, economists, legal experts, journalists, and practitioners of diplomacy.

Inclusion and Innovation in the Digital Economy

Ewelina Sokołowska , Małgorzata Gawrycka

Series: Routledge Studies in the Economics of Innovation

This book shows how Europe's digital future can be both innovative and inclusive. It uncovers what truly drives digital progress and how countries can align technological growth with social equity. At its heart lies a unique framework that connects innovation with inclusion, highlighting not only technology and growth but also the critical roles of skills, trust, and fairness. It is written for researchers seeking evidence, policymakers shaping digital strategies, and business leaders making informed decisions. It is not just another academic study, but a decision-enabling resource for Europe's digital decade.

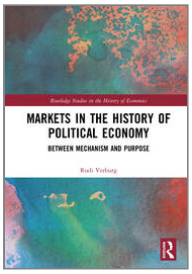
Markets in the History of Political Economy

Between Mechanism and Purpose



Rudi Verburg

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

Most contemporary economists understand markets as purely price-making systems, ignoring the role of markets as relational systems that frame our way of life and determine the kind of society we live in. This book weaves both of these elements together to present a history of markets which accepts the interplay between price system and relational system, between mechanism and purpose. This book will be essential reading for historians of economic thought and political economy who are interested in the evolution of ideas on the role of the market.

Microfinance in Cambodia

Development, Role, and Prospects

Edited by Sovannroeum Samreth Graduate School of Humanities and Social Sciences, Daiju Aiba JICA Research Institute

This book summarizes the history, system and current situation of microfinance in Cambodia, examining how microfinance institutions have evolved from the 1990s to current day. The book begins with an overview of the microfinance sector in Cambodia, covering key events, regulatory framework and key stakeholders. It evaluates the role of microfinance institutions in poverty reduction, as well as the current state of financial literacy amongst microfinance borrowers. It reviews key policies such as the 2017 interest rate ceiling imposed by the National Bank of Cambodia, as well as government measures and programmes aimed at improving household financial literacy and protecting borrowers.

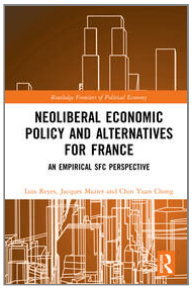
Neoliberal Economic Policy and Alternatives for France

An Empirical SFC Perspective



Luis Reyes , Jacques Mazier Université Paris-13, France, Chin Yuan Chong

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

This book offers a comprehensive exploration of how empirical Stock-Flow Consistent (SFC) modelling can be used as a tool for macroeconomic analysis. Focusing on France, the book presents the SFC FR model, an empirical SFC model based on French national data, and examines four decades of structural change of the French economy marked by financialisation, policy shifts, evolving trade and public deficits. The book is a vital resource for economists, policymakers, and researchers seeking a realistic and policy-relevant approach to macroeconomic analysis especially for economic policy design and evaluation.

The Economics of Gender Inequality in Latin America

Edited by Reyna Elizabeth Rodríguez Pérez , David Castro Lugo

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Economics

This book provides a comprehensive examination of gender disparities, through theoretical, methodological, and empirical lenses. The theoretical foundations critique neoliberal feminism, emphasizing alternative frameworks such as the "Feminism of the 99%," which advocates redistributive justice and structural change. The book explores the impacts of cultural narratives like the "superwoman" ideal, revealing its role in perpetuating exploitation and gendered inequities. In short, it not only enriches academic debate, but also offers practical and accessible solutions for moving towards a more equitable economy.

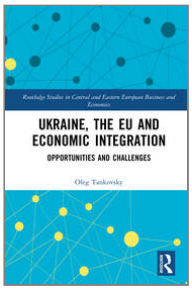
Ukraine, the EU and Economic Integration

Opportunities and Challenges



Oleg Tankovsky

Series: Routledge Studies in Central and Eastern European Business and Economics

This book addresses a central puzzle in the study of European integration: why have some post-communist countries successfully embedded democratic and market institutions after EU accession or candidacy, while others have faltered or regressed? Introducing the original distinction between self-contained and exported Europeanisation, the book offers a new comparative framework that explains divergent integration outcomes across Central Eastern Europe and the Western Balkans. Bridging economics, European studies, comparative politics and international political economy, this timely book speaks to scholars, students, and policymakers interested in the future of Europe's eastern frontier.

Universities, Knowledge and Places

Edited by David Charles , Lisa Nieth , Lars Coenen Lund University, Sweden, Ridvan Cinar

Series: Regions and Cities

This book is a memorial to Professor Paul Benneworth who died in 2020 at the age of 46, but also a review of the current state of the art in work on universities and place, identifying important new directions for research. The book showcases Paul's contribution, authored by those who worked with him, engaging with key ideas that Paul pursued and on which he was actively working. The chapters are grouped around three main themes: the first is focused on universities, cities and regions, the second centres around local and global networks, and the third theme looks at regions and leadership and the strategic role of different stakeholders in place development.

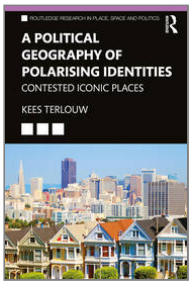
A Political Geography of Polarising Identities

Contested Iconic Places



Kees Terlouw University of Utrecht, Netherlands

Series: Routledge Research in Place, Space and Politics

This book links the current wave of political polarisation to the polarisation taking place between cosmopolitan and parochial identity discourses, and their antagonistic valuation of iconic urban and regional places. The broader spatial and temporal perspective adopted in this book is of interest to anyone who wants to look beyond the national political headlines. It will help students, researchers, human geographers, political scientists, and sociologists better understand the intricate relation between identities, politics, places and societal developments.

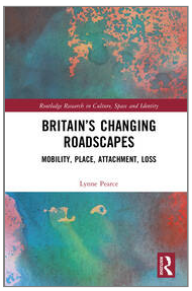
Britain's Changing Roadscapes

Mobility, Place, Attachment, Loss



Lynne Pearce

Series: Routledge Research in Culture, Space and Identity

Through a creative juxtaposition of autoethnography and theoretical enquiry, this book documents how Britain's roads and roadscapes have changed over the past thirty-five years via a route that runs from Scotland to Cornwall. As well as documenting change, the book is also concerned with how it makes its presence felt to road-users and to what effect. This interdisciplinary exploration of Britain's changing roads and roadscapes will appeal to academics and students working in, and across, the fields of social and cultural geography, mobilities studies, cultural history, literary and cultural theory, and contemporary archaeology.

Decolonising Feminist Explorations of Urban Futures

Edited by Linda Peake , Nasya S. Razavi , Grace Adeniyi-Ogunyankin , Elsa Koleth

How do decolonial feminist urban imaginaries of urban futures begin to interrogate twenty-first century urban life? The urban futures signaled by the chapters in this book highlight three overlapping dimensions of urban imaginaries—capitalist, colonialist, (neo)colonialist—and how women's struggles, negotiations and placemaking practices offer alternative decolonial urban imaginaries. The book is based on papers given at the 'Feminist Explorations of Urban Futures' conference, held in 2019 at York University in Toronto, organized by the feminist research project, 'Urbanization and Gender in the Global South: A Transformative Knowledge Network' (GenUrb).

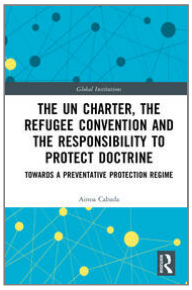
The UN Charter, the Refugee Convention and the Responsibility to Protect Doctrine

Towards a Preventative Protection Regime



Ainoa Cabada

Series: Global Institutions

This book investigates three key frameworks applicable to the protection of asylum seekers and refugees: the Charter of the United Nations, the Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees, and the Responsibility to Protect doctrine. It reveals how the current international refugee protection regime embodies a narrow and reactive approach.Building on this, the book advocates for establishing a preventative protection regime grounded in the normative principles of these frameworks. For this, it articulates an R2P Preventative Assessment Tool that integrates the development of protection plans alongside risk assessments.

This book explores the transition to the circular economy through a multi-dimensional lens, highlighting its necessity for a sustainable future. It analyses both public and network governance models essential for systemic transitions and contextualises these for Australia's unique socio-political landscape. Through analyses in two key sectors—textiles and construction—the book identifies emerging trends, barriers, and opportunities. The book concludes with ten actionable takeaways for implementing circular practices, underscoring the importance of enabling transformative, inclusive, and place-based circular economy transitions.

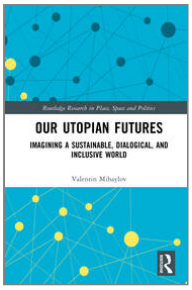
Our Utopian Futures

Imagining a Sustainable, Dialogical, and Inclusive World



Valentin Mihaylov University of Silesia in Katowice

Series: Routledge Research in Place, Space and Politics

This multidisciplinary book explores the utopian impulses in modern social thought, tackling the most pressing and interconnected planetary challenges. It combines a reconsideration of our dystopian present with a critical investigation of socio-spatial utopias, which suggest alternative modes for man-nature and inter-human interactions in an imagined sustainable, dialogical, and inclusive world. The book is written in the common language of the knowledge that is co-created by the fields of global studies, political and cultural geography, environmental sociology, and international relations.

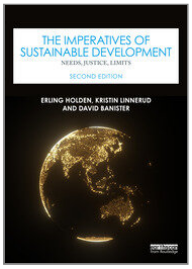
The Imperatives of Sustainable Development

Needs, Justice, Limits



Erling Holden , Kristin Linnerud Norwegian School of Economics, Bergen, Norway, David Banister

Taking the ethical foundations from the seminal UN Report (1987) Our Common Future, this revised and updated second edition builds a model that emphasizes three equally important moral imperatives – satisfying human needs, ensuring social justice, and respecting environmental limits. Building on the extensive literature exploring needs, equity, justice, environmental science, ecology, and economics, this book will be essential reading for everyone interested in the future of sustainable development and in the complex environmental and social issues involved.

Emergent Axioms of Violence

Edited by Stavroula Pipyrou , Antonio Sorge

This book highlights the diverse and complicated ways that violence becomes axiomatic, namely through political rhetoric, epistemological impositions, and colonial legacies. Considering how axiomatic violence emerges from events of rupture as well as slow-moving structural inequalities, authors interrogate both the novelty and mundane quality of the current political moment. The chapters in this book were first published as a special issue of Anthropological Forum, and are accompanied by a new Afterword.

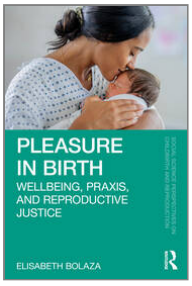
Pleasure in Birth

Wellbeing, Praxis, and Reproductive Justice



Elisabeth Bolaza

Series: Social Science Perspectives on Childbirth and Reproduction

Pleasure in Birth: Wellbeing, Praxis, and Reproductive Justice explores challenges dominant narratives that equate birth solely with pain and suffering.The book weaves experiential accounts with critical analysis to examine how cultural beliefs shape birth experiences and reinforce the maternal health crisis, particularly in the U.S. By introducing the Pleasure-Forward Birth Model, it reimagines childbirth as a site of resilience and joy, pushing back against the hyper-medicalized and fear-driven status quo. It is ideal for students and professional birth workers in the social and medical sciences interested in reproductive justice and maternal health.

Queer Liberalisms and Marginal Mobilities

Edited by Fadi Saleh , Mengia Tschalär

Series: Ethnic and Racial Studies

This book addresses queer migration through the intersectional lens of queer liberalisms, authoritarianism, and marginal mobilities. The aim of this book is to unpack the tenuous relationship between politics of queer liberalisms and securitization within contested political contexts in the Global South and North by thinking about the ways in which the precarity of marginal mobilities for LGBTIQ+ persons on the move is produced within different (trans-) national contexts. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Ethnic and Racial Studies.

Revisiting Ideas of Power in Southeast Asia

Case Studies, Comparisons, Critique

Edited by Hjorleifur R. Jonsson

This book builds upon landmark contributions by Lucien Hanks and Benedict Anderson to interdisciplinary scholarship on Southeast Asia, particularly their essays on how worldview and indigenous notions of power have shaped society and politics. Five anthropologists revisit these classic analyses, situating local notions of power in contemporary dynamics through fieldwork, areal comparisons, and historical studies in this volume. Their comparisons, contrasts, and ethnography in contemporary Thailand, Laos, and Indonesia examine local notions of power in relation to hierarchy, socialism, indigeneity, Buddhism, marginalization, and political debates.

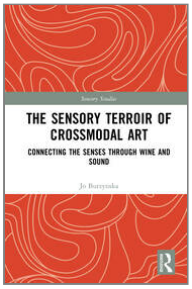
The Sensory Terroir of Crossmodal Art

Connecting the Senses through Wine and Sound



Jo Burzynska

Series: Sensory Studies

Sensory Terroir explores how our senses converge in making and experiencing art. It introduces crossmodal art as a new category of creative practice blending multiple senses. Drawing on the interconnectivity of wine terroir, the book provides a non-hierarchical framework for navigating multisensory aesthetic experience, from immersive art to wine tasting. The Sensory Terroir of Crossmodal Art will be of interest to artists and musicians, curators, experience designers, brand strategists, and drinks and hospitality professionals who wish to employ evidence-based, non-visual multisensory methods.

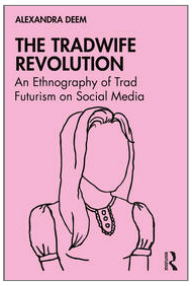
The Tradwife Revolution

An Ethnography of Trad Futurism on Social Media



Alexandra Deem

The Tradwife Revolution: An Ethnography of Trad Futurism examines online networks of "tradwives" – women who align with traditional gender roles and homemaking as a revolutionary lifestyle choice. The book reveals how binary gender norms and a belief that feminism prevents women from embracing their natural femininity unite diverse communities, from secular stay-at-home mothers to Christian wives. It introduces the concept of "trad futurism" to analyze how these women navigate the tensions between neoliberalism and neofascist ideologies. It is ideal for students and researchers interested in right-wing imaginaries, digital cultures, and contemporary gender politics.

Agency Beyond Confinement

Rethinking the Relationship Between Agency and Structure in the Contemporary World

Edited by Luisa T Schneider Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam, Netherlands, Robbert Dillema Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam, Netherlands, Paola Rebughini University of Milan, Italy

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

What does it mean to be confined—and what forms of life, resistance, and care emerge in response? Agency Beyond Confinement rethinks the social life of confinement by refusing binaries: structure vs. agency, reform vs. resistance, care vs. control. Across methods, themes, and theoretical lineages, they examine how confinement takes shape, how it can be re-theorized, and how it might be undone. As such this book is essential reading for scholars, students, and practitioners in anthropology, carceral studies, cultural studies, critical legal theory, and related fields seeking to understand—and unmake—the conditions of confinement today.

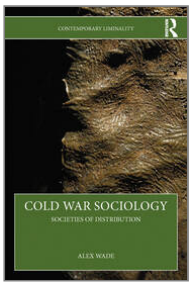
Cold War Sociology

Societies of Distribution



Alex Wade Birmingham City University, UK

Series: Contemporary Liminality

This book positions the Cold War as a liminal time and space that holds sway in the second quarter of the 21st century, informing a broad and deep analysis of how contemporary society was – and continues to be – fashioned by the societies of distribution found in Cold War Sociology. This book will be of vital reading to students of sociology, anthropology, social theory and political theory, including undergraduates, postgraduates and researchers who seek to understand the genesis of the often puzzling and contrarian contemporary world, and how the unintended consequences of the Cold War contain answers to present-day problems.

Comics and Norm-Critical Pedagogy

Gender, Sexuality, and Cultural Identity

Edited by Robert Aman University of Glasgow, UK, Lars Wallner

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender, Sexuality, and Comics

Comics and Norm-Critical Pedagogy: Gender, Sexuality, and Cultural Identity explores how comics can challenge societal norms and serve as powerful tools for critical education. This collection brings together essays examining how graphic narratives question dominant perspectives on gender, sexuality, ethnicity, mental health, and other intersecting identity categories. It highlights how comics not only reflect but also disrupt normative worldviews, offering a unique lens for norm-critical pedagogy. It is ideal for graduate and postgraduate students, as well as researchers in comics studies, education, gender and sexuality studies, and the broader social sciences.

Culturing Cultural Self-awareness

Fang Wen

This work pioneers the concept of "cultural self-awareness" in social psychology by moving beyond "WEIRD psychology" to examine the psychological transformations of Chinese society during rapid modernization. The book accomplishes this through unique studies on symbolic boundaries, policy processes, and mentality maps. Essential reading for students and scholars in social psychology, cultural studies, sociology, and religious studies, as well as professionals interested in China or societal transitions.

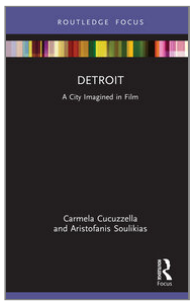
Detroit

A City Imagined in Film



Carmela Cucuzzella , Aristofanis Soulikias

Series: Built Environment City Studies

Detroit: A City Imagined in Film is a survey of prominent feature films depicting or referring to Detroit, and how they have captured and fed popular perceptions about the Motor City. Detroit, a magnifying glass, through which one sees an exaggerated portrait of America, has rendered itself to the eye of the cinematographic camera for over a century as background, stage and even character. Guided by Henri Lefebvre's The Production of Space, the authors analyse an array of fiction films filmed and/or set in Detroit from 1928 until today and examine filmic practice as one that has perceived, conceived but also produced the city's lived space.

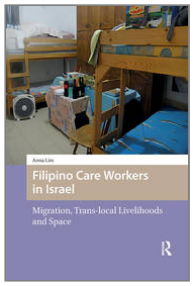
Filipino Care Workers in Israel

Migration, Trans-local Livelihoods and Space



Anna Lim

Series: Diaspora in Asia and Beyond

This book traces the construction of migrant space in Israel's urban periphery with a focus on the flat that Filipino care workers co-rent for their day-off and provides insight into the migrant lives and journeys in trans-local contexts. The groundbreaking ethnography contributes to migration scholarship by opening up avenues of analysis for space, community, and boundary-making in displacement and provides comprehensive insight into the dynamics of transnational labor migration. This provocative volume will be of key interest to scholars and students of migration studies, urban studies, and more broadly to anthropology and gender studies.

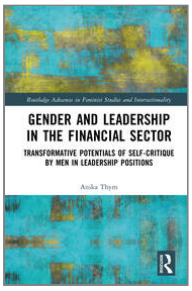
Gender and Leadership in the Financial Sector

Transformative Potentials of Self-Critique by Men in Leadership Positions



Anika Thym University of Basel, Switzerland

Series: Routledge Advances in Feminist Studies and Intersectionality

This book examines men in powerful positions who question relations of power and domination from within. Through an intersectional lens, it illustrates how gender, class, and other dimensions of domination intertwine, and what emancipatory critique can emerge from such privileged positions. Aimed at scholars, policy-makers, practitioners and students interested in links between men, masculinities, organisations and social transformation, this book is an invaluable resource for those working in and beyond gender studies, critical studies on men and masculinities, organisation and leadership studies, political science, sociology, social and public policy, and social movement studies.

Handbook of Feminisms in Japan

Edited by Andrea Germer , Ulrike Wöhr

Series: Handbooks on Japanese Studies

This handbook seeks to give a broad and easily accessible introduction to a range of feminisms in this non-Western context. With a useful comparative framework, it aims to advance transnational and international perspectives on feminisms around the world. It identifies discourses, theoretical positions and areas of feminist activity or intervention that readily correspond with those of feminisms in other countries, presenting chapters on topics such as radical feminism, maternalism, anarchism, literature, religion and pornography, but it also includes entries on specific historical and socio-cultural configurations, such as Japan's women's liberation movement, Uman Ribu.

Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation around the World

Law, Ideology, and the Experiences of Sex Workers and Clients

Edited by Marijke Malsch , Janine Janssen

Sex work is often called the oldest profession in the world. This book presents empirical findings regarding exploitation in various countries, considering sex workers, traffickers and clients and the fight against human trafficking. Countries differ vastly in their legislative approaches, ranging from highly repressive to very liberal. This volume asks whether the ongoing process of making and changing laws is sufficiently effective in fighting human trafficking. Other interventions could obtain better outcomes. Less ideology and more attention to the facts of exploitation and sex work might help to achieve these aims.

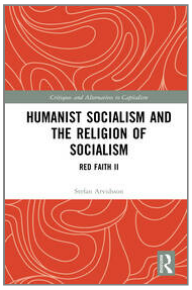
Humanist Socialism and the Religion of Socialism

Red Faith II



Stefan Arvidsson Linnaeus University, Sweden

Series: Critiques and Alternatives to Capitalism

This book explores the historical relationships between socialist ideologies and religious or secular beliefs and cultures that shaper the modern socialist. Portraying cultural preferences and existential attitudes of leading Marxists, exploring British tradition of 'religion of socialism' and excavating forgotten interwovenness of Wagnerism with social democracy as well as Bolshevism, the book shows how socialists have aspired to revolutionize modern art, culture and forms of living. It will appeal to scholars of intellectual history, political theory, political philosophy and cultural history with interests in varieties of socialism.

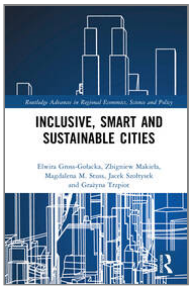
Inclusive, Smart and Sustainable Cities



Elwira Gross-Gołacka , Zbigniew Makieła , Magdalena M. Stuss , Jacek Szołtysek , Grażyna Trzpiot

Series: Routledge Advances in Regional Economics, Science and Policy

This book addresses critical issues for contemporary cities building their future, presenting a cohesive narrative rooted in the diverse experiences of its authors and reflecting the systemic nature of urban environments. The authors attribute the success of programming and implementing the development of future cities to the deliberate creation of stakeholder competencies, primarily through the use of smart city tools. It is assumed that these competencies will evolve both qualitatively and diversely, with their co-creation remaining a dynamic process due to shifts among stakeholders driven by migration, natural population growth or decline, and changes in stakeholder structures.

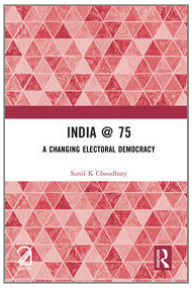
India @ 75

A Changing Electoral Democracy



Sunil K Choudhary

As India celebrates 75 years of independence, India @ 75: A Changing Electoral Democracy revisits the nation's democratic trajectory with a focus on the 2019 Lok Sabha elections. The book analyzes the shifts in voters, narratives, and governance that define today's New India. Written during the solitude of the COVID-19 lockdown, it is both a tribute to the author's mentor and an academic exploration of democracy's challenges and resilience. This title has been co-published with Aakar Books. T&F does not sell or distrubute the print versions in India, Sri Lanka, Nepal, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Bhutan, and Maldives.

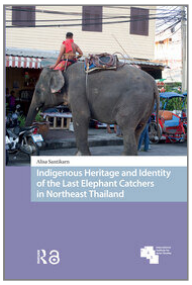
Indigenous Heritage and Identity of the Last Elephant Catchers in Northeast Thailand



Alisa Santikarn

Series: Asian Heritages

In 2019, when Mew Salangam passed away at 91, newspapers across Thailand described him as belonging to the last generation of elephant doctors. Mew was a member of the Kui Ajiang community in Thailand, an Indigenous group living in the Northeast known for catching elephants. Sometime beginning in the 1950s, this practice gradually came to an end. This book examines how the end of elephant catching has affected the heritage and identity of the Kui Ajiang, offering an analysis that calls for close attention to the broader currents of Thai history and the development of Thai environmental and cultural heritage policies.

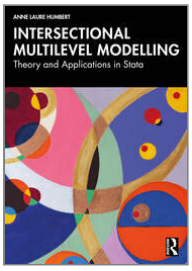
Intersectional Multilevel Modelling

Theory and Applications in Stata



Anne Laure Humbert

Bridging feminist theory and cutting-edge statistics, this book introduces Multilevel Analysis of Individual Heterogeneity and Discriminatory Accuracy (MAIHDA) and expands it into a contextual intersectional multilevel framework, revealing how power operates through intersecting identities and environments to generate systemic inequalities and how quantitative tools can expose, understand, and ultimately challenge them. Designed for social scientists, policy analysts or management scholars seeking rigorous yet reflexive quantitative approaches, the book suits postgraduate students, academic researchers and practitioners working on inequalities.

Kaleidoscopic Visions

The Black, Migrant, and Refugee Women's Movement in The Netherlands

Edited by Nancy Jouwe , Maayke Botman , Gloria Wekker

First published in March 2001, this work was the first and only book of its kind in the Dutch intellectual landscape. By zooming in on the issues that Black, migrant, and refugee (BMR) women placed on the feminist and multicultural agenda of the late twentieth century, the writers in this volume highlight the exclusionary practices BMR women encountered within Dutch institutions (the police, education, and the arts) based on their gender, race, class, and sexuality. It also delves into the world of BMR women's organizations and processes of identity formation. This new edition makes this Dutch feminist classic available in English for the first time.

Medicine, Money, and Meaning

Practicing Money and Making Medicine

Luka Jakelja

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

This book explores the tension between money and medicine: how it emerges, how doctors of different medical disciplines deal with it in various contexts, and what its respective consequences are. It empirically illustrates Georg Simmel's conceptualization of money as an "absolute means" and develops an action theory of money, based on money attitudes by drawing on 38 semi-structured interviews with doctors in Austria and using a pragmatist variant of Grounded Theory. A fresh and challenging approach, it will appeal to scholars and post-graduate students of economic sociology, medical sociology and the sociology of money, with interests in ethics, morality and Simmel studies.

Precariousness in High-Growth Economies

Comparing Labor in Contemporary China and in Postwar Japan and France

Edited by Gilles Guiheux University of Paris, France, Bernard Thomann

Series: Histories of Everyday Life Around the World

This book is the culmination of advanced historical and sociological fieldwork in China, Japan and France. This book questions the link between rapid growth and the generalized securitization of the salaried population, which has been assumed in contemporary sociological works, focusing not only on the evolution of labor and life conditions, but also on how labor-relation actors and experts perceive the precariousness experienced in the context of high growth.

Rewriting Gender in an Age of Transition

1880-1940

Edited by Katerina García-Walsh , Paul Thompson
University of St Andrews, UK

Rewriting Gender in an Age of Transition: 1880-1940 examines shifting discourses on gender and sexuality across the fin-de-siècle and early twentieth century. Through chapters spanning literature, history, art history, and linguistics, the volume explores evolving representations of femininity, masculinity, and queer identity in relation to broader cultural, political, and technological change. Contributions from both established and emerging scholars offer a multifaceted reappraisal of this transformative period. It is ideal for students and researchers in gender studies, media studies, literature, history, and the social sciences.

Sensing Life

The Social Organisation of the Senses in Interaction

Edited by Will Gibson University College London, UK, Natalia Ruiz-Junco Auburn University, USA, Dirk vom Lehn King's College London, UK

Series: Interactionist Currents

This book showcases the critical contribution that scholarship in the field of social interaction can make to the study of the senses. Centred on an understanding of the senses as interactionally configured between people and the ways in which people themselves experience the senses, it brings together a range of case studies. Presenting the latest developments in interactionist research on the senses, Sensing Life will appeal to social scientists with interests in interactionist sociology and related approaches to research, and social understandings of the senses.

Socializing Inequality

Class, Culture and Cognition in Early Childhood

Edited by Dieter Vandebroeck Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium, Maaike Jappens Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium, Annette Lareau University of Pennsylvania, USA

Series: CRESC

This book examines the processes through which children effectively 'inherit' their position in the social world. Bringing together original research from France, Norway, Sweden, Belgium and the USA, this book unravels the ways in which class inequality shapes our earliest experiences of the social world. It will appeal to scholars and students interested in class and social stratification, the sociology of childhood and family, cultural sociology, sociolinguistics, child and developmental psychology, and educational science.

Stories, Imaginations and Sociology

Essays in Honour of Ken Plummer

Edited by Eamonn Carrabine University of Essex, UK, Neli Demireva University of Essex, UK, Róisín Ryan-Flood University of Essex, UK, Nigel South University of Essex, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

This book is in honour of the late sociologist Ken Plummer – a remarkable scholar whose work transformed several fields, from his early writing on symbolic interactionism, stigma and sexualities, through methodological innovations that have underpinned the 'narrative turn', to his explorations of citizenship and humanism. Contributing to debates on critical theory, intimacy and sexuality, the interdisciplinary nature of this book enables it to reach a wide audience engaged in research methods of social theory, anthropology, media studies, sociology, psychology and history.

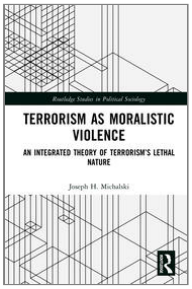
Terrorism as Moralistic Violence

An Integrated Theory of Terrorism's Lethal Nature



Joseph H. Michalski University of Western Ontario, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Political Sociology

This book develops and applies the theory of lethal moralism to explain the different types and growth of terrorism over the last half century from 1970-2020. Drawing on data from The Global Terrorism Database, and original research differentiating groups based on their ideological orientations, it delves into the social and cultural forces that influence those who engage in terrorism. As a theoretically informed study of the main varieties of terrorism and the evolution of terrorism in the digital age, the book will appeal to scholars of sociology, criminology, social theory and politics with interests in political violence and terrorist movements.

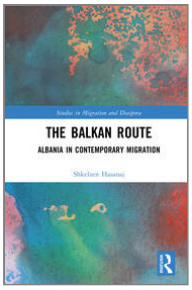
The Balkan Route

Albania in Contemporary Migration



Shkelzen Hasanaj

Series: Studies in Migration and Diaspora

This volume offers an in-depth investigation into the dynamics of irregular migration through Albania, which have radically transformed the traditional perception of the country from a land of emigration to a crucial transit hub. An interdisciplinary approach offering fresh perspectives on the role of transit countries in contemporary migration flows, it points to the importance of multidimensional understandings that integrate sociological, political and humanitarian aspects. Filling a crucial gap in the academic and policy debate, it will appeal to scholars, researchers, and policymakers with interests in contemporary migration dynamics and their social and political implications.

The City as the Southern Question

Alternative Histories of Urbanisation After Gramsci

Edited by Ranabir Samaddar , Enrica Morlicchio , Sandro Mezzadra

Series: Critiques and Alternatives to Capitalism

This volume places global urbanism in the context of the phenomenal growth of cities of the South, investigating their colonial contentiousness and asking how their history plays out within twenty-first century urbanisation. Inspired by Antonio Gramsci's reflections on the problem of the South, it shows that the question of southern urbanism is about the anomalies and growth of southern cities, technological and logistical reorientations, new zoning practices of neoliberal capitalism, and remaking of urban geographies. Of appeal to students and scholars interested in urban sociology, Southern urbanization, postcolonial studies, political science, political economy and urban geography.

The Racism Debate in Germany

Concepts of Anti-Racism and Matters of Solidarity

Edited by Manuela Bojadžijev , Robin Celikates , Paul Mecheril

Series: Ethnic and Racial Studies

This book traces the current debates on critical theory of racism in Germany and emphasizes its contribution to the global discourse on racism and anti-racism. It provides a comprehensive examination of the key debates, blind spots, and pitfalls of this theory while exploring the politicization of discussions surrounding the relationship between anti-Semitism and racism. The contributions shed light on the current state and weaknesses of anti-racism in Germany, including government measures, while offering alternative understandings of difference and highlighting the importance of solidarity in combating racism.

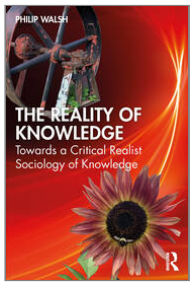
The Reality of Knowledge

Towards a Critical Realist Sociology of Knowledge



Philip D. Walsh

Series: Routledge Studies in Critical Realism

This book offers a new approach to the sociology of knowledge, providing a cross-section of some of the major theories that have influenced and continue to influence the field. Through a series of engagements with the history of the discipline, it brings a critical realist perspective to bear on key themes within the sociology of knowledge. Moving away from the notion of critical realism as an under-labourer for the social and human sciences, it seeks to affirm a more fully sociological account of knowledge and emphasises its social meaning. It will appeal to scholars and students of sociology and social theory with interests in the sociology of knowledge and critical realist thought.

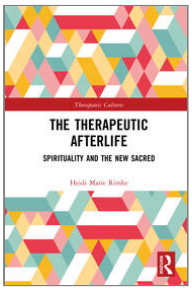
The Therapeutic Afterlife

Spirituality and the New Sacred



Heidi Marie Rimke University of Winnipeg, Canada

Series: Therapeutic Cultures

The Therapeutic Afterlife: Spirituality and the New Sacred provides a compelling and original analysis of how contemporary self-help literature is transforming our ideas about God, the soul, and life after death. As more people identify as "spiritual but not religious," these concepts—once grounded exclusively in formal religious traditions—are now recast in the language of healing, growth, empowerment, and wellness, reshaping both spirituality and health discourses in the twenty-first century. Its insights will resonate not only with scholars of sociology but also across related disciplines including psychology, religious studies, anthropology, and cultural studies.

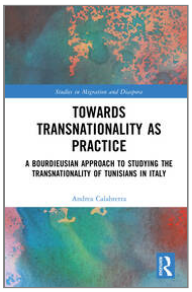
Towards Transnationality as Practice

A Bourdieusian Approach to Studying the Transnationality of Tunisians in Italy



Andrea Calabretta

Series: Studies in Migration and Diaspora

This book engages in the stream of transnational migration studies by drawing on empirical research examination of the ties that Tunisian migrants and their descendants living in northern and southern Italy maintain with their country of origin. Towards Transnationality as Practice addresses a crucial gap in transnational migration studies, bringing a deeper understanding of the modalities through which transnationality is practised. It will appeal to scholars, researchers and advanced students with interests in migration and diaspora, transnationalism, cross-Mediterranean migration, social space, and belonging.

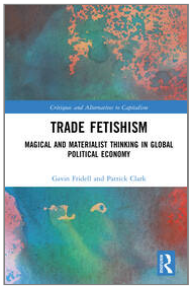
Trade Fetishism

Magical and Materialist Thinking in Global Political Economy



Gavin Fridell Saint Mary's University, Canada, Patrick Clark York University, Canada

Series: Critiques and Alternatives to Capitalism

Trade Fetishism argues that 'trade' not only meets material goals, but simultaneously works as a fantasy that seeks to satisfy and sooth our unconscious desires and anxieties. Countering the idea that trade is driven ultimately by rational economic, political, and strategic logics, it argues that non-rational beliefs and unconscious desires are equally motivating in our obsession with trade and its promises of enjoyment. This book will appeal to scholars of sociology, social and political theory and economics with interest in international trade and political economy.

Transnational Feminist Pedagogies

Meanings, Methods, and Experiences

Edited by Debjani Chakravarty , Samantha L. Vandermeade , Suchismita Banerjee

Transnational Feminist Pedagogies: Meanings, Methods, and Experiences explores how transnational feminist pedagogies are practiced, challenged, and reimagined in contemporary classrooms. It addresses issues including the rise of online learning, the influence of AI, and the negotiation of identity within institutional frameworks. The book provides concrete pedagogical tools that respond to the challenges of teaching in a time of heightened surveillance, precarity, and resistance. Ideal for students and educators in Gender Studies, Sociology, Education, and related fields, who are committed to critical pedagogy, intersectional analysis, and transnational collaboration.

Uncertainties of Time

The Past and Future of TimeSpace

Immanuel Wallerstein , Charles Lemert

Series: A New Order of Social Things

Examining the concept of TimeSpace in the work of Immanuel Wallerstein and its crucial role within world-systems analysis, Uncertainties of Time brings together important but previously hard-to-access material from Wallerstein's writings. This book is an essential volume for understanding Wallerstein's unique contributions to the understanding of the Modern World-System, which he argued came to an end after the world revolution of 1968—leaving us now in an indeterminate world of chaos. This book is thereby invaluable as a resource for researchers and students who care about the history and decline of our chaotic world.

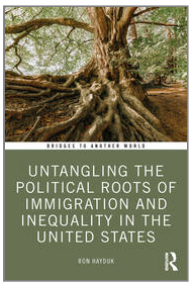
Untangling the Political Roots of Immigration and Inequality in the United States



Ron Hayduk

Series: Bridges to Another World

We live in a period when more people are migrating from the countryside to city, from city to city, and from country to country than at nearly anytime in human history. At the same time, we see sharp increases in wealth and income inequality. These two trends fuel populist movements on both the left and right, topping political agendas across the world. This book contains a wealth of information and elevates valuable lessons for scholars, policy makers and organizers interested in understanding these trends and forging equitable and just solutions today.

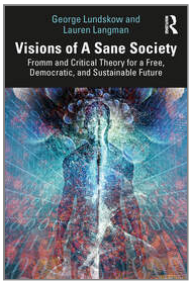
Visions of A Sane Society

Fromm and Critical Theory for a Free, Democratic, and Sustainable Future



George Lundskow , Lauren Langman

Building critically from the work of Erich Fromm, who argued that societies based on class domination foster aggressive personalities and normalize pathology, this unique book envisions spiritual-intellectual-emotional unity to promote a living experience of fulfilling and productive social relations. Visions of a Sane Society posits that the familiar left versus right political spectrum concept is long-outdated, and that the political and cultural battles of today are between those who support a common humanity and shared prosperity, and those who seek self-aggrandizement and personal gratification.

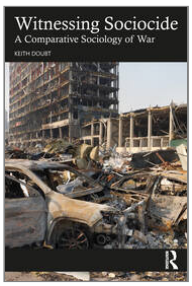
Witnessing Sociocide

A Comparative Sociology of War



Keith Doubt

This book is a sociological study of recent international conflicts, from Bosnia and Iraq to Ukraine and Gaza. Its approach is theoretical, applying the framework of sociocide to assess the social consequences of the conflicts in Ukraine and Gaza through comparisons with previous conflicts that meet these criteria. The study asks, is there something within society that is resistant to its own demise? This book will therefore be of interest to students and scholars of sociology, conflict studies, genocide studies, and any general reader interested in understanding the extent and impact of contemporary conflicts.

Women in India

Exploring Work, Life, and Freedom

Edited by Seemita Mohanty NIT, Rourkela, India, Jalandhar Pradhan NIT, Rourkela, India, Ipsita Roy NIT, Rourkela, India, Debanjali Dutta NIT, Rourkela, India

Women in India: Exploring Work, Life and Freedom critically traces the trajectory of these changes while also revealing the persistent blind spots and prejudices within systems that continue to scaffold their subordination and marginalisation. The book interrogates the extent to which these developments have improved lives of women in different parts of the country and questions whether persistent barriers like gender discrimination, underrepresentation, and unequal work prospects still prevent women from exercising their autonomy and agency in a modern and ever evolving society.

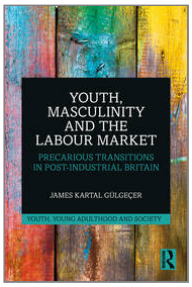
Youth, Masculinity and the Labour Market

Precarious Transitions in Post-Industrial Britain



James Kartal Gülgeçer University of Glasgow, UK

Series: Youth, Young Adulthood and Society

This book examines young men's precarious education-to-employment transitions as they navigate educational, occupational and emotional challenges in the shadow of deindustrialisation and austerity. Using a mixed-methods approach, Gülgeçer draws on survey and interview data to explore young men's perceptions and experiences of employment, unemployment, education and training in two post-industrial British cities. An interplay of material and affective precarity in youth education-to-employment transitions, this book will appeal to scholars and students of sociology, social policy, youth studies, labour market studies and masculinities.

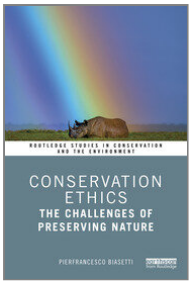
Conservation Ethics

The Challenges of Preserving Nature



Pierfrancesco Biasetti

Series: Routledge Studies in Conservation and the Environment

This book explores the ethical dimensions of nature conservation, discussing how we value the natural world and how it can be protected in a complex context where many ethically significant interests must be carefully weighed and balanced. By integrating ethical perspectives and stakeholder concerns, it argues for a pluralistic, thoughtful approach to conservation ethics, one that embraces complexity in evaluation and deliberation, and fosters long-term success amid urgent global challenges. It will be of great interest to students, scholars and practitioners of nature conservation, environmental management, environmental ethics and environmental philosophy.

Handbook of Disaster Studies in Japan

Edited by Paola Cavaliere , Junko Otani

Series: Handbooks on Japanese Studies

This volume is a critical interrogation of the concept, meaning and experience of disaster in 21st-century Japan. Throughout the chapters, a central theme and guiding theoretical perspective is the recognition of the human element in disasters. The evolution of disaster studies in Japan over the past three decades—and the contextual disaster policy changes and societal processes—shows that the empirical terrain for studying disasters is changing, animating the high interest in the sociology of disaster as an interdisciplinary field.

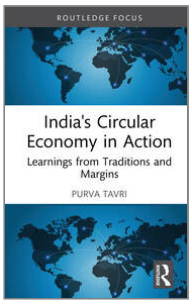
India's Circular Economy in Action

Learnings from Traditions and Margins



Purva Tavri

Series: Routledge Focus on Environment and Sustainability

This book presents a series of case studies which highlight culturally embedded circular economy practices of reuse, repair, and regeneration in India. Far from innovations, these traditions reflect ways of living that have long sustained communities within ecological limits. From terracotta clusters in Rajasthan to bamboo-timber houses in Sikkim, palm-leaf artefacts in Kerala, and community commons in Chhattisgarh, they demonstrate that circularity is not an abstract policy goal but a lived inheritance. Against this backdrop, Purva Tavri explores how practices from the margins can offer valuable lessons for the affluent world, wherever it may be located.

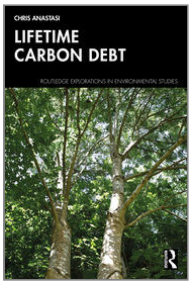
Lifetime Carbon Debt



Chris Anastasi Anastasi London Ltd, UK

Series: Routledge Explorations in Environmental Studies

Lifetime Carbon Debt shows how individuals can help global efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by addressing their own annual and lifetime emissions.People around the world look to governments to provide leadership and action on climate change, and to industry and the wider business community to reduce emissions associated with their activities. However, individuals also have an important role to play by taking responsibility for their emissions. In this book Chris Anastasi offers guidance on how they can do this depending on their personal circumstances.

Pollution Tolerance of Freshwater Ecosystems and Biomonitoring

Ecotoxicology for One Health

Edited by Patrick Omoregie Isibor

This book seeks to elucidate the complex interplay between pollutants and biotic resilience within freshwater systems. It bridges ecological toxicology with biomonitoring frameworks to advance understanding of pollution dynamics, species-specific tolerance thresholds, and the bioindicator potential. It underscores the importance of integrated methodologies spanning genomics, metabolomics, and traditional ecological assessments to predict and mitigate contaminant impacts. By embracing the One Health lens, it aligns scientific inquiry with conservation and public health imperatives. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in environmental studies and ecology.

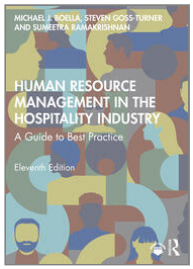
Human Resource Management in the Hospitality Industry

A Guide to Best Practice



Michael J. Boella University of Brighton, UK, Steven Goss-Turner University of Brighton, UK, Sumeetra Ramakrishnan

To consider an industry's workforce and the most effective means of managing the people in that workforce, one must begin by examining the context and the environment in which the industry is operating. Stereotypical gender roles are being redefined, and we are beginning to witness more females in senior roles. An increase in family-friendly policies and flexible working hours also means that childcare responsibilities are being shared between parents, and women are now more able to continue their careers after having children.

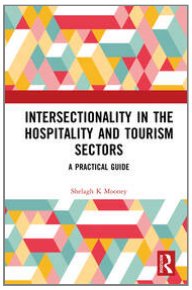
Intersectionality in the Hospitality and Tourism Sectors

A Practical Guide



Shelagh K. Mooney Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand

This handbook follows a logical progression from foundational concepts through methodological applications to theoretical innovations. The purpose of this book is to provide a step-by-step guide to designing intersectional studies that reflect the tourism and hospitality context. Social hierarchies based on economic capital systems marginalise groups as being of lesser worth, for example, indigenous and colonised peoples and those living with disabilities.

Routledge Handbook of Dark Events

Celebrations, Heritage, and Customs of Death and the Macabre

Edited by Brianna Wyatt Oxford Brookes University, UK, Hannah Stewart , James Kennell University of Surrey, UK, Philip R. Stone

In recent decades, the intersection of death, memory, and public experience has undergone a profound cultural shift. Once confined to private mourning, religious ritual, or academic discourse, representations of death now permeate leisure, heritage, and entertainment landscapes. In confronting the viewer with mortality stripped of narrative, ritual, or disguise, the exhibit opens a peculiar and potent space where remembrance, revelation, and discomfort converge.

Sustainable Tea Tourism

Principles and Applications

Edited by D.A.C. Suranga Silva , Gayathri Puwanendram , Baghya Erathna , K.M.B.S.Y. Kulasekara , Krishantha Ganeshan

Series: Routledge Focus on Tourism and Hospitality

Tea, primarily cultivated in Asia, South America, and Africa, has an extensive historical background. The discovery of tea originated in China, where it was transported from Yunnan to Tibet via the Ancient Tea Horse Road before being exported to England by sea. The study, however, contributes to the field with the creation of a codebook for sustainable tea tourism and by linking those elements (themes) to marketing categories. These contributions may guide future research on digital marketing within the sustainable tea tourism and broader tea tourism sector.

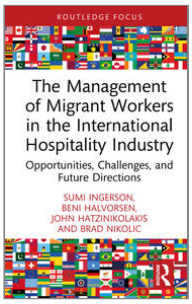
The Management of Migrant Workers in the International Hospitality Industry

Opportunities, Challenges, and Future Directions



Sumi Ingerson , Beni Halvorsen , John Hatzinikolakis , Brad Nikolic

Series: Routledge Focus on Tourism and Hospitality

People have been engaging in hospitable experiences throughout history, with hospitality existing back to ancient times. Previous research discusses the reciprocal relationship between host and guest and the social, cultural and commercial relationships and how this has evolved throughout history (Gardini et al., 2021). Further research could also focus on the increasingly diverse nature of migrant workers in the contemporary hospitality industry through both quantitative, and further qualitative research such as through case studies, and in-depth interviews in-order to offer a richer theory-building analysis across the sector and world.

Socioculturally Responsive Assessment

Implications for Theory, Measurement, and Systems-Level Policy

Edited by Randy E. Bennett Chair at Educational Testing Service, Linda Darling-Hammond President and CEO at the Learning Policy Institute, Aneesha Badrinarayan Director at Learning Policy Institute

Socioculturally Responsive Assessment assembles the best-available thinking from within and outside the educational measurement community about the theoretical foundations and systems-level policy implications of formal assessment programs designed to be socioculturally responsive. This emerging concept affirms that students' learning and performance is inextricably tied to the social, cultural, and linguistic contexts in which they live and develop knowledge. Scholars, teaching faculty, test developers, and policymakers will come away with integral foundations, new assessment approaches, and a greater sense of the potential for positive impact that these assessments may afford.

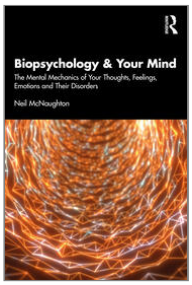
Biopsychology & Your Mind

The Mental Mechanics of Your Thoughts, Feelings, Emotions and Their Disorders



Neil McNaughton

Biopsychology & Your Mind explains the way your mind works – and why it sometimes doesn't. The key is your mental mechanics: molecular, neural, and biological mechanisms.This book explores the unexpected properties of thoughts, feelings, emotions, and actions, examining phenomena such as blindsight, associative learning, intact memory in amnesia, and dreaming during sleep. Using evolutionary biopsychology as a framework, it addresses fundamental questions: What constitutes an emotion? How do thoughts and emotions interact? The text reveals how evolution has shaped our mental mechanics to seek adaptive balances, often switching between extremes depending on current circumstances.

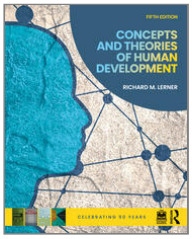
Concepts and Theories of Human Development



Richard M. Lerner Tufts University, Massachusetts, USA

Celebrating 50 years since its initial publication, Concepts and Theories of Human Development provides the most comprehensive overview of the foundational theoretical contributions to understanding human development, and the influence of these contributions for contemporary research and application in developmental science. The book discusses the assumptions involved in such topics as the nature-nurture issue, the issue of continuity-discontinuity, dynamic, relational developmental systems (RDS)-based concepts and models, and the important role of philosophical ideas about theories – in particular, metatheories – in understanding the links between theory and research.

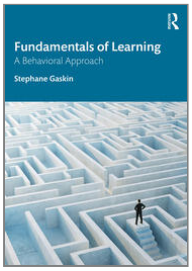
Fundamentals of Learning

A Behavioral Approach



Stephane Gaskin

Fundamentals of Learning: A Behavioral Approach discusses the basic mechanisms of learning. It highlights how most behaviors are learned through minimal amounts of cognitive processing and acquired through associations between stimuli, such as observed in classical and operant conditioning (associative learning) and repeated experiences with a single stimulus (non-associative learning). The book is written with the student in mind throughout, featuring real-life case studies, key terms and learning objectives. It is also has in-chapter videos, alongside online resources such as lecture slides, class assignments, and multiple choice questions.

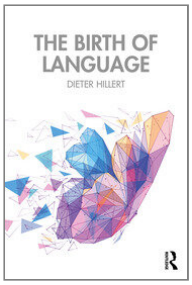
The Birth of Language



Dieter Hillert

The Birth of Language traces the gradual evolution of human language over two million years, uncovering the intricate interplay between biological adaptations and cultural innovations. It distinguishes language from speech—often conflated—showing how both emerged as distinct, yet intertwined processes shaped by specialized brain networks. The book engages with the ongoing scholarly debate on language origins, examining the roles of brain architecture, social cohesion, group dynamics, and fundamental behaviors such as toolmaking.

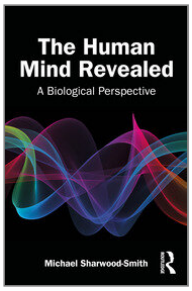
The Human Mind Revealed

A Biological Perspective



Michael Sharwood Smith

This book provides readers with a new working model of the human mind based on contemporary trends in cognitive science. Taking a distinct biological approach, the book presents mind and brain as two sides of the same coin while at the same time emphasizing the need for separate accounts. The reader is introduced step by step to the mind account showing how it operates. The text explores the mind's basic architecture examining how its family of eleven systems interact flexibly and collaboratively to process information, mostly subconsciously.

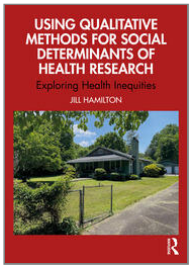
Using Qualitative Methods for Social Determinants of Health Research

Exploring Health Inequities



Jill Hamilton Emory Edu

This book provides researchers, faculty, and students with a comprehensive resource for applying qualitative methods in Social Determinants of Health research among underrepresented communities. Addressing a significant gap in existing literature, it extends beyond traditional qualitative texts by offering targeted instruction on utilizing these methods to explore social, cultural, environmental, and political factors that shape health inequities. It is an extension of texts that define qualitative research, distinguish qualitative from quantitative research, and provide instruction or guidance on ways to implement, analyze, and evaluate this methodology.

On Care and Architecture

An Auto-Ethnographic Approach

Anthony Clarke

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

This book argues that current techniques and representation of architectural practice can take on greater significance and generate a more meaningful societal and professional contribution if they are developed through a lens of care. This lens of care, however, requires a fundamental repositioning in the way architects and designers orientate themselves within each project.

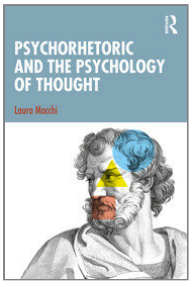
Psychorhetoric and the Psychology of Thought



Laura Macchi University of Milano-Bicocca, Italy

Psychorhetoric and the Psychology of Thought illustrates the role played by rhetoric and communicative heuristics in the psychology of thinking and decision-making, and its effect on many areas of our daily life. It gives voice to a new and unconventional approach to the contemporary debate within the psychology of thought that has wide implications for key behavioural phenomena, including biases, creativity, decision making and public policy. This innovative work challenges conventional wisdom by proposing that cognitive biases are not inherent flaws in human cognition but rather outcomes of misleading communication patterns that influence our thinking processes.

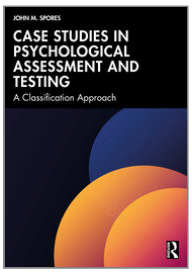
A Classification Approach



John M. Spores

This casebook argues that standardized psychological testing is superior to traditional assessment methods, presenting a multitrait, multimethod approach that leads to more convincing case resolutions and effective treatment planning. The casebook is written as a primary text in both advanced undergraduate and graduate level courses covering psychological testing, along with being on the shelves of many mental health clinicians as a reference text to help them work through difficult patients on their caseloads.

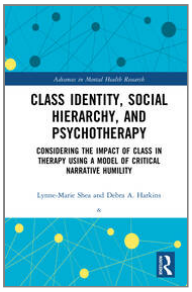
Class Identity, Social Hierarchy, and Psychotherapy

Considering the Impacts in Therapy Using a Model of Critical Narrative Humility



Lynne-Marie Shea Clinical Psychologist at McLean Hospital, USA, Debra A. Harkins Prof. Emeritus of Psychology and Education, Suffolk University, Boston, MA.

Series: Advances in Mental Health Research

Class Identity, Social Hierarchy, and Psychotherapy explores the often-ignored influence of class identity on psychological care. Through the voices of both working-class and middle-class clients and clinicians, authors demonstrate how hidden rules about emotional expression, vulnerability, and competence often shape therapy spaces. A model of critical narrative humility is introduced, which encourages therapists to interrogate their own class position, training, and biases, and re-consider how this might impact their ability to authentically hear the complex and nuanced accounts of their clients.

Handbook of Social Justice in Loss and Grief

Exploring Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

Edited by Darcy L. Harris Western University, Ontario, Canada, Tashel C. Bordere University of Missouri, USA, Lisa McLean Western University, Ontario, Canada

Series: Series in Death, Dying, and Bereavement

The second edition of the Handbook of Social Justice in Loss and Grief has been completely overhauled, with twenty-six new chapters by leaders in the fields of social justice, socially just practice, death, dying, loss, and grief. This book challenges readers to think through responses to ethically complex scenarios in which social justice is undermined by radically uneven opportunity structures, hierarchies of voice and privilege, personal and professional power, and unconscious assumptions, at the very junctures when people are most vulnerable through serious illness, confrontations with end-of-life decision making, and in the throes of grief and bereavement.

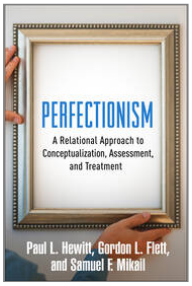
Perfectionism

A Relational Approach to Conceptualization, Assessment, and Treatment



Paul L. Hewitt University of British Columbia, Canada, Gordon L. Flett York University, Canada, Samuel F. Mikail private practice, Canada

Grounded in decades of influential research, this book thoroughly examines perfectionism how it develops, its underlying mechanisms and psychological costs, and how to target it effectively in psychotherapy. The authors describe how perfectionistic tendencies rooted in early relational and developmental experiences make people vulnerable to a wide range of clinical problems. They present an integrative treatment approach and demonstrate ways to tailor interventions to the needs of individual clients. A group treatment model is also detailed. State-of-the-art assessment tools are discussed (and provided at the companion website).

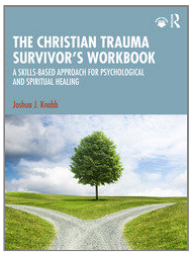
The Christian Trauma Survivor's Workbook

A Skills-Based Approach for Psychological and Spiritual Healing



Joshua J. Knabb California Baptist University, USA

The Christian Trauma Survivor's Workbook is a step-by-step guide for supporting Christians who have a history of trauma. The workbook offers four research-supported skills to help Christians shift from trauma-based patterns of ruminative thinking that can keep them stuck and make trauma symptoms worse to focusing on God. Drawing on Christian meditative prayer and contemplative practices that are anchored to the Bible and Christian spiritual writings, chapters include useful definitions, explanations, step-by-step interventions with audio files, journaling exercises, and real-life examples.

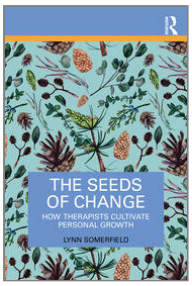
The Seeds of Change

How Therapists Cultivate Personal Growth



Lynn Somerfield

Because psychotherapy is confidential, its inner workings often remain a mystery to those considering it. The Seeds of Change: How Therapists Cultivate Personal Growth lifts the veil on the therapeutic process, demystifying approaches, highlighting the importance of tailoring therapy to the individual, and revealing how it can enhance well-being. Drawing on the author's extensive experience as a psychotherapist, and enriched with case studies and practical exercises, the chapters explore key themes through the lens of the therapeutic journey.

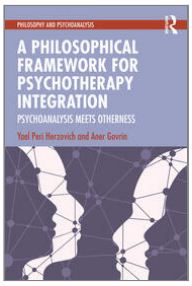
A Philosophical Framework for Psychotherapy Integration

Psychoanalysis Meets Otherness



Yael Peri Herzovich , Aner Govrin Bar-Ilan University, Israel

Series: Philosophy and Psychoanalysis

In this thought-provoking work Yael Peri Herzovich and Aner Govrin challenge the long-standing rivalry between psychoanalysis and other psychotherapeutic approaches, particularly cognitive behavioral therapy. They address a fundamental question: How can we facilitate genuine dialogue between these dominant psychotherapy schools? Offering a fresh perspective on the potential for integration and mutual influence between these two major psychotherapy schools, while honouring the unique contributions of each school, this book is essential reading for psychotherapists, psychoanalysts, psychologists, and students of mental health.

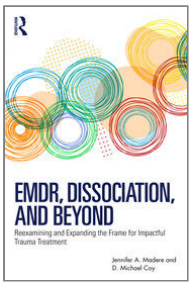
EMDR, Dissociation, and Beyond

Reexamining and Expanding the Frame for Impactful Trauma Treatment



Jennifer A. Madere Intuitus Group, Texas, USA, D. Michael Coy Private practice, Washington, USA

EMDR, Dissociation, and Beyond delves more deeply into the dissociative disorders' literature than any previous text on this topic, providing much-needed connectivity between two fields that are often at odds. Weaving together strands from many schools of thought and infused with the authors' decades of experience, EMDR, Dissociation, and Beyond brings together EMDR therapy and the treatment of dissociation in a way that invites the past into the present and opens doors to the future.

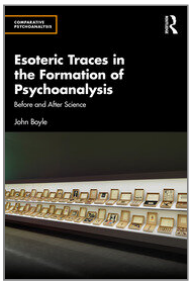
Esoteric Traces in the Formation of Psychoanalysis

Before and After Science



John Boyle

Series: Comparative Psychoanalysis

In this fascinating new book, John Boyle provides an in-depth account of the neglected contributions made by Western esotericism in the formation of an occluded 'psychoanalytic parapsychology' active within psychoanalysis since its inception, the distinguishing features of which he argues have continued to persist within psychoanalysis to this day. This book offers new and original insights into the role played by heterodox forms of spirituality in the development of psychoanalysis. It will interest scholars of psychoanalysis and religion as well as those with a general interest in the role of the spiritual in contemporary psychoanalysis and psychology.

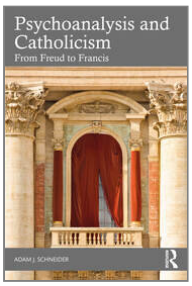
Psychoanalysis and Catholicism

From Freud to Francis



Adam J. Schneider

In Psychoanalysis and Catholicism: From Freud to Francis, Adam J. Schneider explores the censored history of psychoanalysis by the Catholic Church, reopening dialogue on key overlapping concepts to address contemporary needs. This book is organized into three parts. Schneider centers Pope Francis, whose papacy was a pastoral practice which reflected psychoanalytic ethics, as an orienting influence throughout the text. Psychoanalysis and Catholicism will be of interest to readers seeking to understand how psychoanalysis and Catholicism edify one another, and how to apply these insights to clinical settings, seminary formation, and parish life.

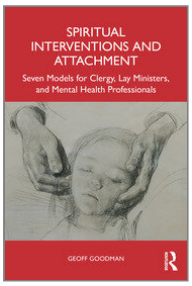
Spiritual Interventions and Attachment

Seven Models for Clergy, Lay Ministers, and Mental Health Professionals



Geoff Goodman Emory University, Georgia, USA

Spiritual Interventions and Attachment offers a variety of models of lay minister-driven spiritual interventions to which clergy from diverse religious backgrounds might consider referring their congregants. The author provides a critique of each model using attachment theory as the organizing framework. All these models are designed to ease the overwhelming burden of clergy, who are unable to provide appropriately matched pastoral care to all their congregants who experience spiritual and emotional struggles. University course instructors, clergy, chaplains, pastoral counselors, lay ministers, and mental health professionals will benefit from this insightful book.

Storytelling Research Methods

Meaning Making and Interdisciplinary Knowledges across Borders

Michael Wilson , Antonia Liguori , Emily Underwood-Lee

Storytelling Research Methods establishes the methods, subject matter, tonal qualities, and philosophical underpinnings of Storytelling Research, while distinguishing it from its close relatives in Narrative Research, Narrative Inquiry, Performance Research, Autoethnography, and Qualitative Methods. The book includes philosophical discussion of Storytelling Research alongside practical advice on how to conduct storytelling research. The book will be useful as a textbook for advanced undergraduate and graduate courses in Storytelling, as well as those who wish to expand their understanding of qualitative methods across the Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences.

2ND EDITION

Teaching Statistics and Quantitative Methods in the 21st Century

Edited by Joseph Lee Rodgers Vanderbilt University, USA

Series: Multivariate Applications Series

Teaching Statistics and Quantitative Methods in the 21st Century is a guide for rethinking and revitalising statistics and quantitative methods pedagogy for novice and experienced instructors at undergraduate and graduate levels. It offers modern, transformative approaches to preparing students as future researchers. Updated chapters from the first edition sit alongside these new contributions, presenting both classroom innovations and philosophical challenges to the status quo. The result is a call for a broad reimagining of how statistics and quantitative methods are introduced, designed to engage students, support new instructors, and renew the practice of seasoned teachers.

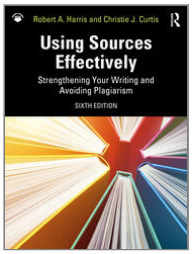
Using Sources Effectively

Strengthening Your Writing and Avoiding Plagiarism



Robert A. Harris , Christie J. Curtis Biola university

The sixth edition of Using Sources Effectively targets the two most prominent problems in current research-paper writing: the increase in unintentional plagiarism and the ineffective use of research source material. The book includes mini-Research Projects at the end of each chapter to sharpen your research and evaluation skills; a set of practical, useful rhetorical devices to help improve the clarity and impact of your writing; instruction in close reading to help you better grasp what an author is discussing, etc. This edition has been thoroughly updated to cover developments in AI and ChatGPT, critical thinking, and digital developments in relation to social media.

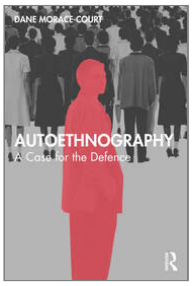
Autoethnography

A Case for the Defence



Dane Morace-Court

Autoethnography: A Case for the Defence presents a thoughtful and compelling exploration of autoethnography as a research methodology, addressing the growing wave of academic, analytical, and ethical critiques that accompany its rising prominence. Rather than simply outlining the foundations and rationale behind autoethnography, this text takes a distinctive stance by advocating for and defending the methodology in response to the evolving discourse around its validity. It provides deeper insight and practical guidance for those interested in pursuing or better understanding qualitative research methods.

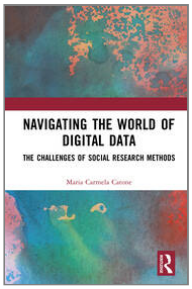
Navigating the World of Digital Data

The Challenges of Social Research Methods



Maria Carmela Catone

This book brings together foundational methodological concepts with a reflective openness to innovation. It examines how the spread of digital technologies has generated an unprecedented flow of data, opening up new opportunities to investigate social phenomena. The book explores the main features and challenges of digital data and shows how they reshape crucial aspects of social research. Rather than treating data as neutral, it highlights their cognitive, social, and technological construction processes and the interpretative work required to use them effectively.

Emotional Labour in the Nursing Care of Children, Young People and their Families

Theory and Practice

Edited by Mandy Brimble

The book begins with an introduction to ideas about emotional labour and discusses their relevance to children's nursing, emphasising that children's nurses not only deal with the emotional needs of children and themselves, but also those of parents and carers. The book then takes a case study approach, presenting a wide range of chapters each focusing on a different area of practice across acute care and long-term care. It is an essential text for child nursing field students and a useful evidence-based reference for practitioners and scholars with an interest in emotional labour.

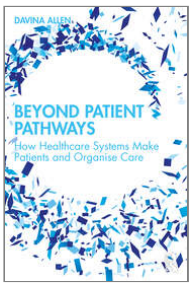
Beyond Patient Pathways

How Healthcare Systems Make Patients and Organise Care



Davina Allen University of Cardiff, UK

How is care coordinated when the course is uncertain, the work distributed, and the patient constantly redefined? In this detailed ethnographic study of the hip fracture trajectory, Beyond Patient Pathways challenges the dominant rational-linear logic of care pathways to reveal the complex, evolving assemblages that underpin everyday service delivery. This book is an essential resource for a wide readership of researchers, medical sociologists, service managers, improvement scientists and healthcare professionals with an interest in health services management, quality improvement, person-centred care, care planning and interprofessional education.

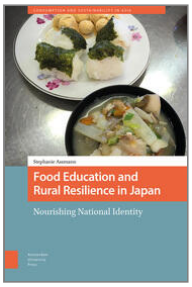
Food Education and Rural Resilience in Japan

Nourishing National Identity



Stephanie Assmann

Series: Consumption and Sustainability in Asia

Food education initiatives exist worldwide, but Japan remains unique with its food education law known as shokuiku. The country's impressive health metrics — high life expectancies, low obesity, and affordable health care — often lead observers to praise this approach. This book presents a more nuanced analysis. Using Foucault's concept of governmentality, historical contextualization, and extensive fieldwork in rural Japan, this study reveals the complex political agenda driving food education in a non-Western society.

Organization Studies and the Medical Humanities

A New Lens for Organizing, Managing and Understanding Health and Healthcare

Edited by Andrea Bernardi , Barbara Quacquarelli , Federica Angeli , Roberto Lusardi

Series: Routledge Advances in the Medical Humanities

This book explores the under-researched theoretical and empirical intersection between organization studies and the medical humanities, highlighting cutting-edge work on complex healthcare organizations using methods and theories from the humanities. Showcasing an emerging sub-field, this book begins by developing an original definition of the medical humanities and problematizing the relationship between it and organization studies. Making a case for the important role that organization studies can play in the medical and health humanities, this book is a valuable contribution to students and scholars with an interest in both fields and healthcare management more generally.

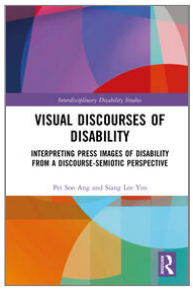
Visual Discourses of Disability

Interpreting Press Images of Disability from a Discourse-Semiotic Perspective



Pei Soo Ang Universiti Malaya, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. , Siang Lee Yeo

Series: Interdisciplinary Disability Studies

This book shows how the visual elements within news images of disability orchestrate and evoke social meanings about disability and of persons with disability. It creates a Visual Discourses of Disability (ViDD) framework to delineate what and how the visualization of disability communicates ideas and attitudes and how elements in an image are configured to frame the perspective of disability. It will be relevant for readers in the areas of visual communication, social semiotics, critical discourse studies, communication, (photo)journalism, sociology, anthropology, media studies and (critical) disability studies.

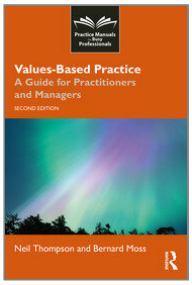
Values-Based Practice

A Guide for Practitioners and Managers



Neil Thompson , Bernard Moss

Series: Practice Manuals for Busy Professionals

This second edition of Values-Based Practice aids readers to understand the key role of values as a basis for effective practice across human services and beyond. Neglecting values when working with vulnerable people can lead to disastrous and unethical outcomes. However, the concept of values can be difficult to grasp. An invaluable resource for practitioners and students across the human services, including education, health, social work and social care, youth work, counselling, pastoral and police, as well as probation professionals and managers across all sectors.

Decolonising Death Studies

Edited by Panagiotis Pentaris University of Greenwich, UK, Stacey Pitsillides , Hajar Ghorbani

Social and cultural factors can strongly influence how we approach death and dying, including attitudes towards death, rituals and practices surrounding death, and end- of-life care. Through its collaborative and interdisciplinary approach, the proposal breaks new ground by bringing together a diverse range of perspectives and voices, fostering rich dialogue and promoting inclusivity. This innovative approach promises to catalyze meaningful change and advance critical scholarship in death studies. It will be of interest to all undergraduate and postgraduate course on death studies across both humanities and social sciences.

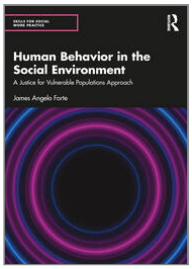
Human Behavior in the Environment

A Justice for Vulnerable Populations Approach



James Angelo Forte

Series: Skills for Social Work Practice

Social workers prioritize understanding and advocating for unjustly at-risk vulnerable populations. Honoring this moral imperative requires critical empathy, imagination, knowledge, theorizing, and action. Designed for use as a core text on all HBSE modules on BSW and MSW social work programs, it will also be of interest to novice social workers, social workers engaged in professional development, and allied human services professionals.

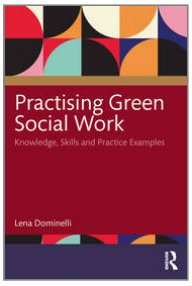
Practising Green Social Work

Considerations of Knowledge, Skills and Practice



Lena Dominelli Durham University, UK

Practicing Green Social Work provides a holistic paradigm for practice that positions the person in their environment as situated in their social, cultural and physical ecosystems. Drawing on case examples in which practitioners have used green social work theory in their usual routines of practice and in new challenging situations associated with diverse disasters, especially climate change and extreme weather events, this book will be of interest to all social work scholars, students and practitioners as well as emergency workers interested in working in transdisciplinary, multi-agency settings and employing coproduction techniques to engage local residents.

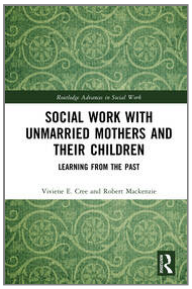
Social Work with Unmarried Mothers and Their Children

Learning from the Past



Viviene E. Cree , Robert Mackenzie

Series: Routledge Advances in Social Work

This is a social work history with a difference. Written with and by a retired social worker and three former residents of a children's home in Edinburgh, Scotland, it tells the story of one agency's response to unmarried mothers and their children during and after the Second World War, and alongside this, the story of what was, at the time, a new and experimental approach to group care for children. Taken together, these present a rich and nuanced picture of social work and childcare in the past, offering much learning for social work and childcare in the future, as well as a timely example of a co-produced, collaborative research and writing project.

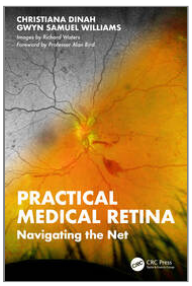
Navigating the Net



Christiana Dinah Central Middlesex Hospital, London, UK, Gwyn Samuel Williams Singleton Hospital, Eye Department, Swansea, Wales, UK

Practical Medical Retina will be the third instalment in the 'practical' range to complement Practical Uveitis and Practical Emergency Ophthalmology books. Medical Retina is one of the largest and most important sub-specialties of ophthalmology. Many new and exciting treatments are happening at breakneck speed, making it difficult for ophthalmologists to keep up with developments and understand the best way to treat patients. This book, as with the other two, will provide an easy-to-understand breakdown of developments, a description of current and future therapies, and an accessible assessment of evidence, of which there is currently a bewildering amount.

Brain Foods

Nutrition to Optimize Cognitive Performance

Edited by M. Selvamuthukumaran

The brain, as the central organ of the body, plays a vital role in controlling bodily functions, enabling thought, and fostering emotions. To perform efficiently, it requires proper nourishment in the form of essential nutrients. Brain-boosting foods, rich in active ingredients such as zinc, monounsaturated fatty acids, choline, and DHA, have been shown to significantly enhance cognitive performance and memory power. Brain Foods: Nutrition to Optimize Cognitive Performance explores the science of extracting bioactive constituents from natural sources to develop innovative cognitive performance-enhancing foods.

Innovative Solutions and Strategies for Fish Health Management

Edited by Preetham Elumalai , Kim Thompson , Mikolaj Adamek , Sreeja Lakshmi

This book explores strategies to manage fish health and combat diseases in aquaculture. It covers diagnostic tools, biosecurity measures, and advanced breeding techniques, along with innovative approaches like bacteriophage therapy and nanotechnology for disease resistance. The role of vaccines in disease management is thoroughly examined, highlighting current developments and challenges. Additionally, the book presents fish welfare, addressing stress management, food systems, and human activities, while also exploring the use of prebiotics, probiotics, and synbiotics for enhancing fish health. This book is intended for researchers and professionals of aquaculture and marine biology.

Insights and Innovations in Gallbladder Carcinogenesis

Edited by Vijay Kumar Shukla , Manoj Pandey , Ruhi Dixit

This book comprehensively explores the latest advancements in multi-omics strategies for diagnosing gallbladder cancer. The initial section delves into the genetic mutations and pathways critical to the development and progression of gallbladder cancer. Through targeted gene sequencing and genomic profiling, it identifies both somatic and rare germline mutations, pinpointing driver genes and predisposing mutations. The subsequent section examines the proteins and molecular pathways altered in gallbladder cancer. It uncovers dysregulated proteins, identifies tumor biomarkers, and evaluates circulating markers for early detection.

Novel Nanostructured Carbon Materials (NCMs) for Enhancing Targeted Delivery of Cancer Therapeutics

Loutfy H. Madkour Tanta University, Egypt

The book discusses Carbon—based nanomaterials (CBNMs) have attracted substantial research interest in biomedical sciences and nanobiotechnological, rendered from its unique structure, electronic, mechanical, and optical properties. By taking advantage of such aspects in a single entity, CBNMs could be used for developing biomedical applications in future. In this book special emphasis is placed on the implications of these interaction modes to design novel stimuli-responsive drug delivery principles and concepts, aiming to enhance the spatial, temporal, and dosage precision of drug delivery to cancer cells.

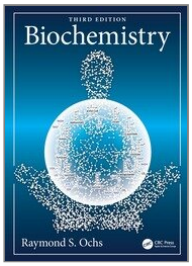
3RD EDITION

Biochemistry



Raymond S Ochs

Biochemistry Third Edition, is a single-semester text designed for undergraduate non-biochemistry majors. Accessible, engaging, and informative, it is the perfect introduction to the subject for students who may approach chemistry with apprehension. Its unique emphasis on metabolism and its kinetic underpinnings gives the text up-to-the-minute relevance for students investigating current public health concerns, such as obesity and diabetes. This text will encourage students to explore the basics of chemistry and its influence on biological problems.

Concepts in Reproduction

From Evolution of Mechanisms to Clinical Impact

Gary M. Wessel , Julian L. Wong , Harvey Florman , Carmen J. Williams , Mark A. Johnson

Concepts in Reproduction integrates the principal mechanisms of reproduction among eukaryotes.The text emphasizes processes and approaches that evolved to address specific problems inherent in reproduction using examples from morphology, functional studies, and genetic studies. The many high-quality figures complement the text and provide visual storyboards. Footnotes and boxes found throughout provide depth and enrich understanding. This textbook is recommended for advanced undergraduate students, new graduate students, and investigators or clinicians seeking breadth in their knowledge in the field.

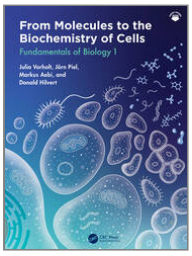
From Molecules to the Biochemistry of Cells

Fundamentals of Biology 1



Julia Vorholt , Jörn Piel , Markus Aebi , Donald Hilvert

This textbook introduces biology as an interdisciplinary science, linking physics and chemistry to biological processes. Based on an evolutionary narrative, the focus is on the molecular composition and biochemistry of cells. By grounding biology in its molecular foundations, this approach reveals unifying principles underlying life's diversity and provides a conceptual framework for biological complexity. Core concepts include macromolecular structure and function, information encoding and decoding, and universal principles of energy conversion. This book is designed for students seeking an integrated introduction to biology that connects molecular mechanisms to cellular structures.

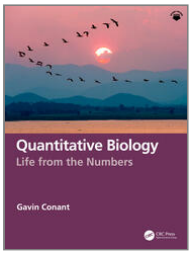
Quantitative Biology

Life from the Numbers



Gavin Conant

Biology has become a data-driven science, with large-scale datasets driving fields from population genomics to ecology. Practicing biologists have no choice but to use computational approaches, statistics and modeling in their research. This book provides students whose background is in biology with an introduction to modeling biological systems using mathematical, computational and statistical tools. It is based around a series of hands-on analyses conducted with open-source tools that allow the students to discover for themselves emergent properties of biological systems that are not evident without using model-based approaches.

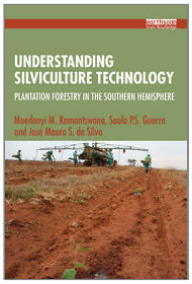
Understanding Silviculture Technology

Plantation Forestry in the Southern Hemisphere



Muedanyi M. Ramantswana , Saulo P.S. Guerra , José Mauro S. da Silva

This book describes the various technologies used in silviculture with a special focus on newer technologies which have been adopted over the past two decades in plantation forestry practiced in the Southern Hemisphere. In the context of this book, the focus is on industrial plantation forests grown in a range of Southern Hemisphere countries, mainly South Africa and Brazil with a specific focus on the technologies used in establishing and tending eucalypts, pine and wattle species. The book will be of great use to students of silviculture and forestry, as well as professionals working in the forestry industry.

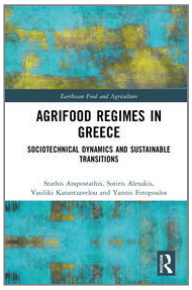
Agrifood Regimes in Greece

Sociotechnical Dynamics and Sustainable Transitions



Stathis Arapostathis , Sotiris Alexakis , Vasiliki Karantzavelou , Yannis Fotopoulos

Series: Earthscan Food and Agriculture

This book examines the history and socio-technical transformations of agri-food regimes systems in contemporary Greece. It argues that no national sustainability policy can meet EU and UN targets without examining the historical construction of the agrifood system and its lock-ins. By analyzing key products—wheat, tomato, olive oil, pork, chicken, and fish—it captures production regime specificities while explaining the sector's transition toward sustainability. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of food and agriculture, sustainability, science and technology studies and European politics and policy.

AI in Plant Science and Precision Agriculture

Edited by Jen-Tsung Chen

This book summarizes advancements in artificial intelligence (AI) technologies, particularly for applications in plant research. It discusses agricultural applications, including AI-enabled smart agriculture and speed breeding, as well as ethical considerations of AI applications in plant sciences and agriculture. It focuses on the application of AI in omics-based plant sciences and crop breeding; digital technologies used in farming, smart agricultural practices, and basic knowledge of AI tools and applications in disease classification and detection.

Artificial Intelligence in Managing Antimicrobial Resistance

Edited by Ramendra Pati Pandey School of HST, UPES, Dehradun, Uttarakhand, India, Chung-Ming Chang CGU, Guishan Dist. Taoyuan City, Taiwan (R.O.C.), V. Samuel Raj SRM University

This volume reviews the use of machine learning (ML) to predict antibiotic resistance in pathogens based on gene content and genome composition as data sets comprising hundreds or thousands of pathogen genomes become available. One of the main goals of this work is to promote the use of ML in front-line contexts while simultaneously emphasizing the additional improvements that are required to use these techniques in a secure and confident manner. Given the variety of quantitative and qualitative laboratory indicators of AMR, the issue of what to anticipate is not an easy one.

Biotechnological Relevance of Cytochrome P450 in Boosting Agricultural Production and Food Security

Edited by Wadzani Palnam Dauda Department of Crop Science, Federal University, Gashua, Charles Oluwaseun Adetunji Edo University, Iyamho, Nigeria

Series: Current Developments in Agricultural Biotechnology and Food Security

This book explores the untapped potential of Cytochrome P450 monooxygenases; a highly versatile class of enzymes central to plant metabolism, defence, and growth. With over 95% of plant P450s still functionally uncharacterized, this volume serves as a comprehensive reference for understanding their multifaceted roles in modern agricultural biotechnology. Bridging molecular biology and sustainable agriculture, the book delves into the involvement of P450s in hormone biosynthesis, secondary metabolism, detoxification, and plant-environment interactions.

Climate-Resilient Agriculture for Sustainable Crop Production

New Adaptation and Mitigation Strategies

Edited by Sanjay Kumar , Shivani Ranjan , Sumit Sow , Smruti Ranjan Padhan , Dhirendra Kumar Roy

Addresses the intricate nexus between climate dynamics and the intricate tapestry of global agriculture. It discusses advancements in crop science, the deployment of cutting-edge technologies, and the development of sustainable farming practices. From the micro-level intricacies of crop genetics to the macro-scale considerations of global food systems, the book covers the multifaceted dimensions of climate-resilient agriculture. Topics cover artificial intelligence and robotics in climate-resilient agriculture; sustainable approaches in natural and organic farming, along with the economic viability and market prospects of each; climate-smart extension services; and much more.

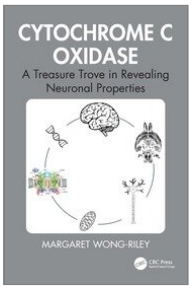
Cytochrome C Oxidase

A Treasure Trove in Revealing Neuronal Properties from Systems to Molecules



Margaret T.T. Wong-Riley

This reference book on an essential mitochondrial enzyme, Cytochrome c oxidase (COX) – is the culmination of four decades of work. This enzyme's biochemical activity is well documented. It evolved more than a billion years ago. Nevertheless, its contributions to the function of neurons remains relatively obscure. COX is not just a housekeeping enzyme engaged in energy generation, but it is truly a treasure trove for the discovery of numerous neuronal properties chronicled in this book.

Endophytes

Nurturing Crop Health and Sustainable Agriculture

Edited by A. K. Chakravarthy , B. Kariyanna

Brings together recent, crucial information on the possibilities for utilization of endophytic microorganisms in agricultural practices, discussing key experimental and theoretical research on endophytes and focusing on their applications in different arenas in agriculture. It covers the roles of endophytes in soil, in plant health, in the management of pests and pathogens, and for sustainable agriculture. The chapters look at the functional roles and uses of endophytes in different aspects of agriculture, providing new information and a better understanding of the networks of the complexity associated with microbes, the agroecosystem, the environment, and human health.

Epigenetic Regulations in Plants

Mechanisms, Plant Development and Stress Responses

Edited by Aryadeep Roychoudhury

This book provides a detailed overview of the significance of epigenetic regulation as an important mechanism underlying the regulation of gene expression in plants. It highlights the role played by epigenetic mechanisms in the overall physiology of plants and how these mechanisms can improve quality traits by conferring tolerance and resistance against abiotic and biotic stresses. This is an essential read for researchers and scientists working in the fields of plant physiology, molecular biology and biotechnology, as well as related disciplines of biochemistry, agricultural science and botany.

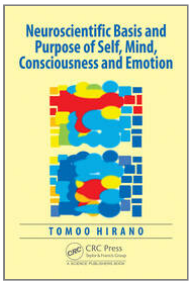
Neuroscientific Basis and Purpose of Self, Mind, Consciousness and Emotion



Tomoo Hirano

This book presents a unified view of subjective self, mind, consciousness, and emotions grounded in objective neuroscience and biology. It explores how and why nervous systems and subjective phenomena have developed during evolution, linking molecular and cellular neuroscientific mechanisms, neural circuits and higher brain functions, emotions, sleeps, dreams, psychiatric disorders, evolutional and social aspects of animals, and AI, to the nature of mind and consciousness. The discussion suggests that one's self may not be unitary, offering fresh perspectives on human subjective experiences, and provides considerations and guidance for decision-making in the society.

Next Generation Crop Improvement for Agricultural Sustainability and Food Security

Edited by Belaghihalli N Gnanesh , Chittaranjan Kole

Series: Current Plant Science

This book highlights recent advances in stress tolerance, genome editing, accelerated breeding, and genomic selection to develop climate-resilient, nutrient-rich crops. It emphasises biofortification to combat hidden hunger and promotes millets and vegetables for their resilience and nutritional value. Innovations like grafting, plasma treatments and starch bioengineering are explored. Integration of bioinformatics, phenomics and machine learning supports precision agriculture for sustainable and future global food security. This book aims to educate policymakers, researchers, and students.

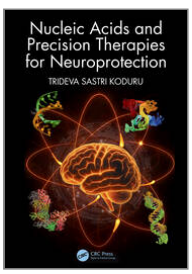
Nucleic Acids and Precision Therapies for Neuroprotection



Trideva Sastri Koduru

Neurodegenerative disorders are rising worldwide, yet most approved drugs merely temper symptoms. Nucleic Acids and Precision Therapies for Neuroprotection addresses this therapeutic shortfall directly, tracing how antisense oligonucleotides, RNA interference agents, mRNA platforms, aptamers, and CRISPR-class editors are redefining what "treatable" means for Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, ALS, Huntington's disease, and Multiple Sclerosis.

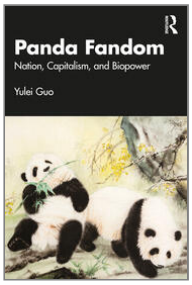
Panda Fandom

Nation, Capitalism, and Biopower



Yulei Guo

This book provides the first exploration of panda fandom, a term denoting the community built upon the deep and intimate emotional connections between fans and giant pandas. The book uncovers the dynamic relationship between China, the West, and the giant panda, rooted in over two centuries of cross-cultural encounters. Drawing from extensive fieldwork at the Chengdu Research Base of Giant Panda Breeding, it explores how panda fandom has evolved as a result of China's participation in global capitalism, cultural exchange, and diplomatic strategy.

Phytobiotics for Sustainable Aquaculture

Innovations, Benefits, and Future Perspectives

Edited by Manoj Tukaram Kamble Chulalongkorn Univ., TH, Nopadon Pirarat Chulalongkorn Univ., TH, Balasaheb Ramdas Chavan Coll. of Fisheries, IN, Seema Vijay Medhe ASEAN Inst. for Health Development, TH

Phytobiotics for Sustainable Aquaculture: Innovations, Benefits, and Future Perspectives is a comprehensive reference on plant-derived compounds, including herbs, spices, and micro- and macroalgae, as tools for disease management, nutrition, welfare, and sustainability in farmed fish and shrimp. The book covers molecular mechanisms and bioactive properties; demonstrates applications against bacterial, viral, fungal, and parasitic diseases; and evaluates roles in immune modulation, stress mitigation, growth, and reproduction.

Precision Nutrition and Endocrine Health

From Pregnancy to Chronic Diseases

Edited by Thakur Gurjeet Singh , Sanjana Mehta

Offers a comprehensive and holistic exploration of the pivotal relationship between nutrition and endocrine health. It covers health from various aspects that include nutrition, endocrinology, and related fields, presenting cutting-edge research and practical strategies. It addresses the continuum of endocrine health, beginning with prenatal nutrition and maternal health, and extending to the prevention and management of chronic diseases such as diabetes, thyroid disorders, and metabolic syndromes.

Revitalizing Hill and Mountain Agroecosystems Landscapes

An Interdisciplinary Perspective

Edited by Dinesh K. Marothia Indian Society of Agricultural Economics, Maharashtra, Prem Chand ICAR-NIAEPR, New Delhi, Kamal Vatta Indian Society of Agricultural Economics, Mumbai

Hills and mountains play a critical role in sustaining global biodiversity, freshwater resources, cultural heritage, and ecological balance. Found in over 80% of the world's countries, these landscapes offer indispensable services not only to their immediate inhabitants but also to populations far beyond. Nowhere is this more evident than in South and Southeast Asia—regions home to some of the planet's most diverse mountain ecosystems and cultures. Yet these valuable ecosystems are increasingly at risk due to climate change, socio-economic pressures, and unsustainable land-use practices.

The Impact of Anthropogenic Activities on the Natural Environment and Societies during the Contemporary Period

Edited by Carolina Leticia Zilli Vieira Harvard T. Chan School of Public Health, USA

This groundbreaking book by Dr.Carolina Leticia Zilli Vieira offers a sweeping exploration of humanity's impact on the environment and health, starting from the Industrial Revolution to the current times. Covering topics such as air and water pollution, electromagnetic radiation, medical and dental waste management, agricultural practices, natural resource overuse, and the ethics of environmental stewardship, Dr. Zilli Vieira and co-authors link scientific evidence with policy and social consequences. By uniting historical perspectives, scientific insight, and preventive strategies, this book presents a compelling roadmap for building healthier societies and a more sustainable planet.

Lung Cancer

Overview and Therapies

Edited by Abhishek Tiwari , Varsha Tiwari , Manish Kumar

Explores various facets of lung cancer, covering its molecular underpinnings, diagnostic modalities, treatment strategies, and the burgeoning field of nanotechnology in cancer therapeutics. It discusses a diverse range of topics that explore lung cancer, covering critical aspects such as pathogenesis, diagnostic imaging techniques, current treatment approaches, and the revolutionary field of nanotechnology in cancer therapy. It covers the pathogenesis and molecular biology of lung cancer. Other chapters detail development of targeted drug delivery systems, harnessing the transformative potential of nanoparticles, including magnetic nanoparticles, polymeric nanoparticles, etc.

Edited by Seth Kwabena Amponsah UGMS, Ghana, Irene Akwo Kretchy , Yashwant V. Pathak USF, USA

Substance abuse and addiction is the use of illegal drugs, prescription or over-the-counter drugs or household substances in a way that is detrimental to self, society or both. This volume discusses social, psychological, cultural, biological, and medical perspectives of substance abuse and addiction in special populations; with appropriate case study examples. It captures the various abused substances, novel assay techniques, laws governing use of these substances and management strategies. It includes a compendium of information on recent trends in substance abuse and addiction in special populations like adolescents, pregnant women, athletes, health professionals, among others.

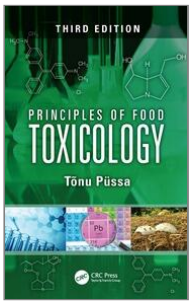
Principles of Food Toxicology



Tõnu Püssa Estonian University of Life Sciences, Tartu

Following in the tradition of popular previous editions, this book integrates the general principles of toxicology with a systematic characterization of the most important food toxicants. This new edition employs moderately rigorous chemistry and biochemistry in covering a range of current issues, including the link between growing environmental pollution and food safety, as well as the potential dangers of plant-based meat alternatives/substitutes. Ideal for students and teachers, as well as a reliable resource for toxicologists, this book provides the tools to adeptly deal with a range of food and animal toxicants and ensure food safety.

Series: Cereals

Finger millets are gaining popular recognition as a superior source of phytochemicals, micronutrients such as calcium, phosphorous and iron, and dietary fibre, when compared with cereals such as wheat and rice. This book provides comprehensive information about the grain, including details of its different components such as starch, protein, bioactive metabolites, and their use in food products. It will be a comprehensive reference tool for researchers, students, nutritionists, food technologists, policy makers, and agricultural practitioners.

Food Waste Proteins

Extraction, Modification, and Applications

Edited by Piyush Kashyap , Poorva Sharma , Tanmay Sarkar

Offering a comprehensive and cutting-edge overview, this book explores how discarded food can be transformed into valuable protein sources and bioactive compounds. After introducing the concept of food waste valorization, it considers the significance of transforming waste into wealth within the framework of a sustainable circular economy, setting the stage for detailed discussions of various aspects of protein extraction and application. This is a forward-thinking resource that bridges the gap between research and industry, ideal for researchers, entrepreneurs and scientists working at the intersection between the two.

Innovative Food Processing Techniques

Enhancing Safety, Quality, and Shelf Life

Edited by Rayees Ul Islam , Arshied Manzoor , Z. R. Azaz Ahmad Azad

Examining recent developments in the use of thermal and non-thermal food processing methods, this book offers a thorough technical analysis of different processing methods and their possible advantages in improving food safety, quality, and shelf life. It also covers how contemporary issues such as sustainability, clean labelling, and food waste mitigation affect these processes. This book will be a valuable tool for industry professionals, providing the necessary resources to make informed decisions on how to effectively implement the latest thermal and non-thermal food processing techniques into their operations.

Integrated Food and Bioprocess Engineering

Edited by Anwesa Sarkar , Kshirod Kumar Dash

The book covers different aspect of food bioprocess engineering for the development of various value-added food and waste management. Covers food biotechnology and bioprocess engineering, design of fermenter and bioreactors, studies related to unit operations, food safety and regulatory issues for safe and nutritious food product development using novel technologies of biotechnology and bioprocessing, followed by food industry waste utilization for production of first second and third generation biofuel production, biodegradable packaging materials. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in food and chemical engineering, bioprocessing, and food biotechnology.

Microbiology of African Fermented Foods

Gabriel Akanni , Abdullahi Jimoh , Oluwafemi Adebo

This book provides a broad yet succinct insight into the role of microorganisms in African food products and systems, with chapters dedicated to wider classifications of these fermented foods. It offers new perspectives and covers recent developments regarding the microbiological complexity of these food products. This book would be a valuable resource for students, food technologists, microbiologists, scholars, and policymakers highlighting the contribution to the discourse on indigenous fermentation science and African food innovation.

Nonthermal Pulsed Electric Field Technology for the Food Industry

Edited by Preeti Birwal , Megh R. Goyal , Baldev Singh Kalsi , Ankita Kataria

Series: Innovations in Agricultural & Biological Engineering

Illustrates the contemporary pulsed electric field processing techniques for food preservation, an emerging food processing. It introduces the role of nonthermal technology in novel food product development for ensuring the quality of the product. It introduces pulsed electric field, pulse generation technologies, PEF processing system, and safety and critical parameters. It also addresses the influence of PEF on microorganisms and enzymes, presents an analysis of kinetics governing the inactivation of enzymes as well as microorganisms under PEF treatment, and covers the application of PEF in hurdle technology. It covers applications and future aspects of the technology.

Unconventional Starch Sources for Sustainable Bioplastics

Edited by Pinki Saini , Mazia Ahmed

While the development of biopolymers from conventional sources is not novel, this book ventures beyond the traditional boundaries of starch-rich materials, navigating through the alternatives of aquatic plants, fungi, sea weeds, underutilized seeds, and industrial byproducts. It provides insights into the processing techniques, challenges, and the feasibility of adopting these unconventional sources on a larger scale. This book serves as a vital guide for researchers and students, as well as professionals in biopolymers, materials science, environmental science, food science, and related disciplines, contributing meaningfully to the global pursuit of sustainable solutions.

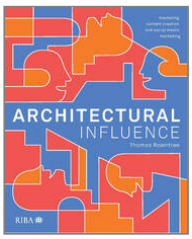
Architectural Influence

Mastering content creation and social media marketing



Thomas Rowntree

Social media has transformed industries worldwide, so why aren't architects leveraging its power to showcase their work? Architectural Influence is the ultimate guide for architects, students and designers who want to grow their brand, expand their reach and attract new opportunities in the digital age. With over 5 billion active social media users, platforms like Instagram and YouTube have become powerful tools for sharing ideas, connecting with clients and building influence. Yet, many architects struggle to make an impact online. This book breaks down the strategies of top designers, influencers and practices who have mastered digital branding.

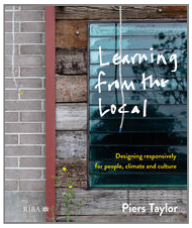
Learning from the Local

Designing responsively for people, climate and culture



Piers Taylor

Architecture struggles with the 'local'. As the move towards globalisation falters, the question of how a building might relate to its place in a meaningful manner has never been more pressing. The sourcing and use of local materials has increasingly become an expectation in contemporary architecture. But what does local mean in this context? Should we use Cotswold stone in the Cotswolds forever – even if this necessitates using imitation stone? In rural areas, must we design traditional barns or farms with pitched roofs regardless of their sustainability?

Small Practice

A practical guide for solo, micro and small practices

Liz King , Marianne Davys

Thinking about starting your own architecture practice? Already running one and looking for better ways to manage projects, people and finances? This essential guide is packed with practical advice, real-world case studies and templates to help you build a thriving small practice. From setting up your business to handling cash flow, streamlining operations and marketing your services, this book breaks down everything you need to know. Covering projects from private residential to retrofit, education and public realm, it offers valuable insights tailored specifically for sole practitioners and micro practices with up to five employees.

Adaptive Thermal Comfort

At the Extremes

Susan Roaf Heriot-Watt University, UK, Fergus Nicol London Metropolitan University, UK, Michael Humphreys Oxford Brookes University, UK

This book is the third in a three-volume set covering all aspects of adaptive thermal comfort. It provides a simple, step by step method for designing comfortable low energy buildings in any climate. Building on the academic principles, practices and fundamental research described in the first two volumes this book is written for building designers, owners, occupants, planners, architectural engineers, self-builders, renovators and educated laymen. It has been written to demystify the art and science of the performance and impacts of buildings and to explain how to, in practice, achieve adaptable, well-behaved and well-liked buildings.

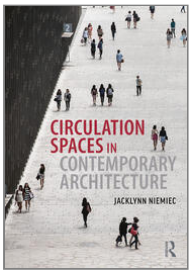
Circulation Spaces in Contemporary Architecture



Jacklynn Niemiec

The winding paths of ants and the intricate stories of city streets reveal how movement is shaped by forces beyond mere efficiency. In architecture, however, circulation is often viewed as a technical requirement—corridors, stairs, and ramps—designed for easy passage. Drawing from architecture, neuroscience, and design theory, Niemiec invites architects, interior designers, students, and readers interested in the built environment to reconsider the spaces in between. Whether you design buildings or simply navigate them, this is an invitation to see circulation spaces as connective, temporal spaces that link people, context, and change.

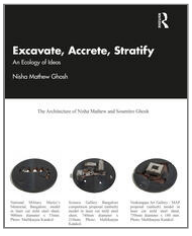
Excavate, Accrete, Stratify

An Ecology of Ideas



Nisha Mathew Ghosh

This book offers one of the first critical, research-oriented biographies of an architectural practice from the global South, documenting over two and a half decades of work in post-liberalization India. Moving beyond the familiar narrative-descriptive mode of architectural biographies, it situates the practice within a broader intellectual world of ideas, unpacking reflections as a case study of the times. Enhanced by 15 original drawing plates, including photographs, drawings, and sketches - the book is indispensable reading for researchers and students. While biographical, it is equally a critical analysis not usually available in books on architects from the global South.

Robotics for Architectural Restoration

Sara Codarin

In the current age of automation, there is a growing opportunity to connect design and manufacturing into a single workflow that harnesses industrial tools such as robots and brings their efficiencies to vulnerable building sites within the conservation of cultural heritage. The first book to comprehensively research the intersection of robotics, digital fabrication, restoration theory, and digital technologies in data collection, this will be of great interest to all students and professionals supporting architectural restoration and conservation, as well as those working in robotics and AI for the architectural and construction industries.

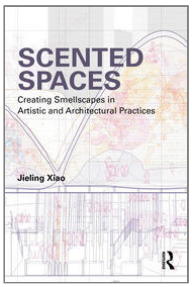
Scented Spaces

Creating Smellscapes in Artistic and Architectural Practices



Jieling Xiao

This book explores the overlooked role of smell in architecture, design, and urban life, positioning olfaction as a powerful medium for shaping place, atmosphere, and experience. Smells are conceptualised as spatial design materials and it shifts the paradigm of smells from the intangible to the tangible with new concepts of "scentability", "scentography" and "scentonics". Case studies from art, architecture, and urban design illustrate practical interventions, from scented materials to landscapes and devices, showing how olfactory design operates across scales and durations.

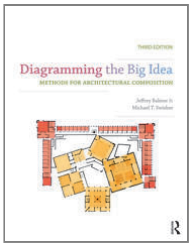
Diagramming the Big Idea

Methods for Architectural Composition



Jeffrey Balmer University of North Carolina at Charlotte, Michael Swisher University of North Carolina at Charlotte

Becoming an architect is a daunting task. Beyond the acquisition of new skills and procedures, beginning designers face an entirely unfamiliar mode of knowledge: design thinking. In Diagramming the Big Idea, Jeffrey Balmer and Michael T. Swisher introduce the fundamentals of design thinking by illustrating how architects make and use diagrams to clarify their understanding of both specific architectural projects and universal principles of form and order. The goal of this book is to make explicit to students what they are learning, why they are learning it and how to internalize such lessons toward their lifelong development as designers.

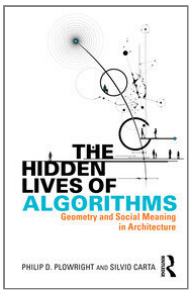
The Hidden Lives of Algorithms

Geometry and Social Meaning in Architecture



Philip D. Plowright , Silvio Carta University of Hertfordshire, UK

As generative and analytic algorithms increasingly automate the design of our built environment, the power of simple geometrical notation to affect social meanings becomes both more powerful and more elusive. This book examines how the geometric outcomes of spatialised algorithmic operations influence more complex human experiences of accessibility, belonging, and identity as well as shape the dynamics of equity, connectivity, privacy, and power in architectural and urban spaces. It challenges designers to look beyond technical implementation, urging a critical awareness of how computational processes can reinforce or reimagine the social fabric of our shared spaces.

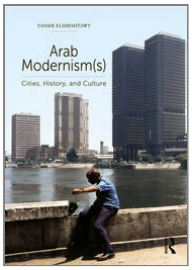
Arab Modernism(s)

Cities, History, and Culture



Yasser Elsheshtawy

Series: Planning, History and Environment Series

Arab Modernism(s) is an exploration of how the Arab world encountered modernism – sometimes inadvertently, sometimes deliberately – and how those encounters continue to shape the built environment of its cities today. Adhering to his late father's belief that 'cities are nothing without people', Yasser Elsheshtawy writes not just about the buildings, but the lives lived in and around them. His narrative weaves together personal anecdotes and works of fiction and film, thus providing a textured backdrop to his central theme: the evolution of modernism in Arab cities.

Housing Standardisation and Design Governance

Sam Jacoby , Alvaro Arancibia

This book examines how housing design governance shapes the quality of homes and the wellbeing of residents, analysing the political, economic, social, historical, and environmental drivers of design. Combining historical, technical, and social perspectives, this interdisciplinary design research study provides a multidimensional understanding of housing quality. It offers practical insights for policymakers, housing providers, and designers, showing how lived experience can inform future standards and policies to create more inclusive, adaptable, and sustainable homes and communities.

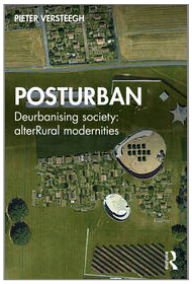
Posturban

Deurbanising Society: alterRural Modernities



Pieter Versteegh

Posturban reveals why the future cannot remain urban. Linking climate breakdown, inequality, and democratic erosion to an urban paradigm rooted in a patriarchal, discriminative divide, it calls for a radical shift towards resilient, decentralised, and ecologically rooted ways of living. Written for engaged citizens, activists, policymakers, and scholars interested in more equitable and sustainable ways to organise society, Posturban is for anyone ready to challenge the future of cities and explore viable, hopeful alternatives.

Advancing Real Property Valuation

AI, Drone and Emerging Digital Technologies in Professional Practice and Education

Edited by Johari Amar Bond University, Lynne Armitage Bond University

Digital technologies are reshaping the way property and asset values are assessed, regulated and trusted. From automated valuations to drone-assisted site inspections, these advances are influencing professional practice and testing the legal, regulatory and institutional frameworks – including those established by IVSC, API and RICS. This book examines how AI, drones and emerging digital tools are being integrated into valuation processes across varied contexts. Its scope extends beyond traditional property valuation to urban markets, public assets, infrastructure and ESG assessments. Drawing on insights from leading academics and industry experts in Australia and internationally.

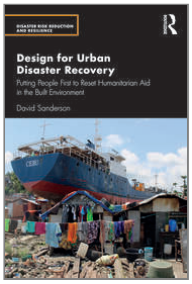
Design for Disaster Recovery

Putting People First to Reset Humanitarian Aid in the Built Environment



David Sanderson

Series: Disaster Risk Reduction and Resilience

At a time of escalating urban disasters and sharply reduced aid budgets, humanitarian aid, long held in need of reform, has no choice but to reset.This book argues that humanitarian aid must accomplish this reset by prioritising people's agency and localising responses. The book ultimately seeks to reinforce that engaging in processes is vital for effective disaster recovery programmes. That means putting first those caught up in disaster and supporting local organisations who are best placed to provide the right support. It will be crucial reading to anyone working in humanitarian aid, especially planners, architects, engineers and community development practitioners.

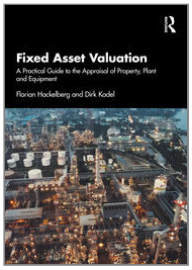
Fixed Asset Valuation

A Practical Guide to the Appraisal of Property, Plant and Equipment



Florian Hackelberg , Dirk Kadel

The valuation of fixed assets is a core discipline at the intersection of finance, accounting, and asset management. As industries face increasingly complex regulatory frameworks and global market dynamics, developing a solid understanding of valuation principles is essential for both academic study and professional practice. This comprehensive book offers a structured, academically rigorous introduction to the appraisal of property, plant and equipment, bridging theoretical depth with real-world application. It is a robust resource for students, researchers, and early-career professionals seeking to build advanced expertise in asset valuation.

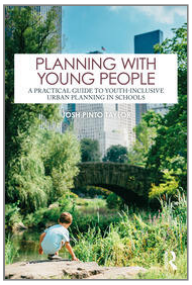
Planning with Young People

A Practical Guide to Youth-Inclusive Urban Planning in Schools



Josh Pinto Taylor

This book presents an alternative vision of how to build cities for young people, challenging readers to imagine cities that truly serve their youngest inhabitants. The first half of the book explores the competing, sometimes conflicting, and often incomplete visions and agendas of the city that have historically failed to include or prioritize young people. The final chapters highlight structures, systems, policy frameworks, and practices that can be employed to plan for and with young people. Written in an accessible style, this book is a valuable interdisciplinary resource for planning students, urban planners, or educators seeking a vision for inclusive planning practices.

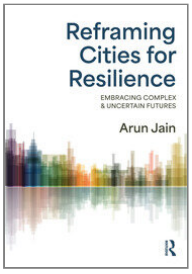
Reframing Cities for Resilience

Embracing Complex & Uncertain Futures



Arun Jain

We live in times of profuse change. This book challenges the traditional realms in which urban design and planning operate and argues that the first step towards adaptive and resilient futures is making a fuller spectrum of the complexity of cities comprehensible to all. Drawing upon cultural anthropology, evolutionary biology, economic theory, behavioral sciences, systems thinking, and technology, it provides fresh foundations for addressing decades of physical and social underinvestment and neglect across a range of urban challenges. This book is essential for urban designers, planners, landscape architects, and postgraduate students.

Rural Development

Assessing Vitality, Vulnerability, and Versatility of Communities with Remote Sensing

Edited by Luc Ampleman , Walter Timo de Vries
Technical University of Munich, Germany

This book aims to foster a dialogue within and across rural communities, practitioners, academics, and decision-makers for interdisciplinary collaborations and informed actions. It offers knowledge about challenges faced by rural communities around the world to assess their vulnerabilities, vitality assets, and versatility or the capacity to react in a time of global threats and discusses the opportunities and the limits of new technologies such as remote sensing, to assess these rural conditions. The case studies and examples included discuss how rural communities cope with emergencies and unexpected changes from outside and how to collaborate for achieving better preparedness.

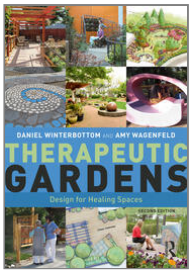
Therapeutic Gardens

Design for Healing Spaces



Daniel Winterbottom , Amy Wagenfeld

This book presents a collaborative approach that successfully translates the principles of therapeutic design into practise using case studies from around the world. This practical guide demonstrates how gardens support learning, movement, well-being, and mental and psychological health. This second edition has been thoroughly updated throughout to include: pandemic and mental health design, trauma responsive design, designing for neurodivergence, and more. Beautifully designed with over 250 color images throughout, it is essential for professionals and students in landscape architecture, planning, design, healthcare and mental health fields.

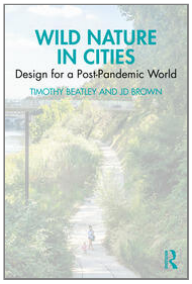
Wild Nature in Cities

Design for a Post-Pandemic World



Timothy Beatley , JD Brown

This book collects the many stories, experiences and innovative policies and strategies by which cities and local governments have helped to facilitate and strengthen essential pandemic-era nature-connections. It makes the central point that contact with nature and the outdoors was (and is) an essential element of a healthy, resilient city. The book provides a view to the longer-term effects of the pandemic on the design of cities and how nature will figure into these trends and likely future changes. The book will be useful to policymakers, urban researchers, and citizens, as well as students and faculty.

Galbraith's Construction and Land Management Law for Students

Edited by Carrie de Silva Harper Adams University, UK

Clearly written and with wide ranging coverage of key legal principles, this textbook highlights the need for students on built environment related courses to access information on how the law relates to their profession, without getting into the heavy detail of the full-scale legal texts. All chapters in this eighth edition have been updated with new case law along with statutory and regulatory changes and provide the background to the English legal system before covering key topics such as contract law, tort, health and safety, land law, planning, landlord and tenant, dispute resolution and employment law.

Gordon Cullen's Townscape in USA

Edited by Carla Molinari , Marco Spada

Along with a series of critical commentaries, this book unveils for the first time Townscape in USA, a previously unpublished manuscript written by Gordon Cullen in the early 1960s. Cullen brings his incisive, visually attuned, and often wry perspective to six American cities—New York, Pittsburgh, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Washington, D.C.—providing splendid, semi-prophetic visions of the cities' destinies, and foreshadowing the inevitable consequences of uncontrolled building development. These visions are supported by a series of sketches and photos taken from Cullen's archives. This book is an essential read for architects, planners, and dreamers alike.

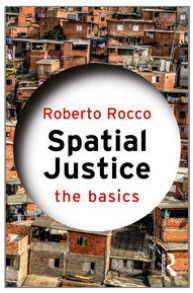
Spatial Justice

The Basics



Roberto Rocco

Series: The Basics

Spatial Justice: The Basics offers an accessible introduction to spatial justice as both a theoretical framework and a practical agenda for urban transformation. It examines how urban space is produced, contested, and governed, and how it is implicated in broader dynamics of inequality, recognition, and participation. The book draws on key thinkers to articulate spatial justice through its distributive, procedural, and recognitional dimensions. Designed for upper-level undergraduates and postgraduates in planning, geography, and architecture, the book includes a glossary of key terms, end-of-chapter summaries, and diagrams to support critical engagement and classroom use.

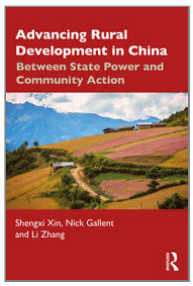
Advancing Rural Development in China

Between State Power and Community Action



Shengxi Xin , Nick Gallent University College London, United Kingdom, Li Zhang

This book is about the practice of rural development in contemporary China. It evolves the concept of 'neo-exogenous development' to explain how the power of the state links to community action via local party structures, in pursuit of both state-building and rural revitalisation. The book presents a critical study of China's approach to rural development for students and researchers in the fields of human geography, rural sociology, planning, agricultural economics, public management, and international development.

Gentrification and the Media

Building and Propagating Discourses on Exclusive Urban Change

Edited by Stéphane Sadoux , Marie-Pierre Vincent , David Fée , Louise Dalingwater

Series: Cities and Cultures

Gentrification is extensively discussed in the media, where coverage can describe changing neighbourhoods and analyse the causes and consequences of such change. Central to this book is the idea that new research should engage with the theoretical and methodological issues that emerge when media products are used as a corpus to study gentrification. This edited volume considers a range of means that are used to shape and publicize representations: contributions investigate printed and online newspapers, websites, blogs, television programmes and social media. It also aims to highlight the diversity of players who produce and disseminate media discourses on gentrification.

Lebanon's Urban Development and Planning

Edited by Christine Mady

Series: Planning, History and Environment Series

After four hundred years of Ottoman rule followed by a little over two decades as part of the French Mandate, Lebanon finally gained independence in 1943. In her translation and editing of the four books by Mohammad Fawaz, Director of Lebanon's Directorate General of Urbanism from 1974 to 1993, Christine Mady provides a unique insight into the development and urban planning of Lebanon and its capital city Beirut from 1943 to the present day.

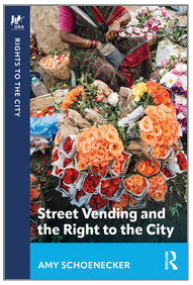
Street Vending and the Right to the City



Amy Schoenecker

Series: Rights to the City

Through a multi-city comparison, this book demonstrates how vendors blur the lines of in/formality through their resistance tactics, and fight for their rights to the city not only as economic agents, but as residents seeking urban belonging. With international examples and an in-depth case study featuring a comparison of Chicago and Mumbai, chapters explore how urban informalities are produced and offer perspectives on roadblocks and pathways to gaining legitimacy. This book is essential for academics and students in urban planning, urban studies, anthropology, sociology, urban design, geography and political science, as well as practitioners and policymakers.

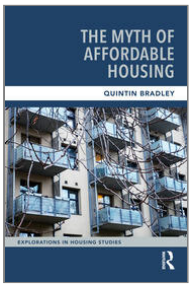
The Myth of Affordable Housing



Quintin Bradley

Series: Explorations in Housing Studies

Affordable housing makes housing unaffordable. The Myth of Affordable Housing is a critique of the abject failure of affordable housing policies to address a global crisis of need. It is an evaluation of affordability as a policy goal, and it investigates the political economy of housing from a Marxist perspective.

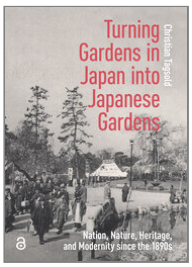
Turning Gardens in Japan into Japanese Gardens

Nation, Nature, Heritage, and Modernity since the 1890s



Christian Tagsold

In the mid 19th century, as Japan rapidly modernized, garden building declined in popularity. Only in the late 19th century did a new class of political and business leaders revive interest in horticulture. As a result, these innovative gardens were largely overlooked by early Japanese garden historians and excluded from the canon they sought to establish. Now recognized as part of Japan's national heritage, these sites are being integrated into the history of Japanese horticulture. Tagsold's book examines this rediscovery, unraveling the complex dynamics of nature, heritage, nationhood, and modernity in Japan through the lens of these gardens.

Chemical Stabilisation of Soft Soils

Fook-Hou Lee National University of Singapore, Singapore

Chemical treatment is often used in ground engineering for the rapid stabilization of soft soil. Although different chemicals can be used, there are significant commonalities in their underlying principles and reactions. This book provides a holistic perspective on chemical stabilization, covering its history, chemistry, factors affecting quality in the mixing processes, the properties and constitutive behaviour of improved soils, quality control, and design and construction. Uniquely this book explains the interrelations between these parameters and gives guidance to engineers on design and execution and on finding a balance.

ICOLD Incident database Bulletin 99 update / Base de données des incidents de la CIGB Mise à jour du Bulletin 99

Statistical analysis of dam failures / Analyse statistique des ruptures de barrages

ICOLD / CIGB

Series: ICOLD Bulletins Series

Since 2005 the Committee on Dam Safety has been collecting additional information on dam incidents and considered that it was time to update this last publication (Bulletin 99) which listed the cases of failures up to 1991. It was therefore up to ICOLD, and to its Committee on Dam Safety, to carry out this survey and analysis with the objective of meeting the needs of the dam professionals. For this update other important attributes have been added, such as the context of failures (normal operation, flood, earthquakes, etc.), the failure mode, and the failure causes. Current concepts allow us to better define these notions and have been used to qualify these parameters.

Slope Monitoring for Early Warning of Rapid Landslides

Mitigating Rainfall-induced Disasters

Ikuo Towhata Department of Civil Engineering, University of Tokyo, Japan, Lin Wang Chuo-Kaihatsu Inc, Takemine Yamada Kajima Technical Research Institute, Yoshikazu Miyamoto

Towhata and coauthors draw on their decades of research and innovation to describe an inexpensive and easy to interpret early warning system for rainfall-induced landslides. This system will enable readers to identify slope collapses before they happen and act to prevent economic and human losses. This book is an indispensable guide for practitioners in both public and private sectors who are responsible for the implementation of slope monitoring and landslide early warning systems. Postgraduate students who specialize in the mitigation of natural disasters and effects of global climate change will also benefit from the discussions of available technologies and case studies.

Progress and Innovations from 1985 to 2020 / Progrès et innovations de 1985 à 2020

Series: ICOLD Bulletins Series

The purpose of this bulletin is to provide the dam engineering community with information on the technical characteristics of the various types of spillways that have been developed and implemented over the past four decades, as well as the hydraulic characteristics associated with these structures. In each chapter, the topics covered focus on the major issues related to the specific problems and structures considered, with the goal of providing information to the designer and owner to assist in the choices to be made during project development.

Transportation Geotechnics for Green, Digital, and Modern Infrastructures

Edited by António Gomes Correia , Alexandre Pinto , José Neves , Eduardo Fortunato

This book looks into the future of transport infrastructures through green transition, digital transformation, and modern transport infrastructure, and is divided into three parts. The first part provides an overview of green transition in transport infrastructures, the second part describes intelligent and digital transformation aspects in geotechnical engineering, and the third part presents transport infrastructure case studies. The book serves as a reference tool for academics and engineers in the fields involved or interested in the design, construction, and maintenance of transportation geotechnical infrastructures.

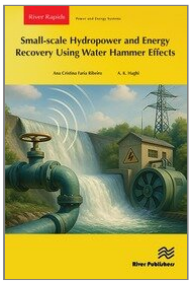
Small-scale Hydropower and Energy Recovery Using Water Hammer Effect



Ana Cristina Faria Ribeiro , A. K. Haghi

Series: River Publishers Series in Power and Energy Systems

This is an overview of the principles and practical applications of small-scale hydropower and energy recovery using water hammer effects. It offers new insights for engineers, technicians, and students alike, bridging the gap between theory and practice. The book shows that the excessive working pressure of water transmission lines has led to an increase in water accidents and water loss and how this excessive pressure of water can be converted to electrical power.

Fundamentals of Construction Project Delivery Systems

Yong-Woo Kim University of Washington, USA

Fundamentals of Construction Project Delivery Systems advocates for a transformative approach that places emphasis on integrated methodologies such as design-build and integrated project delivery. In addition, the book embraces new approaches in the industry: framework, program-based procurement, and positioning project delivery system as a design endeavour to define an organizational structure. This book offers guidance on how owners can effectively leverage integrated approaches to enhance project outcomes. For educational purposes, the book offers guidance for undergraduate and graduate students in project delivery method courses within construction management programs.

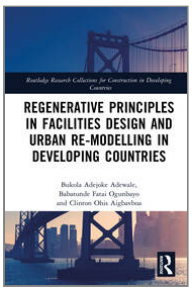
Regenerative Principles in Facilities Design and Urban Re-modelling in Developing Countries



Bukola Adejoke Adewale , Babatunde Fatai Ogunbayo , Clinton Aigbavboa University of Johannesburg, South Africa

Series: Routledge Research Collections for Construction in Developing Countries

In the face of rapid urbanization and environmental challenges, the developing world stands at a crossroads. Conventional sustainable design, often modelled on Global North precedents, is proving insufficient to address the deep-seated infrastructural and socio-economic complexities of these unique contexts. This book argues for a radical shift from simply minimizing harm to actively healing and restoring our communities and ecosystems through regenerative architecture. Moving beyond theory, this work provides a critical and practical roadmap for applying regenerative principles specifically in the challenging environments of developing nations.

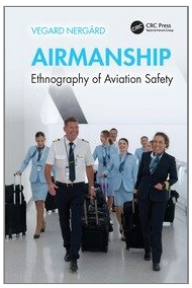
Ethnography of Aviation Safety



Vegard Nergård UIT The Arctic University of Norway, Tromsø, Norway

This book takes readers beyond the technical capabilities of aviation to explore the human experience of flight. This book examines the culture, mindset, and teamwork that define airmanship, offering a glimpse into the lives of pilots, flight attendants, and crew members who navigate the skies. Through years of immersive fieldwork, the author captures the human essence of what it means to fly though looking at it not just as a mechanical act, but as an endeavor shaped by judgment, communication, and trust. This title offers a compelling exploration of the people, practices, and philosophies that make aviation possible.

Betrayal and Moral Injury in the Workplace

Challenging Organizational System Failures

Mark Layson

People go to work hoping for a reliable environment and trustworthy leadership who will provide what is needed for them to work well. This hope is true for any worker, especially those whose work entails exposure to physical or psychological hazards in the service of their community. High rates of "burnout" and psychological distress are becoming increasingly common across all professions. This book explores the impact of harmful leadership practices and workplace cultures on staff while publicly projecting an image of high ethical standing. It investigates those at the frontline of work whose expectations of organizational safety and fairness have not only been breached but betrayed.

Edited by Dimitrios Ziakkas , Konstantinos Pechlivanis , Anastasios Plioutsias

The aviation industry has evolved into a complex global network where diverse cultural backgrounds interact with flight operations, training, and safety management. Cultural Intelligence in Aviation: Bridging Social Attitudes, Culture, and Safety in a Global Environment examines the vital role of cultural intelligence (CQ) in creating safer, more effective aviation operations. This book addresses the challenges and opportunities that arise when multinational crews, cross-border regulations, and varied workplace cultures come together in aviation environments.

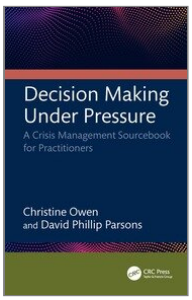
Decision Making Under Pressure

A Crisis Management Sourcebook for Practitioners



Christine Owen , David Phillip Parsons New South Wales Department of Industry, Australia

In today's world, the need for effective crisis management extends far beyond traditional emergency response personnel. With an increasing number of people facing high-stakes decisions under pressure, the demand for agile and resilient problem-solvers is higher than ever. The aging demographic in emergency services and the high turnover due to burnout make the challenge difficult to build expertise through experience alone. This book addresses these issues, providing a knowledge base to help individuals and teams operate effectively in volatile, uncertain, complex, and ambiguous environments.

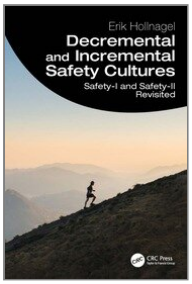
Decremental and Incremental Safety Cultures

Safety-I and Safety-II Revisited



Erik Hollnagel

Safety is a concept as complex as it is crucial. In this new book, Erik Hollnagel reimagines how we approach, understand, and manage safety in modern contexts. It challenges traditional perspectives while weaving together historical insights, cultural analysis, and practical guidance to offer a richer understanding of what it means to work and live safely. Decremental and Incremental Safety Cultures: Safety-I and Safety-II Revisited goes beyond identifying and analyzing safety issues to offer practicable strategies that balance protection and productivity.

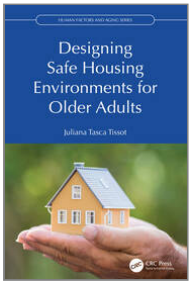
Designing Safe Housing Environments for Older Adults



Juliana Tasca Tissot

Series: Human Factors and Aging Series

This book addresses the key issues to consider when focusing on the design for safe and comfortable living for older adults. This book presents design strategies for housing environments for older adults, based on concepts of aging in place, human factors, and safety. It covers topics such as activities of daily living, independence, autonomy, and dependence, risk factors for falls, types of environmental adaptations and safe housing. Design solutions are offered and each housing space reveals explanations and ideas for improving activities for residents.

Ergonomics 5.0

Improving Efficiency, Productivity and Contentment in the Workplace

Edited by Eduardo Ferro dos Santos , Marcelo M. Soares Federal Univ. of Pernambuco, Brazil

In the ever-evolving digital age, technology continues to transform our working methods. These concepts emphasize the central role of humans in every process. Ergonomics 5.0 is developing into a fundamental approach within this new era and ensures that interactions between humans and technology are efficient, effective, healthy, safe and sustainable. This book introduces the transformative potential of Ergonomics 5.0 and how it will be essential for linking humans and technology.

Human-Systems Integration in the Design of Complex Transport Systems

Edited by Victoria Valentinova

This book is intended to provide novel insights into the discipline of Human Systems Integration (HSI) and its application to the design of complex systems (including the notion of socio-technical systems) within the transport industry. Covering diverse domains such as aviation, air traffic management, rail infrastructure and engineering, unmanned road and aerial vehicles amongst others, this title draws on contributions from a diverse group of Human Factors and Engineering professionals with industry experience, and additional contributions from subject-matter experts in the different domains.

Transitioning to Autonomy

The Psychology of Human Supervisory Control

Ronald McLeod

Transitioning to Autonomy: The Psychology of Human Supervisory Control focuses on the transition period when automation is being introduced, and the human needs to learn and develop the competence to perform their now role effectively. The first Part extracts general lessons from the author's experience taking ownership of a new car which, under certain circumstances, was capable of driving autonomously. Part 2 explores the psychology behind the lessons extracted in Part 1 and proposes a comprehensive model of human supervisory control.

Trust, Safety, and the Internet We Share

Multistakeholder Insights

Edited by Maia Levy Daniel , Amanda Menking , Marlyn Savio , Jean Claffey

The book is both an informative and provocative overview of online trust and safety that will influence how the trust and safety space is being shaped and how trust and safety decisions are being made. The book covers key aspects of the field and focuses on underrepresented voices. It explains how valuable organizations in the field came together and what lessons they can offer. The future of the internet needs meaningful conversations among stakeholders. The book brings together the voices of these stakeholders so they can begin working together and learning from each other to create safer, more inclusive online spaces.

Artificial Intelligence and Large Language Models

A Scientific Perspective

Edited by Abbas Moallem , Helmut Degen , Stavroula Ntoa

Series: The Human Element in Smart and Intelligent Systems

With the latest developments in generative artificial intelligence (AI) and large language model (LLM) applications, like ChatGPT and Gemini, millions of people have started using them in their personal and professional lives. Interest in them continues to grow and they are becoming the go-to applications for students, academics, engineers, lawyers, designers, writers, media experts, programmers, politicians, artists, and citizens across the globe. However, understanding these applications can be challenging with little advice out there. This book cuts through the jargon to explain the 'what', 'why' and 'how' of generative AI and LLM applications.

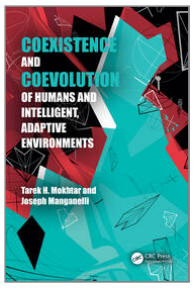
Coexistence and Coevolution of Humans and Intelligent, Adaptive Environments



Tarek Mokhtar , Joseph Manganelli

Humankind is now in an age wherein generations of humans have never lived without ubiquitous computing and the internet. This 'AI / IoT generation' is creative, innovative and adaptable; however; the relentlessness, complexity, and volume of technological, biotechnological, healthcare, social, cultural, and emotional changes and stressors cause humans many personal, social, and environmental traumas. This book presents a vision for designing and managing the complexity and multidimensionality of the world's emerging technological and AI/robotics-enabled environments that is grounded in current methods for designing human-centred, complex, interactive systems.

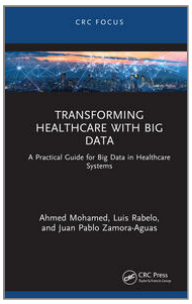
A Practical Guide for Big Data in Healthcare Systems



Ahmed Mohamed Director, IT Solutions Eng., Orlando Health, Luis Rabelo Prof., IEMS,UCF, Orlando, USA, Juan Pablo Zamora-Aguas Prof., IEMS, UCF, Orlando, USA

Healthcare organizations are utilizing big data for improved data analytics and performance measurements. This book provides a comprehensive framework integrating 41 components, emphasizing data completeness for better healthcare outcomes. It provides guidelines for selecting appropriate technology and implementing solutions. Healthcare executives, administrators, IT professionals, data scientists, analysts, clinical and operations managers, consultants, researchers, academics, policymakers, and graduate students can benefit from this book by gaining a comprehensive and practical framework for effectively implementing big data analytics in healthcare.

Translating Resilience into Healthcare Practice

Multilevel Theories and Perspectives

Edited by Siri Wiig , Hilda Bø Lyng , Veslemøy Guise , Cecilie Haraldseid-Driftland , Lene Schibevaag University of Stavanger

Resilience in healthcare is more relevant than ever. Global health crises, increasing service complexity, resource constraints, shortages of qualified professionals, and rapid technological development all demand continuous adaptation from stakeholders at every level of the healthcare system. Amid these challenges, ensuring high-quality care requires a deeper understanding of how systems, teams, and individuals respond and adapt. This book explores resilience as a multi-level phenomenon and positions adaptive capacity as the cornerstone of care quality.

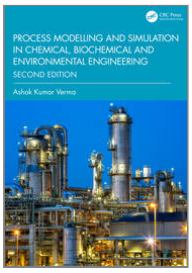
Process Modelling and Simulation in Chemical, Biochemical and Environmental Engineering



Ashok Kumar Verma

This book explores effective modeling and simulation approaches for solving equations. This book explains the simplification of a complicated process at various levels with the help of a "model sketch." The second edition covers modeling of multi-stage processes, multi-stage, multi-phase systems with thermodynamic processes including reactive distillation. Further, process intensification is added with modeling of electrochemical processes. A chapter batch processes in filtration, adsorption and batch reactors are included backed by case studies. This book is aimed at senior undergraduate and graduate students in chemical, biochemical and environmental engineering.

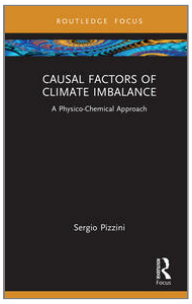
A Physico-Chemical Approach



Sergio Pizzini University of Milano-Bicocca, Department of Materials Science, Italy

This book examines the underlying physical and chemical mechanisms driving climate imbalance through a rigorous quantitative analysis. It provides a framework for understanding how anthropic stresses affect Earth's climate by analyzing the interactions between solar radiation, atmospheric composition, and Earth's surface properties. It analyses ozone thermodynamics, carbon cycles, and water systems to quantify their impact on global temperature regulation while exploring solar forcing mechanisms and Earth's climate response. It is aimed at researchers, academics, and graduate students in atmospheric science, physical chemistry, and environmental science.

Andreas Mateou , Sofia Mateou

Flying in the Face of Criminalization examines the critical intersection between aviation safety investigations and criminal proceedings. This comprehensive analysis reveals how the legal system's punitive approach often conflicts with aviation's core objective of learning from mistakes to enhance safety. The new edition expands coverage through 2025, documenting the increase in litigation against aviation professionals and organizations following accidents and serious incidents. A diverse audience will benefit from this book, including legal professionals, aviation consultants, pilots, air traffic controllers, safety officers, airline managers, and accident investigators.

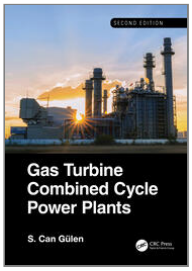
2ND EDITION

Gas Turbine Combined Cycle Power Plants



S. Can Gülen Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, United States

This book discusses the solution of daily problems encountered in the design, development, optimization, operation, and maintenance of gas and steam turbine combined cycle power plants. This new edition features new and expanded sections on integrated gasification combined cycle and carbon capture as well as new chapters on recent developments and the role of gas turbines in decarbonization, with a special focus on hydrogen. The book is intended for OEMs, consulting engineers, and plant operators involved with the design of power plants and large-scale factories. It will also benefit research and development studies in both academia and government/industry laboratories.

Managing Biogas Plants

A Practical Guide

Mario Alejandro Rosato Sustainable Technologies SL, Barcelona, Spain

Series: Green Chemistry and Chemical Engineering

Driven by the increasing focus on sustainable energy production and recent advancements in anaerobic digestion technology, the Second Edition of Managing Biogas Plants: A Practical Guide, provides insights into optimizing biogas plant operations. This updated edition explores the latest developments in biochemical methane potential (BMP) testing, automatic measurement systems, and biological process management for industrial biogas plants. Drawing from extensive field experience, the book bridges theoretical concepts with hands-on applications. This book is aimed at biogas plant managers, researchers, and industry professionals.

Guidance and Control of Unmanned Vehicles

Rafael Yanushevsky Research & Technology Consulting, Bethesda, Maryland, USA

Guidance and Control of Unmanned Vehicles demonstrates how the developed guidance laws for UAVs can be applied to a wide class of unmanned vehicles, including aerial, ground, water, and underwater vehicles. This new edition formulates an expanded guidance problem that can be applied to all unmanned vehicles. It includes a new chapter on the role of unmanned vehicle operators. Aerospace industry researchers and practicing engineers working on the performance of various unmanned vehicles will benefit from the new research in this book. It can also serve as a basis for several graduate courses in the fields of mechanical, aerospace, electrical, and computer engineering.

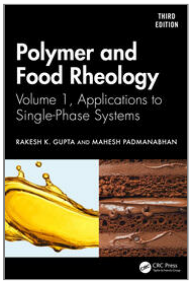
Polymer and Food Rheology

Volume 1, Applications to Single-Phase Systems



Rakesh K. Gupta , Mahesh Padmanabhan

Emphasizing physics rather than mathematics, Polymer and Food Rheology: Applications to Single-Phase Systems focuses on rheological characteristics and properties of single substances and homogeneous mixtures. It introduces fundamental principles, types of flows, types of instruments, their theory, capabilities, limitations, and sources of error. Both sophisticated rheometers and simple devices and their uses are considered. This text is aimed at researchers and industrial practitioners in materials and chemical engineering as well as chemistry.

Prediction and Control of Dynamical Instabilities in Engineering Systems

Paul A. Meehan School of Mechanical & Mining Engineering, The University of Queensland

In this practical guide that discusses both theoretical and real-world results, Paul Meehan draws on his extensive experience to provide a vital compilation of the methods and applications for predicting and controlling instabilities in engineering systems in a digestible and implementable form. This book is an invaluable reference for academic researchers and industry figures in a variety of fields, particularly because it highlights the commonalities and generalization in approaches towards the prediction and control of instabilities.

A Course in Real Analysis

Hugo D. Junghenn The George Washington University, Washington, D.C., USA

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

Now in its second edition, this book provides a rigorous treatment of the foundations of differential and integral calculus. It proceeds gradually from an axiomatic characterization of the real number system to the study of differentiation and integration on m-dimensional surfaces. Many proofs and explanations in the first edition have been revised, and details have been added to clarify the exposition. Part III contains appendices on set theory and linear algebra as well as solutions to some of the exercises are offered, whilst a full solutions manual contains complete solutions to all exercises for qualifying instructors.

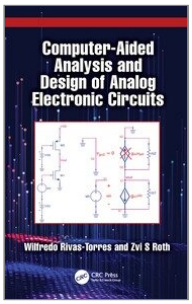
Computer-Aided Analysis and Design of Analog Electronic Circuits



Wilfredo Rivas-Torres , Zvi S Roth

This book guides engineering students and industry practitioners through simulation-based analog circuit design, from fundamental op-amp and diode applications to multi-transistor-multi-stage amplifier circuits. A basic design, that integrates simulations, may start with manual calculations that utilize simplified formulas and assumed parameters. It is followed by a simulation that allows the designer to contrast the approximations with an exact solution. It then ends with circuit tweaking and precise parameter tuning. In more advanced designs, simulations play a more central role in the design process itself.

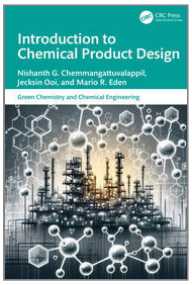
Introduction to Chemical Product Design



Nishanth G. Chemmangattuvalappil , Jecksin Ooi , Mario R. Eden

Series: Green Chemistry and Chemical Engineering

Chemical engineering has traditionally focused on the design of chemical processes to produce commodity chemicals, but there has been increased attention on the engineering of high-performance chemical products. This book provides an overview of chemical product design, explains the role of chemical engineers in chemical product design, and covers stepwise approaches used to design different types of chemical products. The text provides undergraduate and graduate chemical engineering students with practical know-how to apply chemical product design principles. It will also be of interest to chemical engineers seeking to expand their knowledge of chemical product design.

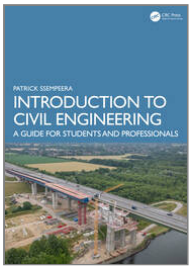
Introduction to Civil Engineering

A Guide for Students and Professionals



Patrick Ssempeera CRB Network, Uganda

This comprehensive new textbook bridges the gap between academic knowledge and professional practice in civil engineering, connecting traditionally separate course units into a cohesive whole that teaches readers to "think like a civil engineer". Written primarily for civil engineering students transitioning to industry and early-career professionals seeking to master the profession, this guide also serves as a valuable resource for educators teaching civil engineering courses and experienced professionals requiring a refresher on fundamental principles that unite the various branches of this constantly evolving field.

Introduction to Renewable Energy Conversions

Sergio Capareda Texas A&M University, College Station, USA

Introduction to Renewable Energy Conversions examines all the major renewable energy conversion technologies and provides step-by-step procedures for readers to formulate renewable energy resource assessments and design appropriate renewable energy systems and strategies. The new edition features extended discussions on circular economy with newer concepts such as carbon capture and sequestrations (CCS), carbon footprint (CF), and carbon intensity (CI) of fuels. Upper-level undergraduate engineering and science students taking courses in Renewable Energy, Energy Systems, Energy Conversion, and Sustainability will find this book a valuable resource.

Structural Mechanics

Amine A. Benzerga Texas A&M University, USA

Structural Mechanics provides an in-depth coverage of mechanics of structures with an approach that departs from the conventional strength of materials approach. It proceeds from the theory of elasticity to analyze the three-dimensional response to mechanical loads with a focus on slender structural elements: bars or beams, and assemblages thereof, known as trusses, frames, or ossatures. The book is intended for upper-level undergraduate mechanical, aerospace, and civil engineering students taking courses in Structural Mechanics, Structural Analysis, and Mechanics of Aerospace Structures.

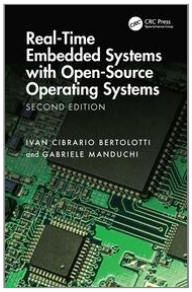
Real-Time Embedded Systems with Open-Source Operating Systems



Ivan Cibrario Bertolotti National Research Council of Italy, Gabriele Manduchi National Research Council of Italy

This book aims to provide readers with hands-on knowledge about real-time operating systems and their possible application in the embedded systems domain to streamline, simplify, and make software development more efficient, without requiring any significant previous experience with them. A thorough presentation of operating system-based programming techniques is especially important because they enjoy an ever-increasing popularity in the embedded systems domain but are often misunderstood, because they still lack comprehensive support in the scientific and technical literature.

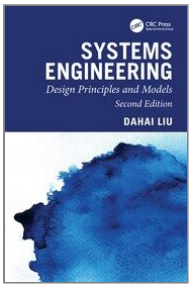
Systems Engineering

Design Principles and Models, Second Edition



Dahai Liu

This textbook continues to fill the need for a systems engineering design textbook for students from a large variety of backgrounds. This new edition continues to give students exposure to systems and systems engineering concepts and offers just enough technical expertise to use and apply what they've learned. Specifically written for undergraduate, first-year graduate students, and those with little or no engineering background. This textbook is great for those who will get involved in systems engineering and design and need to work with engineers in various fields. This book can also be used as an introduction to systems engineering for professionals.

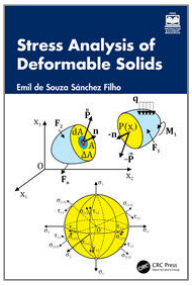
Stress Analysis of Deformable Solids



Emil de Souza Sánchez Filho

This comprehensive textbook presents fundamental concepts and detailed analysis of stress analysis in homogeneous and isotropic solids using a tensor approach. The text uniquely formulates mathematical approaches in terms of stress tensor invariants and its component tensors: hydrostatic tensor and deviator tensor. All expressions are derived in the form of Cartesian tensors, with detailed step-by-step deductions and complete demonstrations, ensuring no steps are omitted in obtaining or proving results. The book targets postgraduate as well as advanced undergraduate students in Civil, Mechanical, and Materials Engineering programs.

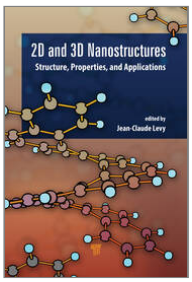
2D and 3D Nanostructures

Structures, Properties, and Applications



Jean-Claude Serge Levy

This book is devoted to the study of a few typical nanostructures and arrays of nanostructures that are expected to find many applications, such as metamaterials. Beginning with a brief discussion on a general historical perspective of this new emergent field, new methods to deal with it, such as the available numerical methods, the principle of biomimetic applications, and the powerful field of artificial intelligence, the book covers a variety of topics, including semiconductors, magnetic materials of different components, of different structures, and of different arrangements, and new chemical compounds.

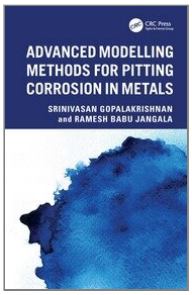
Advanced Modelling Methods for Pitting Corrosion in Metals



Srinivasan Gopalakrishnan Department of Aerospace Engineering, India Institute of Science, Bangalore, India, Ramesh Babu Jangala

Pitting corrosion poses a significant threat to infrastructure in engineering and there is a lack of comprehensive modelling methodologies to assess the effectiveness of corrosion mitigation strategies specifically designed for various structural systems. This book addresses the need for comprehensive, advanced models that integrate the various stages and factors involved in the process. It covers corrosion fatigue mechanisms and the influence of stress and temperature, and ways to mitigate corrosion induced damage in structural components.

Analysis of Rotor Systems, Second Edition, Volume 1

Rajiv Tiwari Department of Mechanical Engineering, Indian Institute of Technology, Guwahati, India

First volume of second edition of Rotor Systems book covers the analysis of simple rotors including rotor dynamic phenomena, gyroscopic effects and instabilities with the help of simple rotor-bearing models. It is biased towards the FEM analysis of complex rotors, both for torsional and transverse vibrations including transfer matrix method. Instabilities of the rotor system is covered for simple as well as complex rotor system considering bearings, seals, internal damping, unsymmetrical shaft stiffness and unsymmetrical rotor inertia. This book is aimed at senior undergraduate/graduate students in mechanical engineering, rotordynamics, and rotating machinery/turbomachinery.

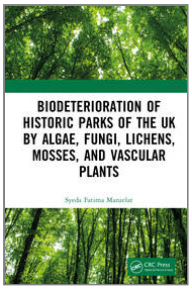
Biodeterioration of Historic Parks of the UK by Algae, Fungi, Lichens, Mosses, and Vascular Plants



Syeda Fatima Manzelat

This book explores how a range of organisms contribute to the decay of historic landscapes. Through detailed fieldwork and laboratory analysis, the book examines how these biological agents interact with stone, wood, and other park features, influencing chemical reactions, physical wear, and structural weakening. The book combines rigorous science with practical conservation insights, offering strategies to protect and preserve these culturally and ecologically significant sites. It is an essential resource for conservationists, heritage managers, botanists, and ecologists seeking a comprehensive understanding of the forces that threaten historic parks.

Biofuels

Analytical Insights and Perspectives

Edited by Ravi Kant Bhatia , Meenu Hans

As winter approaches, discover this essential guide to sustainable fuel alternatives. "Biofuels: Analytical Insights and Perspectives" explores bioethanol, biogas, biohydrogen, biobutanol, and microbial fuel cells—from basic concepts to commercial applications. Covering production methods, analytical techniques, and environmental impacts, this timely resource helps researchers, industry professionals, and policymakers navigate seasonal energy challenges while illuminating the path toward a greener future through cutting-edge biofuel technologies.

Biomass Processing Technologies for Sustainable Energy and Material Production

Edited by V. Sivasubramanian NIT Calicut, Kerala, India, M. Yogesh Kumar

This book summarizes the state-of-the-art approaches and novel technologies developed for sustainable production of energy, structural and functional materials. Each chapter includes a detailed review of current aspects pertaining to the energy and material system supported by sustainability assessment tools. It covers sustainable utilization of biomass for energy in form of green hydrogen, bio-oil, biodiesel, algal fuel, biogas, bioethanol and electrochemical conversion using microbial fuel cell and materials in form of bio adsorbents and so forth. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in chemical engineering, bioenergy, bioprocessing, and green technology.

Biomedical Theragnostics Nanoplatforms

Edited by Sayan Ganguly , Raju Khan , Poushali Das

This book aims to provide a thorough resource in Biomedical Theragnostics Nanoplatforms with coverage from the basics of nanotechnology to the nuances of designing and manufacturing nanoplatforms to their many uses in biomedicine. It covers specific applications of these nanosystems in areas including personalized medicine, real-time disease monitoring, and tailored drug delivery including the pertinent regulatory and ethical concerns. It is a guide to the intriguing junction of nanotechnology and medicine by providing insights, case examples, and a forward-looking viewpoint. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in bioengineering, nanotechnology, and biomedicine.

Edited by Reenu Elizabeth John , Steffy Sara Varghese , Anoop Chandran , N. V. Unnikrishnan

Series: Series in Materials Science and Engineering

This book offers a comprehensive evaluation of recent advancements in materials and technologies utilised for electromagnetic interference (EMI) shielding. In addition to discussing the synthesis and characterization of different EMI shielding materials, it examines the current progress, constraints and resolutions in EMI shielding strategies across various sectors including space, defence, electronics and medical. It is aimed at scientists and researchers working on satellite development, electronic warfare systems, future automobile systems, medical device production and electronic devices. Engineers and postgraduate students would benefit from the incorporation of theory.

Entropy and Sustainability

Challenges of Future Energy and Material Management from a Thermodynamic Point of View

Michael Köhler

This book introduces the physical basics and the historical scientific background of the concept of entropy and explains the importance of entropy for living beings, machines, computers industrial facilities, ecological systems, and the earth as whole. It discusses the necessity of the production of entropy, on the one hand, and the required strategies for entropy export, on the other. The mechanisms of entropy production and export are discussed in order to make clear that entropy not only is a special physical parameter but also plays a role everywhere in daily life.

Evolution of Low-Dimensional Biosensors in Food Safety, Agriculture, and Healthcare

Edited by Tanmoy Das , Tanima Bhattacharya

This book provides the principles of nanomaterial-based biosensors, including methods of transduction, molecular recognition, and amplification, fabrication techniques, development of point-of-care devices for environmental, food, and medical diagnostics. It also examines future trends, difficulties, and prospects for disposable sensing devices. It focuses on sensors and sensing networks for strain, pressure, surface bio-potential, and directions. It underlines selection of low-dimensional carbon materials, matrix and substrate materials, their interactions, and structural designs. It is aimed at researchers and graduate students in materials science, nanotechnology, and biosensors.

Fundamentals of Fatigue Fracture

Collective Works in the Memory of Prof. Mohan Ranganathan

Edited by Yves Nadot

This book is written in the memory of late Prof. Mohan Narayanaswami Ranganathan (University of Tours, France), whose contributions to the fields of materials science, engineering, and fatigue have inspired generations of researchers. He had unrelenting intellectual curiosity that made him a truly gifted researcher. However, it was his interaction with colleagues and students where he left his profound mark. He had a unique way of looking at things and drawing in knowledge from different areas to provide a very different perspective. His optimistic view was particularly valuable when a given path seemed unnavigable—he always managed to find a path with his charm and charisma.

Green Electronic and RF Technologies for Communications, IoT, and Medical Systems

Albert Sabban

Discover how green electronics are revolutionizing renewable energy harvesting for medical devices and communication systems. This timely book explores sustainable computing technologies and proper lifecycle management—from implementation to recycling. Section one examines green electronic innovations for energy harvesting, while section two delves into RF technologies for medical applications. The final section addresses responsible disposal and recycling practices. Perfect for electrical and biomedical engineers seeking to develop environmentally friendly systems that meet today's growing demand for sustainable medical and communication technologies while reducing electronic waste.

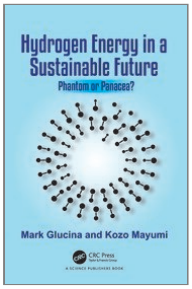
Hydrogen Energy in a Sustainable Future

Phantom or Panacea?



Mark Glucina , Kozo Mayumi

Hydrogen — the first element, clean burning and packed with energy — has been hailed as the fuel of the future for generations. Today it is cast as a linchpin of decarbonisation and backed by billions in subsidies. But is hydrogen really the net-zero breakthrough we've been waiting for, or a costly distraction? This book cuts through the hype, unpacking the science, economics, and politics of the hydrogen economy with clarity and precision. Drawing on decades of energy research, it shows where hydrogen might truly deliver — and where it won't. A sharp, timely guide to the new hydrogen gold rush.

Cold Start Solutions

Vamsi Krishna Kudapa Dept. of Chemical Engineering, UPES, India, Surajit Mondal Univ of Petroleum & Energy Stud, India, S. Siddharth

This book focusses on deployment of hydrogen fuel cell technologies to ensure efficient and reliable performance during cold start conditions. It encompasses introduction to hydrogen energy systems and unique issues associated with cold starts in fuel cells. It examines catalytic heaters, electrolyte-heating circuits, pre-heating of reactant gases, electric resistance heating, self-heating through load cycling, and hydrogen burners. Each chapter delves into the principles, design, and performance highlighting advantages, limitations, and applications. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in chemical engineering, hydrogen fuel processing, and energy integration.

2ND EDITION

Identification and Control in Rotor Systems, Second Edition

Second volume of Rotor systems deals with identification in rotor systems. It covers the unbalanced identification and bearing dynamic parameter identification algorithms, sensors and exciters used in rotor system and related signal conditioning equipment. The error analysis is discussed in length to understand associated measurement error. Expands on the control of rotor system including analysis of simple and multi-DOF rotor system to include experimentation on the flexible balancing of rotors. This book is aimed at senior undergraduate/graduate students in mechanical engineering, rotordynamics, rotating machinery/turbomachinery, and related fields.

Intelligent Systems

Emerging Trends and Challenges in Deep Neuro-Fuzzy Models and Explainable Artificial Intelligence

Edited by Siddhartha Roy , Soumya Sen , Agostino Cortesi

Series: Intelligent Data-Driven Systems and Artificial Intelligence

This book equips readers with a comprehensive grasp of computational intelligence, covering its various sub-disciplines, fundamental concepts, and real-world applications. It covers important topics such as evolutionary computing, hybrid computational intelligence, intelligent control systems, convolutional neural networks, and applications of neural networks. It is primarily written for senior undergraduates, graduate students, and academic researchers in diverse fields including electrical engineering, electronics and communication engineering, computer science and engineering, and information technology.

Lignocellulosic Composites

Processing, Properties, and Applications

Edited by R. Arun Ramnath , Vinod Ayyappan , Sanjay Mavinkere Rangappa University of Technology, Thailand, Suchart Siengchin University of Technology, Thailand

This book provides a systematic and comprehensive overview of advances in properties, performance, and processing of lignocellulose fibre-reinforced composites. With its application-oriented approach, this text explores the current state of the art, trends, future directions, and opportunities. The book will be of interest to researchers, scientists, and engineers working with renewable resources in the field of materials science.

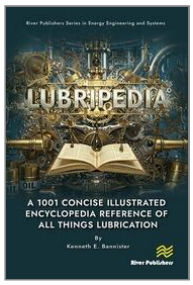
Lubripedia

A 1001 Concise Illustrated Encyclopedia Reference of all Things Lubrication



Kenneth E. Bannister

Series: River Publishers Series in Energy Engineering and Systems

Your journey to lubrication mastery begins here. Welcome to Lubripedia, the most comprehensive, authoritative, and practical single-source reference on industrial lubrication ever published. With hundreds of carefully organized, easy-to-understand entries, this A-to-Z encyclopedia covers every aspect of lubrication from additives and base oils to wear mechanisms and zero-wear lubrication. Whether you are an engineer, maintenance manager, technician, or student, this is your go-to resource for mastering the science and art of practical lubrication.

Memristors: From Materials to Devices

Memristor Models, Mechanisms, Fabrication Methods, and Applications

Alex James

Series: River Publishers Rapids Series on Intelligence in Chips

This book is a straightforward guide for researchers, engineers, and technology enthusiasts interested in memristors. It covers the fundamentals of memristors, including what they are and how they work, and explores different materials used in them, like binary oxides, perovskites, and new materials like transition metal dichalcogenides (TMDCs). It also explains how memristors are made using methods like physical vapor deposition (PVD) and electrochemical deposition.

Microfluidic Technologies for Cell Analysis and Beyond

Edited by Zongjie (Daniel) Wang

Microfluidic Technologies for Cell Analysis and Beyond blooms with fresh insights into cellular manipulation. This seasonal must-read introduces fundamental microfluidic principles for controlling biochemical and biophysical cell properties—from single-cell proteomics to population-level analysis. Like the precision of nature's awakening, these techniques offer researchers powerful tools for disease diagnosis and therapeutic development. Perfect timing for spring research planning, this comprehensive guide helps scientists across biology, engineering, and medicine cultivate groundbreaking discoveries in the flourishing field of microfluidics.

Nanosensors in Healthcare

Design, Applications, and Regulatory Aspects

Priyanka Prabhu SPP School of Pharmacy & Technology Management, India, Clara Fernandes BCP, Bombay, India , Divya Suares SPP School of Pharmacy & Technology Management, India

This book introduces the readers to the basic concept of a nanosensor; the working of different nanosensors based on electrochemical, optical, magnetic, ultrasound, and hybrid sensing; and their varied applications in the healthcare field. This book highlights the regulatory aspects of nanosensors and the prospects of nanosensors in healthcare. The objective is to give the readers an overview of the possibilities and advances in the field. This book would provide deeper insights into designing nanosensors for precise diagnosis of various diseases.

Natural Fiber Composites for a Sustainable Environment

Edited by Jibin T Philip , Jerin J Jose , Soney C George
Amal Jyothi College of Eng., Kerala, India.

Series: Advances in Design, Materials and Manufacturing for Sustainability

The proposed book covers all the relevant details of Natural Fibre Composites (NFCs) commencing from the reinforcement side to its fabrication routes, mechanical, thermal, and metallurgical characterizations, machining and joining aspects (conventional, advanced and hybrid modes), surface analysis (defects and wettability characterization) and so on. It details reuse, re-manufacturing, and recycling of NFCs. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in sustainable composites, materials science, and polymers.

New Generation of Lithium-ion Batteries for Renewable Energy Storage

Srilatha Rao , G.K. Prashanth , Hemantkumar N. Akolkar , A. K. Haghi

Series: River Publishers Series in Power and Energy Systems

This book is a comprehensive analysis of lithium-ion battery (LIB) technologies. LIBs are one of the most advanced rechargeable batteries available and have garnered significant interest while being the preferred mobile power source for portable electronics while also being widely used across various industries. Combining cutting-edge research with practical insights, it provides an analysis of LIB development, including cathode/anode materials, electrolytes, and separators. It covers Li-ion variants such as LCO, NMC, LFP, LMO, NCA and delves into energy density, cycle life, and safety mechanisms.

Optical Fiber Sensors

Technology and Applications

Edited by Tarun Kumar Gangopadhyay

This book describes optical phenomena, types of optical fiber, fiber-optic sensing system, types of laser sources used in sensor and the development of some novel mechanisms pertaining to fiber optic sensors. It describes several kinds of laser and fiber-based device including mathematical simulations for the development of fiber-sensor and results of measurements of the performance of the latest sensors developed. It also covers properties of photonic crystal fiber (PCF), different applications of PCF-based sensors, Surface Plasmon Resonance, and hybrid plasmonic waveguide. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in optics, sensors, and optoelectronics.

Organic-Inorganic Hybrid Nanomaterials

Energy Harvesting, Storage, and Advanced Applications

Edited by Srikanta Moharana Centurion University, India, Bibhuti B. Sahu , Suresh Sagadevan

Series: Emerging Materials and Technologies

This book investigates the distinctive characteristics and potential of organic-inorganic hybrid nanomaterials in energy harvesting and storage devices in light of rising demand for effective and sustainable energy technology. It covers every aspect of organic-inorganic hybrid nanomaterials, from their basic principles to their synthesis, characterization, and potential uses. This book aims to encourage scientists, engineers, and policymakers to explore the limits of innovation to bring these materials closer to usage and serves as an important reference for academics, scientists, and engineers to explore the field of energy materials.

Polar Electronic Materials

Yuriy Mikhailovich Poplavko , Victor Anatoliyovych Kazmirenko

This book examines polar properties in electronic materials, presenting key concepts about their electrical, mechanical, and thermal effects. It explores the fundamental physics of polar materials through accessible models that explain unusual features of heat transfer, thermal expansion, and the interaction between polarization and electrical conductivity. It also introduces an alternative concept of the internal nature of polarity in non-centrosymmetric crystals. This book is intended for researchers, graduate students, and industry professionals in materials science, solid-state physics, and electronic engineering focused on advancing the field of polar electronic materials.

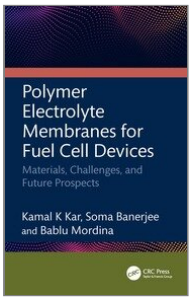
Polymer Electrolyte Membranes for Fuel Cell Devices

Materials, Challenges, and Future Prospects



Kamal K Kar , Soma Banerjee , Bablu Mordina

This volume focuses on the comprehensive discussion on the recent development towards the search of an alternative polymer electrolyte membrane (PEM), the associated challenges and remedies to overcome the underlined practical issues. It critically assesses the merits and demerits of different PEM materials and gives a perspective about where these materials stand with respect to the standard commercial PEM. It cover polymer electrolyte membranes, selection of membrane material, structural chemistry aspect, and recent development of the PEM fuel cells. This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in membrane technology, fuel cells, and chemical engineering.

Slurry Erosion

Flow Phenomenon, Complexities, and Protection Methods

Edited by Jashanpreet Singh Chandigarh University, India, Satish Kumar

Series: Advances in Surface Engineering and Tribology

Slurry Erosion: Flow Phenomenon, Complexities, and Protection Methods presents the necessary fundamentals to understand slurry flows and erosion phenomenon. It describes the complexities in the critical assessment on minimizing erosion and the process of selecting an appropriate protection technique. Addressing new technologies for modeling and achieving reduction in slurry erosion with optimized design, the book highlights how CFD simulations and AI techniques are used to predict slurry erosion. This resource is intended to support researchers and graduate students studying slurry erosion, surface engineering, tribology, erosion and corrosion prevention.

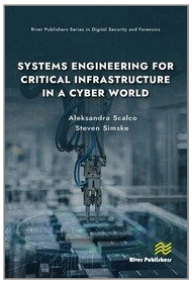
Systems Engineering for Critical Infrastructure in a Cyber World



Aleksandra Scalco , Steven Simske

Series: River Publishers Rapids Series in Digital Security and Forensics

This book is a practical guide to defending critical infrastructure in today's cyber world. Critical infrastructure includes energy, power, water, transportation, manufacturing, and facility systems, along with the sensors and actuators that make up operational technology (OT). It presents a systems engineering framework for coordinating interdependent organizations and technologies, ensuring seamless performance across multiple fields. By combining systems engineering and cyber defense principles, this book equips professionals to work effectively with incident responders, analysts, engineers, and senior management.

The Social Frontiers of Energy Transition

Edited by Evangelia Karasmanaki Democritus University of Thrace, Greece

This book introduces readers to the dynamic social processes that underlie shifts toward sustainable energy futures. Through diverse theoretical reflections and case studies, it highlights how the energy transition intersects with issues of political representation, decision-making structures and the equitable distribution of benefits and burdens associated with energy change. The book is a useful resource for students, researchers, policymakers, and practitioners seeking a more nuanced understanding of how energy change is negotiated, resisted, and realized across different settings.

Thermal Imaging and Computational Intelligence Techniques in Disease Detection

Edited by Neha Singh Manipal University Jaipur, India, Shashi Kant Dargar , Shilpi Birla Manipal University Jaipur, India, Josephine Selle Jeyanathan Kalasalingam Academy of Research and Education, India

The text presents a compilation of research and methodologies at the intersection of thermal imaging, medical diagnostics, and artificial intelligence for non-invasive early disease detection, diagnosis, and monitoring across a spectrum of medical conditions. It highlights the importance of using the latest technologies to improve performance, productivity, efficiency, and security in healthcare without sacrificing reliability or accessibility.

Thin Film Coatings

Fundamentals and Advancements

Edited by Lokeswar Patnaik , Sunil Kumar , Magdalena Lepicka , Saikat Ranjan Maity

Series: Advanced Materials Processing and Manufacturing

This book provides a thorough overview of the fundamental principles, design strategies, fabrication techniques, characterization methods, and diverse applications of thin films and advancements therein. With a balance between theoretical concepts, practical applications and computational techniques, the book offers a holistic understanding of the subject matter, paving the way for students, researchers and engineers to guide through fabrication and characterization of thin films backed by real-world examples. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in materials science, characterization, and thin films.

Smart and Sustainable Gig Economy in the Industrial 5.0 Era

Engineering and Management Aspects

Edited by Ehsan Khajeh , Zahra Mohammadnazari

Series: Smart and Sustainable Operations and Supply Chain Management

The gig economy has changed the way firms behave in relation to their human resources. This book analyzes Industry 5.0 and the human capital revolution with the rise of the gig economy and closes an existing gap in available literature with the novel ideas it brings. This book presents state-of-the-art knowledge on smart and sustainable supply chain management in a gig economy suitable for researchers, professionals, and UG/PG individuals.

Advances in High-Order Sensitivity Analysis

Dan Gabriel Cacuci University of South Carolina

Series: Advances in Applied Mathematics

As this book shows, in sensitivity analysis using conventional methods, the number of large-scale computations increases exponentially in the phase-space of "model parameters" as the order of sensitivities increases. The "adjoint method" of sensitivity analysis conceived by Cacuci is the most efficient method for computing exactly first-order sensitivities, as it requires a single large-scale (adjoint) computation, independently of the number of model parameters. The book will be of interest to postgraduate and professional mathematicians as well as engineers and scientists.

Bayesian Statistical Methods

With Applications to Machine Learning

Brian J. Reich N.C. State University, Sujit K. Ghosh

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

Bayesian Statistical Methods: With Applications to Machine Learning provides data scientists with the foundational and computational tools needed to carry out a Bayesian analysis. Compared to others, this book is more focused on Bayesian methods applied routinely in practice including multiple linear regression, mixed effects models and generalized linear models. This second edition includes a new chapter on Bayesian machine learning methods to handle large and complex datasets and several new applications to illustrate the benefits the Bayesian approach in terms of uncertainty quantification.

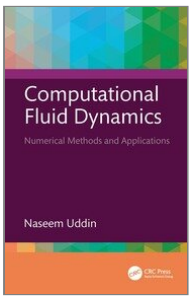
Computational Fluid Dynamics

Numerical Methods and Applications



Naseem Uddin Universiti Teknologi Brunei

Computational Fluid Dynamics: Numerical Methods and Applications offers a comprehensive exploration of computational fluid dynamics (CFD) methods, focusing on numerical techniques for solving fluid flow problems through both finite difference and finite-volume methods. It explores numerical schemes, advection-diffusion equations, shock-capturing methods, and turbulence modeling. Emphasizing stability and accuracy preservation as part of modern CFD practice, the book addresses both laminar and turbulent regimes. Senior undergraduate aerospace and mechanical engineering students taking a CFD course will find this book particularly valuable.

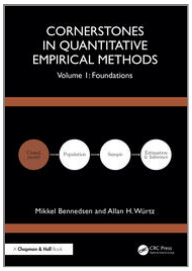
Cornerstones in Quantitative Empirical Methods

Volume 1: Foundations



Mikkel Bennedsen , Allan Würtz

Cornerstones in Quantitative Empirical Methods - Volume I: Foundations provides a complete, self-contained path from first principles to modern statistical inference, giving a comprehensive technical foundation for understanding and analyzing data problems using quantitative methods. The first part of the book provides a thorough introduction to probability theory and statistics with focus on techniques and concepts, which are particularly useful for empirical analyses. Building directly on the first part, the second part of the book provides an introduction to estimation theory, hypothesis testing, likelihood theory, and Bayesian methods.

Experimental Design for Data Science and Engineering

V. Roshan Joseph Georgia Institute of Technology

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

The book describes efficient statistical methods for making the experiments cheaper and computations faster for extracting valuable information from data and help identify discrepancies in the theory. It also includes recent advances in experimental designs for dealing with large amounts of observational data. Traditionally the design and analysis of physical and computer experiments are treated differently, but this book attempts to create a unified framework using Gaussian process models. A wide variety of topics are covered -- from designs for interpolating or integrating simple functions to designs that are useful for optimizing and calibrating complex computer models.

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

This book provides the basic mathematics needed to understand AI and ML. It serves both students of mathematics and those who want to fill any gaps in their mathematics experience. It is written as both a text for a course and as a focused look at mathematics needed for readers hoping to learn more. The author has taught every topic in this book, often in different contexts, and the material and exercises are drawn from lecture notes. The material in the book represents a curated set of topics from the undergraduate math curriculum, some first-year seminar material, and some student project topics.

Real and Functional Analysis

Kenneth Kuttler Brigham Young University

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

This unique book gives a manageable introduction to functional analysis and a thorough treatment of real analysis. Authored as a graduate textbook in analysis, the book could be used for a course in real analysis based on the Lebesgue theory of integration and/or a course on functional analysis. It is assumed the reader has studied a normed vector space, sometimes referred to as a linear space, along with the basic linear theorems, and has a working knowledge of basic set theory and the notation used in this subject. Otherwise, the book is essentially self-contained. Many of the exercises extend the theorems and supply examples to illustrate the theorems proved in the book.

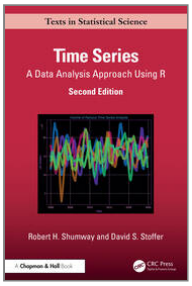
Time Series

A Data Analysis Approach Using R



Robert H. Shumway , David S. Stoffer University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, USA

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

The goals of this second edition are to develop the skills and an appreciation for the richness and versatility of modern time series analysis as a tool for analyzing dependent data. An expanded feature of this edition is the inclusion of many nontrivial data sets illustrating the wealth of potential applications to problems in the biological, physical, and social sciences as well as in economics and medicine. The book can be used for a one semester/quarter introductory time series course where the prerequisites are an understanding of linear regression, basic calculus-based probability and statistics skills, and math skills at the high school level.

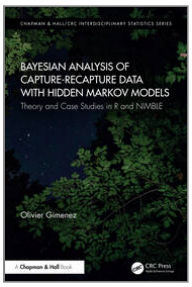
Bayesian Analysis of Capture-Recapture Data with Hidden Markov Models

Theory and Case Studies in R and NIMBLE



Olivier Gimenez Centre d'Ecologie Fonctionnelle et Evolutive - CNRS, France

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Interdisciplinary Statistics

Introduces ecologists and statisticians to a powerful and unifying framework for analysing capture-recapture data. Hidden Markov models (HMMs) have become a cornerstone in modern population ecology.

Deep-Learning-Assisted Statistical Methods with Examples in R

Tianyu Zhan

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Data Science Series

This book explores how deep learning enhances statistical methods for hypothesis testing, point estimation, optimization, interpretation, and other aspects. It uniquely demonstrates leveraging deep learning to improve traditional statistical approaches, showcasing their superior performance in practical applications. This book is a valuable resource for students, practitioners, and researchers integrating statistics and data science techniques to solve impactful real-world problems.

2ND EDITION

Dose-exposure-response Modeling

Methods and Practical Implementation

Jixian Wang Celgene International, Switzerland

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Biostatistics Series

This thoroughly revised and updated new edition reflects the progress that has been made in dose-exposure-response (DER) modelling. As the title suggests, the new edition covers more topics on dose and dose adjustment. A large part of the book has been rewritten. The new appendix contains non-standard materials used in the book. Applied statisticians and modelers can find details on how to implement new approaches while researchers can find topics for or applications of their work. In addition, students can see how complicated methodology and models are applied to practical situations.

Double Generalized Linear Models

Likelihood and Bayesian Methods

Edilberto Cepeda-Cuervo

Provides an introduction to double generalized linear models (DGLMs), under frequentist and Bayesian frameworks. These models include the class of generalized linear models and compose a unified class of models, where appropriate functions of the mean and dispersion parameters follow linear regression structures that are linear combinations of the explanatory variables.

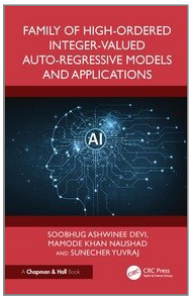
Family of High-Ordered Integer-Valued Auto-Regressive Models and Applications



Ashwinee Devi Soobhug , Naushad Mamode Khan , Sunecher Yuvraj

This book tackles the complexities of integer-valued time series analysis, focusing on over-dispersion, excess zeros, and non-stationarity. It explores high-ordered INAR(p) models with diverse thinning mechanisms and innovation distributions, finding CML superior for inference. The target audience includes researchers, statisticians, and practitioners working with count data and time series analysis in fields like econometrics, finance, epidemiology, and criminology.

Long Memory Time Series Analysis

Gnanadarsha Sanjaya Dissanayake , Hassan Doosti

Long Memory Time Series Analysis is a comprehensive text which covers long memory time series, with the different long memory time series discussed. The authors cover modelling and forecasting using various time series, deploying traditional and machine learning methodologies. The core audience is the students attending advance studies in Time Series. It can also be used by researchers and data scientists involved in utilizing time series analysis in a modern context.

Theory of Factorial Experiments

Modern Methods, Applications, and R Implementation

Dilip Kumar Ghosh

This book introduces modern methods for estimating and analysing factorial experiments, including a new Hadamard matrix-based technique for 2n2^n2n designs. Covering confounded, asymmetrical, and super-saturated designs, it demonstrates the use of factorial experiments in constructing various block designs. It also explores the analysis of variance for asymmetrical factorial designs and confounded experiments, including single and double confounding schemes, offering a practical guide to implementing these methods in RStudio, including examples and computation of ANOVA tables. This book is for graduate students, academic researchers, and applied statisticians.

Time Series Decomposition and Seasonal Adjustment

Ping Zong

This book provides an in-depth examination of time series decomposition and seasonal adjustment, focusing on the X-13ARIMA-SEATS and TRAMO-SEATS methods. Seasonal adjustment removes distortions such as seasonal fluctuations and holiday effects from economic indicators (eg, GDP, CPI), enabling clearer insights into underlying trends, cycles, and shocks. These tools are vital for sound policymaking, accurate forecasting, and reliable international comparisons. Intended for students, researchers, staff at national statistical agencies, central banks, and financial institutions, the book equips readers with methodological and practical tools to navigate evolving economic data landscapes.

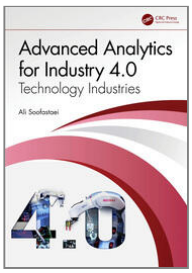
Advanced Analytics for Industry 4.0

Technology Industries



Ali Soofastaei The University of Queensland, Australia

Advanced analytics has gained massive momentum in the industrial sector Technology enterprises consolidate using the online data sources to deliver analytics and intelligence that inform everything from operations process automation to customer experiences. This volume clarifies the benefits of using advanced analytics in technology industries like computer, telecommunication, aerospace, electronics, robotics, e-commerce and so forth. It covers how lower costs and democratized data increase access and management speed, dynamic forecasting and complete visibility into supply chains, and improvement of security measures that ensure ongoing privacy compliance-like remote work.

AI Forensics

Investigation and Analysis of Artificial Intelligence Systems

Joseph C. Sremack

AI Forensics provides the first comprehensive framework for investigating artificial intelligence systems when they fail, cause harm, or become subjects of legal or regulatory scrutiny. As AI systems power critical decisions, traditional digital forensics proves inadequate for understanding their complex, opaque, and dynamic behaviors. This practical guide equips forensic investigators, legal professionals, and AI practitioners with specialized methodologies tailored to AI's unique characteristics. It provides both technical depth for expert practitioners and accessible explanations for legal professionals who must understand and present AI evidence in court proceedings.

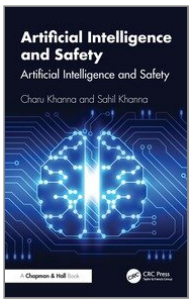
Artificial Intelligence and Safety

A Practical Guide for Programmers and Decision Makers



Charu Khanna , Sahil Khanna

In a world where machines learn, evolve, and sometimes outthink us, Artificial Intelligence and Safety offers a rare, integrated lens into both the power and peril of intelligent systems. Drawing on the authors' unique blend of programming mastery and enterprise risk leadership, this is your compass in the age of intelligent machines. This guide demystifies AI for everyone—from software architects to policymakers and risk managers. Whether you're crafting LLMs or setting enterprise policy, it empowers you to not only ask the right questions but build the right systems, because the future of AI isn't just about building intelligence, it's about building it responsibly.

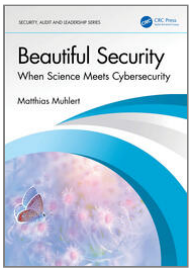
Beautiful Security

When Science Meets Cybersecurity



Matthias Muhlert

Series: Security, Audit and Leadership Series

Transform your approach to digital defence by discovering the profound beauty in scientific principles that govern modern security. In an era where cyber threats evolve exponentially while defenses lag behind, we need more than incremental improvements—we need a paradigm shift. Through three complementary perspectives—Science Educator, Beauty Admirer, and Security Nerd—each concept comes alive with clarity, aesthetic appreciation, and practical implementation. Real-world scenarios demonstrate how a security analyst discovered fractal patterns that exposed an advanced persistent threat.

Becoming Homo lucidus

Min Ding Pennsylvania State University, US

What happens when humanity steps beyond the limits of biology and creates intelligence greater than its own? Becoming Homo lucidus offers a bold vision of that future and a roadmap for how to prepare. The book traces humanity's journey from Biological Intelligence (BI) to Digital Intelligence (DI), showing how the two will converge to usher in Homo lucidus. If you wonder what the rise of Digital Intelligence (DI) means for your life, your children, or the world you live in, this is both a guide and an invitation: to endure until 2035, navigate the turbulent transition to 2045, and prosper in lifespans that may extend for centuries and more.

Digital Accessibility Ethics

Disability Inclusion in All Things Tech

Edited by Lainey Feingold , Reginé Gilbert , Chancey Fleet

Digital Accessibility Ethics is a practical guide with an urgent goal: to help end tech exclusion of 1.3 billion people across the world with disabilities. The book introduces the first Digital Accessibility Ethics Framework – an action-oriented, three-part tool designed to influence, change, and disrupt patterns of exclusion with values, actions, and questions. This book is for technologists, educators, students, marketers, policy makers and everyone who has ever posted on social media or sent an email. It encourages us to stop and ask ourselves: who are we excluding by our actions? Who are we harming, what are we risking, by our decisions?

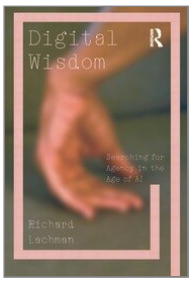
Digital Wisdom

Searching for Agency in the Age of AI



Richard Lachman

This book facilitates a more nuanced and informed dialogue with our technologically-mediated future. Through a critical examination of current technological trends—including artificial intelligence, privacy, and social media—this work highlights the discrepancies between prevailing assumptions and the societal effects of these technologies. The text is designed to be accessible to a broad audience, offering both clarity and practical strategies for navigating the evolving digital landscape. It also addresses how to reshape the innovation process to mitigate the reactive 'hype-cycle' nature of technology marketing, with proposed interventions in education, government, and industry.

Forensic Investigation of Smart Digital Devices

A Hands-on Guide

Farkhund Iqbal

The rapid advancement and ubiquitous presence of smart connected devices have transformed our daily lives. However, this growth has also led to an exponential rise in electronic data generation and storage, which has created new avenues for cybercrime. As devices ranging from home appliances to vehicles and wearable technology become integral to our everyday activities, they continuously produce data that can be exploited by malicious actors, necessitating robust forensic investigation techniques. "Forensic Investigation of Smart Connected Devices: A Hands-on Guide" provides a thorough and practical resource for addressing the forensic challenges associated with these technologies.

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Artificial Intelligence and Robotics Series

Thoughtfully explores why language-based AI represents something fundamentally different from previous automation, examining both imagined fears and genuine possibilities for workforce transformation. It explains why institutional change takes time despite impressive capabilities, how AI systems are quietly becoming our digital confidants, and why we may eventually come to resent the very technologies we initially embrace. Explained through real-world examples and practical frameworks, along with companion fictional stories. Readers will gain practical wisdom for leveraging conversational AI while preserving human creativity, relationships, and independent thinking.

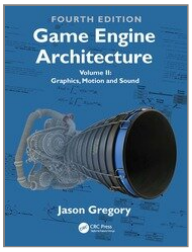
4TH EDITION

Game Engine Architecture

Volume II, Graphics, Motion and Sound



Jason Gregory

In this new and improved fourth edition, Jason Gregory draws on his two decades of experience at Midway, Electronic Arts and Naughty Dog to present both the theory and practice of game engine software development. The broad range of technologies and techniques used by AAA game studios are each explained in detail, and their roles within a real industrial-strength game engine are illustrated. This book is intended to serve as an introductory text, but it also offers the experienced game programmer a useful perspective on aspects of game development technology with which they may not have deep experience.

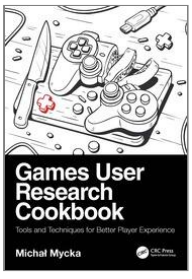
Games User Research Cookbook

Tools and Techniques for Better Player Experience



Michał Mycka

This book offers a comprehensive and practical guide to Games User Research (GUR). Blending theory and hands-on experience, it walks readers through methods, tools, and techniques tailored to the real-world constraints of small and medium-sized game development studios to support them in delivering better player experiences. Whether you're an indie developer wanting to better understand your players, UX designer or researcher moving from application software to the world of games, this book will provide you with all the information you need to build better player experiences.

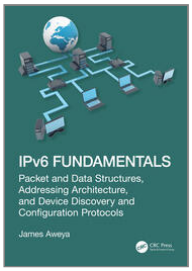
IPv6 Fundamentals

Packet and Data Structures, Addressing Architecture, Device Discovery, and Configuration Protocols



James Aweya

This book explores the essential concepts and practical implementation of IPv6, the next-generation Internet Protocol designed to address the limitations of IPv4 and support the exponential growth of internet-connected devices. This book is intended for network engineers, IT administrators, system architects, and telecommunications professionals responsible for planning, implementing, and managing network infrastructure. Academic readers, including advanced undergraduate and graduate students in computer networking courses, will appreciate the clear explanations of fundamental concepts.

Modern Benford's Law

State of the Art Techniques for Audit and Compliance Professionals

Daniel J. McCarville

Series: Security, Audit and Leadership Series

Benford's Law offers a powerful, data-driven approach to anomaly detection. Discovered 150 years ago, it wasn't until the 1990s that auditors began harnessing its potential for identifying irregularities in financial data. Today, the Benford's Law community spans a wide range of professions and academic disciplines. This book provides the latest research-based techniques packaged for ready usage by auditors and audit analytics professionals. Discover how to use Benford's Law in continuous monitoring and pinpoint non-compliant vendors, accounts or other groups.

Quantum Ready

The Enterprise Guide to Post-Quantum Cryptographic Readiness

Walt Powell

Quantum Ready is not just a warning, it's a field guide for the era of quantum disruption. As quantum computing accelerates toward the threshold where today's encryption becomes obsolete, organizations must prepare now or risk a catastrophic breakdown in digital trust. Written by one of the world's first Field CISOs, this book delivers a strategic, vendor-neutral roadmap for CISOs, security architects, and IT leaders responsible for protecting long-term data and infrastructure. It introduces the Q-Ready Framework, a comprehensive five-phase approach to discovering, prioritizing, migrating, validating, and sustaining quantum-safe cryptography across the enterprise.

Red Team Evaluation Framework

Sharpening the Spear: A Framework for Forging and Measuring an Elite Adversary Emulation Team

Series: Cyber Shorts

Is your red team delivering genuine security value or just expensive theater? In an era where cybersecurity investments are under constant scrutiny, organizations can no longer afford to treat red teaming as a simple compliance checkbox. This book, Red Team Evaluation Framework, provides a definitive guide for transforming your red team program from a technical expense into a strategic asset. Moving beyond a mere list of exploits, this framework equips CISOs, security managers, and practitioners with the tools to assess and quantify the effectiveness of red team engagements.

Security Relationship Management and The Shortest Hour Two-Book Bundle

Lee Parrish Lee Parrish Ventures, USA

Series: Security, Audit and Leadership Series

Aligning information security with business goals is key to managing risks effectively without harming the company. But how can a Chief Information Security Officer (CISO) achieve this? This book explores how CISOs can tailor their messaging using proven marketing concepts—like segmentation, the Four Ps, and customer relationship management—adapted for cybersecurity. It introduces Security Relationship Management (SRM), a framework for managing the complex web of relationships a CISO navigates. By tracking interactions and analysing SRM data, CISOs can improve alignment between security and business initiatives.

Unveiling the Art of Steganography

A Modern Approach

Urmila Pilania , Manoj Kumar

The book delves into the fundamentals of steganography, the ancient art of hiding messages in plain sight. From the historical roots to modern applications, readers are taken on a journey through the techniques that transform seemingly ordinary content into carriers of covert communication. The book not only demystifies the basics of steganography but also sheds light on its contemporary applications in digital security, forensics, and confidential messaging. "Hidden Ink" is a captivating guide for both enthusiasts eager to unravel secrets and professionals seeking insights into the nuanced realm of steganography.

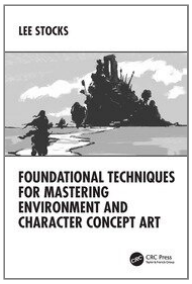
Foundational Techniques for Mastering Environment and Character Concept Art



Lee Stocks

This is a comprehensive guide to the process of generating ideas for creating character and environment art. The book shows comprehensive workshops and techniques to embed the fundamentals of designing characters and environments for games and film. The underlying process is explained and demonstrated to give a straightforward approach that anyone can use. Using these processes, you will be able to produce designs that are straight out of your imagination. This book will be of great interest to anyone looking to gain a grounding in the theory and practice of concept art for character and environments. It will be particularly useful for students on game art courses.

GPT Meets Game Theory

Training and Optimizing Generative AI Models

Hamidou Tembine New York University, UAE.

This book explores a new way to understand and employ neural networks through the lens of game theory. It shows how these systems can be seen as players working together or competing to achieve goals. Focusing on transformers, the book explains key mathematical concepts and strategies in a clear, approachable way. It looks at how these ideas apply to "mean-field" models and how they can be used in situations like federated learning, where many devices work together to train an AI system. This is an illuminating read for computer science, engineering, and mathematics researchers who are interested in the mathematical underpinnings of deep learning models.

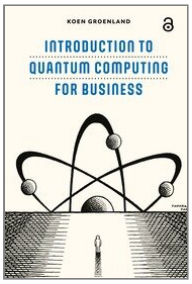
Introduction to Quantum Computing for Business



Koen Groenland

How will businesses use quantum technology in the future? What problems will a quantum computer solve? How long will it take before these devices become commercially relevant?,With the first generation of quantum computers on the horizon, understanding their impact is more relevant than ever. Luckily, you don't need a physics degree to understand the functionality of these computers, just like you don't need to know how a transistor works to excel in conventional IT. This book is the perfect introduction to the opportunities and threats of quantum technologies. It equips you with the necessary knowledge to join cutting-edge discussions and make strategic decisions.

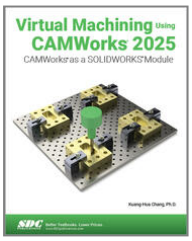
Virtual Machining Using CAMWorks 2025

CAMWorks as a SOLIDWORKS Module



Kuang-Hua Chang

This book is written to help you learn the core concepts and steps used to conduct virtual machining using CAMWorks. CAMWorks is a virtual machining tool designed to increase your productivity and efficiency by simulating machining operations on a computer before creating a physical product. CAMWorks is embedded in SOLIDWORKS as a fully integrated module. CAMWorks provides excellent capabilities for machining simulations in a virtual environment. Capabilities in CAMWorks allow you to select CNC machines and tools, extract or create machinable features, define machining operations, and simulate and visualize machining toolpaths.

Artificial Intelligence in Smart Healthcare Systems

Edited by Anamika Chauhan , Nisreen Alwan , Hiba Hamdar , Indresh Kumar

This book provides a holistic examination of artificial intelligence in healthcare, covering a wide spectrum of applications rather than focusing on isolated aspects. By showcasing how AI is currently being applied in diverse healthcare scenarios, the book ensures that readers can connect theoretical concepts to tangible, real-life outcomes, enhancing their understanding and facilitating practical application.

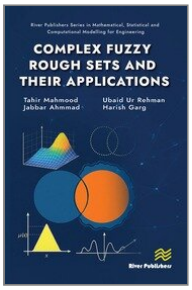
Complex Fuzzy Rough Sets and Their Applications



Tahir Mahmood , Jabbar Ahmmad , Ubaid Ur Rehman , Harish Garg

Series: River Publishers Series in Mathematical, Statistical and Computational Modelling for Engineering

This book explains the foundational principles of fuzzy algebra, including fuzzy sets, fuzzy operations, and fuzzy relations. It shows how fuzzy algebra can be applied in artificial intelligence, particularly in areas such as decision-making, pattern recognition, and machine learning, where uncertainty and imprecision are common. It demonstrates the use of fuzzy algebra in engineering disciplines, such as control systems, cybersecurity, signal processing, and robotics, where fuzzy logic can be used to model and solve complex and real-world problems. This makes the book valuable not just for process engineers, but also for researchers in multiple domains.

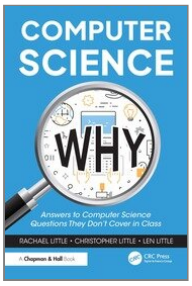
Computer Science Why

Answers to Computer Science Questions They Don't Cover in Class



Rachael Little , Christopher Little , Len Little

CS Why is a book that presents a straightforward, curiosity-based approach to filling in the blanks around common, introductory material taught in Computer Science classes. If you have ever wondered "why is that?" about a programming phenomenon, historical tidbit, or common terminology, this book may have an answer that explains it. Perfect for both students and IT professionals, this book provides the clear "why" to answer so many unstated CS questions. Take any example in the book, from base 2 to timezones, and you will have an answer that cements your insight on the "why" of the topic, reinforcing your rote memorization with deeper understanding and insight.

CyberSentinel+

An Advanced Hybrid Honeypot Intrusion Detection System Augmented with Big Data Analytics and Machine Learning Intelligence

Akshay Mudgal

Cybersecurity in the Big Data Era is a fascinating look at the invisible fight going on under our networked lives. In a world where every heartbeat of society is mirrored in digital code, this book shows us how to protect ourselves. This book is more than simply a technical handbook; it's a wake-up call, a roadmap, and a survival aid for anybody who uses digital systems, from business executives and IT professionals to regular people. Go to the nerve center of modern civilization, where power grids, hospitals, banks, and governments all work together perfectly in the digital world—until one small breach threatens to bring it all crashing down.

Fuzzy Logic in Revolutionizing Renewable Energy

Edited by Bhupinder Singh , Komal Vig , Ruchi Lal , Budi Agus Riswandi

Series: Jenny Stanford Series on Fuzzy Theory Frontiers, Vol. 1

This book comes from a fundamental belief that the future of energy is in our willingness to invent and improve, so as to not just survive against nature but also make it sustainable. It discusses the importance of fuzzy logic in smart infrastructure control system, fault detection and management in renewable energy systems (solar photovoltaic, wind, hydroelectric, biomass, and biogas energy systems), federated learning devices for renewable energy, intelligent energy management, enhanced wave and tidal energy conversion, and achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals through renewable energy innovations.

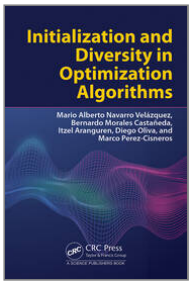
Initialization and Diversity in Optimization Algorithms



Diego Oliva University de Guadalajara, Mexico, Marco Antonio Perez Cisneros , Bernardo Morales-Castañeda , Mario A. Navarro Velázquez

This book delves into designing effective swarm intelligence algorithms, focusing on two critical aspects: initialization and diversity. It explores various initialization techniques, emphasizing their role in avoiding local optima and accelerating convergence. It also examines methods for maintaining population diversity throughout the optimization process, crucial for thorough search space exploration. Featuring examples with Differential Evolution and Particle Swarm Optimization, the book provides theoretical insights, practical MATLAB® code, and exercises for algorithm design and experimentation.

Scheduling Variable Capacity Resources for Sustainability

Edited by Anne Benoit Ecole Normale Supérieure de Lyon, France, Andrew A. Chien , Yves Robert

This book is the first to provide an overview of variable capacity scheduling and how it helps balance the growth of computing with its growing environmental impact by creating more resilient and efficient systems that adapt to the dynamic nature of resource availability, optimizing utilization and minimizing disruptions. The book covers all aspects of variable capacity scheduling from a technical and a societal perspective. Presenting all the corresponding challenges and opportunities of variable capacity scheduling, this is an excellent introduction to the topic for students, researchers, computing scientists, or concerned citizens interested in sustainability.

Large Language Models for Chemists

Applications and Insights

Zhiling Zheng

Large Language Models for Chemists breaks down that barrier by demystifying how LLMs work in an accessible way and showing, step-by-step, how they can be applied to solve real chemistry problems. Written in a friendly, tutorial style, the book assumes only a basic background in chemistry and minimal programming experience. It begins by gently introducing artificial intelligence and machine learning concepts in lay terms, building up to the inner workings of LLMs without heavy math. Readers will learn how these models "think" and generate text, gaining an intuitive understanding of concepts like neural networks, transformers, and training data using analogies and simple diagrams.

Quantum Clear

Quantum Mechanics Free of Paradoxes

F.J. Duarte Interferometric Optics, Jonesborough, Tennessee, USA

Quantum Clear presents quantum mechanics through its fundamental pillars- quantum interference and entanglement- without paradoxes. Beginning with historical context, it addresses the EPR argument, demonstrating why quantum mechanics isn't incomplete. The author explains why wave function collapse is unnecessary and shows there's no measurement problem from experimental perspectives. The book explores quantum communications, computing, cryptography, and teleportation in transparent language, describing how these concepts are transforming engineering. It's accessible to scientific and general audiences, aiming to unravel the misunderstandings surrounding quantum mechanics.

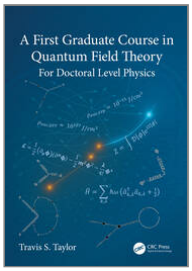
A First Graduate Course in Quantum Field Theory

For Doctoral Level Physics



Travis S. Taylor Author and Consultant, Huntsville, Alabama USA

This book is designed as an introductory course in Quantum Field Theory (QFT) for students who have completed two full graduate-level courses in Quantum Mechanics (QM). Quantum Field Theory is the framework that combines quantum mechanics with special relativity, providing a comprehensive description of fundamental forces and particles. It is a crucial part of modern theoretical physics and essential for understanding the behaviour of elementary particles, the dynamics of fields, and the interactions that govern the universe at the smallest scales. This book is structured to gradually introduce the key concepts and mathematical tools necessary for mastering QFT.

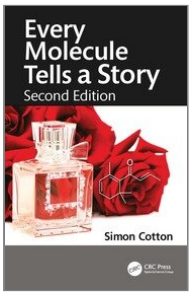
2ND EDITION

Every Molecule Tells a Story



Simon Anthony Cotton University of Birmingham, UK

This latest edition continues the celebration of molecules responsible for the experiences of everyday life such as the air we breathe, the water we drink, the chemicals that fuel our living. It presents new sections, notably the chemistry of molecules in food, including spices; vitamins; molecules with unpleasant smells (which seem to interest many people!); organic halogen compounds, substances which have an undeserved reputation. It also covers developments such as the chemistry of drugs; drugs of abuse, for example opioid painkillers. Based on the highly successful first edition, this book brushes away any preconceived notions about chemistry to demonstrate its importance.

Semiconductors and Nanostructures

An Introduction

Rui César Vilão

Series: Textbook Series in Physical Sciences

Semiconductors and Nanostructures: An Introduction provides a rigorous yet accessible introduction to semiconductor physics. Bridging the gap between introductory quantum mechanics and advanced semiconductor courses, it offers a compact yet comprehensive overview that empowers students to understand and engage with both fundamental concepts and real-world applications. This textbook is an indispensable resource for undergraduate and graduate students in physics and engineering, particularly those preparing for advanced studies or careers in semiconductor technology. It is a practical, pedagogically refined resource for both coursework and self-study.

Alzheimer's Disease

Diagnosis, Molecular Targets, and Therapeutic Modalities

Edited by Devendra Kumar SVKM's NMIMS (Deemed-to-be) University, India, Shraddha Manish Gupta UPES Dehradun, India, Nagendra Singh Chauhan Drugs Testing Laboratory Avam Anusandhan Kendra, Raipur, Kamal Shah GLA University, Uttar Pradesh, India

Alzheimer's disease continues to present one of the foremost scientific and clinical challenges in contemporary neuroscience. Despite significant advances in molecular biology and neuroimaging, its complex etiology and progressive course remain only partially understood, and truly effective disease-modifying therapies remain elusive. This scholarly volume offers a comprehensive and integrative examination of Alzheimer's disease, combining cutting-edge research with clinical perspectives. Alzheimer's Disease: Diagnosis, Molecular Targets, and Therapeutic Modalities assembles contributions from leading experts, providing in-depth analysis across a wide range of topics.

Engineered Ceramics and Composite Materials

From Fundamentals to Applications

Edited by Neethu Bhaskar , Sathish Kumar Palaniappan , Sanjay Mavinkere Rangappa University of Technology, Thailand, Suchart Siengchin University of Technology, Thailand

Series: Advanced Materials Processing and Manufacturing

This book provides comprehensive insight into the diversity of ceramics and their applications in producing clean devices and their capability of being recycled into useful in-demand products. The emphasis is on the role of ceramic industries to build a circular economy by reusing and recycling the ceramic waste for environmental, financial, and social sustainability. It summarizes the energy and environmental benefits of ceramic materials and composites, covering its complete life cycle starting from synthesis to recycling and disposal. This book is aimed at researchers and graduate students in materials science, ceramics, and composites.

Extended Equations for Particles

Spin, General Theory and Exact Solution

Alina V. Ivashkevich , Elena M. Ovsiyuk , Anton V. Bury , Aleksander V. Chichurin , Vasily V. Kisel , Viktor M. Red'kov

Extended Equations for Particles: Spin, General Theory and Exact Solution presents a unified theoretical framework for understanding relativistic wave equations describing particles with spins S = 0, 1/2, 1 and additional internal electromagnetic structure. Through mathematical analysis and physical interpretation, the book bridges fundamental concepts across quantum field theory, relativistic quantum mechanics, and electromagnetic theory. The text introduces methodologies for developing new relativistic systems of equations that describe particles with electromagnetic characteristics beyond electric charge.

Glass Photonics

Materials, Properties, and Applications

Maurizio Ferrari , Anna Łukowiak , Luigi Sirleto

This book, devoted to glass photonics, is homage to Prof. Dr Giancarlo C. Righini on his 80th birthday. This milestone signifies a lifetime of rich scientific experiences and notable achievements in optics and photonics, with special regard to glass and other optical materials. The book shows how glass photonics plays a crucial role in the current Age of Light. The former part of book focuses on photonic devices in fiber and integrated optics format.

Water Governance

Nurturing Resilience for Sustainable Development

Edited by Umair Riaz , Laila Shahzad , Fernanda Maria Policarpo Tonelli

Explores the use of water governance as a way to achieve sustainable development in a highly resource exploited era. It consolidates the existing knowledge and understanding of management and governance in the context of resilience in water sector. It looks at water scarcity and the need for governance from all sides—from theory to practice. It considers water resources in conjunction with changing climate implications, economic ramifications and issues, the political context of water resources, and much more.

Photography and Science in Victorian Culture

Edited by Jordan Bear

Series: Nineteenth-Century Science, Technology and Medicine: Sources and Documents

This is a volume of primary sources that speak to the relationship between photography and science in Victorian culture. It will guide readers by selecting and situating a group of texts that register the most significant of these debates in engaging ways. It will provide scholars working in a variety of fields–the history of science, literary studies, and art history, to name only a few–with access to overlooked but critical sources that can stimulate their own inquiries. Students will be immersed in the most vivid disputes of scientific culture, and will benefit from the skills developed by analyzing and situating primary sources.

Celebrating the 25th Anniversary of Routledge Classics

The Routledge Classics series was launched in 2001, taking the cream of Routledge's prestigious backlist and presenting it to a new generation of readers.

It now includes over three hundred titles and has sold over three million copies. It is proud to contain some of the most innovative, ground-breaking and important books of modern times; books that are, by popular consent, classics in their field.

In 2026 we are delighted to celebrate the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Routledge Classics series, with new titles by Patricia Hill Collins, Jacques Derrida, Paul Preston and Karl Popper. All include new Forewords, Prefaces or Introductions.

A Routledge Classic inspires, challenges and educates in equal measure and can be read by anyone.

We hope you enjoy this selection of exciting new titles to mark the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the series.

> It's a remarkable series. These are the books that helped shape the intellectual life of the 20th century.
> – Al Alvarez

> Routledge Classics is more than just a collection of texts...it embodies and circulates challenging ideas and keeps vital debates current and alive.
>
> – Hilary Mantel
